HEALTH

EU Health Ministers

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): The informal meeting of European Union Health Ministers took place on 17 and 18 April in Brdo, Slovenia. I represented the UK. Items on the agenda were: reducing the burden of cancer; information on the conclusions of the third European conference on alcohol policies; implementation of the EU health strategy; and antimicrobial resistance.

On reducing the burden of cancer, the European Commission noted that a report on the implementation of the 2003 Council recommendation on cancer screening was nearly finalised: this would say that there was still some way to go before the recommendation was fully implemented. Potential areas for future action on cancer included: work on screening; collecting comparable health information and data on the cancer burden; and sharing best practice. A 2009 Commission action plan on cancer would cover these. I emphasised the value of high quality EU level data and combining resources on cancer research. Belgium and Denmark agreed with the UK that greater co-operation on research would add real value at EU level.

On alcohol, the presidency noted that a recent conference, "Building Capacity for Action" had taken place in Barcelona on 2 to 4 April. Sweden then emphasised that alcohol-related harm and ill health would be a key theme of their presidency (during the second half of 2009) and that they would place a special emphasis on examining commercial communications and advertising.

On the implementation mechanism for the EU health strategy, the presidency introduced their proposal for revising the mandate of the senior level working party on health. The presidency proposal received wide-ranging support from member states, including France, Germany, Portugal, Austria, Denmark and Malta. I also emphasised that the "health in all policies" approach proposed in the strategy and the focus on health inequalities meant that the Council needed to take an interest in the work of other Commission Directorate-Generals, as well as DG SANCO.

On antimicrobial resistance, the European Centre for Disease Control (ECDC) gave a presentation on the growing problem and burden of this health issue. The ECDC also highlighted the increasing problem of multi-drug resistant tuberculosis, concluding that better implementation of the 2001 Council recommendation was needed. France indicated that they would carry on work on antimicrobial resistance during its presidency.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Anthony Leon Peart

The Solicitor-General (Vera Baird): On 22 November, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing, the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Justice, my right hon. Friend the Member for Liverpool, Garstang (Maria Eagle) and I invited HM chief inspector of the Crown Prosecution Service, HM chief inspector of constabulary, HM chief inspector of courts administration and HM chief inspector of prisons jointly to undertake a review into the circumstances which led to Anthony Leon Peart being at liberty on 29 July 2005, when Richard Whelan was fatally stabbed by him.

Richard Whelan was unlawfully killed on the day that Peart had been released from Forest Bank prison—a privately run prison—in Pendlebury, Greater Manchester. At the time of his release there was a warrant outstanding from Liverpool Crown court for his immediate arrest.

I have today placed a copy of the report of the review in the Library of both Houses and published it on the Attorney-General's office website.

The Government very much regret the death of Richard Whelan and thank the chief inspectors for their work, and we are determined to learn lessons from this.

The report makes clear there was nothing in this individual's offending history that would have suggested him to be capable of the extreme, spontaneous violence that took place on 29 July 2005 and which resulted in the death of Richard Whelan. However, the report makes clear that agencies in the criminal justice system must work together more closely to address the more general issues identified in the review, including the management of accused persons whilst on bail.

The report makes a number of detailed recommendations, most of which the Government are able to accept immediately. The CPS—Crown Prosecution Service—has revised its legal guidance to prosecutors on post-conviction bail, as recommended. The Government are reviewing bail and murder and will issue a consultation paper shortly. A cross-agency working group has been convened and will be responsible for taking forward the detailed work, and a further statement on progress will be made in due course.

DEFENCE

Kosovo Operational Reserve Force Deployment

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): The House will recall that on 17 February 2008 the Government of Kosovo declared independence, with a commitment to implementing the obligations contained in UN Special Envoy Ahtisaari's comprehensive proposal for a status settlement in Kosovo. Since independence, there have been positive developments by the Kosovo Government in meeting these obligations, including the approval of a new constitution, which will come into force in June 2008. The EU and NATO have also made progress in preparing to assume their responsibilities under the Ahtisaari proposals, including the European security and defence policy, policing and rule of law mission in Kosovo and the implementation of NATO's new tasks in relation to Kosovo's own security forces.

During this period, the security situation has remained tense and there have been some sporadic incidents of violence. The NATO Kosovo Force (KFOR), in co-operation with the UN international police authorities, are working hard to address this and to maintain a safe and secure environment.

Against this background, the UK has received a request from NATO for the deployment of a UK battalion to Kosovo by the end of May as part of our existing commitment to the NATO/EU shared pan-Balkans operational reserve force (ORF). This is a long standing commitment that the UK meets in rotation with Italy and Germany. Since 1 January this year, it has been the UK's turn to provide the highest readiness battalion for a period of six months. We are, therefore, well prepared to meet NATO's request and I have agreed to deploy our ORF battalion until 30 June 2008. The task will be undertaken by 2nd Battalion, The Rifles, who have been trained specifically for this requirement.

This deployment will demonstrate our commitment to the security of the region and will provide NATO with extra flexibility in maintaining peace and stability for all communities within Kosovo. The House will also wish to be aware that our commitment to the NATO/EU pan-Balkans ORF continues until the end of this year at a lower readiness.

I would like to stress that the deployment of the UK ORF battalion confirms yet again the professionalism of our armed forces and their ability to provide essential military support at short notice. I shall make a further statement on this deployment in due course, if required.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Rabies Incident

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I would like to update the House on the case of rabies in a puppy in UK quarantine confirmed last Friday evening, 25 April.

Over three successive days, thirteen dogs of various ages were brought into quarantine under UK rabies quarantine licensing rules from Sri Lanka by an animal rescue charity. The dogs were not in good health when they arrived and were receiving appropriate veterinary treatment at the quarantine facility. The condition of one of the dogs, a puppy, worsened and it died on the morning of 25 April. It was immediately sent for routine testing at the Veterinary Laboratories Agency, Weybridge. The acting chief veterinary officer then confirmed on the evening of 25 April a case of rabies in this puppy.

The case was confined to quarantine, which means that the movement of the puppy after arrival in the country was fully controlled and any public health risks were effectively contained. Nevertheless, our contingency plans for such an occurrence were immediately activated and a thorough investigation instigated. Since rabies is a public health issue, the Department of Health and the Health Protection Agency also immediately mobilised their emergency arrangements.

DEFRA and the Health Protection Agency worked closely to identify all human and animal contacts with this puppy.

Health officials identified that two individuals working at the quarantine facility and one member of the charity that imported the affected animal, were bitten by the puppy; all three have received prompt protective treatment. Even if someone has been bitten by an animal with rabies, prompt post-exposure treatment is highly effective in preventing rabies in humans. There is no such validated treatment for animals similarly exposed.

Whilst we are not aware of anyone else who has been bitten, as a precautionary measure we have also been tracing any other people who have been in contact with the puppy since its arrival in the country. Where advisable appropriate treatment has been given.

Four dogs entered the UK with the animal that died of rabies. These animals were humanely destroyed as they had been in direct contact with the animal that died of rabies and were considered to be high risk. Tests for rabies are being carried out on these animals. Initial test results are negative and indicate these animals were not in the later stages of rabies. Further tests are ongoing and results are expected before the end of the week.

The quarantine facility where these five animals were housed, and where the remaining eight dogs from Sri Lanka continue to be housed, is under restriction for the time being.

We also identified that four animals were released from the facility when they had completed their quarantine period after the dogs arrived from Sri Lanka. Three of these four animals were vaccinated on entry to UK quarantine in accordance with standard requirements, while the fourth had been in quarantine as a holding measure until it was shown to have been compliant with normal conditions of entry under the Pet Travel Scheme. These conditions require effective vaccination before entry to the UK. The level of risk associated with these animals is negligible. However, as a precautionary measure, all four of these animals have been confined to their home premises for the time being. Animal Health Agency vets are visiting these animals daily and providing the owners with advice. These animals continue to be healthy. The Health Protection Agency is content with the measures being taken and has provided advice on public health aspects to the owners.

The case occurred in quarantine and has not therefore jeopardised our important and long-standing rabies freedom in the UK. This incident particularly demonstrates the importance of following strictly the rules for entry of animals into this country and the rest of the European Union.

UK citizens travelling abroad should avoid handling stray animals, and if they are bitten should seek immediate medical treatment.

This incident shows the effectiveness of the Government's emergency arrangements and the commitment of those who worked hard together over the weekend to respond.

EU Environment Ministers Meeting

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): On 11 to 13 April, Peter Unwin, Director General of Defra's Natural Environment Group, represented the UK at a meeting of Environment Ministers from the EU member states, candidate countries, and the European Commission at an informal ministerial meeting in Brdo, Slovenia, on the theme of "Forest Biodiversity: Challenges and Opportunities for Climate Change Adaptation and Mitigation".

The UK emphasised that climate change and biodiversity are intrinsically linked. Healthy and sustainably managed forests represent a valuable opportunity for mitigation in the fight against climate change, through the provision of vital environmental services. The UK welcomed the presidency's focus on this issue in the wider context of adaptation to climate change. We also underlined the need for greater synergy and consistency between climate change and biodiversity policies both internationally and at home in the EU if we are to secure co-benefits. As such, next month's meeting on the convention on biological diversity (CBD), the reform of the Common Agriculture Policy and the upcoming Commission communication on green public procurement all provide opportunities to do this.

The UK stressed that in the battle to tackle dangerous climate change, EU member states need to ensure that increased utilisation of wood for energy does not move us away from multi-purpose forest management; this is possible if done within the context of sustainable forest management. The UK also emphasised that biofuels, in particular second-generation fuels, can play an important role in reducing emissions but Member States need to ensure that biofuel targets can be achieved without adversely affective sustainability. There are growing concerns and emerging evidence of the negative impacts of biofuels and these must be taken into account before we agree the direction and level of EU policy. The UK informed Ministers of our review on these issues and that this will inform our national and EU policy. The UK welcomed the fact that the CBD is looking at the potential impacts of biofuels on biodiversity, and seeking to develop biodiversity criteria to input into more general sustainability criteria.

Finally, the UK expressed the view that the EU should ensure a level playing field for domestic and international producers, and we should offer capacity building measures to help developing countries comply with our sustainability criteria, once these have been developed, in order to prevent them from being a technical barrier to trade. The UK confirmed that we will continue to work with the Commission and other member states to reflect these principles in a consistent way as we take forward the renewable energy and fuel quality directives, and we shall do so with an open mind, informed be the evidence as it emerges. Several other member states shared this view.

Callaghan Review

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I announced on 13 December 2007, Official Report, column 52WS, that the Government have accepted all of the recommendations of the review of the regulatory framework for handling animal pathogens led by Sir Bill Callaghan. That review recommended a phased approach to changes in the regulation of these materials, including transferring responsibility for inspections and enforcement to the Health and Safety Executive (HSE).

Since January, inspections of laboratories licensed under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) have been carried out by DEFRA and the VLA and HSE. I informed the House on 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 9WS, that the formal legal transfer of SAPO inspection and enforcement responsibilities was nearing completion. I am pleased to now report that a revised SAPO came into effect on 28 April, meeting the timetable set by the review. This measure provides the legal means to effect the transfer of inspection and enforcement responsibility to HSE. It also provides additional powers very similar to the powers HSE inspectors have under the Health and Safety at Work Act, including the ability to issue formal improvement and prohibition notices. The order is complemented by an agency agreement which formally delegates enforcement responsibility to HSE and a memorandum of understanding that sets out the practical arrangements. These documents are being published on the HSE and DEFRA websites .

From now on, HSE will carry out all inspections and enforcement activity for SAPO. This work will be carried out in accordance with the Health and Safety Executive's enforcement policy and principles of HSE operational procedures and its enforcement management model. This represents a significant change in the way in which this work is carried out. As recognised in Sir Bill Callaghan's review, DEFRA will remain as the licensing body for SAPO until the next phase comes into effect.

DEFRA will continue to work closely with HSE and other interested Departments as we move towards a single regulatory framework for human and animal pathogens in the final phase of implementing the recommendations.

In addition to the processes set out here responsibility for managing risks lies with the employers and senior management of any facility where work on animal or human pathogens is being carried out. Licence holders are responsible for ensuring the safe operation of the facilities where their work is conducted, in accordance with the licensing requirements.

I note that the report of Professor Sir John Beringer's independent study into the funding, governance and risk management at the Institute for Animal Health has been published and has been considered by the BBSRC. I will take the recommendations of this study into account in considering how we respond to Dr. Iain Anderson's report on a review and lessons learnt on the foot and mouth disease outbreak 2007.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Correction to Oral Answer

The Minister for the Middle East (Dr. Kim Howells): My noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown has made the following written ministerial statement:

On 18 March 2008, during the debate on the Second Review Conference of the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC), in response to a question by the noble Lord Walton of Detchant, I said that—

"it is certainly correct that there are toxic chemicals that fall outside the so-called schedule 1 to this convention. One of the issues for review and for any successor convention after 2012 will be to make sure that there is a more comprehensive list of such chemicals".—Official Report, column 136.

I should have said that the CWC's prohibitions apply to all toxic chemicals and their precursors, unless they are intended for permitted purposes and provided they are of a type and in a quantity consistent with such purposes. The schedules of chemicals do not limit the scope of the convention's prohibitions, they only provide a framework for the application of verification measures. Reinforcing the comprehensive nature of the CWC has been a key UK objective for the Second Review Conference, and the subject of one of the UK's four working papers submitted to the preparatory working group. It has also been a priority for the EU as set out in the EU's Common Position 2007/469/CFSP of 28 June 2007.

The CWC is a key component in the disarmament and non-proliferation agreements and regimes, and will remain so after the 2012 deadline for completion of destruction of chemical weapons stockpiles. We have already started to consider how the CWC will need to adapt to face future challenges and see this as a key issue to be addressed in the years ahead.

HEALTH

MHRA

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Dawn Primarolo): I have received the business plan for the medicines and healthcare products regulatory agency (MHRA) which has been placed in the Library.

The agency has an important role to protect public health in the United Kingdom by ensuring that all medicines and medical devices are acceptably safe. The business plan for 2008-09 sets out specific key and high level targets for the agency for the coming year.

TREASURY

Competitiveness (Northern Ireland)

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): Following representations by political parties in Northern Ireland, the Government commissioned Sir David Varney, in March 2007, to carry out a review of tax policy in Northern Ireland. The review was published in December 2007.

His report confirmed that the Northern Ireland economy was doing well under the devolution arrangements introduced a year ago. For example, Northern Ireland had the highest rate of economic growth of all UK regions outside London and the South East between 1997 and 2006, and in 2007 it had the lowest rate of unemployment of any region. There are now more people in employment than ever before.

But Sir David Varney's review noted that the Northern Ireland economy still faced some demanding challenges. It has the lowest level of productivity and employment of any region in the UK and public spending as a percentage of GDP is around 70 per cent. compared with 35 per cent. in Ireland.

So the Government asked Sir David to undertake a second review of competitiveness in Northern Ireland. The terms of reference were: "Building on Sir David's earlier analysis and agreement from all parties about the unique circumstances of Northern Ireland (in relation to the opportunities provided by the peace process, the need to strengthen the private sector, to create increased employment opportunities and to reform the public sector), this review will explore in more detail how to expand the private sector and to enhance Northern Ireland's competitiveness".

The Government are today publishing Sir David Varney's report. Copies of the report have been deposited in the Library of both Houses. I am very grateful to Sir David Varney and his team, and to all those who submitted evidence to the review, for this comprehensive report. It provides a valuable assessment of how the opportunities and challenges facing the Northern Ireland Executive in developing its economic strategy might best be approached.

Sir David recognises the new opportunities that peace and stability in Northern Ireland provide for stronger and greater prosperity.

The main findings of the report are:

the Northern Ireland Executive's Programme for Government and the UK Government's May 2007 economic and financial package provide an excellent base for securing long-term transformational change in Northern Ireland;

the UK Government has a vital role to play in maintaining macroeconomic stability in a difficult world economic climate and maintaining the current competitive tax system;

there is scope for deepening and intensifying public sector reform, in particular increasing the role of the private sector in the delivery of core public services and transferring non-core services to the private sector in order to help stimulate its growth;

there is scope for further asset disposals in order to release funds for extra investment in the Northern Ireland Executive's priorities;

there is scope to improve productivity by more intensive use of the main levers and drivers of productivity including skills, enterprise, competition, investment and innovation; and labour market and welfare reforms should be intensified to increase the employment rate.

Northern Ireland can benefit from participating further in an all-island economy by implementing the measures identified in the October 2006 report on the all-island economy.

The Government's Response

The Government welcome Sir David Varney's report and I look forward to discussing with Northern Ireland Executive Ministers how we can take forward the findings in the report together, while recognising that devolved policies are a matter for the Northern Ireland Executive and its Departments.

I welcome that the Northern Ireland Budget focused on those Northern Ireland Departments that have a central role in helping the economy. The UK Government and the Northern Ireland Executive share the view that it is flexible and open economies that ultimately succeed, and that it is important to maximise Northern Ireland's export potential.

I also welcome the support which the Irish Government continue to provide in developing the all-island economy which directly benefits Northern Ireland through infrastructure and innovation investment, the assistance provided by the EU and the interest shown by the US, as can be seen in next week's US investment conference in Belfast.

In the 2008 Budget I announced a range of measures which will improve Northern Ireland's competitive position and strengthen the private sector including:

policies to maintain macroeconomic stability, with forecasts of continuing economic growth and low inflation; policies to maintain a competitive tax system. From April 2008 the main rate of Corporation Tax is being reduced to 28 per cent., the lowest ever rate of Corporation Tax in the UK and the lowest in the G7; policies to stimulate enterprise and improve access to finance for small and medium firms, including a temporary 20 per cent. increase in the funds available through the small firms loans guarantee, additional enterprise capital funds, a new capital fund for female entrepreneurs, and an increase in the Enterprise investment scheme. These measures are of particular benefit in Northern Ireland which has a higher than average concentration of SMEs; measures to ensure better access to Government procurement for small firms; confirmation of a commitment to a reduction of 25 per cent. in the administrative burden through regulation; reform of incapacity benefits with the introduction of the employment and support allowance. Welfare reform is of particular benefit in Northern Ireland, which has the highest proportion of the population on incapacity benefit; and £21 million additional DEL funding for the Northern Ireland Executive as a consequence of increases in spending on child poverty pilots and contributing to the costs of modernising the public sector.

I note the recommendations which Sir David Varney has made in his report. Many of these are for the Northern Ireland Executive to consider. The UK Government will respond to those that are directed to UK Ministers in due course.

Conclusion

The successful return of devolution to Northern Ireland, and the second stage envisaged in the St Andrews agreement, provides an opportunity for transformational change and inward investment which, if seized, has the opportunity to benefit all the people of Northern Ireland.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council (14 April 2008)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jonathan Shaw): My noble Friend Lord Rooker represented the United Kingdom at this month's Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Luxembourg. Mike Russell, the Scottish Minister for Environment also attended.

The Council adopted a regulation which restricted Poland's future quotas for Baltic sea cod to reflect a 2007 overfish.

The Council held a policy debate on a proposal for a Community system to prevent, deter and eliminate illegal, unreported and unregulated (IUU) fishing. The debate was based on a presidency questionnaire focusing on: the scope of the proposal—in particular whether EU vessels should be included or not; the proposed import certification system; and on potential criminal and administrative sanctions. The UK supported the general intention of the measure and the inclusion of EU vessels (to send the correct signal to our international counterparts), but raised concerns about the complexity of the proposed controls and the administrative resource implications.

The Council also held an exchange of views on a proposal amending the cod recovery regulation. The UK welcomed the general thrust of the proposal, but emphasised the importance of taking account of the UK's significant progress to date in reducing effort on cod. The UK also challenged the extension of the measures to the Celtic sea—on the grounds that cod formed only a small part of the activities of the vessels concerned and restricting their effort in this way would interfere with their ability to catch a range of other less vulnerable species.

In addition, a number of issues were raised under any other business.

The Fisheries Commissioner updated the Council on progress with the 2006-08 action plan for simplifying and improving the common fisheries policy. The UK intervened to ask for more member state consultation on the expected review of the control regulation.

The Council took note of updates provided by the Fisheries Commissioner on the Fisheries Partnership Agreement between the European Community and the Islamic Republic of Mauritania, and the bluefin tuna recovery plan. The Council also took note of a report provided by the Health and Consumer Protection Commissioner on a recent outbreak of classical swine fever in Slovakia.

France requested an urgent review of the total allowable catch (TAC) for Celtic sea cod (in line with a December Council commitment). The UK supported the initiative and the Commission indicated that the matter was in hand and that they hoped to come forward with a suitable proposal before the end of June.

France expressed concerns over the Commission's intention to authorise chemical decontamination of fresh meat, and also on the continuing difficulties in the pigmeat sector. The UK joined with other member states to acknowledge the importance of consumer confidence.

Italy informed the Council about a recent case of fraud in the wine sector. Portugal raised concerns about the import of cattle and sheep from other member states infected and bluetongue virus (serotype 8).

The Agriculture Commissioner updated Council on the state of play in the WTO-DDA agriculture negotiations, following the recent agreement reached on sensitive products. Along with a number of other member states, the UK welcomed the progress being made and urged the Commission to continue working for a deal.

The presidency informed the Council on preparations for the forthcoming UN Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) high-level conference on world food security and the challenges of climate change and bioenergy, which will be held in Rome, on the 3 and 5 June 2008. Austria also drew Council's attention to FAO's 26th regional conference for Europe to be held, in Innsbruck, Austria on 26 and 27 June.

JUSTICE

Inquests into the Deaths of Service Personnel in Operations and Exercises Overseas

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence and I wish to make the following statement to the House about the inquests of service personnel who have died overseas. All casualties suffered by our armed forces are, of course, a source of profound regret. Our service personnel put their lives on the line to help build strong, stable and democratic nations, and to protect the interests of the United Kingdom. We cannot pay high enough tribute to the job that they are doing, or to the ultimate sacrifice which some of them have made. We remain strongly committed to minimising the effect on the bereaved families.

We made statements to the House on 5 June 2006 (Official Report, col.4WS), 12 October 2006 (Official Report, col. 26WS), 18 December 2006 (Official Report, col. 112WS), 29 March 2007 (Official Report, col. 121WS) 20 June 2007 (Official Report, col. 97WS) 30 October 2007 (Official Report, col. 36WS) and 31 January 2008 (Official Report, col. 35WS), with information about the conduct of inquests by the Oxfordshire, Wiltshire and Swindon and other coroners. Today, we are announcing the progress that has been made since the written ministerial statement on 31 January. This statement shows the position at 22 April, but does not reflect the tragic loss of Trooper Pearson in Afghanistan on 21 April, as the inquest has not yet been opened.

PROGRESS WITH INQUESTS

At the time of the last written ministerial statement, we reported that since additional funding had been provided by the Government to assist the Oxfordshire coroner, 123 inquests had been held: 109 into the overseas deaths of service personnel and 14 into the deaths of civilians in Iraq whose bodies were repatriated via RAF Brize Norton (although the January statement incorrectly implied that all the deaths were military).

Since January, a further 32 inquests have been held into the deaths of service personnel who died in operations overseas whose bodies were repatriated via RAF Brize Norton or RAF Lyneham. This makes a total of 155 inquests held since June 2006.

Since hostilities opened there have been a total of 176 inquests into the deaths of service personnel who lost their lives in Iraq and Afghanistan, including one serviceman who died in the UK of his injuries. In two further cases no formal inquest was held, but the deaths were taken into consideration during inquest proceedings for those who died in the same incident.

OPEN INQUESTS

(i) Pre-31 March 2007 Fatalities

There remain 27 inquests to be concluded into the deaths of service personnel in Iraq and Afghanistan whose bodies were repatriated via RAF Brize Norton prior to 31 March 2007. The Oxfordshire coroner has retained jurisdiction in 23 of these cases; four of these inquests have been transferred to coroners closer to the deceased's next of kin.

Hearing dates have been set in 18 cases. These include the inquests into the deaths of 14 crew members who died together in the Nimrod crash on 2 September 2006 which will be heard together, commencing on 6 May 2008. In the remaining nine inquests, investigations are ongoing but it has not yet been possible for an inquest date to be set. The oldest individual inquest for which no date had been set at the time of the last written ministerial statement was that into the death of Lieutenant Palmer, who died on 15 April 2006. The hearing date has now been set for 6 May 2008.

In addition there are 10 inquests into fatalities which were repatriated via RAF Lyneham prior to 1 April 2007. These relate to the deaths of 10 crew members who died together in the crash of Hercules XV179 on 30 January 2005. These inquests resumed on 31 March 2008, but have since been adjourned until September.

(ii) Post-1 April 2007 Fatalities

Since October 2007, additional resources have been provided by the Government to ensure that a backlog of inquests will not build up in the Wiltshire and Swindon jurisdiction, now that fatalities are being repatriated via RAF Lyneham. These have enabled the coroner, Mr Masters, to engage an additional assistant deputy coroner, together with an additional coroner's officer and administrative support, and to provide appropriate accommodation to hold military inquests. These extra resources are helping to ensure that bereaved families are responded to sensitively and speedily following conclusions of the investigations. Mr Masters is continuing the practice of transferring military inquests to a coroner closer to the bereaved family, where possible.

There remain 49 inquests to be concluded into the deaths of service personnel who died in Iraq and Afghanistan whose bodies were repatriated after 1 April 2007. Of these, Mr Masters has retained 25 inquests, whilst 24 inquests are being conducted by coroners closer to the next of kin. Inquest hearing dates have been set in four of these cases. In the remaining 45 cases it has not yet been possible to set an inquest date.

(iii) Inquests into the Deaths of Service Personnel who Returned Home Injured

There remain five inquests to be held of service personnel who returned home injured and subsequently died of their injuries.

We are very grateful for the efforts of all the coroners involved in conducting these inquests.

We shall continue to keep the House informed on a quarterly basis about progress with the remaining inquests. I have placed tables in the Libraries of both Houses which outline the status of all cases and date of death of each case. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

LIAISON WITH THE NEXT OF KIN

It is of the greatest importance that the next of kin have full information about the progress on the inquest of their deceased.

We remain committed to better supporting bereaved military families. The written ministerial statement issued on 7 June 2007 by my right hon. Friend the Member for East Kilbride, Strathaven and Lesmahagow (Mr Ingram), the then Minister of State, Ministry of Defence, gave details of the support which was then being provided, and we continue to look for opportunities to improve our procedures. We have increased the number of family members who can travel and stay overnight if necessary, at public expense, to attend the repatriation ceremony. This has been extended to allow two family members to attend any pre-inquest hearings, as well as the inquest itself.

Visiting officers are crucial in providing the liaison between families and the services, and we continue to give close attention to the selection of and training for visiting officers.

We are also reviewing Board of Inquiry procedures to see what improvements can be made, with the aim of ensuring that coroners receive reports more expeditiously.

PRIME MINISTER

Senior Salaries Review Body (Chairman)

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): I am pleased to announce that I have appointed Bill Cockburn CBE TD as Chairman of the Senior Salaries Review Body for a three-year term, commencing April 2008. The appointment has been conducted in accordance with the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments' guidance on appointments to public bodies.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Commission on Environmental Markets and Economic Performance

The Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. John Hutton): My right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, and for Innovation, Universities and Skills and I are publishing today the report "Building a Low Carbon Economy: Unlocking Innovation and Skills". This forms the Government response to the Commission on Environmental Markets and Economic Performance (CEMEP), and sets out how Government will work with business to seize the major economic opportunities of moving to a low carbon, resource efficient economy. I have placed copies of the response in the Libraries of both Houses.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Independent Monitoring Commission

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): I have received the Eighteenth Report of the Independent Monitoring Commission (IMC). This report has been made under Articles 4 and 7 of the international agreement that established the Commission and its reports on levels of paramilitary activity in Northern Ireland. I have considered the content of the report and I am today bringing it before Parliament. I have placed copies in the Library of the House.

The report confirms the assessment made in previous reports that PIRA continues to be committed to a political path and the belief that they will not be diverted from it. The IMC highlight that the "organisation continues to work with the policing institutions and encourages interaction with PSNI, including reporting crime".

The report illustrates that the threat from dissident republicans is still prevalent. This includes Oglaigh na hEireann (ONH) which the IMC consider to be "more seriously active in the six months under review", remaining a continuing and serious threat, and the Continuity IRA (CIRA) "remain active, dangerous and determined". There is also evidence of dissidents having sought to target the homes and places of work of PSNI officers and of members of the public. The IMC recognise that the police and intelligence agencies north and south have maintained a high level of effort against dissident republicans. It is important to note that dissidents have no popular support, and will not be a destabilising force.

In relation to loyalism the IMC highlight that loyalists will be judged on delivery, one of the key elements to this being decommissioning. The IMC assessment of the UVF illustrates the organisation's continuing efforts to pursue their 3 May 2007 statement. The Commission recognises the UDA statement of 11 November 2007 as an important "statement of intent".

I welcome the IMC's analysis of normalisation and the end of transition. It is clear to all that "transition can not continue indefinitely". This is especially true of decommissioning and as such we all await the completion of devolution.

The IMC also provided an assessment of the killing of Paul Quinn. The IMC reported that this brutal murder was clearly contrary to the instructions and strategy of the leadership of PIRA. It is aware of no evidence linking the leadership of PIRA to the incident.

Once again, I am grateful to the Commission for the submission of this report and for its careful analysis. The report offers a clear picture of both the extraordinary progress made and the challenges ahead to secure an end to paramilitarism in Northern Ireland.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Rose Review (Primary Curriculum)

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): In a written statement on 9 January 2008, Official Report, column 9WS, I summarised the remit of Sir Jim Rose's independent review of the primary curriculum. Among other things, his remit includes making recommendations on introducing greater flexibility to help schools narrow the attainment gap between disadvantaged pupils and their peers.

In the Children's Plan, the Government acknowledged that more needs to be done to improve outcomes and provision for children with special educational needs, to increase parental confidence that children's educational needs are being met, including for children with dyslexia.

To encourage schools' development of best practice in improving outcomes for children with dyslexia, my Department is:

Providing funding of around £1 million over three years to the No to Failure project. No to Failure is trailblazing and evaluating the impact of specialist training for teachers and specialist tuition for children with dyslexia in some schools in three local authority areas.

Through the National Strategies, rolling out to all areas this year an inclusion development programme (IDP) designed to increase knowledge and awareness of dyslexia and communication difficulties among the schools and early years workforce and improve learning outcomes for this particular group of children

Providing £150,000 over two financial years to enable the British Dyslexia Association to develop their helpline, which provides advice about dyslexia—including to teachers and parents.

Providing £250,000 over three financial years to enable Dyslexia Action to run further Partnership for Literacy pilots.

In this context, we have now additionally asked Sir Jim Rose, in the light of evidence, to make recommendations on the identification and teaching of children with dyslexia, and on how best to take forward the commitment in the Children's Plan to establish a pilot scheme in which children with dyslexia will receive reading recovery support or one-to-one tuition from specialist dyslexia teachers.

We have asked Sir Jim Rose to include the following sources of evidence in developing his recommendations:

a summary of published research on the impact of specialist dyslexia teaching and reading recovery on progression and outcomes for children with dyslexia, currently being prepared by Dr. Chris Singleton of Hull University; evaluations of Every Child a Reader, including reading recovery, carried out by the Every Child a Chance Trust and the Institute of Education;

a recently published interim evaluation of the No to Failure project's identification of children at risk of dyslexia/specific learning difficulties;

No to Failure project's final evaluation of the progress made by children identified as being at risk of dyslexia/specific learning difficulties who have received specialist dyslexia teaching, which the project expects to publish at the end of this year.

Sir Jim Rose will also consult with the No to Failure project and other dyslexia organisations in considering his recommendations. He has agreed to prepare a report containing his recommendations early in 2009.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Flood Recovery Update

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): Last summer's exceptional floods caused widespread damage and misery for thousands of people. But the response was equally exceptional—from local authorities and other local agencies, the police, fire and rescue services, the military and neighbours helping each other. Government have been committed to playing our part and we have already made up to £88 million available so far to flood-hit communities to support their efforts to get back on their feet.

The costs of the floods to the country were significant. That is why in August we submitted an application to the European Union solidarity fund, which was set up specifically to help countries that have experienced extensive damage from natural disasters such as floods. We have worked closely with the Commission on this application and I can confirm that the European Commission gave clearance for the funding to be paid to the UK when it approved the amended EU budget on 7 April. I welcome this clearance and recognise the key role played by Commissioner Hübner in the EU's decision to approve our UK application.

The European Commission's clearance was for payment of around £110 million as a contribution to the cost of recovery from last summer's floods. However, the UK's special "abatement mechanism", agreed between Government and the EU and in place since 1984, means that the net value to the UK of this allocation is an extra £31 million.

I therefore announce today that all this extra funding will be paid to flood-affected local areas. The money will be distributed through a new one-off £30.6 million restoration fund to local authorities, police authorities and fire authorities in England, with the balance allocated to the Northern Irish and Welsh devolved Administrations. I propose that eligibility for payments from the new fund will be based on the costs incurred in dealing with the flood problems since the summer and that local authorities will be free to spend this money according to the local priorities they determine. I am starting a short consultation on this basis today.

The restoration fund will mean the Government have made up to £118 million available so far to local areas hit by last summer's floods.

The Government will account for the spending of the EUSF payment directly to the European Commission so that local authorities eligible for payments from the new fund will not have to deal with the strict rules that govern EUSF and can concentrate on the job of leading the full recovery efforts in their communities.

Parliamentary Question (Correction)

The Minister for Housing (Caroline Flint): The hon. Member for Peterborough (Stewart Jackson) asked for a copy of all correspondence relating to the purchase by the Thurrock Thames Gateway Development Corporation (TTGDC) of (a) the Grays TA headquarters and (b) industrial land at Purfleet in the financial year 2007-08 to be placed in the Library of the House.

In my response on 18 February 2008, Official Report, columns 645-46W, I said that the correspondence would be placed in the Library of the House, subject to the exclusion of any information that may compromise commercial negotiations or contravene the Data Protection Act.

I have now been advised that in order to meet this undertaking, officials of the Department and the Thames Gateway Development Corporation would have to scrutinise thousands of documents at a significant cost to the public purse. In the light of this further advice, I do not consider this to be an effective use of my Department's resources and I will not therefore be able to provide a copy of the correspondence. I regret this has occurred.

I am writing to the hon. Member for Peterborough to say that TTGDC will invite him to visit the sites at Grays and Purfleet and to meet with them. They have said that they are happy to discuss progress on these projects.

DEFENCE

Headley Court

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): I am pleased to inform the House of the outcomes of our review of Defence Medical Rehabilitation. The review concluded that Defence Medical Rehabilitation is a success story, returning service personnel, whenever possible, to full fitness faster than in the past.

The Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC) at Headley Court is widely recognised as delivering first-class specialist rehabilitation of complex cases. The enormous benefit of bringing together service personnel, both those wounded on operations and those injured in training, contributes to the astonishing recovery that so many of our patients make.

The Government recognise that continuing investment is needed to ensure that Headley Court retains its reputation as a centre of excellence.

With the increase in the numbers and complexity of military casualties over recent years, we have steadily enhanced DMRC's capabilities:

We now have our own workshops and technicians to provide "state of the art" limb fitting service, enabling us to start to mobilise patients who have lost limbs as soon as they arrive at DMRC and to make adjustments to their prostheses as required.

We have increased the numbers of therapists and nurses and introduced a new team to deal with head injuries, working closely with partner organisations.

We have deployed physiotherapists into Iraq and Afghanistan to assess patients' needs and start treatment, where appropriate, in advance of their arrival at Headley Court.

Last May we opened a new temporary ward annexe, providing 30 additional beds and giving us a total of 66 ward beds.

Headley Court benefits from the use of a hydrotherapy pool and four gyms on site.

We are building this year a new 58-bed temporary accommodation block, at a cost of about £4 million—work on site is due to start today.

Our review has confirmed that the DMRC Headley Court should continue to be the specialist centre for rehabilitation, and has recommended further improvements so that it can continue to deliver first-class care.

In the light of the review we have now decided to invest an additional £24 million in the Headley Court site over the next four years to maintain and enhance DMRC's capabilities. This will enable us to:

replace the new ward annex (designed to be a temporary structure) by extending the Peter Long Unit, and incorporating into that extension an expanded prosthetics facility, treatment areas, and imaging facilities.

replace progressively over the next few years all the existing 180 non-ward bed patient and staff accommodation.

I pay tribute to the charitable bodies that have also contributed to the work of DMRC and its predecessor organisations since Headley Court first opened its doors to RAF patients shortly after the second world war. The estate is owned by a charitable trust, which has itself contributed generously to the improvement of facilities on the site.

The Sailors, Soldiers and Airmen's Family Association has purchased a house in nearby Ashtead that was opened earlier this year as a "home from home" for families visiting patients at Headley Court, supplementing accommodation that we had already provided on site.

Last year a new charity, Help for Heroes, generously offered to raise funds for a swimming pool and gym, which would together form a new rehabilitation complex, with additional space for rehabilitation and assessment. The charity has already made impressive progress in its fund-raising. We are working closely with Help for Heroes in planning the new facility.

We warmly welcome the contributions of charities to the welfare of the services. Support for them enables the public to demonstrate their appreciation for the work of the armed forces in tangible ways.

The new investment I have announced today, together with current funding for new facilities, means that Headley Court will see investment over the next four years totalling some £28 million in addition to the substantial funding that Help for Heroes intends to provide for the new rehabilitation complex.

Our review also looked at the Services' Primary Care Rehabilitation Facilities (PCRFs) and Regional Rehabilitation Units (RRUs). The review recommended enhancements to the permanent capability of RRUs, and improvements to the referrals process. The roles and locations of some of the RRUs should be adjusted to align better with current and future population centres. I have agreed that we should provide an additional £1.5 million per year from financial year 2009-10 to establish the necessary permanent manning uplifts at the RRUs, and commissioned further work to take forward the other recommendations.

The outcomes of the review demonstrate our commitment to rehabilitation. The review charts the strategic direction we shall now follow, to build on our success to date in returning service personnel to mobility and usually to duty. In partnership with the charity sector, we are ensuring that service patients, particularly those severely wounded on operations, receive the best treatment that is available and that it is delivered in an environment that supports their rehabilitation in every way possible.

Our servicemen and women deserve no less for the efforts that they are making on our behalf.

I shall place a copy of the review's top level report and recommendations in the Library of the House.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Mr. Jim Murphy): I represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) in Luxembourg on 29 April 2008.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Zimbabwe

I agreed Council conclusions that underlined the EU's deep concerns at the delay in announcing the results of the general election, condemned violence and called for moratorium on arms sales. Ministers agreed that SADC but also the AU had a crucial role to play and the EU should continue to work closely with African states to encourage their efforts to deliver a credible and genuinely democratic solution to the crisis.

I intervened to underline that it was clear President Mugabe was in the process of trying to steal the election and that the EU needed to remain robust in exposing and condemning the violence and human rights abuses on the ground.

Middle East Peace Process

Ministers discussed developments since the Annapolis conference, the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee meeting in London on 2 May and looked ahead to the Berlin conference in support of Palestinian security and the rule of law on 2 June. Ministers underlined the importance of continuing to support the political process, and expressed concerns over the humanitarian situation in Gaza.

Iraq

Ministers had an exchange of views on the situation in Iraq, following the Iraq neighbours' conference in Kuwait on 22 April. Ministers welcomed security improvements and progress on national reconciliation, but recognised that the situation remained fragile. Ministers also looked forward to the annual review of the international compact with Iraq in Stockholm on 29 May.

Pakistan

High Representative Solana gave a read out of his recent visit to Islamabad. I agreed the Council conclusions reaffirming the importance of EU-Pakistan relations, including support for the development of regional and bilateral trade, education and democratic institution building. Ministers supported the Pakistani Government's fight against extremism and progress on reinforcing democracy since the election on 18 February. Ministers also underlined the importance of supporting the Government of Pakistan to implement the Electoral Observation Mission's recommendations for electoral reform to support the democratic process in Pakistan, improve transparency and help ensure participation of citizens in the election.

Burma

The Council adopted a common position renewing restrictive measures against Burma for another 12 months. I also agreed Council conclusions on Burma, which highlighted the Council's ongoing concern about the situation in Burma, and in particular the deep flaws in the regime's 10 May referendum on a new constitution aimed at entrenching military rule. The Council underlined its readiness to consider further restrictive measures in the light of developments. Ministers had an exchange of views on the text of the draft constitution and referendum on 10 May.

Piracy off Somali Coast

Ministers noted recent piracy incidents off the Somali coast, which they condemned.

Western Balkans

Discussion of the Western Balkans focused on Serbia. The Council agreed on the signature of the Stabilisation and Association Agreement (SAA) with Serbia, which President Tadic signed in the margins of the Council. I intervened to stress the importance of full co-operation with the International Criminal Tribunal for Yugoslavia remaining a condition in Serbia's EU accession process. The requirement for full co-operation was fully recognised in the Council's conclusions, which make clear that ratification of the Stabilisation and Association Agreement and implementation of the Interim Agreement will be dependent on a Council decision that Serbia is fully co-operating with the ICTY.

The Council also expressed its readiness to sign the Stabilisation and Association Agreement with Bosnia and Herzegovina, following the recent adoption of legislation on police reform. The Government welcome Bosnia and Herzegovina's progress against the conditions for signing the Stabilisation and Association Agreement and hope that signature will take place rapidly.

Georgia

Ministers agreed that the EU should reaffirm its support for Georgia's territorial integrity and sovereignty in the light of recent developments. The Government support the presidency's initiative to organise a visit to Georgia, to highlight the EU's concerns and offer support in resolving tensions with Russia.

Russia

Ministers discussed adoption of the mandate for negotiation of a successor to the Partnership and Co-operation Agreement with Russia. Agreement was not possible at this GAERC, Ministers are expected therefore return to the issue at the May GAERC.

Zimbabwe

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): In the five weeks since the elections in Zimbabwe, 7,000 people have been displaced, 500 beaten, 120 hospitalised and at least two murdered. Many more were unable to access medical treatment. In addition, the police have arrested scores of people who they associate with the opposition in Zimbabwe and have raided their offices. The announcement of the result of the presidential election should be seen against that background. Violence has been commonplace in Zimbabwe but those figures and these acts show the brutality of the regime in its quest to hold on to power.

Very soon after the election it was clear that the majority of the electorate had rejected President Mugabe. But ZANU-PF chose to delay the results, rather than face the truth. That delay has simply allowed the Zimbabwean authorities to contaminate the results. We can have little faith that the figures announced accurately reflect the will of the people. Significantly, the MDC opposition have not endorsed those published figures, even though they show that a clear majority of voters want change.

The first round of voting in Zimbabwe suffered from significant structural deficiencies. The electoral roll was and is still grossly inaccurate. The majority of the 3 million to 4 million people who have fled Zimbabwe were and will still be prevented from registering as voters. Within Zimbabwe media coverage of the election was already biased towards Mugabe and ZANU-PF. And the Government of Zimbabwe, at its own admission, did not invite anyone to monitor the election whom they thought might point out its flaws—including the EU and the UN. For a second round to be considered free and fair, there must at least be an immediate end to violence, and international observers must be put in place now, well ahead of the vote itself.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown and I continue to engage regional leaders. They are feeling the destabilising effects of the crisis. They know it is in their interests for the SADC principles and guidelines on elections to be enforced and the rule of law in Zimbabwe established. Both SADC and the AU have a pivotal role to play now in ensuring an end to the violence, and by introducing observers to prevent further reprisals by ZANU-PF to punish voters for the choices they made in the first round.

International concern about the situation in Zimbabwe remains high. The UN Security Council briefing held in New York last week exposed the humanitarian crisis in Zimbabwe and the need for the UN to be more engaged to resolve it. We will continue to press for a human rights mission or envoy to visit and for arms sales to cease until there is a return to democratic Government in Zimbabwe. We will also call again for UN backed monitors to go to Zimbabwe to observe any second round, and for the Government of Zimbabwe to allow EU and other observers in now to oversee preparations for the elections, as well as the voting itself.

We continue to support all those working for democratic change in Zimbabwe. We all share the wish of the Zimbabwean people to secure their democratic rights. We commend civil society groups in Zimbabwe who continue to fight for democracy and good governance in increasingly impossible circumstances.

We continue to respond to the humanitarian crisis on the ground. We are the second largest bilateral donor to Zimbabwe, giving around £49 million in 2007 and more than £200 million since 2000. UK aid currently keeps over 1.5 million people alive. The UK, along with the international community, is committed to supporting recovery in Zimbabwe when conditions on the ground allow it. This cannot happen until the will of the people is respected and democracy returned to Zimbabwe. But when that happens we will be ready to respond.

It is clear to all, including many in ZANU-PF, that this situation is unsustainable. Economically, Zimbabwe has been in decline for many years: total economic collapse, with the massive humanitarian cost that will bring, is inevitable unless there is a radical change in policy and approach in Zimbabwe. We still believe that the solution to the crisis must be an African solution supported by the international community. For the sake of all the people of Zimbabwe, this solution must come soon.

HEALTH

Adults with Learning Disabilities

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Mr. Ivan Lewis): We are today laying before Parliament the Government's response (Cm 7378) to the Joint Committee on Human Rights (JCHR) report "A Life Like Any Other? Human Rights of Adults with Learning Disabilities", which was published on 6 March.

The JCHR's report recognises that life for people with learning disabilities has improved considerably over the last 30 years. However, the Committee still found serious cause for concern about the way people with learning disabilities are treated by society at large.

The Government response welcomes the JCHR's report and sets out the Government's commitment and practical steps that we are taking to uphold the rights of adults with learning disabilities in mainstream public services.

Several of the Committee's recommendations are around influencing the outcome of the consultation response on "Valuing People Now", the Government's consultation on learning disability policy. This response commits the Government to revisiting the JCHR report and providing a further response to the Committee when publishing the final "Valuing People Now" strategy.

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Department of Work and Pensions, my hon. Friend the Member for Stirling (Mrs. McGuire), is making a written statement today on the Government's response to the Committee's recommendation about ratification of the UN convention which is contained in this publication.

Today's publication is in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

HOME DEPARTMENT

National Identity Scheme

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): The fourth cost report of the national identity scheme is being laid before Parliament today. It sets out an estimate of the public expenditure likely to be incurred on the scheme over the next 10 years, in accordance with section 37 of the Identity Cards Act 2006. It reports on developments over the past six months, since the third cost report was published on 8 November 2007.

Immigration

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): I am today announcing the next steps in our programme of comprehensive immigration reform for 2008. I am publishing statements of intent which set out how the points system will work for skilled migrants coming to fill vacancies here, and for those who come to the UK temporarily for cultural and other non-economic reasons.

The Points-Based System

The UK's new points system is central to our plans for controlling the numbers and skills of people coming to the UK, and ensuring only those the UK needs from outside the EEA can come to work or study.

We began the points system earlier this year with arrangements for highly skilled migrants. The statements of intent I am publishing today outline details on how the system will work for skilled and temporary migrants.

These arrangements will significantly reduce the number of routes to the UK and will include five key changes for skilled workers.

First, all employers who wish to employ skilled migrants will need a licence, provided and monitored by the UK Border Agency. This will help ensure employers are fulfilling their obligations to the UK, for example, helping migrants to understand and comply with our immigration rules.

Secondly, migrants will be required to show English language competence to assist with their effectiveness at work and their integration into British life.

Thirdly, all jobs will be required to meet the resident labour market test before a migrant can be recruited unless the job is in a certified shortage occupations or is an intra-company transfer.

Fourthly, all migrants not filling jobs on the shortage occupation list will be required to earn points through their qualifications and prospective earnings.

Fifthly, there will be a maintenance requirement so that would-be migrants must prove they have the ability to support themselves for the first month they are here.

We are publishing the draft points pass mark today. The final points pass mark for the skilled tier of the points system will be informed by the work of the Migration Advisory Committee (MAC) on economic needs and that of the Migration Impacts Forum on the wider effects of migration.

The MAC will produce shortage occupation lists for the UK, and Scotland only, showing where there are skilled shortages that can be sensibly filled by migration through the points based system.

Statement of Intent for the Temporary Workers and Youth Mobility Tier (Tier 5).

Tier 5 of the points-based system covers temporary workers and the UK's new international youth mobility scheme, allowing people to travel to the UK to satisfy primarily non-economic objectives including five sub-categories: creative and sporting; charity workers; religious; Government-authorised exchange; and international agreement.

As with our arrangements for skilled migrants:

All migrants will need a certificate of sponsorship from a licensed sponsor who will vouch that the migrant will comply with the terms of their stay in the UK, before they even arrive in the UK.

Migrants must also meet the maintenance requirements, demonstrating that they can support themselves while they are here in the UK.

The Tier 5 international youth mobility scheme will allow young people from partner nations to come to the United Kingdom for up to two years to work and travel, while young UK nationals enjoy similar experiences in those countries.

We are publishing these documents today so that those affected by the changes we are putting in place can prepare. We are also giving people the opportunity to comment on the documents. A statement of intent for students under the points based system will follow later this year.

Copies of the statements of intent on the skilled migrant tier and the temporary worker and youth mobility tier have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The documents are also available on the United Kingdom Border Agency's website at: www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/sitecontent/documents/managingourborders/pbsdocs/.

JUSTICE

Office of the Public Guardian

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): The Office of the Public Guardian (OPG) supports the Public Guardian in discharging his statutory duties under the Mental Capacity Act 2005. The OPG was formed in October 2007 with the implementation of the Mental Capacity Act and 2008-09 is therefore the first full financial year of operation for the agency.

The following list sets out the key performance targets that have been set for the Office of the Public Guardian and the Court Of Protection for the year 2008-09.

KPI 1: Lasting Power of Attorney/Enduring Power of Attorney

On receipt:

a) (i) On receipt of an invalid or incomplete LPA or EPA, we will notify 80 per cent. of applicants within 10 working days.

(ii) On receipt of a valid LPA, in 80 per cent. of cases we will notify the party or parties not making the application within 10 working days.

On registering:

b) (i) We will register 98 per cent. of LPA applications within five working days of the end of the statutory waiting period[1].

(ii) Where an attorney makes an EPA application within 10 days of notifying relatives, we will register 98 per cent. within five working days of the end of the statutory waiting period[2].

(iii) Where an attorney makes an EPA application more than 10 days after notifying relatives, we will register 98 per cent. within 15 working days of receipt, or within five working days of the end of the statutory waiting period, whichever is the later.

KPI 2: Supervision of Deputies

All deputyship cases will require a supervision regime based on a risk assessment. Risk criteria include: whether a deputy has been refused credit or is an un-discharged bankrupt; whether the deputy has any financial interests which conflict with those of the client; the value of the client's estate; the relationship of the deputy to the client; and any objections which were made to the appointment of the deputy.

a) 90 per cent. of new deputyship cases will be assessed and a supervision level set within 30 working days of the court order being served on the Public Guardian.

b) 100 per cent. of ongoing deputyships with close supervision (type I) will have a formal reassessment of the supervision level within 13 months of the previous assessment.

c) We will carry out a case review on no less than 4000 type II cases during the year.

A case review could be a combination of:

review of annual report;

carrying out a visit; and review of supervision level following short-term intervention.

KPI 3: Contacting the OPG

The contact centre will act as point of communication for anybody contacting the OPG for advice and information about the OPG, the Court of Protection and other MCA-related issues. It will also act as the first point of contact for most deputies in relation to queries about their powers and duties.

a) We will respond to 95 per cent. of correspondence (including letters, faxes and emails) within 15 working days of receipt.

b) 85 per cent. of telephone calls to the contact centre will be answered within 60 seconds.

KPI 4: Investigations

Upon receipt of an investigations case in the compliance and regulation unit, it is allocated to a specific caseworker. At this point of allocation the 14-day target to set an action begins. The three month target to complete the investigation is inclusive of the 14 days in which the action plan is put in place.

a) We will put in place an approved action plan in 100 per cent. of investigations cases within 14 days of receipt.

b) 75 per cent. of investigations will be completed within three months.

KPI 5: Quality of Service

a) To measure the quality of service people are experiencing in different areas of the organisation, we will carry out targeted surveys throughout the year and report the findings in the OPG 2008-09 annual report. A baseline figure will be agreed with Ministers following receipt of the 2007-08 results and will published in the Public Guardian section 60 report.

b) We will also devise measures concentrating on the quality of service delivered through the contact centre. The results will be published in the 2008-09 annual report.

KPI 6: Finance

Based on the statutory instrument for fees approved by Parliament, we will aim to achieve the following targets for full cost recovery:

a) OPG—100 per cent. full cost recovery.

b) Court of Protection—63 per cent. full cost recovery.

Full cost is defined as:

The total cost of carrying out the provision of services to the taxpayer, less social subsidy/fee remission; financial losses over and above a yearly notional premium; in-year bad debts write off and exceptional items.

Court of Protection

1. In 95 per cent. of cases we will contact the applicant within 20 working days of receipt of the formal application.

2. In 75 per cent. of applications where no oral hearing is directed, the court will give a direction within 16 weeks; and in 98 per cent. of applications the court will give a direction within 20 weeks.

3. In 75 per cent. of applications where an oral hearing is directed, the hearing will be arranged within six weeks of the direction, with all hearings being arranged within 14 weeks.

4. We will respond to 95 per cent. of correspondence (including letters, faxes and emails) within 15 working days of receipt.

5. We are due to carry out the first survey of court satisfaction by the end of March 2008. Our objective for 2008-09 is to increase satisfaction in court services from this baseline.

Copies of the Office of the Public Guardian framework document and business plan will be available in the Libraries of both Houses and from the website of the OPG (www.publicguardian.gov.uk) from 6 May 2008.

[1]The statutory waiting period for LPAs is 6 weeks from the latest date on which the Public Guardian gave notice as required by the Mental Capacity Act 2005 that he had received an application to register the LPA.

[2]The statutory waiting period for EPAs is 35 days from the latest date on which the attorney gave notice of his intention to register the EPA as required by the Mental Capacity Act 2005.

TRANSPORT

Draft Marine Navigation Bill

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): I am today publishing a draft Marine Navigation Bill, for public consultation and parliamentary pre-legislative scrutiny. The draft Bill contains legislative proposals to help to improve safety at sea and in our ports, to deal with wrecks if they do occur and to update the powers of the bodies responsible for maritime safety. Copies of the draft Bill, a consultation paper and other accompanying documents are available in the Libraries of both Houses and the Vote Office.

The issues dealt with in this Bill have been identified in a number of reviews, accident reports and the IMO international convention on the removal of wrecks 2007. In bringing forward this draft Bill I hope to address these issues as far as can reasonably be done.

Any statutory safety measures need to offer a balance between excessive controls and prudent management. The changes that I am proposing in this draft Bill are not fundamental but they do represent a considered approach to the issues that have been identified and they will provide the responsible authorities with useful enhancements to their powers where necessary.

There are also measures in the draft Bill that will help to reduce costs to the shipping industry through the better management of the general lighthouse fund. When the IMO convention comes into force there will be significant improvements in our ability to recoup the costs of dealing with pollution and the aftermath of maritime accidents as it will introduce a strict liability regime and compulsory insurance for shipping operators, meaning that these costs will no longer be picked up by the authorities responsible for safety and the environment which can now happen when the operators or owners of the ship fail to accept responsibility.

The draft Bill sets out our legislative proposals to:

allow the ratification of the IMO convention in the UK so that the Government can compel ship owners to remove wrecks or, if emergency works are carried out by the Government or general lighthouse authorities, facilitate recovery of their costs from the ship owner or its insurers; enable the Secretary of State to direct a harbour authority which is exercising its functions unsafely;

give all harbour authorities access to a power to give general directions to shipping; allow a competent harbour authority to relinquish its unwanted pilotage powers; provide a simple way for the duties of a harbour authority to be extinguished where it no longer serves a useful purpose and to ensure any residual duties are carried out appropriately; permit the introduction of compulsory national occupational standards for harbourmasters and pilots; improve the regulation of pilotage exemption certificates; and modernise some of the powers of the general lighthouse authorities.

Publication of the draft Bill provides an important opportunity to ensure we get our proposals right through public consultation, and for Parliament to scrutinise the legislation in draft. We need to learn from and build on the diversity of experience of professionals in the ports and shipping industries and all who are concerned about the safety of shipping and the protection of the marine and coastal environment, so I encourage all interested parties to participate in the consultation process.

WORK AND PENSIONS

UN Convention on Disability Rights

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mrs. Anne McGuire): Today the Government have responded to the recommendation of the Joint Committee on Human Rights in its report "A Life Like Any Other? Human Rights of Adults with Learning Disabilities", that the Government should ratify the UN convention on disability rights and the optional protocol without further delay or provide clear unambiguous details of any specific impediments to immediate ratification.

The response makes it clear that the UK does not ratify any international treaty until it is in a position to ensure that it can implement the provisions and therefore comply with its obligations. In addition, the European Community is, for the first time, a party to an international human rights convention and this will inevitably affect the ratification timetable. Given the duty on member states to co-operate with the Community, the UK would wish to take into account the European Commission's proposal for Community conclusion of the convention, which is still awaited.

Article 33 of the convention on disability rights is an unusual provision in UN human rights conventions. Article 33 requires states party to the convention to establish national monitoring arrangements, and the Government have wished to properly consult the equality and human rights commission and the devolved Administrations about these arrangements. These consultations are continuing.

Ratification will be in respect of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Part of this process has required the devolved Administrations and Government Departments to check their legislation, policies, practices and procedures against the convention's provisions. This has inevitably taken some time. However, this phase of the work is now over and we are considering carefully the emerging findings. Our aim remains to ratify the convention by the end of this year.

The current position is that the Ministry of Defence has indicated that there is a need to enter a reservation in respect of service in the armed forces, consistent with the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 as amended (DDA) and Council Directive 2000/78/EC of 27 November 2000 establishing a general framework for equal treatment in employment and occupation. Service in any of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown are excluded from the DDA's employment provisions to preserve their combat effectiveness. The Department for Children, Schools and Families has indicated that there is a need to recognise that the general education system in the UK includes a range of provision, including mainstream and special schools which will require an interpretative declaration, and that there will also need to be a reservation in respect of disabled children whose needs are best met through specialist provision, which may be some way from their home. The Home Office has indicated that there may be a need to enter one or more reservations or declarations in respect of immigration, nationality and citizenship.

There are also a number of areas where we are continuing to explore whether there are any compatibility issues which may result in the need for an interpretative declaration or reservation. These are: measures relating to the exercise of legal capacity; aspects of mental health legislation; choice of place of residence; and cultural services (interpretive measures).

With regard to the optional protocol, the Government are aware of the importance that many disabled people and the Committee attach to this issue. The Government is carefully considering its position as part of the convention ratification process in the light of the ongoing review by the Ministry of Justice of a similar optional protocol relating to the convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women.

Written Ministerial Statements

Wednesday 7 May 2008

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): Earlier this year Parliament approved orders creating, from 1 April 2009, nine new unitary councils for the seven areas of Bedfordshire, Cheshire, Cornwall, Durham, Northumberland, Shropshire and Wiltshire. I explained to the House during debates on these orders the approach we intended to adopt for the transfer and appointment of staff to these new councils. Today, I am confirming these arrangements and publishing draft regulations and draft guidance, which cover both the transfer of staff to the new councils and the appointment of the chief executives and other senior managers.

We have developed this approach in consultation with the councils concerned, the local government employers and the trade unions, based originally on our discussion document of August 2007, "Councils' Proposals for Unitary Local Government: An Approach to Implementation". Today we are sending to these interested parties drafts of the regulations and draft guidance, inviting any further comments on the detailed drafting over the next two weeks.

I plan to make staffing regulations which will apply the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 (TUPE) to any transfers of staff occurring as a result of local government reorganisation. The staffing regulations will also require the post of chief executive (head of paid service) of each new unitary authority to be recruited by means of open competition, to be held by 1 April 2010 at the latest. Furthermore, our planned guidance makes clear that the Government expect to see open competition as the means of recruiting to all other senior management board posts, unless there are clear and specific circumstances on the basis of which the council considers there is a compelling case for an alternative approach, which would not detract from both the reality and the perception of the authority being genuinely new.

We believe that this approach will create a clear and consistent framework for the transfer and appointment of staff to all the new unitary councils, which will give both the level of reassurance staff rightly need and expect over their employment, and the flexibility the new councils need to establish innovative arrangements for empowering local communities and delivering improved local public services. Whilst recognising concerns about continuity, particularly through the transition period, the importance that we attach to open competition for senior management board appointments is a recognition of how the new councils will need senior officers with new skills, experiences and perspectives if they are to take full advantage of the opportunities they have to become genuine flagship councils for the future of local government.

We will consider any comments from interested parties and make the regulations and publish the final guidance document as soon as practicable thereafter.

I have placed copies of the draft regulations and draft guidance in the Libraries of both Houses.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

RCEP Report "The Urban Environment" (Government Response)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): The Government have today published their response to the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution's twenty-sixth report "The Urban Environment". The report looks at the environmental problems that affect urban dwellers, and conversely the impact that urban centres have on the environment.

With most of us today living in towns and cities, it is vitally important that our urban environment is designed and managed in a way which is uplifting, offers access to clean air, water and green space; encourages us to lead active, healthy lives; makes a full contribution to reducing our carbon emissions and is robust to the changes in climate that we are already starting to see.

The Government's response to the commission's report sets out the action that we are taking to achieve these goals.

Copies of the Government's response will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses. A copy can also be accessed on the DEFRA website.

HEALTH

NHS Foundation Trusts (Authorisations)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS foundation trusts) announced this week that, in accordance with section 35 of the National Health Service Act 2006, Monitor has decided to authorise the following NHS acute and mental health trusts as NHS foundation trusts from 1 May:

Colchester Hospital University NHS Foundation Trust (formerly Essex Rivers NHS Trust);

Surrey and Borders Partnership NHS Trust;

Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital NHS Trust; and

Somerset Partnerships NHS and Social Care Trust

Monitor's announcement brings the total number of NHS foundation trusts to 96. A copy of Monitor's press notice has been placed in the Library.

The Government remain committed to offering all NHS acute and mental health trusts the opportunity to apply for foundation status as soon as practicable. Monitor is now authorising trusts on a monthly basis, and further waves of NHS foundation trusts are set to follow.

JUSTICE

National Reoffending Measures 2008-11

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): I am, with the Minister of State, Department for Children Schools and Families, my right hon. Friend the Member for Stretford and Urmston (Beverley Hughes), today announcing improvements to the way that the Government measure their performance in reducing reoffending. The statistics will focus on how many reoffences are committed and how many of those are serious offences. The delay in reporting adult reoffending statistics will be reduced. This broader range of information on reoffending rates, will allow for better, more timely analysis of reoffending and ultimately help to reduce crime and make communities safer.

Current Reoffending Data

The Government currently measure the proportion of offenders who reoffend within a given period (two years for adults, one year for juveniles) following either their conviction where a community sentence is given, or release from prison where a custodial sentence is given. The reoffending rate is then compared against a predicted rate. The predicted rate is based on how statistically likely offenders are to reoffend, based on factors such as age and criminal history. If the actual rate of reoffending is lower than the predicted rate, then reoffending has fallen.

This measure has been helpful in providing an accurate picture of the difference that work to reduce reoffending has made to reoffending rates. We will continue to monitor progress using predicted rates and measure progress against the 2002 spending review target that covers the years 2000-06. The target data will be published in autumn 2008.

New Measures

The new Make Communities Safer PSA has provided opportunities to broaden the range of reoffending data collected, reflecting the Governments focus on protecting communities from the harm caused by prolific and serious crimes in particular.

While the current regime measures whether a known offender reoffends or not, the new metric focuses on how many reoffences an offender commits. The new headline measure will monitor the frequency of reoffences per 100 offenders (in the cohort). This will provide a better measure of our impact with those offenders who cause most damage to communities through committing most crime. In addition we will measure the frequency per 100 offenders of reoffences which are classified as serious, such as violence against the person (including grievous bodily harm, murder and manslaughter) and serious sexual offences.

The new measures look beyond simply whether some one reoffends or not and reflects the balance between serious and prolific reoffenders, offenders who commit a small number of reoffences and those who do not reoffend at all.

Timing

We are also reducing the time it takes to report adult reoffending data. Under the new measures, the period of time over which reoffences by adult offenders are recorded has been reduced from two years to one year. The time allowed for convictions to be made and processed has also been reduced from nine months to six months. This will provide a more timely measure of adult reoffending and allows us to align reporting of the adult and juvenile reoffending data.

Comparisons over time

To ensure the figures are as transparent as possible, recalculated reoffending data for the period 2000 to 2004 (to 2005 for juveniles) will be published so that fair comparisons can be made over time. We will also continue to publish a reoffending rate that compares the actual and predicted rates.

Results

On 9 May the latest adult reoffending figures for 2005 will be published using the new reoffending measures. The National Statistics bulletin will also contain recalculated reoffending figures using the new metric from 2000-04 for adults and 2000-05 for juveniles (excluding the year 2001) so that meaningful comparisons can be made under the new measures.

TRANSPORT

Learning to Drive

The Secretary of State for Transport (Ruth Kelly): Over the past decade Britain's roads have become much safer. The number of people killed or seriously injured in road accidents has fallen by a third, keeping road travel in this country safer than almost anywhere else in the world.

But we cannot afford to be complacent when on average nine people a day die on our roads. In particular, we must do more to help make newly qualified drivers safer, one in five of whom has some kind of accident within six months of passing their test.

We must ensure that people learning to drive are taught the skills they need to be safe drivers when they start driving alone. It is time for a new approach to learning to drive. We must make sure that novice drivers are safe drivers when they have passed their test. We must also create an expectation of lifelong learning, so that people continue advanced learning after their test.

That is why I am today publishing a consultation paper targeted at improving the training and testing of new drivers.

Our research shows that we must make sure that learners demonstrate not only good skills, but also safe attitudes and proper understanding of road conditions before they are allowed to drive unsupervised. We will build improved learning opportunities and assessments to support these standards, as well as strengthen the quality of driving instruction available. We will also provide new opportunities for learning both before and after the driving test. This will help new drivers become better, safer, motorists and save lives.

Our proposals include:

a new foundation course, available at schools and colleges, leading to a qualification on safe road use.

a more focused and thorough learning process before the driving test, which focuses not just on vehicle control but also the wider skills needed to be a safe driver, from driving in difficult conditions—for example at night or in poor weather—to learning to predict and respond to other road users' intentions;

a new training syllabus to ensure learners understand what is required of them to become a responsible driver, enable them to undertake structured and efficient learning and accurately assess when they are ready to pass their driving test; an improved driving test which requires the driver to demonstrate independent driving skills and clear understanding of different situations on the road, with the option of modular assessment;

new opportunities to take extra training post-test; working with the insurance industry and employers in the driving for work sector we will develop new courses and qualifications to be taken after the driving test that could lead to lower premiums and a better chance of securing a career in the driving for work sector;

a star rating system for driving instructors so that learners can make an informed choice based on pass rates and the level of training instructors have undergone; and a review of driving instructor training and testing to ensure they provide a quality service and are focussed on those areas of driving performance that are closely linked to safe driving.

In addition to the consultation document being published today, we also intend to publish within the next few months a consultation paper on how we intend to crack down on the reckless minority and deliver improved road safety enforcement and compliance.

Copies of the consultation document have been made available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Home Information Packs

The Minister for Housing (Caroline Flint): I am today laying amendments to the home information pack regulations to extend the temporary first day marketing provision, and to extend the temporary provision requiring HIPs to include the "lease" only and to "authorise" other leasehold documents, from 1 June to 31 December 2008.

The temporary first day marketing provision allows a property to be marketed without a HIP where the documents required for inclusion in the HIP have been commissioned and paid for, or arrangement for payment been made and are expected to arrive within 28 days.

We introduced the temporary first day marketing provision in order to help smooth the implementation of HIPs, and our evidence shows that it has been effective in doing this. However, we believe that a further period of the flexibility provided by the measure would be prudent. I am, therefore, laying an order to amend the home information packs regulations to extend the provision from 1 June to 31 December 2008.

The temporary provision requiring HIPs to include the "lease" only, and to "authorise" other leasehold documents was introduced in response to concerns about delays and additional costs in obtaining leasehold information. This provision is also due to expire on 31 May 2008.

At the time the provision was introduced we also commissioned Ted Beardsall, deputy chief executive of the Land Registry, to undertake a short assessment of the scale and nature of the problems with leasehold information and to advise on possible solutions. Ted Beardsall's assessment confirms that there are a number of longstanding issues in the provision and cost of leasehold information, which HIPs have thrown the spotlight on. It agrees that the inclusion of all leasehold information prior to marketing would cause serious difficulties; and recommends further work to resolve them.

What is clear from the assessment is that it would be premature to lift the current temporary requirement for the lease only, before carrying out the further work it recommends. I am also, therefore, laying an order to amend the home information pack regulations to extend the temporary provision for leasehold requirements from 1 June until 31 December 2008.

In the interim period, I have asked Ted Beardsall to convene a working group of key industry representatives to develop the options identified in his assessment into practical solutions in respect of:

- The type of leasehold information that should be required within a HIP, and the form this should take, having regard to the information that buyers need, their availability and costs.
- Practical steps for helping to establish good practice for landlords and managing agents in the provision of leasehold information.

The working group will report to the Housing Minister in order to prepare and introduce final measures from 1 January 2009.

Home Information Packs were introduced to bring useful information up front in the home buying and selling process to increase transparency and create a better consumer experience of buying and selling a home. We are already seeing positive benefits from HIPs:

- lower up-front costs for first time buyers;
- greater competition in the property searches market leading to reductions in costs to consumers—over 80 local authorities now set lower searches fees, some by as much as £120;
- over 700, 000 homes now have energy performance certificates (EPCs);
- on average £300 per dwelling saving if their EPC recommendations are implemented; and
- over 640,000 HIPs produced, the majority within 7-14 days.

The amendments I have announced today, together with the extension of insurance cover for property searches which I announced on 6 March, will bring all temporary measures within the same timescale, providing industry with the certainty that the implementation of HIPs should be complete from 31 December 2008.

However, it is clear from our area trials and analysis of our monitoring that more needs to be done to ensure that consumers realise the full benefits of HIPs. In particular, to ensure that consumers get to see and are able to use the HIP. Over the coming months, therefore, we will also take action to:

- further build on the quality of the HIP, working with industry in developing innovative solutions to enhance the current product; and
- ensure that consumers see and fully benefit from the information contained in the HIP early in the process, and encourage better practice standards and services consumers get.

Consumers want more general information about the property they are looking to buy—information they can relate to. Although the current HIP contains information that can be helpful to consumers and professionals alike, it is clear that we can go further in providing consumers with easily accessible information that will help in their decision to buy a home. Information on access, boundaries, changes made to the property and fixtures and fittings are currently authorised for inclusion in the HIP. However, this information is not currently being provided as part of the majority of HIPs.

In order to maximise the potential of HIPs in providing consumers with the information they want, we will develop in partnership with the property professionals means for capturing consumer-friendly information for inclusion within the HIP. This will draw on the lessons learnt from our area trials and consumer focus groups. Industry stakeholders are also actively developing complementary initiatives to build on the content of the HIP, including an "exchange-ready pack"—a pack with consumer-facing documents and legal information, including a draft contract to enable swift exchange and completion once an offer has been accepted. We will continue to work with our stakeholder panel to consider this and other initiatives for building on the quality of the HIP.

We recognise that many agents are not showing prospective buyers the HIP and that consumers are not requesting to see it. We have asked the industry to respond to this consumer need by working with us to promote higher and consistent standards of practice that delivers better services to consumers, and to raise consumer awareness of the service standards they should expect and what they can do if things go wrong. In particular we will:

work with our stakeholder panel to support the RICS, the Law Society, the NAEA and other stakeholders who are currently exploring what can be done to bring together best practice into a single set of standards that consumers can expect from property professionals in the home buying and selling process; work with the industry to ensure that agents and HIP providers understand and act on the requirement to prepare the "basic HIP" as soon as the EPC is produced, so that it is available to potential buyers early in the process; and consider what more might be needed to ensure that consumers are protected throughout the home buying and selling process.

I believe these measures will provide greater certainty and stability to consumers and industry about the operation of HIPs.

DEFENCE

Future Rapid Effect System

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): The Future Rapid Effect System (FRES) is a long-term programme to deliver a medium weight armoured vehicle fleet with higher levels of deployability and survivability than the current fleet of in-service vehicles, with the potential to grow its capability as new technology becomes available. FRES is an incremental programme to replace parts of the Army's Saxon, FV 430 and CVR(T) vehicle fleets and deliver a new medium weight capability. It is the Army's top equipment priority behind support to current operations.

In November 2007 we announced that the Utility Vehicle design trials had been successfully completed on schedule, and that a recommendation had been produced primarily based on technical design considerations. Further work has been completed with all three potential providers, to clarify the commercial implications of their proposals. I can now announce that we have provisionally selected the Piranha 5, offered by General Dynamics (UK) Ltd, as the preferred design to be taken forward to the next stage of the Utility Vehicle programme.

This decision was made by following the guiding principles of a competitive assessment to select a design that best met the Army's requirement for a combination of value for money through life, timely delivery, high performance and growth potential.

Piranha 5's confirmation as the preferred design will be subject to the completion of a package of work on risk reduction to ensure it will provide the Ministry of Defence the best possible capability at the right price and at the earliest opportunity.

HEALTH

"Leading Local Change" (NHS Next Stage Review)

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): In my oral statement of 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 297, I notified the House that my noble Friend Lord Darzi had published an interim report as part of the NHS Next Stage Review. I am writing to update the House on the progress of the review as Lord Darzi has today published "Leading Local Change".

The Prime Minister and I asked Lord Darzi to lead the review in July 2007. His interim report in October set out a vision for a world class NHS that is fair, personal, effective and safe.

The review has been led locally by clinicians in each NHS region. Seventy-four local clinical working groups, made up of some 2,000 clinicians, have been looking at the clinical evidence and engaging with their local communities. They have developed improved models of care for their regions to ensure that the NHS is up to date with the latest clinical developments and is able to meet changing needs and expectations.

Lord Darzi is today publishing "Leading Local Change" to set the context for these local visions and the principles which will guide their implementation. We are also publishing new operational guidance, as promised in October's interim report, to help ensure that any changes are based on clinical evidence and are in the best interest of patients. As part of this, we are making five pledges on change in the NHS, which primary care trusts will have a duty to have regard to:

change will always be to the benefit of patients. This means that they will improve the quality of care that patients receive—whether in terms of clinical outcomes, experiences, or safety; change will be clinically driven. We will ensure that change is to the benefit of patients by making sure that it is always led by clinicians and based on the best available clinical evidence;

all change will be locally-led. Meeting the challenge of being a universal service means the NHS must meet the different needs of everyone. Universal is not the same as uniform. Different places have different and changing needs—and local needs are best met by local solutions; local communities will be involved. The local NHS will involve patients, carers, the public and other key partners. Those affected by proposed changes will have the chance to have their say and offer their contribution. NHS organisations will work openly and collaboratively; and local communities will see the difference first. Existing services will not be withdrawn until new and better services are available to patients so they can see the difference.

The nine strategic health authorities (SHAs) outside London will be publishing their strategic visions for improving health and healthcare in their regions over the coming weeks in accordance with the following timetable.

The SHA strategic visions will be published as follows:

12 May	East of England
14 May	Yorkshire and Humber
15 May	South West
19 May	South Central
20 May	North West
22 May	North East
2 June	South East Coast
3 June	West Midlands
5 June	East Midlands

Lord Darzi will publish his final report in June. It will be designed to enable and support the improvements that have been determined locally in the SHA strategic visions.

I firmly believe that this approach, led by clinicians, based on clinical evidence and strong engagement with local communities, is how changes to the NHS should take place as we move from an NHS that is world class in many aspects to one which is world class in everything it does.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Correction to Written Answer

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Mr. James Plaskitt): It has been brought to my attention that the reply I gave the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell, (Chris Grayling), 1 April 2008, Official Report, columns 780-81W, omitted the information about contributory jobseeker's allowance. I apologise for this oversight.

The correct answer should have been:

Neither income related jobseeker's allowance, nor income support are payable to people who live outside Great Britain. Contributory jobseeker's allowance can, under certain circumstances, be exported to other European economic area countries and Switzerland. Further, 0.45 per cent. only of incapacity benefits claimants live abroad.

An EC regulation co-ordinates member states' social security schemes for workers who move between member states. The EC regulation provides that generally, sickness and invalidity benefits must be exported if a beneficiary moves to another member state, although there are some restrictions on the export of sickness benefit. In effect, people in Great Britain who qualify for contributory incapacity benefit (IB) because they have made sufficient national insurance contributions, can continue to receive their benefit if they take up permanent residence in one of the other EU member states. The agreement also extends to the states of the European economic area (EEA) and Switzerland. The UK also has reciprocal arrangements with a number of non-European countries (e.g. USA, Jamaica) some of which include similar arrangements for people from Great Britain to continue to receive contributory benefit when they move there and vice versa.

Of those receiving IB abroad most live in the Republic of Ireland and Spain and smaller numbers across a wide range of other European countries. Very few live outside Europe. They include both British expatriates and nationals of other countries who have worked and paid contributions in Great Britain and have then returned to their own country. They also include "pro rata" cases where the benefit is paid partly by the UK and partly by a foreign authority as customers have contributed to insurance schemes in both Great Britain and an EEA state.

Information is not available for exported jobseeker's allowance other than at disproportionate cost. The available information for incapacity benefits is in the table.

National Insurance Numbers

The Minister for Employment and Welfare Reform (Mr. Stephen Timms): Over the course of 2008 the Government are reintroducing procedures to count foreign nationals in and out of the UK. We are introducing ID cards for foreign nationals, on a compulsory basis, to guard against fraudulent access to jobs and benefits. As part of our cross-governmental enforcement strategy, the DWP will further tighten the criteria for national insurance number (NINO) allocation to ensure that where the partner of a legitimate benefit claimant has no right to be in the UK, DWP will no longer issue the partner with a NINO. This follows the successful introduction of right to work interviews for those applying for national insurance numbers in 2006.

This change will be made using the regulation-making powers under section 1 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992. The intention is that regulation changes will be introduced at the earliest opportunity.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Farepak

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Gareth Thomas): Following my written statement on Farepak of 10 December, I would like to report to the House that the investigation into Farepak and other companies in the European Home Retail group has been completed.

The Investigation

The investigation has taken longer than expected to complete because it involved collecting and often reconstructing the financial and other records of a group of companies, including Farepak, which had ceased to trade and were in administration. The report is over 700 pages long and could lead to court proceedings, so taking short cuts in the investigation was not an option.

Legal advice is being obtained on the report to decide what further action is merited. This is a process which must be carried out confidentially to avoid prejudicing any action that may result and to protect the reputations and interests of those whose conduct is being scrutinised, but in respect of whom no decisions have yet been made. As I said in my earlier statement, if proceedings are taken against any party involved, this will become public knowledge if or when the case reaches open court. We will do everything in our power to process this quickly.

The report cannot in any case be published because there is no provision for reports carried out under the Companies Act such as these (under Section 447) to be published. In fact unauthorised disclosure is a criminal offence.

The Government have great sympathy with those people who have lost money they saved as a result of the collapse of Farepak. We are doing all we can to prevent other families suffering similar problems in the future. BERR has worked with the remaining hamper companies to put in place effective protection for customers' prepayments. The Government have given the OFT funding for a new awareness campaign so that consumers are better aware of their options for Christmas savings. My Department is now considering the report, alongside other advice received, to assess whether further action, including possible new regulation, is necessary in the light of the action which has been taken by the surviving Christmas savings schemes.

The report is also being disclosed to the Accountancy and Actuarial Discipline Board (AADB) to assist in the investigation that it announced in June 2007 into the role of accountants within Farepak and other companies.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Antisemitism (Government Response)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Parmjit Dhanda): I am pleased to announce that I am today laying before Parliament and publishing the Government's one year on response to the all-party inquiry into antisemitism.

Just over a year ago the Government responded to the all-party parliamentary inquiry into antisemitism report and undertook to report back to Parliament on progress in implementing its recommendations.

We believe the best way to tackle antisemitism is through effective implementation of strong legislation against racial and religious discrimination and racially and religiously motivated crime. This must be underpinned by policies and strategies to increase racial equality and build community cohesion, particularly through education.

We have made significant progress against the 35 recommendations made by the all-party parliamentary inquiry's constructive and comprehensive report. We have ensured that by April 2009 all police forces will collect data on all hate crime, including antisemitism; agreed that schools and authorities can use their devolved capital funding for investment in security at schools where this is a priority; committed to funding research on the impact of antisemitic discourse; and launched the race for justice declaration—a cross-Government strategy which aims to combat all forms of hate crime.

Despite this progress, there is no room for complacency, and we will continue to take practical, effective action to stamp out antisemitism whenever and wherever it occurs. We are committed to increasing the number of hate crimes brought to prosecution, tackling antisemitism on university campuses, and challenging hate crime and extremism on the internet. We have agreed to continue our support of the cross-departmental and Jewish stakeholder working group and will report back to parliament on further progress in 2010.

This publication is available in the Libraries of both Houses.

East of England Regional Spatial Strategy

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Parmjit Dhanda): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities is today publishing the East of England plan (the revision to the East of England regional spatial strategy) together with the accompanying supporting statement, which includes a summary of the consultation responses and a sustainability statement. This is the first of a series of comprehensive reviews of regional spatial strategy to be completed under the provisions of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004. The final East of England plan reflects consideration of responses to the consultations on the Secretary of State's proposed changes and further proposed changes which were made in the light of the recommendations of the independent panel who conducted an examination in public into the draft plan.

The East of England plan is crucial to putting in place the Government's sustainable growth strategy within the East of England. It builds on the foundations of the draft East of England plan, which was prepared by the East of England regional assembly and the findings of the independent panel who conducted an examination in public.

The East of England plan replaces the regional planning guidance for East Anglia and relevant parts of the regional planning guidance for the South East within the regional spatial strategy for the East of England. Its main purpose is to provide a framework for local planning authorities to prepare their development plan documents, which must be in general conformity with it.

The strategy aims to guide development in the East of England to 2021 and to set in place a direction of travel for the longer term. It requires the provision of 508,000 dwellings within the region between 2001 and 2021.

The plan adopts the independent panel's conclusion that a case for higher growth was made but that it must and can be reconciled with sustainability and environmental constraints. The plan supports a spatial strategy with development focused on the main urban areas, such as Cambridge, Peterborough and Stevenage, including the growth points at Norwich, Colchester, Ipswich and Thetford. It identifies Hemel Hempstead, Welwyn/Hatfield and Chelmsford as additional growth locations close to London.

Other aspects of the plan include the regional transport strategy, the waste strategy, policies for achieving efficiency savings in water and energy consumption, and policies for improving water resource and waste water infrastructure. The Plan reflects the increased urgency to reduce carbon emissions requiring local authorities to promote renewable and low carbon energy development and the regional assembly to develop regional targets for the carbon performance of new development.

In regard to the green belt, the plan provides that the review at Harlow extend to the north of the town and the review at Welwyn Hatfield may extend into St Albans. It adds additional guidance on the basis for assessing the area to be released and requires compensatory green belt extensions to the north of Harlow and west of Stevenage, which will increase the extent of green belt in the region. In regard to transport the plan identifies priority areas where further measures are needed to tackle congestion and support growth.

The plan was subject to assessment under the habitats regulations. The sustainability statement concludes that the plan is in accordance with the principles of sustainable development and that the additional growth and changes to distribution do not give rise to adverse environmental impacts.

Reflecting the levels of development confirmed through the plan, we are today confirming that five districts are be included in the growth areas with growth area funding confirmed. Chelmsford and St Edmundsbury are brought within the London Stansted Cambridge Peterborough growth area and Dacorum, St Albans, and Welwyn Hatfield are included in the growth area programme with further discussions with partners about which growth area they should be part of. We are also confirming King's Lynn's bid for growth point status.

The plan represents a step change in addressing housing needs but falls short of what will be required based on likely growth in households. The regional assembly is about to commence a further review of the RSS covering the period to 2031 for completion by 2011, which will be informed by Government guidance on the range of housing provision required. We are also asking the assembly, working with partners, to carry out a single issue review focussed on regeneration of Thurrock Lakeside, including the regional shopping centre.

The RSS review is a key milestone in putting in place sustainable higher growth and setting the strategic planning context for decision makers in the East of England. The crucial task now is to ensure it is implemented quickly and effectively. We look forward to working with the local authorities, local delivery vehicles and other key partners on its delivery.

Copies of the East of England plan, together with the sustainability report are available in the Libraries of both Houses and have been provided for all of the region's MPs, MEPs and local authorities.

UN Forces (Cyprus)

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): A new call-out order has been made under Section 56 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 to enable members of the reserve forces to continue to be called out into permanent service and deployed to Cyprus as part of the UK's contribution to the United Nations forces in Cyprus (UNFICYP). Currently some 35 reservists are deployed as part of 7 Transport Regiment RLC which will be followed with a deployment of over 250 reservists in October. The call-out order has effect until 30 April 2009.

HEALTH

Care and Support Reform

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): In October 2007, the comprehensive spending review contained a commitment that the Government would undertake work to look at reform options for the care and support system and consult on a way forward. It also stated that the Government would set out a process involving extensive public engagement, ultimately leading to a Green Paper identifying key issues and options for reform.

Today we are launching a six month engagement process with the public and all those involved in care and support for adults to set out clearly the case for reform, and to consult on a number of questions. This is set out in the document "The Case for Change—Why England Needs a New Care and Support System", which is being published today to mark the beginning of this engagement process. The responses to these questions will inform the development of a number of reform options, to be set out in the Green paper.

This process, although led by the Department of Health, involves work across a number of other Government Departments, reflecting the fact that care and support encompasses many different types of services and assistance. Ensuring effective and sustainable care and support in a society where people are living longer is one of the major public policy challenges of our time. This engagement process is an opportunity for the public to help shape a response to this challenge.

A copy of the document has been placed in the Library, and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Building Regulations Part G

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Iain Wright): I am today publishing a consultation document on options for revising part G of the building regulations addressing sanitation, hot water safety and water efficiency in buildings.

This consultation follows a wide-ranging review of part G of the building regulations and delivers on two Government commitments:

to introduce into the building regulations a whole-building water efficiency standard of 125 litres per person per day for new homes. We announced this water efficiency policy last July following an earlier consultation; and to review how part G and the associated guidance addresses hot water safety. This follows a statement released by my predecessor, my hon. Friend the Member for Basildon (Angela E. Smith) last June on the safety of hot water systems and on the risk of scalding from hot water.

The consultation package, which includes an impact assessment of options, seeks views on a number of changes to the regulations and supporting guidance, and invites consultees to provide us with information on other options. The main areas we are consulting on are, in summary:

proposals to update and bring part G (hygiene) and the guidance in the associated approved document into line with current standards, legislation and industry practice;

the proposed inclusion of a new section on cold water services which would specify locations within the building where a supply of "wholesome" water is required, and which in turn makes it possible to allow the use of "non-wholesome" water in other locations, such as the use of captured rainwater for toilet flushing;

proposals that bring into effect the Government's policy on water efficiency; proposed measures to provide for consistent safety of hot water systems; and a request for more information on the costs and benefits to allow further exploration into the possibility of limiting the temperature of water delivered to sanitary appliances to prevent scalding.

The Government would like to support a provision that would help reduce the risk of scalding incidents from sanitary appliances, and we are aware of the support this would have from many hon. Members and other stakeholders. However, our initial analysis of such a provision suggests that the costs of such measures are considerably out of proportion to the benefits they would deliver. Unfortunately, this means it is not currently possible for us to bring forward a definite proposal for consultation. However, as part of this consultation we are inviting more information to be provided to inform our analysis.

The consultation is accompanied by impact assessments and can be accessed via the Communities and Local Government website at: http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/partgconsultation.

The consultation closes on 5 August 2008.

DEFENCE

Spring Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): I have today placed in the Library of the House copies of the Ministry of Defence's spring performance report. This shows that the armed forces, supported by their civilian colleagues, have consistently and reliably continued to make progress towards their military strategic objectives, including a secure environment and security sector reform in Iraq and Afghanistan. In so doing they are also making a significant contribution towards the Government's wider conflict prevention goals, where we have made some encouraging progress. The Department is also on course to exceed the efficiency goals set in the 2004 spending review, and over the spending review period has continued to deliver against almost all of the targets for equipment acquisition, although we do not expect to have achieved the 2007-08 target for average in-year slippage in forecast in-service dates.

The continuing high operational tempo means that the armed forces cannot simultaneously be ready for the full range of potential contingent operations provided for in planning assumptions, and we do not now expect to have met the readiness target. And although overall activity levels have fallen, the operational tempo is also still preventing achievement of harmony guidelines in parts of the Army and the Royal Air Force. The challenge of implementing the changes in service personnel numbers announced in the July 2004 White Paper while sustaining the high operational tempo means that we have also not made as much progress as we originally planned towards achieving manning balance across all three services, and we therefore do not now expect the Royal Navy or Army to have achieved manning balance by April 2008.

RAF Hercules ZH876 Board of Inquiry

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): I am able to inform the House today of the findings of the Royal Air Force board of inquiry (BOI) into the loss of the RAF C130J Hercules ZH876 in Iraq on 12 February 2007.

The purpose of a board of inquiry is to establish the circumstances of the loss and to learn lessons from it; it does not seek to apportion blame.

The board of inquiry was convened on 13 February 2007 and considered a mass of evidence. The board established that, on 12 February 2007, Hercules C130J ZH876 was on a routine operational passenger flight to conduct a roulement of troops, landing at a tactical landing zone (TLZ) in Maysaan province, South East Iraq. As the aircraft was about to touch down, it was subjected to an improvised explosive device (IED) attack which damaged the aircraft. The captain brought the aircraft to a stop and ordered the aircraft's evacuation. All passengers and crew evacuated successfully, only slight injuries having been sustained.

A second RAF Hercules aircraft was in the vicinity of the TLZ on another task, and offered to provide assistance. It subsequently landed to recover the crew and passengers who were due to depart on ZH876. This second aircraft sustained minor damage on landing as a result of running through some debris from ZH876. This damage was later repaired at its detachment base and the aircraft was quickly returned to service the next day.

Due to operational considerations, ZH876 was judged to be unrecoverable. Consequently, it was destroyed by coalition forces on 13 February 2007, in order to deny enemy forces any exploitation opportunities.

Following extensive investigation, the board concluded that the cause of the accident was the detonation of two arrays of improvised explosive devices (IEDs) buried along the edge of the landing strip at the TLZ. The board of inquiry commended the crew on its handling of the immediate aftermath of the explosion and the successful evacuation of the aircraft. Further, the board stated that, even if the aircraft had been fitted with explosion suppressant foam, it would not have reduced the damage sustained by the aircraft in the IED attack.

The BOI report and a military aircraft accident summary are being placed in the Library of the House and on the MOD's public internet site. As you will appreciate, the safety of our people is a principal consideration and we have therefore removed from both documents any information that might endanger the security or capability of UK and coalition personnel, or be of use to an enemy. We have, however, tried to be as open as possible and have carefully considered the public interest arguments for and against disclosure of the information in the report. We have ensured that each redaction is justified by an appropriate exemption in the Freedom of Information Act.

I remind the House that the purpose of the Inquiry is to identify those factors which contributed to the loss and indicate lessons for the future. The board made a number of recommendations that we are studying closely. Indeed, we have acted on many of them already. The main recommendation was that TLZ search procedures must be revised prior to the resumption of TLZ usage in Op TELIC. Furthermore, once cleared, a TLZ must be constantly monitored prior to use. The National Search Centre, in conjunction with relevant units, has further developed the force protection search section of RAF Regiment procedures. These are now being used by force protection teams on operations in both Iraq and Afghanistan.

The board of inquiry into the loss of Hercules ZH876 is now complete. I express my gratitude to the president of the board and his team for their painstaking work.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

CEFAS

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jonathan Shaw): I have set the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS) the following performance targets for 2008-09:

SERVICE DELIVERY

Customer satisfaction to exceed 82 per cent.

To provide high standard of services to the satisfaction of customers. Measured through weighted average of customer response to post-contract survey that covers seven aspects of service quality.

Delivery of R&D milestones to exceed 90 per cent.

To fulfil commitments on time, within budget and to agreed standards of quality. Covers R&D milestones which support DEFRA's strategic objectives and intermediate outcomes. Performance is reported as a proportion of agreed outputs weighted by contract value.

Science quality indicators to exceed 75 per cent.

To enhance scientific capability and reputation, using indicators grouped around research, wider dissemination and use of our science, and scientific capability. Measures include customer surveys, numbers of peer reviewed scientific papers and investment in new science.

VALUE FOR PUBLIC MONEY

Recover the full cost of our services

To demonstrate financial sustainability through sound operational financial management and appropriate investment in CEFAS's future, including the delivery of CEFAS's transformation plan. Measured through achieving an audited break-even result in 2008-09.

Efficiency savings to LSP plans

To operate with simple, reliable and effective processes in the support and delivery of customer projects. Performance against peer and competitor benchmarks will be used to monitor progress to deliver financial efficiency targets. These are set out in the re-phased LSP plans and include reducing administrative headcount and costs.

CAPACITY AND CAPABILITY

Relocate Burnham on Crouch in 2008-09

To invest in transformation in line with CEFAS's long-term strategy, with successful relocation of Burnham on Crouch laboratories to Lowestoft during 2008-09 being a major milestone.

Staff satisfaction survey to exceed 65 per cent.

To respect and help the agency's people to develop. Measured by an annual questionnaire to staff, using a weighted scale for the eight survey categories.

Further details are given in the CEFAS business plan 2008-09, copies of which will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

HE Student Support (Annual Uprating)

The Minister for Lifelong Learning, Further and Higher Education (Bill Rammell): The level of support for loans, grants and fees that will be available to eligible higher education students in the 2009-10 academic year will be broadly 2.6 per cent. higher than for 2008-09, in line with forecast price increases.

For students who have entered higher education on or after 1 September 2006 and are being charged variable fees, the maximum fee payable will increase from £3,145 to £3,225 in 2009-10. The increase to the fee will be matched by a corresponding increase to the loan for fees that students can take out.

For students who are not being charged variable fees (primarily students who entered higher education before 1 September 2006), the maximum fee contribution payable will increase from £1,255 to £1,285.

The increased fee amounts will be authorised by the Student Fees (Amounts) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2008, which will be laid before Parliament in due course.

For students who are eligible for the maintenance grant, or the equivalent alternative special support grant, the maximum amount of grant available will increase from £2,835 to £2,906.

For most students, the maximum amount of the basic maintenance loan will increase from £4,625 to £4,745. For students studying in London, the maximum amount will increase from £6,475 to £6,643, while for students continuing to live at home while studying, the maximum amount will increase from £3,580 to £3,673.

I am placing a memorandum in the Library which gives full details of the increased loan, grant and fee rates for 2009-10. All these rates are being incorporated into the Education (Student Support) (No. 2) Regulations 2008, which will also be laid before Parliament in due course.

JUSTICE

Appointment to the Boundary Commission for Wales

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): I should like to inform the House that I have, under Schedule 1 to the Parliamentary Constituencies Act 1986, appointed Mr David John Bader as a member of the Boundary Commission for Wales. The appointment is effective from 1 May 2008 until 30 April 2013.

WALES

Legislative Competence Order (Housing)

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Paul Murphy): I am pleased to inform the House that the proposed National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) (Housing) Order has been laid today, as Command Paper (7379). Copies of this can be found in the Vote Office and will be placed in the Library from 12 noon. I have written to the Chairmen of the Welsh Affairs Committee and the House of Lords Constitutional Committee to request they undertake pre-legislative scrutiny.

ECOFIN

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council will be held in Brussels on 14 May 2008. Items on the agenda are as follows:

QUALITY OF PUBLIC FINANCES: EFFICIENCY OF PUBLIC EXPENDITURE ON SOCIAL TRANSFERS AND EDUCATION

Member states will be invited to adopt Council conclusions on the quality of public finances following a discussion at the informal ECOFIN in Brdo, Slovenia in April. This builds on conclusions on the quality of public finances agreed under the German and Portuguese presidencies in 2007.

WESTERN BALKANS INVESTMENT FRAMEWORK

Member states will be invited to adopt Council conclusions on the next steps on the Western Balkans investment framework. Progress on the investment framework, which will bring together the donor funding streams for the Western Balkans, is a priority for the Slovenian presidency. The UK supports work on the framework, which was discussed at the informal ECOFIN.

FINANCIAL SERVICES

i) Financial Stability Arrangements: Supervision, Including an Update of the Roadmaps

Following discussions at the informal ECOFIN, member states will be invited to agree a unified set of Council conclusions on arrangements on financial stability and supervision. The EFC has prepared the draft Council conclusions on supervision and an update of the roadmaps on "Review of the Lamfalussy Process", "Strengthening EU Arrangements for Financial Stability", and "On Actions Taken in Response to the Financial Turmoil".

ii) Communication on Financial Education

The Council will be asked to agree to draft Council conclusions on financial education, which suggest some initiatives and practical assistance for helping member states to improve the levels of financial education within their countries.

iii) White Paper on Mortgage Credits

Member states will be invited to agree to draft Council conclusions on a possible single market for mortgages. The UK supports voluntary initiatives that may improve EU market efficiency rather than harmonising consumer protection rules.

DIALOGUES WITH THIRD COUNTRIES: ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL ISSUES

The Council will receive an oral update from the Commission on the state of play of the dialogues with third countries, and it will discuss the economic and financial issues of the EU-US summit preparation and the ASEM Finance Ministers Meeting.

TAXATION

i) Indirect Taxation: Fight Against Tax Fraud

The Commission will debrief the Council orally on the state of play of the consideration of measures to combat tax fraud, as requested by the December 2007 ECOFIN. member states will also be asked to agree Council conclusions on VAT fraud. The UK is strongly supportive of work that will help in the fight against missing trader intra-community (MTIC) and other VAT fraud, while remaining committed to minimising the burdens on legitimate businesses.

ii) Savings Taxation

The Commission will provide an informal oral report on the functioning of the savings tax directive in view of recent developments involving Liechtenstein investment vehicles and following the request of the March ECOFIN Council. The UK strongly supports the Commission's continued dialogue with third countries with a view to bringing them into the savings tax directive.

iii) Good Governance in the Tax Area

Member states will be invited to agree draft conclusions containing a specific provision on good governance in the tax area, which is to be added to relevant agreements to be concluded by the Community and its member states with third countries.

STRATEGY FOR THE EVOLUTION OF THE CUSTOMS UNION

Following the presentation by the Commission of its communication "Strategy for the Evolution of the Customs Union" in April, marking the 40-year anniversary of the customs union, the Council will be invited to adopt draft Council conclusions prepared by the customs working party.

PRELIMINARY DRAFT GENERAL BUDGET 2009

The Commission will present the preliminary draft general budget (PDB) for 2009 to the Council. The presentation and publication of the PDB signals the start of the annual budget procedure, of which the next step will be the "first reading" by the Council in July 2008.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

First Time Buyers

The Minister for Housing (Caroline Flint): This statement sets out the steps we are taking to provide more opportunities for first-time buyers to access the housing market.

The vast majority of people in this country aspire to owning their own home. People value the security of homeownership, the sense of having a stake in the community, and the chance to build up assets.

Rising prosperity in this country over recent years, with high employment and low interest rates, has meant that more people have been able to aspire to homeownership. Since 1997, there are 1 million more households who own their own home. One hundred and ten thousand have benefited from our low cost home ownership programmes, enabling them to get a first foot on the property ladder.

However, a fundamental mismatch between supply and demand has now put house prices far beyond the reach of many, particularly first-time buyers. Ten years ago, the average house price was just 3.5 times the average income. Now, the average house costs more than seven times the average income. And while interest rates have fallen, the result is still that fewer first-time buyers are able to enter the market. Not only is this a potential brake on aspiration and social mobility, it may also cause stagnation in the rest of the market.

The long-term solution is to build more homes to overcome this housing shortage. This is why we are embarking on a major housing supply programme under which we want to see outputs rising to 240,000 new homes a year by 2016. But in the short-term, we want to do more to ensure that more potential first-time buyers are able to enter the property market.

The current market situation makes this more difficult. Last week we announced a package of measures to help support home owners, including measures to ensure that financial advice and support is available for borrowers who may be facing difficulties with their mortgage.

But we also want to see mortgages available for those who can sustain home ownership, and at the same time we want to support housebuilding.

Through our shared equity schemes, we already aim to help 75,000 more householders on to the property ladder over the next three years. Today I am announcing how we can go even further than that by focusing spending to support the housing market and those looking to get on the housing ladder. In the Budget the Government announced two new open market homebuy products offering greater affordability to first-time buyers. We have also announced a purchase assistance grant of £1,500 to the first 2,000 purchasers to help them with the costs of moving into a new home.

Today I am announcing an expansion of the eligibility criteria for these products so that more people can benefit. It is right that we continue to give priority to key workers and tenants in the social rented sector. But from today both the new build homebuy and open market homebuy products will also be open to all first-time buyers with a household income below £60,000 who could not otherwise afford to buy. This will allow, for instance those who work in public services but who are employed by the private sector, to access this support.

In addition we are focusing up to £100 million spending to expand open market homebuy to help an additional 2,500 first-time buyers purchase a newly built home in 2008-09. Purchasers will be able to apply to use the new shared equity products announced on the 1 of April to purchase a new-build home of their choice on the open market. The new products help to improve affordability to buyers by offering an equity loan of up to 50 per cent. of property value. This scheme will make a wide choice of new property open to prospective buyers while also helping to support the new build market and maintain housing supply.

This change will more than double the number of families helped by the new open market homebuy products this year.

Alongside this, we are maintaining our commitment to deliver much needed social rented homes, keeping up delivery in 2008-09 and with a target of 45,000 such homes in 2010-11.

The current market also provides opportunities for housing associations to buy new properties from housebuilders at competitive prices. The Housing Corporation has already been working with housing associations and housebuilders to take advantage of these opportunities. In the first three months of the year, housing associations bought 1,800 homes from developers through the national affordable housing programme. Nearly 840 of these were for low cost home ownership and 935 were for social rent.

I have today asked the Housing Corporation to use flexibilities available to them in their current programme to fund more such purchases where they represent good value for money. The corporation estimates that it may be able to fund an additional £200 million of direct purchases from housebuilders in the current financial year, helping yet more families into low cost home ownership and rented accommodation.

A marketing campaign for all the homebuy products will be launched in partnership with lenders and housing associations in order to raise awareness of the new criteria. Government will work with the TUC and individual trade unions to promote these opportunities to their members.

Following Government's meeting with the Council of Mortgage Lenders and lenders, we will continue to work with a range of lenders to support a fair and well functioning UK mortgage market. We will also work with lenders to encourage them to develop their own shared equity products.

DEFENCE

Mr. Baha Mousa

The Secretary of State for Defence (Des Browne): In my statement of 25 January (Official Report, columns 65-66WS), I promised to make an announcement once I had reached a decision on what form any future inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr Baha Mousa in Iraq in September 2003 might take.

After wide consultation and after considering the representations that I have received, and with the full support of the military chain of command, including the Chief of the Defence Staff and the Chief of the General Staff, I have decided that the right thing to do is to establish a public inquiry under the Inquiries Act 2005. The inquiry will examine the circumstances surrounding the death of Baha Mousa. The terms of reference and other details will be made public once they have been established in accordance with the provisions of the Act, and the inquiry report will be published.

This reinforces my determination, and that of the Chief of the General Staff, to do everything we can to understand how it came to be that Mr Mousa lost his life. The Army has no wish to hide anything in this respect. It has looked at itself very critically since 2003, and has made a number of significant changes that were enumerated in Brigadier Aitken's report of January this year. It nevertheless remains anxious to learn all the lessons that it possibly can from this disturbing incident.

Overall, the conduct of tens of thousands of our people in Iraq has been exemplary; it is a tiny number who have caused a stain on the reputation of the British Army. But that does not mean we can allow these events to pass without looking into them thoroughly.

I hope this independent inquiry will reassure the public that no stone has been left unturned. The Army and the Ministry of Defence will be giving the fullest co-operation to this inquiry.

JUSTICE

Oakhill Secure Training Centre

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. David Hanson): In my written ministerial statement of 12 July 2007 (Official Report, col. 69WS), I undertook to update the House in relation to Oakhill secure training centre. The Ministry of Justice and the Department for Children, Schools and Families have joint responsibility for youth justice. My right hon. Friend the Member for Stretford and Urmston (Beverley Hughes) is the lead minister for the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

My right hon. Friend and I wish to inform the House that the Youth Justice Board has decided to issue rectification notices to STC Milton Keynes Limited, the contractor responsible for the delivery of services at Oakhill STC. The contractor will be required to remedy the identified deficiencies. Rectification will include improvement in the number and training of staff provided and the education service.

This is the latest step taken by the Youth Justice Board in its management of this contract to ensure that the contractor delivers the services specified. The safety of the young people in the STC is of paramount importance and the YJB will be monitoring the position closely.

A summary of the programme will also be available at www.direct.gov.uk/draftprogramme.

I will announce shortly the date when Members will have the opportunity to debate this on the Floor of the House.

In the Government's Draft Legislative Programme published yesterday (Cm 7372) we announced that we intend to legislate to establish the regulator as part of an Education and Skills Bill in the 2008-09 session. I am today publishing an exchange of letters with Kathleen Tattersall OBE, the chair of Ofqual, prior to the launch event for Ofqual tomorrow.

Planning Casework Performance

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Parmjit Dhanda): The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 requires the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to set and meet a timetable for the majority of planning cases which are to be decided by her (as opposed to being decided by a planning inspector) and to make a report to Parliament each year on performance. This is intended both to ensure that such cases are dealt with expeditiously and to enable the parties to any particular case to know when they can expect to receive a decision.

The Secretary of State has accordingly today laid before Parliament an Act paper reporting on performance on all decisions made between 1 April 2007 and 31 March 2008. During this period, 100 per cent. of the 131 decisions made by the Secretary of State on cases other than appeals against refusals of consent for works to trees covered by tree preservation orders were made within their statutory timetables, as were 617 out of 627 decisions (98.4 per cent.) on tree preservation order appeals.

Statutory timetables apply to decisions on called-in planning applications; planning appeals recovered for the Secretary of State's decision; other cases "linked" to such decisions, including listed building consent, conservation area consent, advertisement consent and enforcement notice appeals; and tree preservation order appeals. They do not apply to cases decided by inspectors or to those decided by the Secretary of State jointly with a Minister of another Department

Espoo Convention (Bucharest 19-21 May)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Iain Wright): The UK will be represented at official level at the fourth meeting of the parties to the UNECE convention on environmental impact assessment in a transboundary context (the Espoo convention), to be held in Bucharest, Romania, from 19 to 21 May.

The meeting will be invited to adopt a work plan and budget to cover the period to the next meeting of the parties, around 2011, and decisions on good practice, co-operation and modifications to procedures, all designed to improve the effectiveness of the convention. None of the matters to be considered are expected to raise concerns about UK interests. We will support adoption of a work plan that is realistic and properly costed, and will contribute to the agreed costs of the convention.

Parties will be expected to indicate their intention to ratify a protocol to the Espoo convention on strategic environmental assessment (SEA). The UK signed this protocol in 2003 with the intention of ratifying as soon as measures needed for compliance were in place. It is now established that the UK is compliant with no requirement for specific measures and we therefore propose to confirm our intention to ratify the protocol.

DEFENCE

RAF Pumas (Board of Inquiry)

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): I wish to inform the House today of the findings of the Royal Air Force board of inquiry (BOI) into the accident involving Pumas XW211 and XW218 in Iraq in the early hours of 15 April 2007.

XW211 and XW218 were part of a Puma helicopter formation in support of coalition operations. The accident occurred when the lead aircraft, XW211, had landed and its passengers had disembarked. XW218 then tried to land next to XW211 but its main rotor blades hit those of XW211. Sadly, two personnel lost their lives and several received serious injuries. Our deepest sympathies remain with the families of those servicemen.

A BOI was convened that same day to establish the circumstances of the loss and to learn lessons from it; a BOI does not seek to apportion blame. The board concluded that the accident was caused by XW218 being positioned too close to XW211. A contributory factor was the difficulty of judging distances accurately to another rotating disc—that is, the main rotor blades—at close range.

The BOI and the chain of command made 17 recommendations that are now being studied closely, and some have already been implemented.

The BOI into the accident involving Pumas XW211 and XW218 is now complete. I express my gratitude to the president of the board and her team for their painstaking work.

A redacted version of the main body of the BOI report and the military aircraft accident summary (MAAS) will be available on the MOD internet site at http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/BoardsOfInquiry/. A copy of the MAAS is also being placed in the Library of the House. As you will appreciate, the safety of our people is a principal consideration and we have therefore removed from the BOI report information that might endanger the security or capability of UK and coalition personnel, or be of use to an enemy. We have, however, tried to be as open as possible and have carefully considered the public interest arguments both for and against disclosure of the information in the report. We have ensured that each redaction is fully justified by an appropriate exemption in the Freedom of Information Act.

The Ministry of Defence is co-operating fully with the Wiltshire coroner who will hold an inquest in due course.

Headquarters Allied Rapid Reaction Corps

The Minister for the Armed Forces (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): On 12 September 2007, I announced my decision that Headquarters Allied Rapid Reaction Corps (HQ ARRC) and its intimate supporting elements, 1 Signal Brigade (1 Sig Bde) and 102 Logistic Brigade (102 Log Bde) should all move from Germany to the UK over the period 2009-14 (Official Report Columns 122WS - 124WS). I explained that this decision would need to be confirmed following scrutiny of the detailed plans for the moves, and that this work would start with the proposed move of HQ ARRC and its intimate supporting elements from Rhine Garrison in Monchengladbach to Innsworth in Gloucestershire.

Today I am announcing that the programme team's detailed plans for the move of HQ ARRC and its intimate supporting elements have been completed and scrutinised, and that I have decided that the move to Innsworth will take place in 2010, which fits with the MOD's current commitments and priorities and means that the site will still be fully revitalised in the near future. The Innsworth site was taken over by the Army on 1 April 2008 and it is being prepared to enable the necessary refurbishment and new build works to begin. In the meantime we will maintain all essential services at the site, undertake all necessary works services and work with the local authorities in Gloucestershire to prepare for the arrival of personnel, families and equipment in 2010.

The programme team will continue to consult with interested parties including the trade unions and, in Germany, we will continue to engage with the relevant authorities and employee representatives at national, regional and local levels.

Our NATO allies have been notified of this decision, including the German Government as host nation.

As far as the moves of 1 Sig Bde and 102 Log Bde are concerned, I announced on 31 January 2008 that the site occupied by the defence college of aeronautical engineering (DCAE) at Cosford in Shropshire is the MOD's preferred site for the two brigades (Official Report Columns 25WS-26WS). Detailed planning for these moves continues, as well as for a series of other moves within Germany to determine how best we can provide infrastructure support there once the planned moves to the UK have been completed. Under current assumptions, we envisage restructuring HQ United Kingdom support command (Germany) in Rheindahlen, which will result in a smaller support organisation integrated with HQ 1 (UK) Armoured Division in Herford, and a discrete HQ being established in the UK to ensure necessary infrastructure support to overseas locations. All the moves and changes to the provision of infrastructure support will lead to the closure of Rhine garrison and Münster station, the latter completing the closure of Osnabrück garrison.

As stated in my previous announcement, these moves and the work of the programme team in no way signal a change in either our commitment to the NATO alliance or in our overall defence policy, nor do they in any way devalue the continued close bilateral defence relationship between the UK and Germany. Although we may make further modest adjustments to our force levels in Germany, our plan, with the continued agreement of the German Government, remains to base UK forces there in the form of HQ 1 (UK) Armoured Division and the majority of its formations and supporting units—some 15,000 service personnel—for many years to come.

HEALTH

General Medical Council (Fitness to Practice Rules)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The General Medical Council (Fitness to Practise) (Amendment in Relation to Standard of Proof)

Rules Order of Council 2008 was laid before Parliament on 8 May. The General Medical Council has amended its Fitness to Practise Rules, the effect of which is to require the standard of proof that is applicable to civil proceedings to all proceedings before a Fitness to Practise panel or the Investigation Committee which commence on or after 31 May 2008. The GMC has written to all doctors whose cases may be affected by this change. These rules are not contingent on the changes in the law being proposed in the Health and Social Care Bill.

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): We have today published the Home Office's 2008 departmental report. Copies are available in the Vote Office and on the Home Office website. The report describes the work of the Home Office during 2007-08, in particular as reflected in its strategic objectives and key targets.

Serious Organised Crime Agency Annual Report 2007-08

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Vernon Coaker): The annual report of the Serious Organised Crime Agency for 2007-08 is being published and laid before Parliament today. As required by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005, the report includes an assessment of the extent to which the annual plan for 2007-08 has been carried out.

Copies of the report will be available in the Vote Office as soon as possible.

JUSTICE

Interception of Communications (Prison)

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): On 29 January 2008, Simon Creighton of Bhatt Murphy wrote to Treasury solicitors. In his letter, he stated that he had come across a written transcript of a telephone conversation between himself and his client, Mr Harry Roberts, in late 2005 while Mr Roberts was detained in HMP Channings Wood. The transcript was amongst material supplied to him by the specially appointed advocate (SAA) who had been involved in Mr Roberts' previous parole hearing. Mr Creighton also stated that there appeared to be at least one other telephone call between himself and Mr Roberts which had been recorded.

On 30 January 2008, the Treasury solicitor forwarded Mr Creighton's letter to officials at the Ministry of Justice. On receipt of the letter, officials began enquiries of HMP Channings Wood as to how the telephone conversations had come to be recorded and transcribed.

I and other Ministers at the Ministry of Justice were told of the existence of the transcripts on 4 February.

In response to the allegations being made, the then Deputy Director General of HM Prison Service commissioned an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the interception, monitoring and retention of communications between Mr Roberts and his solicitor. I also asked for an internal investigation to be undertaken by the National Offender Management Service to determine the precise circumstances in which the transcripts of legally privileged conversations had come to be made and passed to the SAA. I am now in a position to inform the House of the findings of the investigations into this issue.

This statement relates to how transcripts of conversations between Mr Creighton and Mr Roberts came to be included in material prepared for Mr Roberts' previous parole hearing. In summary, the Prison Service investigation concluded that this occurred because Mr Roberts failed to identify his solicitor's telephone number to staff at Channings Wood prison, though Mr Roberts, through his solicitor, disputes this finding.

The prison rules allow for the interception of communications in prison and for intercepted information to be retained for up to three months and to be disclosed to the police and others when it is necessary and proportionate to do so, either on receipt of a lawful application to access the information or by way of lawful voluntary disclosure. Interception is the action that makes the contents of a telephone or mail communication available to a person other than the sender and intended recipient. An operational manager can authorise the interception of communications for reasons such as prison security and control, but there is also a policy that prisons will monitor all the communications of certain prisoners—for example category A prisoners—who pose the greatest risk to the public and/or security within prisons. Telephone monitoring is the action of listening to recordings of the content of intercepted telephone communications. Prison staff keep a record of which calls have been monitored. The interception described here is undertaken by the prison authorities under prison rules. It does not require authorisation by a Secretary of State under part I of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act (RIPA). Nor should it be confused with the directed surveillance class of authorisations under part II of RIPA, necessary for the conduct of covert eavesdropping in prison visiting rooms, which were the subject of the recent inquiry by the chief surveillance commissioner, Sir Christopher Rose, about which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department made a statement on 21 February 2008 (Official Report, col. 536). There is no suggestion that any legal visits to Mr Roberts were monitored.

The PIN phone system—so called because prisoners are given a personal identification number (PIN)—intercepts and records all telephone calls that prisoners make, except those identified by the prisoner as legally privileged or otherwise confidential communications (for example with the Samaritans). All intercepted telephone communications are recorded by the PIN system and initially stored on the hard drive of the system before being copied onto either a tape or CD for retention purposes. Only those prisoners who pose the greatest risk have all their communications monitored but all establishments will undertake an element of random monitoring of telephone communications of no more than 5 per cent. of calls made on a particular day. Prisoners are made aware during the induction process and by notices prominently displayed within the prison that their calls are intercepted, recorded and may be monitored.

The PIN phone system is configured in such a way that it does not intercept communications between a prisoner and their legal representative or other confidential communications provided that these numbers are declared as being confidential. This is what is termed the confidential side of the PIN system—it is not subject to interception. However, in very limited circumstances, for example where a prison governor or law enforcement agency has reasonable cause to believe that a telephone call between a prisoner and his legal adviser is of a criminal nature or would endanger prison security or the safety of others, the governor may authorise the interception, recording and monitoring of such conversations by moving the legal representative's number from the confidential side of the PIN phone system to the open side, without the prisoner's knowledge. Such communications will then be intercepted, and a member of staff will listen to them, for such period as is deemed necessary. There was no authorisation to intercept, record and monitor the legal telephone conversations between Mr Harry Roberts and his solicitor, Mr Creighton. For the future I have decided it is more appropriate, given the sensitivity and seriousness of interfering with legal professional privilege, to raise the grade for such interception of communications to the Chief Operating Officer for the National Offender Management Service. We will amend the prison rules accordingly.

The general position is that legal representatives' numbers are included on the confidential side of the PIN system to ensure that calls are not intercepted and recorded, although a log is kept of the date and time of the call. However, it is the responsibility of prisoners to notify the prison authorities of the telephone numbers of their legal representatives, so that such calls are not inadvertently intercepted.

In the case of Mr Roberts, in the view of the Prison Service, the recording of his telephone conversations with his solicitor occurred because Mr Roberts failed to identify to staff at HMP Channings Wood the telephone number of Mr Creighton of Bhatt Murphy. This was established during the investigation commissioned by the then Deputy Director General of HM Prison Service. When the PIN phone system was introduced at HMP Channings Wood in 2002, all prisoners were told that they needed to identify the telephone numbers of their legal representatives by completing a form, so that those numbers could be entered on to the confidential part of the PIN system with calls to those numbers not intercepted. Mr Roberts states that he did identify the relevant number, but there is no evidence that he did so. There is no documentary evidence that he underwent the training to familiarise prisoners with the PIN system on its introduction. However, the Prison Service has confirmed that Mr Roberts would not have received a PIN number or have been able to transfer funds to his PIN phone account had he not undergone the training. In June 2006, a notice was issued to prisoners at Channings Wood reminding them of their obligations under Prison Service Order 4400 to list their legal telephone numbers, to which Mr Roberts did not respond. Consequently, whilst he was imprisoned at HMP Channings Wood, all of his calls to his solicitor were intercepted, recorded and could have been monitored. There is, however, no evidence that Prison Service staff at Channings Wood carried out any monitoring of these communications.

On 8 November 2005, for the purposes of a closed hearing of the Parole Board, my right hon. Friend the Member for Norwich, South (Mr. Clarke), the then Secretary of State for the Home Department, was directed by the board to obtain recordings of telephone calls for the period 1 October to 8 November 2005 made by Mr Roberts whilst he was at HMP Channings Wood, to enable further detailed consideration of his level of risk to specific individuals. This request was for recordings in general. It did not refer to calls with his solicitor, nor was it intended to cover such calls. Mr Roberts was represented at the closed hearing by a specially appointed advocate (SAA).

The lifer section in the National Offender Management Service obtained the recordings without themselves listening to, transcribing or reviewing them in any way and sent them to the Treasury solicitor, who was acting for the Secretary of State. Secretarial staff at the Treasury solicitor then made transcripts of the recordings. Due to the pressure of time in preparing for the parole hearing and the concern of the SAA to have the material as soon as possible, Treasury counsel and the Treasury solicitor agreed with the SAA that the transcripts and tapes of the recordings should be provided to the SAA as they became available and before they were reviewed.

In January 2006, when counsel for the Secretary of State discovered one transcript of a telephone conversation between Mr Roberts and Mr Creighton, she alerted the Treasury solicitor and the lifer section to the existence of the transcript, and advised that the transcript should not be reviewed. On further examination of the transcripts, two other transcripts of telephone conversations between Mr Roberts and Mr Creighton were discovered. All three transcripts were then deleted from the transcripts that the Secretary of State provided to the Parole Board. However, as a result of an oversight some copies of the transcripts were kept. The prison governor at Channings Wood was not made aware of the existence of this material.

At that time, the SAA was representing Mr Roberts in all matters relating to the closed proceedings and consequently there were no communications between the Treasury solicitor and Mr Creighton about matters relating to the closed hearing. As a result, a decision was taken by the Treasury solicitor not to tell Mr Creighton of the existence of the transcripts and tapes. However, the SAA was made aware of the existence of the transcripts and the SAA had the transcripts and tapes and would have been able to raise any concerns on Mr Roberts' behalf, although he did not in fact do so.

On 8 January 2008, the Parole Board directed that the SAA send the papers to Mr Creighton for the purposes of a new parole hearing for Mr Roberts. As far as counsel and Treasury solicitor for the Secretary of State were concerned, the transcripts had been deleted from the Parole Board dossier and so were not part of the evidence for the closed hearing of the Parole Board and there was no reliance on the transcripts of legally privileged conversations for the purposes of the parole hearing. However, the SAA had both the tapes of the recordings and the undeleted transcripts and these were included in the papers sent to Mr Creighton.

The Treasury solicitor and Mr Creighton have exchanged correspondence about this matter. Mr Creighton wrote to the Treasury solicitor on 29 January. The Treasury solicitor replied on 28 February. Mr Creighton wrote a further letter on 4 March, and the Treasury solicitor replied on 25 March. Mr Creighton wrote a further letter on 1 April, and the Treasury solicitor replied on 14 May. Mr Creighton, on his client's behalf, disputes part of the account above. I am, therefore, with his agreement, placing the full correspondence in the Libraries of both Houses.

I would like to add for completeness that I learned on 25 February that Derbyshire constabulary also had in its possession a number of transcripts of legally privileged conversations between Mr Roberts and his legal advisers and that the chief constable had instigated an internal investigation. That investigation has now concluded. The recordings of telephone conversations obtained by Derbyshire constabulary were as a result of four applications under the prison rules to HMP Channings Wood for recordings of Mr Roberts' conversations, which altogether covered the period 19 August 2005 to 8 October 2006. The investigation revealed that Derbyshire constabulary's remit in this matter extended only to consideration of a possible risk that had arisen to sources of certain information which had been provided to the Parole Board and taking such action as was necessary and proportionate to mitigate that risk. The constabulary was not involved in any decision regarding Mr Roberts' continued imprisonment. Derbyshire police were properly authorised to access Mr Roberts' communications under the formal process agreed between HMPS and ACPO. Derbyshire police's requirements were managed by the police intelligence officer at Channings Wood.

The investigation also found that it was only officers at detective constable level in Derbyshire constabulary that knew of the existence of the legally privileged material. Those officers then failed to inform or seek advice from their senior officers or the force solicitor. The officers involved have since received advice on legal professional privilege, and systems within the constabulary have been tightened more generally.

The chief constable of Derbyshire has provided assurance that the transcripts held by his constabulary were never used as evidence or intelligence, nor were they disseminated to any senior officer or partner agency. Derbyshire constabulary reacted promptly, comprehensively and openly once this issue was brought to its attention. Derbyshire constabulary has given an undertaking not to destroy any material relating to Mr Roberts, but in particular the transcripts of his telephone conversations, including legal conversations without the prior agreement of Mr Creighton and NOMS.

The report of the interception of communications commissioner for 2006 (HC 252) was laid before Parliament by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 28 January 2008. NOMS continues to work closely with the interception of communications commissioner, who has non-statutory oversight of the interception of communications in prisons. NOMS will undertake a wide-ranging review of interception policy and procedures and an operational pilot of revised procedures. This review will consider the training needs of staff engaged in interceptions and whether further awareness is needed about the handling of legal professional privilege and other confidential material. I will make a further statement, should this be necessary.

DEFENCE

Support for Armed Forces

The Petition of residents of Chorley and others,

Declares that British Service personnel should receive the necessary help and support they require, particularly medical support.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Defence to honour the covenant between Government and service and ex-service personnel in providing the necessary support and medical assistance they require.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Lindsay Hoyle, Official Report, 27 February 2008; Vol. 472, c. 1207 .] [P000132]

Observations from the Under-Secretary of State for Defence:

The Government provides a wide range of support to our Armed Forces and veterans and their families. We have made a number of improvements recently including enhancements to operational equipment, accommodation, compensation and medical support. The Command Paper, due in the spring, will outline steps taken so far and future initiatives to enhance the Government's support.

The provision of medical care to Service personnel has recently been highly praised by the cross-party House of Commons Defence Committee which declared in their February 2008 Report on "Medical care for the Armed Forces" that:

> "The clinical care for Servicemen and women seriously injured on operations is second to none. DMS personnel, working with the NHS, provide world-class care and we pay tribute to them."

The HCDC report provided welcome confirmation that we have made the right decisions about the way that we provide this care and the way we maintain and develop the skills of our doctors, nurses and other medical professionals by working closely with the NHS.

Ministry of Defence Hospital Units

In addition to the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine (RCDM) in Birmingham, we have arrangements with five major NHS Trust hospitals to provide experience and training for our military medical personnel. These NHS hospitals have all agreed to host Ministry of Defence Hospital Units (MDHUs) to facilitate the continuing training, development and maintenance of clinical skills of DMS personnel in their hospitals. The NHS hospitals that host the MDHUs are also close to military population centres, and so can offer more "local" secondary care facilities for military patients living or working in the region.

Looking to the future, RCDM patient care will be moving to the new NHS hospital being built in Birmingham, and so will benefit from the major investment which will deliver the largest and most modern critical care teaching hospital in Europe.

Service patients can already be treated in any NHS hospital (although this will most frequently occur within those Trusts which host MDHUs), which is the most effective way of enabling them to benefit from the latest advances in medical treatment and the recent major investments in NHS facilities. The HCDC report recently stated:

> "We were impressed by the MDHUs which we visited and are satisfied that they deliver high-quality care to military and civilian patients."

Operational Health Care

On deployed operations the DMS aim to provide medical support on operations encompassing preventive medicine, evacuation, primary, secondary and tertiary care. When Service personnel are seriously injured, we aim to ensure that they receive a very high standard of care, including returning them to the UK for specialist treatment if necessary.

RCDM, based at the University Hospital Birmingham Foundation Trust (UHBFT), is the main receiving unit for military casualties evacuated from an operational theatre. In the Birmingham area, military patients can benefit from the concentration of five specialist hospitals (including Selly Oak Hospital) to receive an excellent level of clinical treatment. Selly Oak is at the leading edge in the medical care of the most common types of injuries our casualties sustain.

Mental Health

In Iraq and Afghanistan, we deploy highly skilled and experienced uniformed mental health nurses to provide in-theatre care and treatment for our personnel. Away from operations, our mental health services are configured to provide community-based mental health care in line with national best practice. We do this primarily through our 15 military Departments of Community Mental Health (DCMH) across the UK (plus satellite centres overseas), which provide out-patient mental healthcare.

The DCMHs are staffed by Community Mental Health Teams comprising psychiatrists and mental health nurses, with access to clinical psychologists and mental health social workers. In-patient care, when necessary, is provided regionally in specialised psychiatric units under a contract with the Priory Group. The HCDC recently supported the MOD's community based approach to mental healthcare, stating:

> "We believe that it is sensible to approach mental healthcare from community based provision, delivered in conjunction with local military units, in-patient treatment being a last resort."

Rehabilitation

There are 15 MOD Regional Rehabilitation Units (RRU) in the UK and Germany. They focus on the assessment and treatment of musculoskeletal injuries and sports medicine and are staffed by specially trained doctors, physiotherapists and rehabilitation instructors. They enable patients to be assessed and treated in a timely fashion, with the aim of returning them to operational fitness when this is clinically possible. In their recent report the HCDC concluded that:

> "The MOD's approach to musculo-skeletal injuries is forward-looking and sensible, and we are persuaded that it has been of significant benefit to Service personnel as patients..."

More seriously injured patients may be referred to the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC) at Headley Court in Surrey, which is the principal medical rehabilitation centre run by the Armed Forces and widely praised for its work. Indeed, the HCDC report described its services as "exceptional". DMRC provides both physiotherapy and group rehabilitation for complex musculoskeletal injuries, plus neuro-rehabilitation for brain-injured patients, after they have completed their hospital care.

Veterans

The healthcare of veterans is the responsibility of the Department of Health and the devolved Administrations. In November 2007 the Health Secretary announced an extension of NHS priority treatment to enable access to priority treatment in the NHS to veterans who may not yet have claimed a war pension.

From 1 January all veterans, not just war pensioners, should receive priority access to NHS secondary care for conditions which are assessed by their GPs as being as being due to service, subject to the clinical needs of all patients. The Department of Health has issued guidance on the new provision. Defence and Health officials and the ex-Service organisations are now working together on communicating the new arrangement to GPs and the veterans' community and monitoring its effectiveness.

Ex-Service personnel receive good treatment from their GPs but we recognise that many health professionals have limited experience of dealing with veterans who have mental health symptoms arising from their Service experience.

Officials from the MOD and the UK Health Departments have therefore been working together to develop a new community-based mental health service. The first of six regional health pilots was launched on 23 November, a further three pilots have launched with the remaining two pilots due to launch shortly. It is intended that the mental health pilots will run for two years ahead of evaluation and nationwide roll out. The service is designed to provide regional networks of culturally sensitive expertise in military mental health to support NHS health professionals.

To cover the interim period we announced in the summer the expansion of our Medical Assessment Programme (MAP) based at St Thomas' Hospital, London, to include assessment of veterans with mental health problems with operational service since 1982.

Additionally the MOD is the single biggest contributor to Combat Stress (a charity which specialises in helping ex-Service personnel suffering from nervous or mental disabilities); in 2006-07 MOD gave Combat Stress £2.5 million in fees. In October 2007 the Department agreed to phased increase in the fees we pay rising to 45 per cent from 1 January 2008 to enable them to enhance their capability to treat veterans. This demonstrates the Department's continuing commitment to help Combat Stress play an appropriate part in treating veterans with mental health problems and help Combat Stress deliver an enhanced capability to treat war pensioners.

The MOD holds regular discussions with the Department of Health on how the health care provisions for Service personnel, their dependents and veterans can be improved.

Welfare

The Ministry of Defence places a very high priority on the welfare of its Service personnel and their families. The procedures are under constant review to make sure that the provision reflects the needs of the individuals.

The Ministry of Defence fully recognises the importance of adequate welfare provision for our in-patient Servicemen and women at RCDM and a package of measures is in place to support them. This includes an incidental expenses allowance of £5 per day (£10 per day in overseas hospitals) to pay for TV/internet cards and sundries such as newspapers. In addition to this patients who remain in hospital for longer than 10 days are eligible for the payment of Longer Separation Allowance at a rate of between £6.22 and £26.26 per day.

Operational casualties will continue to receive the tax-free Operational Allowance of £12.75 per day and are also eligible to retain any paid acting rank that was awarded for participation in the operation that resulted in their injury. They are also entitled to the accelerated award of any campaign medal that may be awarded and their unit can continue to claim welfare monies for families support whilst the individual is hospitalised.

The family of an injured Service person, who is listed as 'Very Seriously Ill', 'Seriously Ill' or 'Incapacitating Illness or Injury' and has the required medical recommendations, is entitled to travel, accommodation and subsistence at public expense. The Dangerously Ill Forwarding of Relatives (DILFOR) rules allow funding to cover the travel, accommodation and subsistence for two close family members to travel to the bedside of an injured Service person. In addition, the Joint Casualty and Compassionate Cell (JCCC) can extend this to allow other family members also to travel to be at the bedside.

Initially, the DILFOR allowance is for 7 days but can be extended for as long as required subject to medical advice. The regulations on DILFOR equally apply to the families of Foreign & Commonwealth Service personnel.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members' Priority Access

The Petition of Members and staff of the House of Commons and others,

Declares that the Petitioners are astonished at the announcement made on the 9th October 2007 that hon. Members should have priority access to services throughout the Commons part of the Parliamentary Estate. The Petitioners agree that such an approach may be expedient during a division, but not everywhere all the time. The Petitioners consider that this announcement serves to create a rigid two-tier system which is counter to an enlightened image of Parliament and further believe that there is merit in a general presumption of equality on the Parliamentary Estate

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons ask the Administration Committee and Sergeant at Arms to reconsider their decision.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Lembit Öpik, Official Report, 22 January 2008; Vol. 470, c. 1470 .] [P000112]

Observations from the House of Commons Commission:

An announcement was made on 9 October 2007 that Members should have priority access to services throughout the Commons part of the Parliamentary Estate. This was as a result of a recommendation by the Administration Committee after discussions about the inadequate enforcement of regulations on access to facilities. The intention of the Committee's recommendation was that Members should have the opportunity to take priority at service points if they asked rather than that they should be given automatic priority at all times. Mr. Speaker agreed to the recommendation.

The Chairman of the Administration Committee attended a meeting on 16 October convened by representatives of Members' staff to discuss the implementation of the Committee's recommendations. There was a high turnout, including staff working for Members of all parties, as well as House staff, and representatives of trade unions. It was a valuable meeting at which views were expressed both about the substance of the recommendations and the way in which they had been communicated.

The Committee accepts that strong feelings have been provoked on the part of staff and unions but it is not intending to change the recommendation at present, and the Commission does not plan to amend the policy. The Administration Committee has agreed that it will review the operation of the Members' Priority Access policy in twelve months' time.

OBSERVATIONS

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Development (Essex)

The Petition of Mrs Vanda Jimmick, residents of Hadleigh and others

Declares that Hadleigh, particularly the town shopping centre, should be protected from further overdevelopment, and that they feel the proposed development, at the corner of Oak Road North and London Road, replacing four commercial units with 30 flats and three large commercial units, with totally inadequate parking and access facilities, is environmentally damaging and local public services and road capacity are even now under great strain and unable to absorb more development, and that they feel that Hadleigh is becoming flat-land, and there is too much of this sort of housing provision, which is not suitable for families.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to implore the local borough council to reject the development of the corner of Oak Road North and London Road so the community can remain sustainable.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Bob Spink, Official Report, 10 March 2008; Vol. 473, c. 118.] [P000143]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The question of whether or not to allow planning permission for the proposed redevelopment of land at the corner of Oak Road North and London Road is a matter for the local planning authority, in this instance Castle Point Borough Council.

Primary responsibility for development control within an area rests with the local planning authority. It is for them to decide in the first instance, with particular regard to the provisions of statutory development plans and any other material considerations, whether a particular development should take place. The Secretary of State rarely intervenes in the consideration of individual planning applications and then only when planning issues of national or regional significance are involved. To do so more often would be to undermine the responsibility of local authorities for planning in their area.

Local Infrastructure (Northamptonshire)

The Humble Petition of the residents of the Hatton Park area in Wellingborough and surrounding areas,

Sheweth

That for three years they have pursued, through the appropriate channels at the Borough Council of Wellingborough and Northamptonshire County Council, improvements to the local infrastructure including the speed and volume of traffic, the poor state of roads and pavements, the large and intrusive trees and illegal and dangerous parking; and further declares that these improvements have not been carried out, and are concerned that they pay the highest council tax in the Borough of Wellingborough.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to liaise with the two local authorities concerned in order to investigate the concerns above and resolve the situation

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. Peter Bone, Official Report, 20 February 2008; Vol. 472, c. 486 .] [P000126]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

Improvements to the road infrastructure in the Wellingborough area are primarily the responsibility of the local highway authority, in this case Northamptonshire County Council, and thus the Secretary of State would not normally comment on the condition of local roads.

Government Office for the East Midlands understand that although Northamptonshire County Council have undertaken some road improvements in the Croyland Ward area these were done some time ago, and the County Council are unaware of the recent concerns of the residents in that area. They do have a large number of conflicting priorities across the county, but will try to ensure that appropriate action is taken to best serve the concerns of the local residents. Northamptonshire County Council have advised that, to best do this, sight of the petition with details of the concerns would be most helpful.

Planning (Bedfordshire)

The Petition of the campaign for a sustainable Harlington,

Declares their opposition to proposals to destroy the green belt around Harlington by building a stadium and a large industrial/commercial development on land adjacent to Junction 12 of the M1. Luton Town Football Club and the Council should find a suitable urban site for a new stadium within the boundaries of Luton.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to take steps to preserve the green belt around Harlington.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mrs. Nadine Dorries, Official Report, 20 February 2008; Vol. 472, c. 486 .] [P000120]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government is aware that a planning application has been submitted to South Bedfordshire District Council in respect of the above development. She is advised that the application was registered on 27th February.

The determination of planning applications is primarily the responsibility of the District Council as local planning authority, and the Secretary of State cannot comment on the merits or otherwise of any application, or prospective application.

Decisions on planning applications are required to be in accordance with the adopted development plan, unless material considerations indicate otherwise. The Government's statements of national planning policy, such as Planning Policy Guidance 2 "Green Belts", are material considerations which must be taken into account, where relevant, in planning decisions, but it is the responsibility of the local planning authority to identify and weigh up all the different issues, in the context of the specific local circumstances, having regard to the; views of local residents and other interested parties.

The Secretary of State may decide to call-in an application for her own determination where she considers that it raises issues of more than local importance, but her policy is to be very selective about this. As it is possible that the instant proposal may, at some future date come within her jurisdiction, it would be inappropriate to comment on the matter raised in the petition.

The Petition of the campaign for a sustainable Toddington,

Declares their opposition to proposals to destroy the green belt around Toddington by building a stadium and a large industrial/commercial development on land adjacent to Junction 12 of the M1. Luton Town Football Club and the Council should find a suitable urban site for a new stadium within the boundaries of Luton.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to take steps to preserve the green belt around Toddington.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mrs. Nadine Dorries, Official Report, 20 February 2008; Vol. 472, c. 486 .] [P000123]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government is aware that a planning application has been submitted to South Bedfordshire District Council in respect of the above development. She is advised that the application was registered on 27th February.

The determination of planning applications is primarily the responsibility of the District Council as local planning authority, and the Secretary of State cannot comment on the merits or otherwise of any application, or prospective application.

Decisions on planning applications are required to be in accordance with the adopted development plan, unless material considerations indicate otherwise. The Government's statements of national planning policy, such as Planning Policy Guidance 2 "Green Belts", are material considerations which must be taken into account, where relevant, in planning decisions, but it is the responsibility of the local planning authority to identify and weigh up all the different issues, in the context of the specific local circumstances, having regard to the views of local residents and other interested parties.

The Secretary of State may decide to call-in an application for her own determination where she considers that it raises issues of more than local importance, but her policy is to be very selective about this. As it is possible that the instant proposal may, at some future date come within her jurisdiction, it would be inappropriate to comment on the matter raised in the petition.

Planning and Development (Reading)

The Petition of people from the greater Reading area,

Declares that the panel looking at the South East Plan were wrong to recommend development of 7500 houses north of the M4 at Reading; this area is in a functional floodplain; the Environment Agency have said that building in this area could result in floods in central Reading; the petitioners wish to see Kennet floodplain protected in line with existing planning policies.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Minister for Planning to delete Kennet Meadow as a development area from the Regional Plan.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.,—[Presented by Martin Salter, Official Report, 2 April 2008; Vol. 474, c. 890 .] [P000169]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the recommendations of the panel report into the south east plan in relation to a special development area south of Reading, referred to locally as Kennet Meadow.

As the process of producing the south east plan is bound by regulation and propriety guidance, which seeks to put all interested parties on an even footing, I am unable to discuss the merits of the panel's report, or take any representations or comments on board at this stage. These propriety matters apply in particular to any comments related to particular localities or development proposals.

The position in respect of the south east plan is that Government are currently considering its response to the recommendations in the panel report. The next stage in the process is the publication, for public consultation, of the Government's own proposed changes to the draft strategy. This will provide an opportunity for interested parties to make further representations. We are aiming to publish the proposed changes in the summer.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Climate Change

The Humble Petition of residents of Bristol,

Sheweth

That they bear witness to the threats of climate change, and believe that firm action is needed to reduce emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House appeals to Her Majesty's Government to bring forward an amendment to the Climate Change (Sectoral Targets) Bill, to introduce a target for the reduction of Carbon Dioxide emissions by at least 80% of the 1990 levels by 2050, to include in this target emissions from aviation and shipping, and to require intermediate annual targets for the reduction of emissions.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Stephen Williams, Official Report, 19 March 2008; Vol. 473, c. 1049 .] [P000154]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs:

Thank you for your petition in which you ask the House of Commons to consider a number of points in relation to the Climate Change Bill. I have been asked to reply as DEFRA has policy responsibility for Climate Change.

With regards to the 2050 target, the government recognises the significant recent advances in scientific understanding since the 60% goal was included in the 2003 Energy White Paper, and set out as at least 60% CO_2 reduction in the Bill. However, the Prime Minister stated, last November, that the independent Committee on Climate Change will be asked to review the 2050 target, and advise on whether it should be tightened up to 80%. There has been no comparable cross-cutting research and analysis since the Royal Commission report which recommended the 60% figure in 2000. The Government tabled an amendment to strengthen the Bill, that will make the 2050 target review a statutory duty. The Committee on Climate Change will report its findings by 1 December.

Domestic shipping, which accounts for over 40% of UK maritime bunker sales, is included already in the Climate Change Bill, as is domestic aviation. The Bill also allows for the inclusion of international shipping and aviation once there is a change in European or international law or practice. There is currently no international agreement on how to allocate emissions from international shipping or international aviation to individual countries: it is for this reason that emissions from international aviation and shipping are currently excluded from the national targets of all countries who currently have emissions reduction commitments under the Kyoto Protocol.

We are continuing to investigate all options for reducing emissions from international and domestic shipping, including improved technology and better operator practices. However, shipping is a global industry and so it is important that regulations are developed in the International Maritime Organization (IMO) on a global scale, as they must be enforced by flag States i.e. the countries under whose flags ships operate. Therefore, in the international arena we are working actively within the IMO to address greenhouse gas emissions and other atmospheric emissions from ships.

We are also taking action to tackle the climate change impacts of aviation. The UK has led the debate on the inclusion of aviation in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme (EU ETS). You may be aware that significant progress towards this objective was achieved in December last year when EU Ministers reached agreement at Environment Council to include the carbon emissions from flights arriving at and departing from the EU in 2012.

On the issue of annual targets in the Bill, there is already strong annual accountability through the requirement of annual reporting to Parliament on progress towards budgets and targets by the independent Committee on Climate Change—to which the Government must respond. The Government has rejected annual targets in favour of five-year carbon budgets for very good reasons: annual targets are simply too inflexible to take account of real life. Five-year periods offer the right balance between certainty and flexibility and are also consistent with international practice (e.g. under the Kyoto Protocol). For example, it would be impractical to manage annual targets for those businesses covered by EU ETS, which represent around half of the UK's CO2 emissions, as that system operates on five-year periods where trading freely within the period and across the EU is allowed to ensure operators meet their obligations. Nevertheless, in order to provide greater transparency over the Government's expectations, as part of the Government package of amendments tabled at Lords Report stage, a new requirement has been added to the Bill that following the setting of each carbon budget, the Secretary of State will also be obliged to set out in a report to Parliament annual indicative ranges for the net UK carbon account for each year within the budget period.

OBSERVATIONS

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Darfur Genocide

The Petition of Students from seven West Oxfordshire secondary schools; Bartholomew, Burford, Carterton, Chipping Norton, The Henry Box School, The Marlborough Schools and Wood Green, Declares that genocide is taking place in Darfur, Sudan.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to move the issue of the Darfur genocide to the top of the political agenda and media spotlight, and to keep it there.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.— [Official Report, 12 March 2008, vol. 473, col. 5P]. [P000149]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs:

I utterly condemn the appalling acts of violence committed by all sides to the conflict in Darfur. The UK is at the forefront of international efforts to bring lasting peace and security to Darfur.

The UK has called on all parties to stop the violence, to allow immediate humanitarian access, to protect civilians, and to facilitate the deployment of the African Union-UN peacekeeping force (UNAMID). We continue to work closely with the UN and others to improve the humanitarian situation in Darfur.

The UK welcomed the transfer of authority, on 31 December, from the African Union force that deployed to Darfur in 2006 to the African Union/UN Hybrid force (UNAMID). The UK was instrumental in ensuring the unanimous adoption of UNSCR 1769, which mandated UNAMID in July 2007. UNAMID is operating under UN financing, logistic support and established peacekeeping procedures. UNAMID has increased daylight patrols to support women collecting firewood, and started night patrols.

The UK strongly supports the international community's efforts to monitor and improve the application of human rights in Sudan. There can be no impunity for the crimes committed in Darfur. The UK played a leading role in the adoption of UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1593 in March 2005, which referred Darfur to the International Criminal Court (ICC). The ICC issued arrest warrants on 2 May 2007 on two individuals for alleged war crimes in Darfur.

The ICC Prosecutor reported to the UN Security Council on 5 December 2007 that Sudan had not met its obligations. As a UN member, Sudan must comply with all UNSCRs. I raised this with the Sudanese Foreign Minister during his visit to London on 28 April 2008. The Sudanese authorities must co-operate unconditionally with the ICC and surrender the two individuals. The ICC has our full support for its activities.

Ultimately, peace can only be achieved through a committed political process. There is an urgent need to re-invigorate the AU-UN-led Darfur political process, and for the AU and UN to appoint,a single Chief Negotiator. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, during his visit to New York on 17 April, pressed UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon to appoint a single Chief Negotiator as quickly as possible, and offered to host talks in London as part of the AU-UN led process if that was considered useful by the international community and the parties to the conflict.

The UK remains committed to finding a lasting, peaceful and inclusive solution to the situation in Darfur. We will continue to play a leading role in international efforts to support work towards a peaceful future for Darfur.

HEALTH

Hugh Sexey's Hospital

The Humble Petition of the Rt. Rev. Neville Chamberlain (Master of Hugh Sexey's Hospital) and others of like disposition,

Sheweth,

That Her Majesty's Government's plans for the re-organisation of primary care in the country, with particular reference to rural areas such as theirs, will dramatically effect the way in which General Practice is currently organised and funded, and will severely harm the services they currently receive from their excellent local surgery.

As residents of Hugh Sexey's Hospital, a remarkable retirement home, where the average age of the residents is 80+, and where every effort is made to remain self-sufficient and independent (constantly advocated as a desirable object), the loss of their local surgery would be catastrophic.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House shall call on Her Majesty's Government to reconsider its plans, and treat each differing area, urban and rural, to detailed consideration, with particular reference to the needs of vulnerable groups in each community, and not allow public money to be taken away from local NHS surgeries and given to private companies.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. David Heath, Official Report, 26 March 2008; Vol. 474, c. 5P.] [P000160]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

My Department will bring this issue to the attention of Somerset Primary Care Trust (PCT) to ensure that such decisions are made in consultation with local stakeholders, including local patients and clinicians. PCTs are responsible for organising local health services in ways that reflect the needs of their local population.

The Government is not trying to impose a 'polyclinic' model that would see smaller GP practices move into the health centres alongside a range of ancillary services. PCTs may wish to develop this model if it is appropriate for their area. However, what the Government is proposing nationally is the procurement of new and additional GP services, to add to and complement existing provision.

Somerset PCT, like every PCT in the country, will receive additional resources from the £250 million access fund to procure a new GP-led health centre service this year following the commitments made in Lord Darzi's interim report.

The Department of Health is currently working with PCTs and strategic health authorities to develop a communications and stakeholder engagement plan that articulates in more consistent and compelling ways the rationale for the primary care procurements, emphasises the degree of local flexibility and addresses some of the common misperceptions about centrally imposed requirements.

Nurses' Pay

The Petition of residents of the Taunton constituency and others,

Declares that the Government's refusal to backdate the pay settlement awarded to NHS nurses by the independent Pay Review Body in 2007 constitutes a broken promise to a profession that has been unfairly neglected in recent years; that the recent offer of 8% over 3 years is insufficient and vulnerable to current inflationary turmoil; and that the nurses of Taunton Deane are highly skilled and dedicated public servants who have earned a fair and rewarding pay settlement.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to increase the rate of pay for NHS nurses beyond the current settlement.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Jeremy Browne, Official Report, 28 April 2008; Vol. 475, c. 138.] [P000178]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Health:

The Government fully recognises the important role that nurses play in patient care and ensuring they are properly remunerated for the specialist work they do.

In 2007-08 the Government made a decision - given the policy on public sector pay -to stage the Pay Review Body recommendations. However, in further discussions the NHS Staff Council reached an agreement to the following additional changes to the 2007-08 pay arrangements:

£400 for staff on pay points 1-7 with 1.5 per cent, payable from 1 April 2007 and the remainder from 1 November 2007;

2.5 per cent, and £38 for staff on pay points 8-18 with 1.5 per cent, from 1 April 2007 and the remainder from 1 November 2007;

2.5 per cent, with 1.5 per cent, payable from 1 April 2007 and with the balance from 1 November 2007 for all other staff; funding to the equivalent of £25 per member of staff who is not required to have clinical professional registration to practice is made available by the Department of Health in 2007-08 to trusts to support training projects for that group of staff. Projects to be agreed locally in partnership with applications for funding signed off by the trust chief executive and staff side chair;

a payment of £38 a year to Agenda for Change clinical staff in bands 5-8(A) inclusive who are in professions where registration is a mandatory requirement of practice to support the payment of fees for their clinical registration from 2007 to 2010 inclusive, by when it will have been jointly reviewed; and an agreement, without prejudice, to discuss the possibilities for a multi-year pay deal pay arrangement.

The agreed multi-year discussions have continued and the offer of just under eight per cent, across the next three years is now out to union consultation.

The deal would give staff a headline pay rise of 2.75 per cent, in the first year - the best in the public sector. For the first time, the minimum starting salary for nurses would be more than £20,000.

Structural reforms over the three years would deliver benefits not possible from a Pay Review Body award. This means that newly qualified clinicians - including nurses, midwives and physios - would receive a 20 per cent, pay increase over the course of the deal. Some staff in Band 5 would receive a 21 per cent, increase.

Experienced clinicians and other staff in non-clinical groups in Band 6 - including registered midwives and specialist therapists - would receive between a 19 per cent, and 21 per cent. increase over the three years.

The majority of staff in Bands 1 through to 4, including clinical support staff, would see an 18 or 19 per cent. increase over the course of the deal.

The Year 2 headline pay rise of 2.4 per cent. would establish a new minimum wage of £6.77 an hour - 18 per cent. higher than the statutory rate. Those on the lowest point would receive an overall pay increase of 5.7 per cent.

The Royal College of Nursing (RCN) have also welcomed the three-year pay agreement for nurses. Dr Peter Carter, Chief Executive & General Secretary of the RCN said:

"We have always said we would only consider signing up to a three year pay deal if it was fair and offered nurses protection against future rises in inflation. We are delighted to put the RCN's name to a proposal that does just that.

Nurses can now focus on doing what matters most, delivering high quality patient care, safe in the knowledge they have some degree of security over their household finances in the coming years. An important part of the package we have negotiated is to ensure nurses are protected against future price rises so we are delighted to have won a commitment to re-open pay talks should inflation rise sharply or if there are significant changes to the labour market. This process will be overseen by the independent pay review body.

"We have long argued that fair pay and decent conditions are vital to keep experienced nurses in the profession, while attracting much needed new blood. Given the uncertain economic climate and the government's tough public sector pay policy, this package, worth 7.99 per cent over three years, is better than expected and goes some way towards bridging the gap between nurses' pay and other public sector workers. We will now be consulting our members for their views on this proposed agreement. Details of the RCN's consultation will be announced shortly."

The Government believes we have worked successfully with the Unions towards a deal that is good for staff, the NHS and patients. This deal ensures security for NHS staff and allows them to plan for their future and the future of their families. It will help those on the lowest wages, increase the earning potential for hundreds of thousands of staff and allow quicker progression up the pay ladder.

The Government does not agree that NHS nurses have been "unfairly neglected in recent years" - Agenda for Change itself provided an additional just short of £1 billion investment in the first full year of implementation, as addressed previously in the House.

The new multi-year deal will mean in 2008-09 the majority of nurses will receive both a headline award of 2.75 per cent, if agreed by the unions, and a further pay incremental uplift of on average 3 per cent., providing a 5.75 per cent, uplift for many nursing staff.

TRANSPORT

Local Bus Services (Dorset)

The Petition of customers and residents of West Moors in the Christchurch constituency,

Declares that they deplore the decision of Wilts. and Dorset Bus Company to reschedule local bus services in such a way as to remove the direct services between West Moors and Bournemouth and Bournemouth Hospital and express their concerns that one of the justifications for the rescheduling is the requirement of the Bus Company to reduce the length of its routes to less than 31 miles so that it can use vehicles without tachographs which would otherwise be required under the Community Drivers' Hours and Recording Equipment Regulations 2007.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to reduce regulatory burdens and review the impact of the latest regulations upon local bus services.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Christopher Chope, Official Report, 28 April 2008; Vol. 475, c. 139.] [P000180]

Observations from the Secretary of Transport:

The Government is aware that a number of bus operators have recently altered routes to remove themselves from the scope of the European drivers' hours and tachograph rules under Council Regulation EC 561/2006. This Regulation contains an EU wide derogation for vehicles used for the carriage of passengers on regular services where the route covered by the service in question does not exceed 50km.

The Regulation came into force on 11 April 2007 and replaced earlier EU legislation on this subject. The 50km threshold for regular bus services has existed since EU drivers' hours rules were first introduced. However, the Regulation introduced a new requirement for drivers of regular bus services to use a tachograph to record hours worked and tightened up weekly rest requirements. These changes were intended to reduce the risk of fatigue related road accidents involving drivers of commercial vehicles and were the outcome of extensive negotiations in Europe. At that time, the Government consulted a wide range of stakeholders on the proposals and these changes were not identified as a pressing concern.

Since the Regulations came into force, the Government has received representations from bus operators that operating services under the EU rules is unattractive commercially because of the additional costs involved. Representations have also been received from bus users that services are being curtailed or withdrawn. There is also evidence that some operators have been adopting a variety of devices to artificially split longer routes into a series of shorter ones.

Departmental officials met representatives of the Confederation of Passenger Transport (CPT) on 17 April to discuss the concerns expressed by rural bus service operators about the burdens imposed by the EU drivers' hours rules and possible solutions within the framework of the existing legislation. Criteria have been agreed for deciding whether a route is a separate route for the purposes of the 50km threshold and this should provide greater certainty for operators who wish to continue to operate outside the EU regime. The CPT also advised that some operators of longer distance routes have accepted that the EU rules should apply and are now operating under those rules.

The Government will explore any opportunities that may arise to re-examine the issue in Europe although any proposal to change the 50km threshold would require the support of a qualified majority of other member states. Other member states may have different views and there is a risk that any review of the EU regulation could result in a greater number of local bus services being brought into the EU rules.

OBSERVATIONS

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration (Adela Mahoro Mugabo)

The Petition of the Mahoro Must Stay Campaign,

Declares that Adela Mahoro Mugabo, who is to be removed to Rwanda, is the widow of a man murdered in 2002 by the Interharamwe Hutus, and as a Hutu herself was accused by the Rwandan Military Intelligence of covering up for her husband's murderers. The Petitioners further declare that Mahoro was tortured and raped, and is now HIV-positive, and that if she is returned to Rwanda she will still be in danger and will be unable to get the anti-retroviral drugs she needs to survive.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Home Secretary to instruct a reconsideration of the Home Office decision and allow Adela Mahoro Mugabo to stay in the UK, a safe environment in which she will be able to lead a healthy life.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. John Leech, Official Report, 28 January 2008; Vol. 471, c. 138 .] [P000114]

Observations from the Secretary of State for the Home Department:

The Government is unable to comment on the individual case in order to protect the privacy of the individual.

The information that has been submitted will be fully considered by the UK Border Agency against our traditions and obligations of providing humanitarian protection to those who need it.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Administration of Justice: Appeals

Nick Herbert: To ask the Solicitor-General how many appeals on the grounds of undue leniency were made in each of the last five years. [200203]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney-General's Office publishes annual statistics on unduly lenient sentence references on its website:

www.attorneygeneral.gov.uk

The following table shows the number of offenders whose sentences were referred to the Court of Appeal as unduly lenient, the number of offenders whose references were subsequently withdrawn and the number of offenders who were therefore brought before the Court of Appeal in each of the last five years for which full statistics have been published.

	Offenders referred to Court of Appeal	Withdrawn references	Offenders brought to the Court of Appeal

Nick Herbert: To ask the Solicitor-General how many appeals on the grounds of undue leniency against the minimum tariff applied in cases of indeterminate sentences for public protection were made in each of the last three years. [200205]

www.attorneygeneral.gsi.gov.uk

The following table shows the number of offenders whose sentences were referred to the Court of Appeal on the basis that the minimum term attached to a sentence of imprisonment for public protection (under section 225 (3) of the Criminal Justice Act 2003) was unduly lenient in each of the years when the sentence was available to the court and for which full statistics have been published.

Corruption: Bosnia

John Austin: To ask the Solicitor-General whether the Attorney General has sought views from other Government Departments about providing consent for the Serious Fraud Office to pursue a prosecution relating to alleged corrupt activity in Bosnia by the UK-based company EFT. [200807]

The Solicitor-General: I do not propose to comment on the details of a case currently under consideration.

John Austin: To ask the Solicitor-General what the reasons are for the time taken by the Attorney General's Office to decide the application for consent for the Serious Fraud Office to pursue an overseas corruption prosecution related to an alleged corrupt activity in Bosnia by a UK-based company. [201993]

The Solicitor-General: A decision whether to consent to a prosecution is not a rubber-stamping exercise. The time taken to process a case may depend on the nature and complexity of the issues, legal and otherwise, and any dialogue with the prosecuting authority that may be necessary. I do not propose to comment on an individual case that is currently under consideration.

Sexual Offences: Appeals

Nick Herbert: To ask the Solicitor-General how many appeals on the grounds of undue leniency against sentences for rape were made in each of the last five years. [200206]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney-General's Office publishes annual statistics on unduly lenient sentence references on its website:

www.attorneygeneral.gov.uk

The following table shows the number of offenders whose sentences for offences including rape[1] were referred to the Court of Appeal as unduly lenient in each of the last five years for which full statistics have been published.

Teachers: Misconduct

Michael Gove: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) how many allegations of assault or professional misconduct brought against teachers by pupils were referred to the Crown Prosecution Service in each year since 1997; [202068]

(2) how many teachers prosecuted by the Crown Prosecution Service were found guilty of assault or professional misconduct following allegations by pupils in each year since 1997. [202072]

The Solicitor-General: The records maintained by the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) do not identify defendants in criminal proceedings by their profession or by their professional relationship with victims. To obtain this information, by reference to individual case files, would incur disproportionate cost (Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, part 2, clause 9).

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Equality

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much expenditure his Department has incurred in conducting (a) equality screening exercises and (b) equality impact assessments in each of the last three years. [200614]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office has in each of the last three years only incurred normal staff costs in conducting (a) equality screening exercises and (b) equality impact assessments as no external resources were engaged to carry out these exercises.

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) equality screening exercises and (b) equality impact assessments his Department conducted in each of the last three years; and how many of each it proposes to conduct in 2008. [200621]

Mr. Woodward: Details of (a) equality screening exercises and (b) equality impact assessments conducted by the Northern Ireland Office in each of the last three years are available in the Department's Section 75 Annual Progress Reports which appear on the NIO website at:

http://www.nio.gov.uk/index/niopublication/niopubsearchresults.htm?category=Rights_and_Equality&keyword=Section+75&order=date&submitbutton.x=10&submitbutton.y=11

Information on the number of (a) equality screening exercises and (b) equality impact assessments the Department proposes to conduct in 2008-09 is being collated and will appear in the 2007-08 Annual Progress Report which will be published on the NIO website later this year.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many public consultations have been held by his Department since March 2007; and how many respondents took part in each consultation carried out by his Department in the last three years. [196680]

Mr. Woodward: In each of the last three years the Northern Ireland Office held the following number of public consultations:

	Number
2005-06	16
2007-08	8

The number of responses to these consultations varies greatly ranging from no responses in the consultation "Search Code of Practice issued under POCA 2002", to several thousand responses in the consultation on "Review of Sexual Offences".

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 6 March 2008, Official Report, column 2689W, on departmental translation services, how much his Department, associated agencies and non-departmental public bodies spent on translation services into (a) Irish, (b) Welsh and (c) other languages in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08 to date. [197551]

Mr. Woodward: The information requested is not held centrally and to provide this information would incur disproportionate costs. The Department, associated agencies and non-departmental bodies can provide the following information on translation services:

2005-06	576.50	526,878.07
2006-07	1,963.00	910,160.00

Spend on translation services into other languages mainly comprises ethnic minority languages.

As indicated in a previous question (187993) figures are not yet available for the period 2007-08 but we shall lay this information in the Library of the House as soon as it becomes available.

Driving under Influence: Reoffenders

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people convicted of drink-driving related offences in Northern Ireland where a custodial sentence was not given were subsequently convicted of similar offences within 12 months of the original conviction in the last five years. [201507]

Paul Goggins: The table gives the number of convictions for drink/drug-driving related offences in Northern Ireland where a non-custodial sentence was given. Data in relation to the number of people who were subsequently convicted of similar offences within 12 months are not available. However, in 2004 (the latest year for which data are available) the two-year reconviction rate for all those sentenced to supervised community sentences was 33.7 per cent. compared with the predicted rate of 42.8 per cent. While we are not complacent, this is an encouraging sign and a clear indication that the measures and wide range of schemes put in place by the various criminal justice agencies to help reduce reconviction by offenders is having a positive impact.

Data in the following table cover the calendar years 2002 to 2006 (the latest available years) and are collated on the principal offence rule; so only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Number of persons convicted of drink/drug-driving related offences[1] in Northern Ireland who were given non-custodial sentences 2002-06

	Number of persons given non-custodial sentences
2002	2,239
2004	2,660
2006	2,785

[1] It is not possible to separate out drug-related offences from alcohol-related offences for the offences of 'driving when unfit through drink or drugs', 'driving while under the influence of', 'attempting to drive while under the influence of' and 'in charge of a vehicle when under the influence of'.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many 999 calls turned out to be hoaxes in 2007; and how many such callers then involved a genuine 999 call in the same general vicinity. [201505]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable has provided the following answer:

"The total number of hoax calls using the reporting method of 999 to PSNI from 1 January to 31 December 2007 was 884. The information sought in the second half of the question is not recorded in the way requested but the total number of non hoax calls using the same method was 99,296."

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what criteria are used for the recruitment process to the Police Service of Northern Ireland of those who respond to advertisements in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) the Irish Republic and (c) Great Britain. [201353]

Paul Goggins: I am advised by PSNI that the criteria and assessment process for the recruitment of regular officers to the Police Service of Northern Ireland are exactly the same, regardless of origin of application.

Prisoner Escapes: Causeway Hospital

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the review into the escape from custody of the prisoner attending the Causeway hospital on Tuesday 15 April 2008 to be concluded. [201506]

Paul Goggins: Terms of reference for the review were issued by the Prison Service's Deputy Director, Head of Operations, on 16 April, and specified that the report should be completed within 14 working days, i.e. 6 May. The investigating officer started interviews on Monday 21 April and it is expected that the review will be completed on schedule.

The combined public sector budget for the IBC/MPC and the Olympic village remains at £492 million. However, the exact value of the overall public sector contribution will be finalised as sensitive commercial negotiations are closed out and, until then, we cannot disclose the further details requested.

Helen Goodman: This matter is being considered by the Select Committee on Modernisation of the House of Commons and the Government await its report with interest. The Committee invited evidence from October last year and has subsequently held a number of oral evidence sessions. The Government will bring forward proposals in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Energy: EU Law

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his officials will next meet the European Commission to discuss the Energy-using Products Directive. [201012]

Joan Ruddock: My officials held a teleconference with the European Commission on 24 April to discuss the draft implementing measure on boilers and water heaters under the Energy Using Products Directive.

Lighting: Waste Disposal

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration he has given to the safe disposal of compact fluorescent lamps. [201007]

Joan Ruddock: Low-energy light bulbs should be disposed of responsibly and advice on their safe disposal has been made available on DEFRA's public website.

From 1 July 2007, waste Compact Fluorescent Lamps (CFLs—the most common type of energy efficient bulbs) have been subject to the requirements of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations. Those who sell items such as energy efficient bulbs must provide information to the public about where they can take waste bulbs and other WEEE. Some retailers will also take them back in store. However, most retailers have funded Designated Collection Facilities—the majority of these are at local authority civic amenity sites. From this point, producers of such equipment fund its transport, treatment and recycling.

CFLs contain a small amount of mercury (limited to 5mg by the Restriction of Hazardous Substances Directive) but it cannot escape from an intact bulb. Even if a bulb should break, the risks from such a small amount of mercury are minimal.

Plastics: Recycling

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he plans to take to facilitate development of plastics recycling facilities. [202078]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 557W.

Recycling

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much waste was recycled by each local authority in (a) Yorkshire and the Humber and (b) Lincolnshire in the latest period for which figures are available. [201969]

Joan Ruddock: The tonnages of household waste recycled, reused or composted by each local authority in Yorkshire and the Humber and Lincolnshire in 2006-07 are listed in the following table.

Household waste sent for recycling/reuse/composting

Waste Disposal: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what applications his Department has received from Gloucestershire county council in respect of private finance initiative projects for waste disposal. [201326]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA first received an application for private finance initiative (PFI) credits from Gloucestershire county council in 2003. Gloucestershire's proposed waste PFI project was approved by the Department and the Treasury's Project Review Group.

The procurement progressed to the Best and Final Offer stage. However, following a review of all major procurement schemes, the council decided to terminate the procurement and surrender the indicative allocation of PFI credits.

In May 2007 DEFRA received a new Expression of Interest (EoI) from Gloucestershire county council for PFI support. The project will be supporting the implementation of a long-term residual waste treatment solution.

On the basis of the EoI; DEFRA subsequently invited the authority to produce a detailed Outlined Business Case which represents the formal application for PFI credits. The deadline for this is 30 April 2008.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: Females

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he plans to take to achieve the 50 per cent. target for women on the boards of arts organisations; what funding his Department has allocated to such measures over the next 12 months; and when he expects the target to be met. [200293]

Margaret Hodge: The Department is undertaking a range of measures to improve board diversity, and to work towards achieving the target of 50 per cent. representation of women on the boards of its NDPBs. These include widening departmental networks and contacts, encouraging NDPBs to produce diversity plans for appointments, and raising awareness about public appointments generally. It is not possible to predict when this target will be met, but we will continue to work energetically to achieve it. We plan to launch a targeted leaflet and publicity campaign this summer, specifically aimed at reaching and engaging people from under-represented groups, including women, members of ethnic minority groups and people with disabilities. The cost of this campaign is not yet confirmed.

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what consultation process his Department undertook to inform the process by which 50 per cent. was agreed as the target for women's participation in the boards of arts organisations. [200294]

Margaret Hodge: The DCMS target for 50 per cent. representation of women applies to the boards of the NDPBs for which it is responsible, and to which DCMS Ministers make appointments. This target was agreed in consultation with the Cabinet Office.

Culture: Education

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether (a) arts and crafts and (b) museums and heritage initiatives will be prioritised under the Find Your Talent campaign. [201380]

Margaret Hodge: When we announced the Government's plans for a Find Your Talent programme in February 2008, we published a prospectus setting out a core range of activities the pilots, as a minimum, should offer. This includes: learning a musical instrument; visiting and engaging with national and local exhibitions, galleries and museums; taking part in theatre and dance performances; making a piece of visual art or craft; and visiting heritage sites, significant contemporary buildings and public spaces.

Culture: Pilot Schemes

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport in which 10 areas the Find Your Talent programme will be piloted. [201379]

Margaret Hodge: We are not yet in a position to announce which 10 areas will pilot the Find Your Talent programme.

The deadline for expressions of interest was 7 April. We are hoping to announce the pilot areas by the end of May, following a final decision from Ministers. This will be based on advice from a stakeholder group that includes members from key cultural and educational organisations.

Digital Broadcasting: Elderly

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he has taken to assist older people in realising the benefits to be derived from the switchover to digital television. [201368]

Andy Burnham: The Government have announced a Help Scheme to assist the over 75s and those with significant disabilities, including people registered blind and partially sighted, to convert to digital television. The Help Scheme is an end-to-end package of support. As well as provision of a high quality set top box, the Scheme will provide practical assistance to install and use the equipment and the provision of an aerial if needed.

Digital UK has set up a digital outreach programme to deliver information and advice to older people who are under 75, those with sensory, mobility or dexterity impairments, people with learning difficulties and those who are socially isolated. Digital UK has a £2.9 million contract with Digital Outreach Ltd, a company set up by leading UK charities Age Concern England, Help the Aged, Community Service Volunteers and Collective Enterprises Limited, to commission support from local and regional voluntary sector organisations and charities, initially in the first four ITV regions to switch over (Border, West Country, Wales and Granada).

Fossils: Protection

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the outcome of consultations on protection of fossils following the recommendations of the Quinquennial Review by the Committee on the Export of Works of Art in 2003. [201009]

Margaret Hodge: My Department has undertaken no formal public consultation on this matter following the Quinquennial Review of the Reviewing Committee for the Export of Works of Art and Objects of Cultural Interest in 2003.

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the Statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200216]

Margaret Hodge: My Department does not provide any medical health schemes out of public funds. However, we do provide an Employee Assistance programme, which includes a counselling service.

Internet: Suicide

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to act against internet sites which encourage (a) suicide or (b) anorexia. [200680]

Margaret Hodge: I am concerned about the potential harm of such internet sites. In March this year we accepted the recommendations of the Byron Review including that the new UK Council on Child Internet Safety look at whether the law around harmful and inappropriate material online could usefully be clarified, and explore appropriate enforcement responses. We expect this to be a key area of work for the council and that will make early recommendations for action if necessary.

Libraries: Finance

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the budget is for each public library in Wirral, West constituency for 2008-09. [201617]

Margaret Hodge: The budget for each public library in 2008-09 in Wirral, West constituency, as provided by the Metropolitan borough of Wirral, is as follows:

Library	Net budget (£)
[illegible]pton	141,600
West Kirby	161,500
Greasby	118,800
Irby	77,000
Pensby	98,200
Hoylake	125,200
Woodchurch	72,000

Regional Cultural Consortiums: Audit

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what arrangements are in place for auditing the accounts of regional cultural consortia (RCCs) accounts; and what audits have been conducted under these arrangements since RCCs were established. [200299]

Margaret Hodge: The Regional Cultural Consortia (RCCs) are companies limited by guarantee, and audits are carried out under the Companies Act by external auditors appointed by each of the Consortiums. Since the RCCs became executive NDPBs in 2004 there have been audits on a yearly basis.

Following the Government's decision to give the Comptroller and Auditor General (C and A G) statutory powers to carry out audits of companies, it is open to the C and A G to perform this function for the RCCs in future.

Tourism: Finance

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the UK's national tourism deficit benchmarked against (a) France, (b) Germany, (c) the United States, (d) Australia, (e) Spain and (f) Portugal. [202087]

Margaret Hodge: The UK's tourism balance of payments deficit for 2006 was £18.4 billion. According to the Organisation of Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), this compared to:

		£ billion
France	Surplus	[1]9.58
Germany	Deficit	[1]27.32
Spain	Surplus	[1]23.85

[1] 2006. [2] 2005, the latest figure held.

These figures have been converted to sterling at current exchange rates. The OECD does not hold the relevant figures for Australia and Portugal.

These figures show the obvious effects of climate and easier air travel. The Government are working with the tourism industry to make holidaying in this country more attractive to UK residents by improving the quality of our tourism offer in key areas, and this work has been brought together through the DCMS Tourism Strategy for 2012.

Burma: Internally Displaced Persons

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to mitigate the challenges arising from the volume of internally displaced people in Karenni state and other parts of eastern Burma; and which of these have been taken in co-operation with the Government of Thailand. [200347]

Meg Munn: I visited Thailand from 28 February to 1 March and met several non-governmental organisations working in the refugee camps on the Burma/Thailand border. I also raised the plight of ethnic groups in the border region with the Thai Minister of Interior.

The UK provides support to people in Karenni state through several mechanisms:

funding for the UN Development Programme's Human Development Initiative; our significant contribution to the Three Diseases Fund, which supports work on HIV, tuberculosis and malaria in Karenni state; support provided through local faith based organisations who are able to reach internally displaced people from inside the country; and support from Thailand through the Thailand-Burma Border Consortium, which is providing assistance to the refugee camp bordering Karenni state, Ban Mae Noi Sae.

UK funding for projects in Karenni state is part of our effort to provide humanitarian assistance to people suffering poverty and deprivation across Burma. The Department for International Development's programme in Burma is increasing from £9 million in 2007-08 to £18 million in 2010-11.

Burma: Politics and Government

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to invoke the UN Security Council principle of the responsibility to protect in relation to Burma. [200346]

Meg Munn: We continue to support the concept of Responsibility to Protect, under which Governments have the responsibility to protect their populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity.

As a member of the UN Security Council, the UK has persistently stated that the military regime in Burma must account for the systematic and appalling human rights abuses it commits against Burma's people. We strongly support the UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights in Burma and his work to gather evidence of the abuses that have taken place. We have called for his early return to Burma to be facilitated by the regime to enable the Rapporteur to continue his vital role.

The UK has helped to secure strong resolutions on Burma at the UN Human Rights Council and the UN General Assembly Third Committee, and worked to keep Burma on the Security Council agenda. The President of the UN Security Council's statement in October 2007 required a number of actions by the regime, including an inclusive transition to democracy. With the Burmese military rulers' failure to deliver any tangible outcomes despite the good work by the office of the UN Secretary-General, we will continue to consider options for further Security Council action with like-minded partners in New York.

Commonwealth: Scholarships

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people received funding under the Commonwealth Scholarships Programme in 2006-07, broken down by country of origin. [200285]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The number of scholars funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office under the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan in 2006-07, including those in their first, second or third year of study, was as follows:

	Number
Australia	30
Bahamas	1
Canada	47
Cyprus	2
New Zealand	21
Total	105

Cuba

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to visit Cuba. [202112]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no current plans to visit Cuba.

Departmental Manpower

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) permanent Civil Service posts, (b) permanent non-Civil Service posts and (c) temporary or agency workers in employment in his Department there were in each month since May 2005. [199536]

Meg Munn: The Office of National Statistics (ONS) has published civil service employment statistics, broken down by Department, in the Public Sector Employment First Release every quarter since January 2006. Prior to January 2006 the Cabinet Office published civil service employment statistics annually.

The following table sets out the Cabinet Office figures for permanent UK civil servants and permanent UK non-civil servants employed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) in 2005 and the corresponding ONS figures for each quarter since January 2006.

	Permanent civil servants	Permanent non-civil servants
December 2007	6,090	10
September 2007	6,120	9
June 2007	6,170	11
March 2007	6,110	10
December 2006	6,130	10
September 2006	6,190	10
June 2006	6,240	6
March 2006	6,290	6
September 2005	6,000	4

Individual business managers are responsible for employing agency and temporary workers. The FCO does not hold central records of their employment.

Developing Countries: Human Rights

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to promote human rights in developing countries. [200976]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

A reply to my hon. Friend's question will be issued shortly.

Ethiopia: Politics and Government

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the recent UN report on the humanitarian situation in the Somali region of Ethiopia. [200345]

Meg Munn: The UN published its report on the Somali Region of Ethiopia in September 2007. The UN has not published a further report since. We welcomed the Ethiopian Government's acceptance of the UN assessment team's appraisal and we continue to urge the Ethiopian Government to adhere to its commitments in relation to the report—opening-up of trade routes, lifting restrictions on movement, allowing food aid to reach all parts of the region and allowing non-governmental organisations greater access. However, we continue to be concerned at the risk of further human suffering and therefore look forward to full implementation of the report's findings. The UK continues to raise this with the Government of Ethiopia at regular intervals. My noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown raised this issue when he met Ethiopian Prime Minister Meles Zenawi in late January. Most recently, our ambassador in Addis Ababa discussed ways to improve the situation in the Somali region with the Ethiopian Foreign Minister in March.

Ethiopia: Qatar

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of Ethiopia about that country's relationship with Qatar. [201565]

Meg Munn [holding answer 25 April 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any discussions with the Government of Ethiopia about their relationship with Qatar.

Gaza: Weapons

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations his Department has made to the government of Egypt on the trafficking of people and weapons into Gaza from Egypt via under-border tunnels. [200350]

Dr. Howells: Arms and people smuggling into Gaza remain a great concern. The Quadrilateral Committee, which consists of Israel, the Palestinian Authority, Egypt and the US, has been working closely to address the issue of smuggling and border control. The EU commends and supports efforts by the Government of Egypt to contribute in finding a peaceful and orderly solution.

Our embassy in Cairo regularly meet with Egyptian interlocutors to discuss various issues, including the situation in Gaza.

Kenya: Politics and Government

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department's advice to UK citizens living in or travelling to Kenya has changed in the last month. [202159]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office keeps travel advice under close and constant review. Our travel advice for Kenya has been changed 50 times so far in 2008. We made 36 changes in January, 10 in February, two in March and two in April. The Kenya travel advice was last updated on 18 April to make factual changes relating to clashes between the Kenyan police and the outlawed criminal Mungiki sect, and the formation of the Kenyan Grand Coalition Government.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the use of longer-range Katyusha rockets in attacks on Israel on the political situation in that country; and what representations he has received on options for the prevention of the use of such weapons. [200351]

Dr. Howells: In recent months Katyusha rockets have been fired from the Gaza Strip at Israel. These rockets have a longer range, which brings more Israeli towns, citizens and infrastructure facilities within striking distance. The Government continue to call on all Palestinian factions in Gaza to stop attacks, including rocket attacks. They aim to target civilians and to undermine the Annapolis process and escalate an already tense situation.

At the same time, Israel must ensure its actions are in accordance with international law. It is important that all parties find a way to restore calm for the sake of the populations on both sides.

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the recent increase in rocket attacks by the Palestinian Islamic Jihad on the security situation in Israel; and if he will make a statement. [200352]

Dr. Howells: The UK is deeply concerned by rocket attacks from Gaza against Israeli citizens. The launching of rockets against Israeli civilian targets and all forms of violence must stop. Violence serves only to undermine the prospects for peace and security in the region.

The Government continue to call on all Palestinian factions to stop attacks, including rocket attacks, which target civilians and only escalate an already tense situation. At the same time, Israel must ensure its actions are in accordance with international law. It is important for both sides to exercise the utmost restraint and refrain from the use of force.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular discussions on the security situation in Gaza, including most recently with Israeli Defence Minister Barak and with Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 17 April. Our embassy in Tel Aviv and our consulate in Jerusalem regularly meet with Israeli and Palestinian interlocutors to discuss various issues, including the situation in Gaza.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) allowances, (b) travel costs and (c) accommodation have been provided to staff seconded from his Department to support the work of (i) James Wolfensohn and (ii) Tony Blair in their roles as Quartet Representatives; and if he will make a statement. [200833]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) did not second any staff to support the work of James Wolfensohn when he held the role of the Quartet Representative for Gaza disengagement.

The FCO has seconded three members of staff to work in the Quartet Representative's office in London. The UK has provided £400,000 to a UN Development Programme Trust Fund which provides support to the Quartet Representative. The Quartet Representative's office in London and Jerusalem draw from this trust fund to meet their costs.

We do not have figures for all expenses and costs associated with the Quartet Representative's office in Jerusalem or in London. The right hon. Tony Blair has been appointed by, and reports to, the Quartet (US, EU, UN and Russia). It is a matter for the Quartet to determine whether to publish details of the right hon. Tony Blair's team, costs and funding.

Papua: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he (a) has taken in the last 12 months and (b) plans to take to promote effective dialogue between the Government of Indonesia and representatives of the people of West Papua on conflict resolution. [200301]

Meg Munn: We believe that the complex issues in Papua can best be resolved through peaceful dialogue between the people of Papua, their elected representatives and the central Government of Indonesia. The dialogue is ongoing. Indonesian Vice President Kalla, along with a team of Ministers, visited Papua most recently in February to discuss economic and social development with representatives of the Papuan people. Papuan leaders regularly visit Jakarta. The Indonesian President has committed his Government to improving the situation in Papua, which we welcome. Governor Suebu, of Papua province, is pressing ahead with his development programmes, underpinned by the significant financial resources now being directed to Papua as a result of its special autonomy status.

We continue to encourage all sides to maintain a meaningful dialogue that focuses on implementing fully the existing special autonomy legislation. We judge that this is the best way to ensure the long-term stability and development of Papua and its people.

At the UN Human Rights Council examination of Indonesia under the Universal Periodic Review, in Geneva on 9 April, the UK welcomed Indonesia's substantial progress on human rights since 1998, but noted ongoing concerns in Papua.

Our embassy in Jakarta follows the situation in Papua closely and is in regular contact with human rights organisations, non-governmental organisations and academics working in the region. Embassy staff also visit Papua regularly, most recently from 15 to 20 February 2008. While there, they held discussions with local officials, non-governmental organisations and representatives of religious organisations. The Department for International Development (DFID) is providing funding for four development advisers to the Governor of Papua. Their work focuses on poverty alleviation, public finance and infrastructure. DFID is also funding HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment activities in Papua, as well as focusing on improving forest governance livelihoods to address poverty reduction and deforestation in Papua. We continue to engage with Papuan leaders on a range of issues, including conflict prevention, and we fund several projects in Papua, including human rights training for the police.

Simon Mann

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he plans to take in the week beginning 28th April to monitor the (a) treatment and (b) risk of torture of Mr. Simon Mann in Black Beach Prison, Equatorial Guinea; and whether Mr. Mann is still being continuously shackled. [198172]

Meg Munn: Our consul from the British Deputy High Commission in Lagos was refused consular access to Simon Mann during his last visit to Equatorial Guinea in March. We have expressed our concern to the Equatorial Guinea authorities and are urgently seeking another consular visit. His welfare remains our primary concern.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with Governments in Southern Africa following the elections in Zimbabwe on political and economic stability. [202158]

Meg Munn: In the aftermath of the elections my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown have been in regular contact with heads of state and foreign ministers in the region and in the wider international community, in particular with President Mbeki. We will continue to speak to leaders in the region and encourage them to use their influence to bring about a swift resolution to the crisis.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bangladesh: Mining

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports he has received on the effects of Global Coal Management Resources plc's open cast mining at Phulbari in north-west Bangladesh on development and poverty reduction in the area. [198831]

Mr. Malik: Global Coal Management Resources (GCM) does not currently have any mining operations in Phulbari, Bangladesh, but we are aware that plans exist. We have not received any reports on the potential effects of this, but we are aware that the Asian Development Bank (AsDB) has been assessing it. The bank has recently announced that they will not go ahead with the project proposal.

Some international and national organisations have raised concerns to us and AsDB about the environmental sustainability of the proposed project and possible negative effects for the population living in the area.

DFID's position on this has been that the social and environmental aspects of investments made by the bank need to be thoroughly considered and the bank's own procedures for project proposals must be followed.

Constella Group: HIV Infection

Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of Constella's compliance with the UN Aids guidelines on criminalisation, disclosure and testing in relation to HIV. [199695]

Gillian Merron: The UK Government have made no formal assessment as to whether Constella Futures Group complies with UNAIDS guidelines on criminalisation, disclosure and testing in relation to HIV. We understand that the issue of compliance has arisen with regard to legislation in a number of west African countries, which DFID has not financed. We are in discussion with UNAIDS about actions they can take to promote compliance with the guidelines.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of (a) salaries for permanent civil service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-civil service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department was in each month since May 2005. [199533]

Gillian Merron: Due to the way historic records are held by the Department for International Development (DFID), the separate salary costs for permanent civil service posts and fixed term posts in each month since May 2005 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

DFID employs locally engaged staff, who work in more than 50 overseas offices. They are employed on local terms and conditions. Their salaries vary from country to country and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table covers the costs paid to the three suppliers of temporary administrative staff managed centrally since 2005.

Departmental Telephone Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) 0800, (b) 0845 and (c) 0870 telephone numbers for the public are used by his Department. [200129]

Gillian Merron: DFID has one 0845 number which enables members of the public to call the public enquiry point in East Kilbride from anywhere in the United Kingdom, charged at standard local rates. DFID does not use any 0800 or 0870 numbers.

Ethiopia: Overseas Aid

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to improve (a) the availability of therapeutic foods and medical supplies and (b) the capacity to respond to health and nutrition emergencies in rural areas in the Somali region of Ethiopia. [200401]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development has contributed £4 million in 2007 to the Humanitarian Response Fund, managed by the United Nations. With support from the fund, a number of non-governmental organisations have provided high nutrient food, immunisation and other basic health services through four mobile clinics.

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking in co-operation with (a) Ethiopian authorities and (b) non-governmental organisations to provide humanitarian assistance in the Somali region of Ethiopia. [200402]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development channels funds for humanitarian assistance in Ethiopia, including assistance for Somali region, through the Humanitarian Response Fund, managed by the United Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs. The fund supports the work of non-governmental organisations and United Nations (UN) organisations in Ethiopia. In 2007 we provided the fund with £4 million and as a result about 12 non-governmental organisations and a number of UN agencies were able to respond to needs in the region.

Ethiopia: Politics and Government

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what response he has made to the recent UN humanitarian assessment of the Somali region in Ethiopia. [200769]

Gillian Merron: The UK Government agree with the recommendations made in the United Nations assessment of the Somalia region in September 2007. We provided the UN-managed Humanitarian Response Fund with £4 million in 2007, to respond to humanitarian needs in Somali region and in other parts of Ethiopia. In response to an appeal from the Government and UN agencies in April 2008, we are considering a further contribution of £3 million for 2008.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Finance

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what financial support his Department has provided to (a) projects and (b) institutions involved in research into genetically modified species in each of the last five years. [200395]

Mr. Thomas: In 2005-06, DFID contributed £1,553,000 to two programmes that included research using genetically modified (GM) techniques. These were the Plant Sciences Research Programme and the Aquaculture and Fish Genetics Research Programme. The main institutions that received grants included: Bangor University; Overseas Development Institute; Bath University; World Fish Centre; Stirling University; and, Asian Institute of Technology.

Since 2003 DFID has given £20 million per annum in unrestricted funding to the centres of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research. A list of these, and other international organisations receiving DFID support, is shown as follows. Some of these use GM techniques. However, it is not possible to attribute DFID funding to specific activities.

From 2003 to 2008 DFID has provided £5 million to the African Agricultural Technology Foundation to facilitate access to both GM and conventional agricultural technologies. Last financial year DFID awarded £7.1 million of grants for research that will include the use of GM and non-GM biotechnologies. Details of these grants are provided in Table 1.

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on providing support for research into the development and use of genetically modified species variations. [200397]

Mr. Thomas: DFID recognises that the use of genetically modified organisms (GMOs) can have potential significant benefits for farmers in developing countries if applied safely and responsibly. At the same time, an over-riding objective is to safeguard human health and the environment and to give consumers informed choices. Our policy is that DFID will support research involving GMOs as long as international rules, including the Cartagena Protocol on Biosafety, are followed and it is targeted to help developing countries make their own informed choices about whether to use GM technologies.

HIV Infection: Overseas Aid

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made on achieving universal access to HIV prevention, treatment, care and support services; and if he will make a statement. [198684]

Gillian Merron: Progress towards the goal of Universal Access to comprehensive HIV prevention, treatment, care and support will be reviewed by the international community during 2008. Data being prepared for the United Nations General Assembly high-level meeting on AIDS in June will inform the review process. UNAIDS will use these data to assess progress against the interim Universal Access targets (milestones), set by countries during 2006-07, in the final quarter of 2008.

JP Morgan

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department paid to JP Morgan in each year since 1997; and what the purpose of each payment was. [199613]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) paid JP Morgan a total of £672,784 in 2001 for work completed on the Andhra Pradesh (India) Power Sector Reform project.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, dated 5 March 2008, on economic partnership agreements. [202161]

Mr. Thomas: The reply to the hon. Member for West Worcestershire's letter of 5 March 2008 has been issued.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the Government's grant to the United Nations Development Trust Fund to support the work of Quartet Representative Tony Blair is included as part of the Government's Official Development Assistance budget; and if he will make a statement. [200836]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK grant of £400,000 to the office of the Quartet Special Representative, Tony Blair, is drawn from the DFID Palestinian aid framework and forms part of the UK development assistance budget. The mandate of Tony Blair to 'facilitate the efforts of the international community to help Palestinians to build the institutions and economy of a viable state' is consistent with the objectives of the UK aid programme in the Occupied Palestinian Territories.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people are being given food and other humanitarian assistance in Sudan by (a) the World Food Programme and (b) other international humanitarian agencies to which the UK contributes. [199447]

Gillian Merron: The World Food Programme (WFP) provided food assistance to 5.8 million people in Sudan during 2007. The UK Government's bilateral partners in Darfur and southern Sudan provide humanitarian assistance across a range of sectors to a total of over 2.5 million people.

In addition, the UK Government provided £40 million to the Common Humanitarian Fund (CHF) for 2008. The CHF funds humanitarian agencies to address the most urgent of the humanitarian needs across Sudan that have been identified in the UN Workplan.

Zimbabwe: Education

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of children under 11 years of age in Zimbabwe were estimated to be enrolled in full-time education in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007. [202157]

Gillian Merron: Available data cover net enrolment of children aged 7 to 12 attending primary school in 1994, 1999 and 2006. Net enrolment was 86 per cent. in 1994, 65 per cent. in 1999 and 91 per cent. in 2006.

TRANSPORT

Biofuel: Buses

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will assess the effect of the addition of a five per cent. blend of biodiesel in fuel tanks to fuel on commercial bus operations on fungus growth in such tanks. [202484]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government are aware that in some circumstances the use of biodiesel blends can be associated with bacterial contamination in fuel tanks. The problem tends to arise particularly where the biodiesel does not meet the relevant fuel quality standards. The issue is not a new one: biodiesel blends have been used for many years by bus operators in the UK and other countries. It can generally be addressed through good housekeeping practices, such as regular tank cleaning, and by the use of various fuel additives. These are matters for the transport fuel industry to resolve: commercial bus operators and others should ensure that fuel quality requirements are covered in any fuel supply contracts.

Biofuels

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the adequacy of information contained in the sustainability reports of suppliers of biofuels. [202020]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The first such reports are due to be submitted to the Renewable Fuels Agency (RFA) by 16 June. Thereafter, the RFA will be reporting regularly on the information it receives on the sustainability of the biofuels used in the UK.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many senior citizen bus passes were delayed on account of her Department's failure to give the necessary information to the contractors Euclid in good time. [201008]

Ms Rosie Winterton: None. However, I understand that a number of travel concession authorities have their passes produced by Euclid. The Department had nothing to do with any arrangements made by authorities with Euclid.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a taxi operating as a bus service under the Transport Act 1985 and licensed as a restricted PSV operator under Part II of the Public Passenger Act 1981 is able to offer concessionary fares under the national concessionary fare scheme; and whether this applies to those with (a) eight seats or more on a timetable and (b) fewer than eight seats or not on a timetable. [201388]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A licensed taxi has to be a vehicle with fewer than nine passenger seats.

To operate as a taxi-bus the licensed taxi's owner has to acquire from the Traffic Commissioner a Special Restricted Public Service Vehicle operator licence (under section 12 of the Transport Act 1985). This enables the vehicle to run a registered bus service (as a taxi-bus) at certain times of the day and be used for conventional taxi work at other times.

The Local Services (Operation by Taxis) Regulations 1986 requires the display of a "bus" sign and prohibits the use of an illuminated taxi sign during the vehicle's use as a taxi-bus.

The Travel Concessions (Eligible Services) Order 2002 describes circumstances where a taxi-bus could be considered an eligible service for concessionary travel. It is for the local Travel Concession Authority to determine whether a taxi-bus service meets the requirements which include:

being available to the general public at bus stops; running to a published timetable; and, offering transport to and from any stops on the route, with fares payable to the driver and not set at a level which is likely to act as a deterrent to bus users.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many public consultations were held by her Department in each of the last three years; and how many respondents took part in each consultation. [198634]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department undertook the following number of consultations in each of the last three years:

	Number
2007	58
2005	50

The number of respondents to these consultations varies greatly, from two in the case of our consultation on the "Report on Channel Tunnel Order 2007 to transpose Railway Safety Directive for the UK" to about 70,000 on the "Adding capacity at Heathrow airport—Consultation document" and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Government responses to each consultation, including how many respondents took part in each one, are available on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/closed/

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether her Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200227]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Across the Department for Transport there are employee assistance providers who provide support to employees. The service, funded by the Department, provides professional advice, guidance and in some cases counselling sessions for staff who could be facing a variety of personal problems.

The Department also has access to qualified occupational health advisers who provide medical and health related advice that includes advice on sick absence cases, pre-employment health checks, work station assessments and medical check-ups in specific work areas.

Exceptionally, the Department may pay towards the cost of physiotherapy or cognitive behavioural therapy both to assist in the employee's return to work and as a preventative measure. It would need to be clearly demonstrated that the therapy would result in an earlier return to work than would otherwise be the case. In these cases we would work with our occupational health advisers to agree the best course of action.

These professional services and support mechanisms support the Department in its drive to promote employee well-being, reduce sickness absence and facilitate a return to work as soon as possible.

Lorries

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what estimate she has made of the number of lorries which will be required to comply with European legislation on the retro-fitting of safety mirrors; and how many lorries will be exempt because they were registered before 2000; [201820]

(2) for what reasons the Government do not plan to require older lorries with suitable cabs to have additional safety mirrors fitted; [201821]

(3) what the Government's timetable is to implement European legislation on retro-fitting of safety mirrors to lorries registered in the UK before 2000 in order to meet the deadline of March 2009 stipulated in the relevant Directive. [201822]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are approximately 419,000 currently registered goods vehicles and 161,000 of these are exempt from the retro-fit requirement because the cab-height is too low for the mirrors to be installed. Around 157,000 vehicles will be upgraded by the retro-fit requirement and the remaining 100,000 are exempt because they were registered prior to 2000.

The Council of Ministers considered an earlier introduction date than 1 January 2000 for the new requirements but concluded that the cost of converting older vehicles would be disproportionate to their remaining life. The Government are therefore implementing the European directive for vehicles registered from this date.

We are in the process of transposing, the retro-fit directive for existing heavy goods vehicles. This will be enforced from 31 March 2009.

Lorries: Accidents

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving (a) British and (b) foreign-registered lorries on roads in the UK resulted in (i) fatalities and (ii) injuries in each year since 1997. [202137]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of reported personal injury road accidents involving (a) British Heavy Goods Vehicles and (b) foreign registered Heavy Goods Vehicles in Great Britain resulting in fatalities and injuries are:

Number of accidents

	British HGV[1]		Foreign registered HGV[1]
	Fatalities	Injuries[2]	Fatalities	Injuries[2]
2005	407	9,428	27	1,071
2006	365	9,146	31	1,010

[1] HGV = Heavy Goods Vehicle over 3.5 tonnes maximum permissible weight gross vehicle weight (gvw).
[2] Injury = serious and slight injury.
Note:
Where there are accidents involving both British and foreign registered vehicles, they will appear in each of their categories.

Prior to 2005, it was not possible to identify foreign registered Heavy Goods Vehicles separately.

M180

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason the M180 was closed on 31 March 2008; on whose authority the closure took place; and what guidance she issues on the appropriate action to be taken in closing motorways following an incident. [201289]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The M180 was closed on 31 March 2008 between junctions 2 and 1 both westbound and eastbound from 9.20 am to 4.36 pm following a fatal accident involving five vehicles.

The M180 was closed by South Yorkshire Police to enable them to manage the incident safely and to facilitate their investigation into the incident.

The Highways Agency's Traffic Officer Service works closely with local police forces when dealing with these incidents, applying the principles set out in the national guidance framework document that was signed by both the Highways Agency and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) when the Traffic Officer Service was established. The decision as to whether a motorway should be closed is, however, a local one, taking into account factors such as the particular circumstances of the incident, traffic conditions, the safety of the travelling public and the safety of the emergency service personnel involved in dealing with the incident.

Public Transport: Concessions

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to provide free local travel to those with long-term mental health conditions. [200673]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Transport Act 2000 (or for those resident in London, the Greater London Authority Act 1999) makes provision for statutory concessionary travel to a wide range of disabled people. Categories of disability were drawn up following representation from local government and support from the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee. The people eligible are as follows:

any person who:

is blind or partially sighted;

is profoundly or severely deaf;

is without speech;

has a disability, or has suffered an injury, which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on his/her ability to walk;

does not have arms or has long-term loss of the use of both arms;

has a learning disability, that is, a state of arrested or incomplete development of mind which includes significant impairment of intelligence and social functioning;

would, if he/she applied for a grant of a licence to drive a motor vehicle under Part III of the Road Traffic Act 1988, have his/her application refused pursuant to section 92 of the Act (physical fitness) otherwise than on the ground of persistent misuse of drugs or alcohol.

Local authorities are free to offer their residents discretionary concessions over and above the statutory minimum at their own expense. This can include offering concessionary travel to other categories of people, such as those with mental health problems.

We have no plans at present to change the eligibility criteria for statutory concessionary bus travel to include people with long-term mental health conditions.

Radio: Highways Agency

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Highways Agency will spend on radio broadcasting in 2008-09; for what reason such allocations have been made; and if she will make a statement. [201291]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Traffic Radio project value for 2008-09 is £2.945 million.

The Highways Agency broadcast service, Traffic Radio, has been delivered in line with ministerial commitments and Highways Agency business targets to supply information services to the public.

Alongside its other information services, the aim of Traffic Radio is to supply high quality information to the public, before they travel. This allows them to make an informed decision on when or if to travel and to further consider mode of transport or route. Alerting road users to potential delays or incidents before they set out will help them to avoid those delays, thereby reducing the impact of that delay for all road users.

Traffic Radio is delivered on Digital Audio Broadcasting (DAB) and the internet to the public in a constant loop allowing listeners to obtain the information, at a time convenient to them. This allows them to make a considered journey choice before setting out.

The business case for the service predicted a positive benefit to the public through reduced congestion. Further benefits are expected with the expansion of DAB and internet radio both at the home and in car.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people aged (a) under 16, (b) between 16 and 25 and (c) over 25 years died in road accidents in (i) Lancashire and (ii) England in each of the last five years. [202232]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is given in the following table:

Number of fatalities by age group resulting from personal injury road accidents in Lancashire and England : 2002-06

	Casualty age
	Lancashire excl. Blackburn and Blackpool				England
	0 to 15	16 to 25	26 +	Total[1]	0 to 15	16 to 25	26 +	Total[1]

Roads: Yorkshire and Humberside

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the damage caused to the highway network in the East Riding of Yorkshire as a result of flooding in 2007; and what additional sum is to be paid to the East Riding of Yorkshire council to compensate for the damage. [201290]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In January 2008 East Riding of Yorkshire council submitted a claim to my Department for funding of £6.095 million to repair damage to their roads caused by flooding in 2007. The authority received an interim settlement in March in respect of £2.25 million. This covered £1.087 million funding to the authority to cover the costs identified and supported by evidence and a local contribution of £1.153 million representing 15 per cent. of their 2007-08 Local Transport Plan capital highway maintenance allocation.

Discussions have been held with the authority regarding the evidence they need to provide to support the remaining £3.845 million costs in their claim. The Department will consider whether further funding should be paid to the authority in the light of further evidence.

Schools: Transport

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will extend the requirement to wear seat belts to include buses used to transport pupils to school in vehicles hired from or operated by bus companies and local authorities. [202095]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport is presently considering responses to its consultation on regulations to require children under 14 years of age to use seat belts in buses and coaches where they are fitted. There are no plans for legislation to require that all vehicles used for school transport must have seat belts fitted—that can already be achieved by school authorities for contracted vehicles.

Severn Bridge: Tolls

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will bring forward legislative proposals to amend the Severn Bridges Act 1992 to allow tolls for Severn Bridge crossings to be paid by credit and debit cards. [201341]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 24 April 2008]: We want it to be as convenient as possible for people to pay tolls at the Severn Crossing. But there are some practical obstacles to this and a working group has been set up to look at solving these.

Further consideration will be given once the working group have submitted their findings and recommendations. This is expected to be by early autumn.

Traffic Commissioners: Redundancy

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many traffic commissioners were dismissed in each of the last 30 years. [202218]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We do not have this information for the period before 1990. Since 1990 no traffic commissioners have been dismissed.

Transport: EU Action

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Trans-European transport networks will cost; and what the UK's contribution will be. [200525]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The 2007 TEN Financing Regulation estimates the cost of completing the Trans-European transport network between 2007 and 2020 will be €600 billion. This includes investment from both public and private sources, as well as public-private partnerships.

There is no specific UK contribution to the programme. The UK makes its contributions to the EC budget as a whole and not to individual spending programmes within it.

Transport: Finance

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to ensure that regional transport funding is distributed on an equitable basis. [195370]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to his question of 12 March 2008, Official Report, column 448W.

We have already increased investment in transport in all regions. By 2008, transport spending will be 80 per cent. higher in real terms than in 1997, and we will continue to take account of the needs of all regions in making investment decisions.

The introduction of regional funding allocations has allowed regions to align these increased funding levels to their key priorities and needs, delivering the best outcome for each region.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Access to Work Scheme: Marketing

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department is doing to publicise Access to Work. [200783]

Mr. Timms: The Access to Work national delivery team is currently implementing an internal marketing strategy to ensure that all Jobcentre staff involved with disabled customers are fully briefed on the Access to Work programme. This will cover the aims of the programme, eligibility criteria and the application process.

The programme is also being promoted through presentations and exhibitions, and through close working partnerships developed with the major disability groups such as the Royal National Institute for Blind people, Royal National Institute for Deaf people and MIND.

Articles have appeared in external publications such as 'Disability Wales' and the National Spinal Association magazine illustrating how Access to Work can practically support disabled people into paid employment. Additionally, Jobcentre Plus includes information on Access to Work in internally produced magazines such as 'Inspire'. This magazine, which is targeted at job seekers, is available, along with other leaflets on Access to Work, in all Jobcentre Plus offices. The magazine 'Engage', also produced by Jobcentre Plus and aimed at employers, regularly carries information about Access to Work, along with other Jobcentre Plus services.

Information about Access to Work is available on the Jobcentre Plus and Directgov websites. Directgov as a source of information about Jobcentre Plus services for disabled people is widely publicised, for example, in the latest issue of 'Ability Needs' magazine. Disability employment advisers, who are often the gateway to Access to Work, are regularly in contact with small to medium sized employers locally and will raise awareness of Access to Work when appropriate.

Apprentices: Construction

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of applications for apprenticeships in the construction industry in each year since 1997; and how many places were available in each of those years. [201038]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

Information about the number of people applying for apprenticeships is not collected or held centrally. Information about the number of people starting apprenticeships in the construction industry is provided in the following table. Figures for years prior to 2002-03 are not available.

Construction apprenticeships starts 2002-03 to 2006-07

	Number
2002-03	23,706
2003-04	15,229
2004-05	18,742
2005-06	15,731
2006-07	21,004

Notes:
1. Includes all age groups and both apprenticeships and advanced apprenticeships.
2. Figures include engineering construction and construction; framework codes 107 and 116.

Departmental Leaflets

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of his Department's public information leaflets are available online on (a) his Department's and (b) the Directgov website. [195772]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions public information leaflets are mainly published through its agencies' websites (Jobcentre Plus, Child Support Agency and The Pension Service) and the DWP website links to these. Of the 66 Public Information leaflets produced by the Department 57 are currently available. A further nine are due to be published shortly and these will replace other leaflets currently on the sites.

Directgov does not hold leaflets on its site but incorporates information into its core pages or has external links to customer leaflets and information stored on other websites—DWP, Inland Revenue, Jobcentre Plus, Veterans Agency, HMRC, CSA, Department of Health, Pensions Service et al. Directgov also links to welsh versions of leaflets with links to English versions of leaflets where the Welsh version is not available.

Departmental Manpower

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of his Department's work force were employed in each region in each year since 2004. [200465]

Mrs. McGuire: Details of how many and what proportion of the Department's work force was employed in each region in each year ending 31 March, since 31 March 2004 is set out in the following tables:

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many public consultations were held by his Department in each of the last three years; and how many respondents took part in each consultation. [198636]

Mrs. McGuire: The number of public consultations conducted by the Department for Work and Pensions in the last three years has been as follows:

	Consultations launched
2005-06	22
2007-08	23

Providing a full answer to the second part of the question could be done only at disproportionate cost. The number of responses to our consultations questions varies greatly. For example, we received over 450 formal written submissions to our recent Welfare Reform Green Paper consultation, but this represents only a small part of the picture, because in addition we received over 2,000 posts in two internet-based discussion forums, and a large amount of face-to-face input at a range of different meetings. Whereas, for our more specialist, and often limited, consultations in the Private Pensions area typically between 50 and 100 responses are received.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many full-time posts in his Department were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in each of the last three years. [200670]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on the number of full-time posts filled on a temporary basis, for a period in excess of six months, by the Department for Work and Pensions for each of the last three years ending 31 March is set out in the following table.

Year end	Temporary staff (full-time equivalent)
31 March 2006	1,532
31 March 2007	561
31 March 2008	477

For years ending 31 March 2006 and 2007, the figures include all temporary staff. For the year ending 31 March 2008, members of staff with a fixed term contract in excess of 12 months have been excluded in line with revised Office of National Statistics (ONS) definitions.

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the levels of public awareness of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 as measured by the disability module of the Office of National Statistics Omnibus Survey. [200448]

Mrs. McGuire: Using the most up to date data available from the Office for National Statistics Omnibus Survey for between January and September 2007, 72.3 per cent. of the general population were aware of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 as amended.

Disabled

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what targets his Department has set in relation to the employment of people with disabilities over the next five years. [199054]

Mrs. McGuire: The "10 Point Plan for a Diverse Civil Service" published in November 2005 set a target that 3.2 per cent. of senior civil service (SCS) posts were to be filled by disabled people by April 2008. In line with all civil service Departments DWP produced its own plan and targets for the period from 2005 to 2008. As well as its higher target for the SCS, the Department also set targets for the grades below the SCS. The March 2008 DWP targets and figures are in the following table:

DWP staff with disabilities March 2008 figures

Grade	March 2008	DWP 2008 targets	Percentage Civil service 2008 target
SCS	2.8	6.0	3.2
G/G6-F/G7-E/SEO	4.0	4.0	—
D/HEO-C/EO	6.5	7.0	—
B/AO-A/AA	4.5	6.0	—
All DWP	5.3	n/a	—

The figures are based on the proportion of staff who have voluntarily declared themselves as being disabled. However, we are aware that not all disabled staff declare their disability for departmental records, and the true figure may be higher than the figures shown. For example, the 2008 DWP Staff Survey (which is completed anonymously), showed that 13.6 per cent. of respondents considered themselves to have a long standing health condition or disability.

The roll out of a new computer system has meant a more accurate record of the numbers of disabled people working within the Department who made a declaration. As we rolled out the new system we asked each member of staff to check the personal information we held about them and to declare whether they considered themselves to be disabled. A further recent communications exercise has also emphasised the importance of individuals providing this information, and we will be repeating the request for people to declare their status later this year.

Although we have achieved good levels of diversity across the Department, including those for disabled people, we aim to improve this position and details of actions are in Department for Work and Pensions Race, Disability and Gender Equality Schemes 2008-11.

The Cabinet Office is currently drawing up a new diversity strategy that will build on the achievements and lessons learnt from the 10 Point Plan. Once this has been agreed the Department will be setting further targets to 2011 and the strategy for achieving them.

Fraud

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions staff employed by his Department defrauded his Department in the last 10 years.[1] [200839]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions was created in April 2001 and information has been held centrally only from April 2003. To try to obtain information for earlier years would incur a disproportionate cost. Figures are not yet available for 2007-08.

Information is not available in the exact format requested but the figures shown in the following table show the number of instances of attempted or actual fraud where the investigation was completed in the year stated, together with the average number of staff in post in each year. The figures relate to all the benefits administered by DWP, theft of assets and financial irregularities:

	Employee fraud against the benefits system	Other fraud by employees	Staff in post
2003-04	23	78	130,786
2004-05	4	44	126,988
2005-06	52	99	119,972
2006-07	51	75	114,500

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of (a) workless couples and (b) workless lone parents claiming housing benefit in the last period for which figures are available. [199253]

1. [Official Report, 3 June 2008, Vol. 476, c. 9MC.]

Mr. Plaskitt: There were 430,000 workless couples and 670,000 workless lone parents in receipt of housing benefit. These represented 38 per cent. of workless couples and 78 per cent. of workless lone parents.

These estimates have been derived from information in the Family Resources Survey 2005-06.

Incapacity Benefit

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the proportion of those removed from incapacity benefit by 2015 who will (a) return to work, (b) retire and (c) move on to other benefits. [198776]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is not available. We do not produce off-flow forecasts broken down by reason.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2008, Official Report, column 780W, on social security benefits, how many people were claiming incapacity benefit in each year since 1998, broken down by country. [199917]

Mrs. McGuire: Information is not available prior to 2007. The available information has been placed in the Library.

Incapacity Benefit: Medical Assessments

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract signed with ATOS Origin to provide medical assessments for incapacity benefit claimants. [200191]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 21 April 2008]: A copy of the medical services contract, excluding those paragraphs which are considered commercially sensitive, has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Incapacity Benefit: Standards

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether those claiming employment and support allowance will be included in incapacity benefit figures when assessing performance against the target to reduce the number on incapacity benefit by 2015. [198775]

Mrs. McGuire: Our goal is to reduce the combined employment and support allowance and incapacity benefits caseload by 1 million over a decade, starting from 2.74 million incapacity benefits claimants in May 2005.

As such the combined total of those claiming employment and support allowance and those claiming incapacity benefits will be used to measure our progress towards this aim.

Incapacity Benefits: Medical Examinations

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to ensure that employment and support allowance assessments take account of the characteristics of different health conditions, with particular reference to the fluctuations inherent in the symptomatic severity of myalgic encephalopathy; and if he will make a statement. [201834]

Mr. Timms: The new Work Capability Assessment for Employment and Support Allowance will be a fair, robust and accurate assessment of limited capability for work which takes account of all conditions, including those that are long term and that fluctuate such as myalgic encephalopathy.

The Work Capability Assessment is not a snapshot of a person's condition on the day of the assessment. In assessing whether a person can carry out any given activity, health care professionals must take into account the person's condition over a reasonable period of time. They must take into account the effects of symptoms such as pain and fatigue. In this way the Work Capability Assessment takes account of the effects of fluctuating conditions.

If there is a change in a person's disabling condition, there will be a provision to refer the person to an approved healthcare professional so that we can determine afresh whether or not the person has limited capability for work, or limited capability for work-related activity.

Industrial Injuries: Construction

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many work-related (a) deaths and (b) injuries occurred in the construction industry in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08. [202309]

Mrs. McGuire: Information currently available on work-related deaths and injuries in the construction industry in 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 is shown in the following table:

Injuries in construction (SIC 45) 2005-06 to 2006-07[1] by severity of injury and employment status, as reported under RIDDOR 95[2] regulations

[4] 2007-08 figures based on the first nine months. These figures are unvalidated at this stage, so final details may change.
[5] Unvalidated non-fatal injury figures for 1 April to 31 December 2007 are available on HSE's website. The figures do not include data from all enforcing authorities, so are not comparable with previously-published figures.

Very preliminary indications for 2007-08 are that the number of fatal accidents to workers in the construction industry dropped by around 10 per cent. from the level of 2006-07.

Jobcentre Plus

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what Jobcentre Plus offices there are in each region; [198771]

(2) how many Jobcentre and Jobcentre Plus offices there were in each year since 1997. [198780]

Mr. Timms: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 28 April 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking what Jobcentre Plus offices there are in each Region and how many Jobcentre and Jobcentre Plus offices there were in each year since 1997. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as chief executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Jobcentre Plus estate comprises not only Jobcentres, but also Benefit Delivery Centres, Contact Centres, Regional Offices and a number of Medical Examination Centres. The table below shows the total number of Jobcentre Plus offices in each Jobcentre Plus region in England and the countries of Scotland and Wales as at 1 April 2008.

Region	Offices
East of England	80
East Midlands	67
London	102
North East	52
North West	136
Scotland	117
South East	99
South West	99
Wales	85
West Midlands	90
Yorkshire and the Humber	85
Total England and Wales	1,012

I am only able to provide information on the number of Jobcentre and Jobcentre Plus offices in our network from April 2002, when Jobcentre Plus was created by the merger of the former Employment Service and Benefits Agency.

The transformation of the inherited estate of around 1,500 offices is illustrated in the following table. The creation of the modern network of Jobcentre Plus offices involved the closure and disposal of a number of less suitable offices. The transformed Jobcentre Plus offices are the high street network of modern, open plan integrated offices and the non transformed Jobcentres are the original Jobcentres, which did not provide the integrated jobseeker and benefit administration service.

Date	Total number of transformed Jobcentre Plus offices	Remaining number of non transformed Jobcentres

30 April 2004	437	935
31 May 2005	551	691

Poverty: Disabled

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the contribution of efforts to tackle disability poverty to meeting child poverty reduction targets. [200404]

Mrs. McGuire: It is not possible to isolate the effect of policies specifically designed to address poverty amongst disabled people (such as support to help disabled people into work and the disability elements of the child tax credit and working tax credit), as they are closely linked with other policies affecting the working age population (such as the tax credit system as a whole and the national minimum wage).

However, the Department's analysis has demonstrated that around half of the reduction in child poverty as measured by relative low income (300,000 children) has occurred among children living in families with a disabled adult and/or a disabled child.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made towards meeting his Department's Public Service Agreement on reducing fraud and error in income support, jobseeker's allowance and housing benefit. [200462]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department's estimates of our progress against Public Service Agreement 10 on reducing fraud and error in the benefits system are published in a series of reports called "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System". The most recent report, "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System October 2005 to September 2006" was published in December 2007; a copy has been placed in the Library.

The report can also be viewed on the Department's website at:

DEFENCE

Military Medical Policy

11. Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what mechanisms his Department has in place to use lessons learned from operational theatres in the development of military medical policy. [201536]

Derek Twigg: Military medical policy is continually developing in the light of evidence emerging from the front-line experiences of our deployed medical personnel and coalition allies, and we work closely with the NHS to feed these into clinical practice. For example the "Major Trauma Audit for Clinical Effectiveness" is a process of continuous clinical audit to enable quality improvement; and our weekly "Joint Theatre Clinical Case Conferences" share experience and expertise between clinicians deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan, and experts in the UK.

21. Chris Mole: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to maintain the level of medical care provided to armed forces personnel in theatres of operation. [201547]

Derek Twigg: The Defence Medical Services have met all their operational commitments and will continue to do so. We have initiatives in hand to recruit into shortfall specialties and, with Department of Health support, encourage volunteering for the medical Reserves. The high standard of life-saving treatment provided in the field is matched by the clinical care provided for those casualties evacuated back to the UK, both at Selly Oak hospital in Birmingham and in MOD's own facilities such as the rehabilitation centre at Headley Court.

Injured Service Personnel: Compensation

12. Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on levels of compensation payments to injured service personnel. [201537]

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what compensation payments may be made to injured service personnel; and if he will make a statement. [201540]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Bexleyheath and Crayford (Mr. Evennett).

Military Inquests

13. David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to assist the families of service personnel killed on active service to be represented at inquests. [201539]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We place the highest priority on supporting the families of those who have given their lives in the service of their country. We try to help bereaved families through the difficult experience of a coroner's inquest. Due to the nature of inquest proceedings, assistance under the legal aid scheme, overseen by the Ministry of Justice, is available only in exceptional circumstances.

17. Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Justice on reducing the number of pending military inquests. [201543]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Falkirk (Mr. Joyce).

Service Accommodation

15. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the standards of service accommodation; and if he will make a statement. [201541]

Derek Twigg: Much service living accommodation is already of a high standard, but some remains below the standard that our service personnel and their families deserve. For this reason, we continue to invest heavily in all types of accommodation with a further £8 billion planned over the next decade, including over £3 billion on new or upgraded accommodation and over £2 billion on refurbishment and maintenance.

In the past seven years we have upgraded some 13,000 family properties. Since 2003, we have delivered some 20,000 new or improved Single Living bed-spaces with 30,000 more planned by 2013.

Patrol and Reconnaissance Vehicles

16. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the use of mine and explosive protective patrol and reconnaissance vehicles in theatre. [201542]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We ensure that commanders in operational theatres have a flexible and balanced vehicle fleet that provides the range of capabilities needed. Protected patrol vehicles form part of that approach, although the protection afforded by appropriate operational tactics and procedures is also important in the protection of our armed forces.

We continue to invest heavily in protected mobility to support our forces both in Iraq and Afghanistan, including the procurement of Vector, Mastiff, M-WMIK and Ridgback vehicles.

Afghanistan

18. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what additional commitments were made by NATO members to the mission in Afghanistan at the recent NATO summit; and if he will make a statement. [201544]

Des Browne: At NATO's Bucharest Summit, President Sarkozy confirmed the deployment of an additional battalion of French troops to the east of Afghanistan. This enabled President Bush to announce the movement of a substantial US force from the east to Kandahar in the south. A number of other allies, including Poland, Romania and Slovakia also announced increased contributions. Canada confirmed that it would remain in Kandahar until 2011.

22. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what assessment he has made of the effects of the application of UN Security Council resolution 1325 in Afghanistan. [201548]

Des Browne: The Government have made no formal assessment of the implementation of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 in Afghanistan. Nonetheless, the UK is keen to fulfil its commitment under this resolution to protect the rights of women and girls in areas suffering conflict, and to incorporate their perspectives in conflict resolution and peacekeeping planning.

To this end we fund various programmes, including a five-year Women's Empowerment programme that began in 2005, implemented by the NGO Womankind. This initiative focuses on promoting women's equal participation in governance and building awareness of women's rights among civil society and policy makers.

Ballistic Missile Defence System

19. Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with NATO counterparts on the ballistic missile defence system. [201545]

Des Browne: The issue of ballistic missile defence is discussed regularly at ministerial level in NATO.

Iraq

20. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future role of British forces in Iraq. [201546]

23. Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, if he will make a statement on the future deployment of British forces in Iraq. [201549]

24. Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, if he will make a statement on the future role of British forces in Iraq. [201550]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Forest of Dean (Mr. Harper).

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox) of 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 364W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, whether the balance of helicopter force levels has been decided; and whether any Merlin helicopters will be deployed in Afghanistan. [195167]

Des Browne: The Merlin fleet will remain committed to southern Iraq for the foreseeable future. As always, we keep force levels and structures under regular review.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the command relationship between British Forces and elements of the US 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit operating in Helmand Province will be. [200948]

Des Browne: Both Task Force Helmand and the US 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit are under the control of the Commander of the International Security Assistance Force.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of attacks made by (a) Taliban and (b) Al-Qaeda forces in Afghanistan occurred in Helmand province in 2007. [200960]

Des Browne: This information is not held in the format requested.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many weapons caches have been found in Helmand province in each year since 2006. [200961]

Des Browne: In 2006, security forces operating in Helmand province discovered four weapons caches, and in 2007, 24 were found. Up to 30 January 2008, the latest date for which data have been recorded this year, one cache had been found.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2008, Official Report, column 450W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, whether the balance of the UK helicopter force levels across theatre, including the deployment of Merlin helicopters to Afghanistan, has been decided. [201415]

Des Browne: The Merlin fleet will remain committed to southern Iraq for the foreseeable future. As always, we keep force levels and structures under regular review.

Air Force: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual number of pilots in the RAF is for each type of aircraft. [200939]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on pilot numbers for each type of aircraft is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

In 2006 the projected requirement for RAF pilots for the end of Financial Year 2007-08 was 2,268. The total number of RAF pilots as at 1 March 2008 was 2,080. Reliable figures for a more recent estimate are unavailable following the phased implementation of the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system.

Armed Forces: Divorce

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the divorce rate among service personnel was in each year since 1997, broken down by service; and how many divorces involving a member of the armed services were recorded in each year. [200942]

Derek Twigg: The following table shows annual divorce rates and number of divorces for Army and RAF personnel for each year since 1997. Naval service data are not available as the naval service groups 'Separated', 'Divorced' and 'Widowed' together.

Divorces within the Army and RAF, and rate as a percentage of average married strength: 1997 to 2006

	Army[2]		RAF
	Number	Rate (percentage)	Number	Rate (percentage)
1997	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1998	n/a	n/a	610	1.6
1999	1,120	2.1	570	1.6
2000	1,180	2.3	640	1.8
2001	1,130	2.2	620	1.8
2002	1,310	2.6	590	1.8
2003	1,210	2.4	520	1.7
2004	1,200	2.4	580	1.9
2005	1,040	2.1	570	1.9
2006[1]	930	1.9	n/a	n/a

n/a = not available

[1] Figures for 2006 are for the most recently available 12 months which cover the period up to 1 December 2006.

[2] For the years 1999, 2000 and 2001, annulments are excluded from the calculations for divorce rates, as the information was not available, however the remaining years do include annulments in their calculation.

Figures are for UK Regular Forces, and therefore exclude Gurkhas, full-time Reserve Service personnel, the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and mobilised reservists. Figures are for trained and untrained personnel excluding officer designates.

Rates are calculated as a percentage of the average married strength during the calendar years. The term 'divorce' includes 'decree absolute' and 'marriage annulled'. It excludes 'decree nisi' and individuals who are separated.

Figures after 1 December 2006 are unavailable following the phased implementation of the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system.

To collect and collate marital status from units, in order to produce figures for divorce rates, could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Health Services

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel returning to the UK from action abroad have required medical treatment in each of the last 60 months. [200924]

Derek Twigg: We do not collect statistics in the form requested, but we publish a range of casualty statistics, which are updated fortnightly, on the MOD website at:

http://www.mod.uk/defenceinternet/factsheets/operations factsheets/operationsinafghanistanbritishcasualties. htm_for_Afghanistan and

http://www.mod.uk/defenceinternet/factsheets/operations factsheets/operationsiniraqbritishcasualties.htm_for_Iraq

Armed Forces: Housing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has paid in each year for improvements and modernisation of residential dwellings since Annington Homes acquired the former Ministry of Defence housing stock. [199228]

Derek Twigg: In Financial Year 2007-08 we spent some £32 million on Service Family Accommodation (SFA) as part of life-cycle maintenance activity (for example replacing bathrooms, kitchens or boilers) in addition to some £18 million spent on upgrades.

The former Defence Housing Executive (DHE) was responsible for the maintenance and new build of housing in Great Britain until 2004 after which the responsibility passed to Defence Estates (DE).

Details of expenditure on upgrading SFA to SlfC are available only from Financial Year 2001-02 when DHE published its first Agency accounts. Expenditure was as follows:

Financial Year	£ million
2001-02	25.3
2002-03	25.5
2003-04	33.5
2004-05	18.1
2006-07	16.4

The maintenance and investment in Service Families Accommodation overseas and in Northern Ireland is carried out by the respective budget holders. It is therefore held separately and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

During the period from 1 April 2000 to 31 March 2008 the Department upgraded over 15,000 houses in Great Britain to SlfC.

Armed Forces: Influenza

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to paragraph four of the Defence Medical Services Department's policy letter of 20 January 2006 entitled "The use of influenza vaccines and anti-virals in the event of an influenza pandemic" , reference DMSD/13/1/4 if he will reassess the assumption on the proportion of the armed forces who may be affected during the course of a pandemic and if he will make a statement. [196546]

Derek Twigg: MOD pandemic influenza planning assumptions on overall clinical attack rates are based on modelling provided by the Health Protection Agency (HPA), which underpin the National Planning Framework. In 2006 this accorded with the national plan that 25 to 33 per cent. of the armed forces overall may be affected during the course of a pandemic. However, in line with the revised National Planning Framework issued in 2007, which raised the upper potential impact to 50 per cent., our planning is being adjusted to reflect this higher potential clinical attack rate.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) target and (b) actual voluntary outflow rate for (i) officers and (ii) other ranks in each service was in the latest period for which figures are available. [200937]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department does not set targets for the maximum number of people that leave early (Voluntary Outflow).

Voluntary exit rates broken down by officers and other ranks can be found in Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 5—Trained Outflow to Civil Life. Monthly figures show the number of personnel who have outflowed in the previous 12 month period. TSP 5 is published monthly. The most recent publication presents outflow for the 12 months to February 2008 and can be found at http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp5/tsp5tab5.html

Copies of TSP 5 are available in the Library of the House and are also at www.dasa.mod.uk

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel were employed by each of the armed forces in the last year for which records are available. [201005]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on the number of service personnel employed by each of the armed forces is published in Tri-Service Publication 1, "Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces" (TSP 1). Copies are available in the Library of the House and also at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp1/gender.html

The latest available data published in TSP 1 is as at 1 March 2008. TSP 1 is a monthly publication, previous copies of which can be found at www.dasa.mod.uk. The next edition of TSP 1 is due to be released on 22 May 2008 and this will contain figures as at 1 April 2008.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual number of unit welfare officers is. [201019]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1646W, to the hon. Member for North Devon (Nick Harvey).

Armed Forces: Schools

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on his Department's policy on visits by armed forces personnel to schools. [196605]

Derek Twigg: We welcome the opportunity to visit schools. Armed forces personnel do visit schools to raise awareness and understanding and help with youth work, e.g. sports and engineering projects. Any visit will be at the invitation of a school and the school will work with the armed forces to determine what information will be provided to young people. This will include information on careers in the services as well as providing general information to make students aware of the work of the MOD and armed forces worldwide.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time teachers were employed by Service Children's Education at the latest date for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the full-time requirement. [199492]

Derek Twigg: As at the 1 April 2008, Service Children's Education (SCE) employed 775 full-time teachers and 37 part-time teachers

The estimated teacher establishment for the academic year 2008/09 is 737 full-time teachers and 37 part-time teachers, with the bulk of these reductions reflecting the closure of Osnabrück Station in Germany during 2008-09.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what specialist training in the immediate management of traumatic injuries and Major Incident Medical Management and Support medical officers on the Army's Entry Officer course receive. [200945]

Derek Twigg: All Army medical officers undergo the post graduate medical officers course which is delivered by the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine. It includes a full major incident medical management and support course, followed by an examination which has to be passed. The remainder of the course covers a broad range of topics specific to military medicine, with a specific focus on time at general duties. All military medical officers also undertake four months accident and emergency experience during training.

Those students notified for deployment on operations within three months of the course end, undertake the battlefield advanced trauma life support course. Those scheduled to deploy at a later date undertake this training from within their units.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of Role 1 medical officers deployed on operations had received refresher training in the management of trauma at the latest date for which figures are available. [200946]

Derek Twigg: 100 per cent. in all three services as of 21 April 2008.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hours of pre-deployment training personnel are required to complete before deployment to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [201028]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There is a mandatory 'pre-deployment course', which is run separately by each service and is followed up by role-specific orientation training in theatre. Represented in days, the mandatory course duration is as follows:

	Number of days
Royal Navy	10
Army and Royal Marines	4
RAF	6
Civilians	3

Pre-deployment courses differ between the services due to differing roles undertaken and theatre specific relevance of other training undertaken. Pre-deployment training is very much longer than these service specific pre-deployment courses.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training personnel serving in the Queen's Colour Squadron received prior to their deployment to Afghanistan in spring 2008. [201029]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Queen's Colour Squadron is not currently committed to squadron-level operations in Afghanistan. However, a small number of its personnel have been deployed on force-protection duties there since last October. Prior to their deployment, personnel undertook an intensive training package designed specifically for their role in Afghanistan. The package included briefings, practical training and an intensive series of live firing exercises.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training in Arctic flying conditions was provided to armed forces helicopter pilots in 2007. [201136]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Arctic flying training for armed forces helicopter pilots takes place on an annual basis at the Joint Helicopter Command Clockwork facility at Royal Norwegian Air Force Base Bardufoss, which provides ground and air training for all rotary wing and support units. The flying syllabus covers day and night flying sorties, mountain flying and other sorties pertinent to aircraft type and role.

For the winter training period of 2007, the units receiving this training were:

elements of the Commando Helicopter Force, elements of 33 Squadron Royal Air Force and elements of 4 Regiment Army Air Corps.

Army: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) shortest and (b) average number of months between the completion of Phase 2 training and the deployment of personnel in the Army was for the latest period for which figures are available. [200938]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: All soldiers are deployed or 'posted' directly to their parent unit upon completion of Phase 2 training. Data on time between completion of Phase 2 training and deployment on a operational tour is not readily available.

Departmental Credit Cards

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions a government procurement card was used by his departmental officials and by service personnel in each of the last five years; how much was spent via such cards in each such year; and what effect on administrative costs the use of such cards is estimated to have had since they came into operation. [200542]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The total expenditure and total number of transactions on the Government Procurement Cards (GPC) held by departmental officials and service personnel over the last five years is detailed as follows:

	Expenditure (£)	Transactions
2007-08	231,103,509	819,903
2006-07	218,631,506	754,329
2005-06	202,499,078	714,471
2004-05	168,594,451	627,006
2003-04	100,438,586	401,980

Since its implementation in the MOD, the GPC has achieved total process and administration cost savings of £101,894,044, based on the NAO savings figure of £28 per transaction. A breakdown of this is shown in the following table:

	Transactions	Savings (£)
2007-08	819,903	22,957,284
2006-07	754,329	21,121,212
2005-06	714,471	20,005,188
2004-05	627,006	17,556,168
2003-04	401,980	11,255,440
2002-03	227,725	6,376,300
2001-02	61,296	1,716,288
2000-01	30,155	844,340
1999-2000	2,208	61,824
Total	3,639,073	101,894,044

Departmental Public Expenditure

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's financial (a) losses and (b) special payments for 2007-08 were. [200935]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is intended for future publication in the MOD's Annual Report and Accounts, which we plan to lay before the House in July.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many full-time posts were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in his Department in each of the last three years. [200660]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held in the format requested. However, I am able to provide the monthly average of the number of people filling a post on a temporary basis for Financial Year 2006-07 and for 2007-08 which was 2,581 and 2,867 respectively. These numbers do not include temporary or agency staff filling vacancies nor do they distinguish between full-time and part-time posts. They also exclude staff in Trading Funds.

Devonport Dockyard

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to make final decisions on the baseporting of frigates and submarines at Devonport Naval Base. [201994]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 113W, on the baseporting of ships at Devonport. The position applies equally to frigates and submarines.

European Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Typhoon Eurofighters are fully operational and in service with the Royal Air Force. [200538]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As of 21 April 2008, there are 49 Typhoon aircraft in service with the RAF, of which 34 aircraft are fully operational for daily tasking and 15 in capability upgrade, flight test activities and scheduled maintenance.

Fleet Air Arm

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Fleet Air Arm personnel were (a) qualified and (b) serving as fighter pilots at the latest date for which figures are available. [200302]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 21 April 2008 the number of qualified Fleet Air Arm personnel who hold the post award of the flying badge is 63.

The number of fast jet pilots employed on operations or direct support to them is 36.

Future Large Aircraft: Procurement

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the A400M aircraft ordered by his Department will have an explosive suppressive foam capability to respond to fuel tank explosions. [198842]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Explosion suppressant foam is one of several fuel tank inerting systems available to prevent fuel tank explosion. An alternative inerting system is the on board inert gas generation system (OBIGGS), such as that fitted as standard to C-17s.

All but one of our A400M aircraft will, during manufacture, will be fitted with the necessary equipment to enable fuel tank inerting to be installed. The one exception to this is an early development aircraft which is already under construction and cannot be fitted with the enabling pipework for fuel tank inerting during its production. We are currently looking at ways to address this shortfall.

Iran: Territorial Waters

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will (a) prepare and (b) place in the Library a commentary on the documents released to The Times newspaper under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in relation to the Iranian seizure of personnel from the crew of HMS Cornwall. [201797]

Des Browne [holding answer 25 April 2008]: Yes.

Iraq: Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much it costs to transport one (a) Mastiff and (b) Bulldog armoured vehicle from the UK to (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan. [201021]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The cost of transporting heavy equipment varies considerably according to the method employed. The means of transportation is decided on a number of criteria, primarily when the equipment is ready for transport and its required delivery date.

For Iraq the approximate cost of transporting one Mastiff vehicle by commercial heavy lift aircraft is £41,600.

For Afghanistan the approximate cost of transporting one Mastiff vehicle by commercial heavy lift aircraft is £55,000.

Bulldog deploy to theatre using military shipping. Using a standard calculation for operating costs including the costs of fuel, port handling charges and Suez Transit (and excluding fixed costs such as wages and cost of ownership) the cost of moving one Bulldog is £717. This figure assumes that the vessel carried a full load of cargo which was the case for both of the shipping consignments in this case.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of those (a) captured and (b) killed by British forces in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan since November 2007 were of Iranian nationality. [200963]

Des Browne: As I stated in my answer to the hon. Member on 18 October 2007, Official Report, column 1234W, the Ministry of Defence does not maintain records on the nationality of individuals killed in engagements involving UK forces in Iraq or Afghanistan.

No Iranian nationals have been detained by UK forces in Iraq and Afghanistan since November 2007.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of service casualties on current operations in Iraq and Afghanistan have been killed and injured in incidents involving roadside bombs and other improvised explosive devices. [201885]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 25 April 2008]: The percentage of fatalities of UK service personnel resulting from improvised explosive devices or mines is 27 per cent. for operations in Afghanistan and 28 per cent. for operations in Iraq.

Data on the proportion of injuries caused by improvised explosive devices or mines are not held centrally.

Joint Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the UK's military commitment to (a) the European Union Battlegroup, (b) NATO Response Force, (c) NATO Operational Reserve Force, (d) the Spearhead Land Element, (e) Small Scale Focused Intervention Force and (f) Allied Rapid Reaction Corps will be sourced from the Joint Rapid Reaction Force from July to December 2008. [201023]

Des Browne: The Joint Rapid Reaction Force (JRRF) exists to provide the UK's high readiness military contingency and to meet our international high readiness military commitments. In the period from July to December 2008 the UK may be required to provide force elements to the EU Battlegroup, the NATO Response Force and the NATO Operational Reserve Force; these commitments, should they arise, will be met from the JRRF as normal.

The Spearhead Land Element and the Small Scale Focused Intervention capability are both integral components of the JRRF. They are two elements that contribute to the JRRF capability available to Defence for contingent tasks.

The Headquarters Allied Command Europe Rapid Reaction Corps (HQ ARRC) is a UK led multinational HQ assigned to NATO. Between July and December 2008 the UK's military commitment to HQ ARRC will not be drawn from elements assigned to the Joint Rapid Reaction Force.

Lynx Helicopters

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what operational roles are planned for the Future Lynx helicopter. [199463]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The Army variant of Future Lynx is intended to be used primarily as a reconnaissance and utility helicopter. The maritime variant is intended to be used primarily against surface and sub-surface threats.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 19 March 2008 on Gurkhas (Reference: MC01743/2008). [202386]

Derek Twigg: I replied to the hon. Member on 28 April.

NATO Response Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what mechanisms the NATO Response Force is funded; and if he will make a statement. [201025]

Des Browne: Costs associated with the NATO Response Force (NRF) are borne directly by the nations providing the force elements; common funding arrangements are not applied. The exception to this is a time-limited arrangement (until the end of 2009), by which common funding can be used to defray the costs associated with the short-notice deployment of elements of the NRF. This is intended to allow nations a reasonable period of time in which to acquire-individually, collectively or by ensuring access to—the strategic lift capability they need to be able to deploy their own forces.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Government spent on the NATO Response Force in each year since 2005. [201026]

Des Browne: The force elements we make available on standby to the NATO Response Force are drawn from the UK's Joint Rapid Reaction Force. As yet, none of these force elements have been activated for deployment. No expenditure specifically related to the NATO Response Force has therefore been incurred in this period.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what units will form the British commitment to the NATO Response Force in the second half of 2008. [201027]

Des Browne: From July to December 2008, the UK's contribution to the NATO Response Force will be an Air Component Command Headquarters and associated support, a deployable air operating base, eight Tornado GR4 aircraft and four air defence aircraft together with two air refuelling aircraft, two tactical transport aircraft, and a contribution to the Joint Logistic Support Group. We will also provide mine counter measures task group command, with a command ship, a destroyer/frigate escort, and a survey vessel. All these forces will be drawn from the UK's Joint Rapid Reaction Force.

Navy: Equipment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many ice breakers the Royal Navy had in each year since 1997. [201137]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ice Patrol ship HMS Endurance is the only ship of this kind operated by the Royal Navy and has been in service since 1991.

Woolwich Barracks

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in the redevelopment of Woolwich Barracks; and if he will make a statement. [200959]

Derek Twigg: Good progress has been made, and planning consent for the redevelopment of Woolwich Barracks has been obtained. New junior rank single living accommodation for over 400 personnel is due to be delivered by late 2009.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Coal Mining: Bangladesh

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what support his Department has provided to promote the proposal by the UK company Global Coal Management Resources PLC for an opencast coal mine at Phulbari in North West Bangladesh; [198833]

(2) if he will have discussions with the Bangladesh Government on the proposal by the UK company Global Coal Management Resources PLC for an opencast coal mine at Phulbari in North West Bangladesh. [198832]

Mr. Thomas: We have provided support to Global Coal Management Resources PLC, through the British high commission in Dhaka. They have lobbied to ensure that the Government of Bangladesh take the company's interests into consideration and do not prohibit opencast mining. The British high commission will continue to remain in touch with the company and will represent their interests as appropriate. The Bangladeshi Caretaker Government's new draft coal policy leaves the way open for opencast mining in Bangladesh in the future.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent on the most recent redesign and implementation of his departmental website. [200149]

Mr. Thomas: Following the creation of the Department in June 2007 changes to the design of the website reflecting both the Department's new name and associated brand guidelines were implemented. The total cost of the changes to our website and intranet—which cannot be separated except at disproportionate cost—was £67,000.

Electricity Generation: Renewable Energy

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of UK electricity supply was generated from renewable sources in each year between 1998 and 2007. [200515]

Malcolm Wicks: The proportion of electricity generated in the United Kingdom that has been derived from renewable sources in each year between 1998 and 2006 is shown in the following table. Data for 2007 will not be available until later this year.

Proportion of electricity generated from renewable sources

	Percentage
1998	2.38
1999	2.61
2000	2.62
2001	2.49
2002	2.87
2003	2.65
2004	3.58
2005	4.23
2006	4.55

Energy: Finance

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2008, Official Report, column 334W, on renewable energy: finance, what funds are held by Ofgem arising from the auctioning of renewable obligation certificates and electricity generated under non-fossil fuel obligation contracts. [199305]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The balance of the England and Wales Levy account as at 31 March 2008 is £29.9 million. This amount includes accumulated interest on the account.

The balance of the Scottish Levy account as at 31 March 2008 is £105.9 million. This amount includes accumulated interest on the account.

Gas and Electricity Markets Authority

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what financial contributions energy suppliers make to Ofgem. [200317]

Malcolm Wicks: Under a Standard Licence Condition, licence fees are collected from the network businesses that hold the following types of licence:

gas transportation

electricity transportation (where the relevant condition is in force) electricity distribution.

Costs to be recovered by Ofgem are calculated on the basis of a customer numbers formula. For 2007-08, £35.1 million was collected in licence fees to cover Ofgem-related expenditure.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform who the members are of the co-ordinating group for the solicitors representing former mineworkers. [201644]

Malcolm Wicks: Members of the coordinating group (CG) of claimants' solicitors for each of the Coal Health Compensations schemes are as follows; for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, the CG is made up of:

Irwin Mitchell

Hugh James

Thompsons (Newcastle)

Thompsons (Edinburgh);

and for vibration white finger:

Irwin Mitchell

Hugh James

Thompsons (Edinburgh)

Thompson & Co.

Watson Burton.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the reduction in maximum grant levels under the domestic stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme on household demand for solar photovoltaic and micro-wind technologies; and if he will make a statement. [199375]

Malcolm Wicks: Since the introduction of a grant cap in May 2007 for household installations monthly applications, including for solar PV and micro-wind, have decreased relative to before May 2007. However, we have seen a more even spread across the various technologies. There are potentially a number of factors contributing to this lower uptake of household grants. However, we believe that the extension to the household stream of LCBP, relaxation of planning requirements and wider promotion of the programme should help to boost take-up.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of the number of micro-generation installations to be delivered by the domestic stream of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme. [199377]

Malcolm Wicks: To date, we have funded 4,300 domestic installations through the Low Carbon Buildings Programme. We recently announced that the domestic stream will be extended to June 2010 or until the funds are exhausted whichever comes sooner. We also announced the relaxation of planning permission requirements, making it easier for homeowners to install microgeneration on their homes.

Should we continue allocating grants at the current rate of 200 per month, we would expect to see a further 2,800 completed installations by scheme closure. However, with the changes that we have made, we expect that uptake to increase.

We will continue to monitor uptake to the domestic stream going forward.

Nuclear Reactors: Floods

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment has been made of the risk of flooding of existing and proposed nuclear reactors on coastal sites over their lifetimes; and if he will make a statement. [200793]

Malcolm Wicks: UK coastal nuclear power stations are designed to be protected against flooding, and the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) requires flood defence plans to be periodically reviewed by site operators. HSE would also require appropriate flood protection measures and flood defence plans for any new nuclear power station in the future.

The potential impact of flooding would be a relevant consideration in any future siting assessment for any proposed new nuclear build, alongside a range of other considerations. We will be consulting on draft criteria for the strategic siting assessment in due course.

Personal Savings: Regulation

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans his Department has for the further regulation of the operation of Christmas savings clubs. [200374]

Mr. Thomas: The Government have already indicated that the possibility of regulation will be considered once the outcome of the Companies Act investigation into Farepak is available. This consideration will also take account of the initial advice delivered by the OFT and FSA in December 2007, and the Thirteenth Report (2006-07) by the Treasury Select Committee.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether exchanges of expertise and technology for the disposal of highly radioactive nuclear waste take place between the UK and France. [201238]

Malcolm Wicks: Collaboration with France on nuclear power is already well established, and with the commitment to new nuclear in the UK there is now greater scope to reap the benefits. At the recent UK/French summit one of the issues discussed was the scope for exchange of staff and information on waste management between the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority and its French counterpart. A bilateral agreement between NDA and ANDRA (the French waste management organisation) will be signed in the coming weeks.

Renewable Energy: Skilled Workers

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to address the skills gap in the renewables sector identified in the Government's White Paper relating to that sector; and if he will make a statement. [201297]

Malcolm Wicks: The issue of skills will be addressed in the forthcoming consultation on the renewable energy strategy.

We are also actively collaborating with employers and sector skills councils to help develop academies for nuclear, the process industries and oil and gas and are working on plans for the power and environmental sectors with the aim of delivering the required skills to work across the energy sector, including renewables.

Renewable Energy: Water Power

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of renewable energy supply came from hydro-generation in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland in each year between 1998 and 2007. [200516]

Malcolm Wicks: Information in this detail is only available for the following years and only for hydro as a proportion of electricity generation.

Proportion of electricity from renewable sources generated by hydro sources

	2003	2004	2005	Percentage 2006
England	0.6	1.0	0.6	0.8
Scotland	77.9	76.7	71.0	60.7
Wales	24.7	27.8	21.7	19.5
Northern Ireland	6.4	7.5	7.0	9.1
United Kingdom total	29.8	34.4	29.2	25.3

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of renewable energy supply generated in the United Kingdom is derived from rivers; and what that figure is expressed in the number of homes powered by such electricity. [200517]

Malcolm Wicks: In the statistics collected on renewable energy by BERR, no distinction is currently made between hydroelectricity derived from rivers and hydroelectricity derived from lakes or other reservoir sources.

Supermarkets: Competition

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will commission research on the effect of supermarket chains on the convenience shop sector, with particular reference to the level of competition and local dominance; and if he will make a statement. [201906]

Mr. Thomas: This Department has no plans to commission research into this market. Competition in the supermarket and grocery sectors is a matter for the independent competition authorities. The Competition Commission's (CC) inquiry into the UK grocery market is assessing local market concentration in some detail. The CC's final report is expected shortly.

Wind Power: Finance

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discount rate has been assumed in carrying out the cost benefit analysis for wind farms (a) at current levels of Government subsidy and (b) assuming no subsidy. [200021]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The Department does not carry out cost benefit analyses of individual wind farms. The Department has produced estimates of the levelised generation costs for fossil fuels (coal and gas) and low carbon technologies. Estimates for onshore and offshore wind use a pre-tax commercial discount rate of between 10 and 12 per cent.

The Department uses the Treasury Green Book social discount rate to estimate the present value of the resource cost to the economy of low carbon generation technologies compared with generation using fossil fuels.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Relations: Religion

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been allocated to the preventing violent extremism community leadership fund for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [201881]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 25 April 2008]: The preventing violent extremism: community leadership fund has been allocated £1.1 million, £1.3 million, and £1.5 million for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 respectively.

Construction: Price Fixing

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Local Government Association on alleged price fixing in the construction industry and the implications of such practices for local authorities. [201418]

John Healey: There have not been any recent discussions between Communities and Local Government and the Local Government Association about alleged price fixing activities in the construction industry.

Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reasons are for the different figures given in the answer of 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 112W, on council tax, and the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2498, on council tax: tax yields, for council tax receipts in England in 1997-98. [199275]

Mr. Dhanda: I have written to the hon. Member explaining the reasons for the different figures given in the two answers. A ministerial correction amending the answer of 28 January 2008 was published on 23 April 2008, Official Report, column 10MC.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what her most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which her Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200736]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which her Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91; [200737]

(3) what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which her Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if she will make a statement. [200738]

Mr. Dhanda: The 89 local authority pension funds that comprise the Local Government Pension Scheme in England and Wales are valued by actuaries every three years. The most recent valuation took place in March 2007 but the national outcome will not be known until later in the year. Details of individual fund valuation results, including new employer contribution rates and the assumptions used for discount and longevity can be obtained directly from each scheme administering authority.

When the funds were last valued in 2004, this showed that the assets of £80 billion represented some 75 per cent. of the total scheme liabilities of £107 billion. Each scheme administering authority has in place a funding strategy to manage and recover to ensure the on-going solvency of the scheme. Valuation results for English and Welsh local authorities participating in the scheme are available at

www.xoq83.dialpipex.com/valwal.pdf

The pension liability for the two firefighters' pension schemes falls on individual fire and rescue authorities. The current unfunded liabilities are estimated to be about £18 billion for English authorities.

The 1992 Firefighters' Pension Scheme has an employer contribution rate of 22 per cent. of payroll; the 2006 New Firefighters' Pension Scheme's rate is 11 per cent. The estimated costs for employers in the two schemes are:

		£ million
	1992 scheme	2006 scheme
2006-07	193.9	2.8
2007-08	194.6	8.9

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many public consultations were held by her Department and its predecessor in each of the last three years; and how many respondents took part in each consultation. [198633]

Mr. Dhanda: As reported in the annual reports of my Department and its predecessor, and as set out in the Government summaries of responses, the following public consultations were held in each of the last three years:

In the calendar year 2005 my predecessor Department ODPM launched 57 public consultations.

In the calendar year 2007 my Department launched 48 public consultations.

Identifying how many respondents took part in each consultation could be done only at disproportionate cost. The number of responses to these consultations varies greatly. For example there were only 76 responses to our consultation on Tolerated Trespassers issued in August 2007. However, there were 55,000 responses for our consultation on Proposals for Future Unitary Structures issued in March 2007.

Fire Services: Resignations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether exit interviews are conducted with retained firefighters when leaving the Fire and Rescue Service. [201410]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Undertaking exit interviews for all staff is a matter of good practice. Fire and rescue services were provided with guidance encouraging this practice by the Home Office as part of two equalities action plans entitled "Toward Diversity" published in 2000 and 2001.

Fire Services: Training

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of initial training for (a) a full-time firefighter and (b) a retained firefighter was in each fire and rescue service in the latest period for which figures are available. [201411]

Mr. Dhanda: The cost of initial training for both full-time and retained duty system firefighters is a matter for individual fire and rescue service. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Floods: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much Government funding has been provided to help repair properties which were damaged in the floods of 2007. [200277]

John Healey: This information is not held by Communities and Local Government and we are therefore unable to provide a breakdown on how much was provided to help repair properties.

To date, Government have made available up to £88 million to support communities in England affected by the floods of June and July 2007. This includes around £18.4 million from Communities and Local Government in flood recovery grant to support the recovery work of local authorities.

Local authorities have flexibility to decide how to best use flood recovery grant based on their own local circumstances. In practice this has included:

support payments to flood affected households; purchase and provision of new household items to flood affected households; provision of temporary caravans to allow people to remain within their communities while houses are repaired; resilience and rescheduling of home improvement programmes to support families in flood damaged homes; other priorities set through consultation with flood-affected householders and communities.

Communities and Local Government have invited councils to adapt their timetables for the multi-billion pound decent homes programme to help get their tenants back into fully renovated homes as quickly as possible.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families has made available £14 million for schools and children's services affected by the floods and regional development agencies have made available around £11 million for businesses affected.

Floods: Local Government Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have raised a ring-fenced sum by precept to deal with problems arising from flooding. [201801]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Housing: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what target has been set for house building in (a) Stroud constituency and (b) Stroud district over the next planning period; and what the (i) process and (ii) anticipated timing is for finding sites for these houses in the event that the Hunts Grove development is (A) proceeded with and (B) not proceeded with. [201802]

Mr. Iain Wright: There is no figure available for the Stroud constituency because the boundary is smaller than that of Stroud district.

The target for house building in Stroud District over the next planning period (1991-2011 as set out in the Gloucestershire County Structure Plan) is 9,400. The Draft Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) for the period 2006-2026 provides for a total of 6,700 with the RSS Panel Report recommendations increasing this to 9,100.

The process and anticipated timing for finding sites for these houses will be determined by the approved structure plan figures being replaced by the submitted draft RSS figures. The Secretary of State's proposed changes to the RSS are due to be published for public consultation in the summer of 2008 with adoption due before the end of 2008.

We expect housing provision to meet strategic requirements in accordance with PPS3 to be made by Stroud by provision of a site specific allocation of land development plan document (DPD) as part of the local development framework process. The DPD is programmed to be submitted for examination in March 2010 with adoption due in April 2011. A core strategy setting out the spatial strategy is also programmed for adoption in July 2010. These documents will take account of available land in the district including land at Hunts Grove and will need to reflect the then adopted RSS housing figures.

Local Authorities: Planning

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a local authority is permitted to relocate a housing allocation published in its local plan or local development framework from one site to another. [201781]

Mr. Iain Wright: The housing allocations in the Stroud district local plan, adopted on 10 November 2005, were saved for three years after this date by a direction issued by the Secretary of State. Following this date, the housing provision should be reviewed and updated to take account of the up to date strategic requirements of PPS3 and amended through the local development framework process by Stroud district council. This will include a review of all remaining housing allocations from the local plan.

Local Government Finance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much central government grant per head was paid to each (a) county council and (b) unitary authority in England excluding grant to police authorities and local education authorities in the last financial year for which figures are available. [1] [200845]

John Healey: The amount of central government funding paid to each county council and unitary authority excluding grant to police authorities and local education authorities in any financial year is zero because county councils and unitary authorities are all local education authorities.

Minister for the East of England: Standards

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the (a) activities and (b) performance the Minister for the East of England since her appointment in June 2007 against the terms of reference for the post set out in the Governance of Britain Green Paper. [201013]

Mr. Dhanda: The Governance of Britain Green Paper states that regional Ministers are expected to provide a clear sense of strategic direction for their regions and ensure that central Government's policies take account of regional needs. This involves working closely with the relevant Government office; the Regional Development Agency; other Government agencies; local government; business, the third sector and other stakeholders. Based on these terms of reference the Minister for the East of England's most significant achievements include:

helping to take forward the restructuring of regional bodies outlined in the Sub National Review; setting up and chairing the quarterly Regional Partnership Group; advising the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on RDA board appointments; attending quarterly meetings with BERR Ministers and RDA chairs to discuss regional issues and performance; engaging with a wide range of cross government bodies and agencies on regional issues like: local area agreements; the growth agenda; water supply; coastal flooding and defences; skills; health; women's enterprise and preparations for the Olympics in the East of England; attending a wide range of events, visits and meetings with regional bodies; partners and stakeholders with a six-month forward programme of regional visits planned with local authorities and regional partners who want the Minister for the East of England to help them to deliver key regional growth and regeneration projects; and attending regular meetings with the eight other regional Ministers to discuss matters of mutual interest like policing; transport and the growth agenda and share best practice.

As the Governance of Britain Green Paper does not set out any executive powers for regional Ministers, the Minister for the East of England has not made any executive decisions since her appointment.

National Muslim Women's Advisory Group

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which members of the National Muslim Women's Advisory Group have attended each meeting held with members of her Department since January 2008. [201432]

Fareena Alam;
Farkhanda Chaudhry;
Zuelkha Dala;
Reedah El-Saie;
Shaista Gohair;
Rukaiya Jeraj;

Sabin Malik;
Andleen Razaq; and Batool Al Toma.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many meetings she has attended with the National Muslim Women's Advisory Group since January 2008. [201433]

Hazel Blears: The National Muslim Women's Advisory Group has had two official meetings with the Secretary of State, in November 2007 and March 2008.

Members of the advisory group also met with the Secretary of State at the formal launch of the group on 31 January 2008 at No. 10.

The group have also had a range of meetings among themselves within their regions.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her changes to the draft South East Plan will be published before the summer 2008 Parliamentary adjournment. [201875]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State intends to publish proposed changes for the draft regional spatial strategy (RSS) for the south-east (the South East Plan) before the summer recess.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how long the consultation period will be on her proposed changes to the draft South East Plan. [201876]

Mr. Dhanda: It is the Secretary of State's intention to allow 12 weeks for consultation on her proposed changes for the draft regional spatial strategy (RSS) for the south-east (the South East Plan). The statutory requirement is for a consultation of at least eight weeks, we are however mindful of the proposed timing of consultation over the summer period and for that reason will be allowing an additional four weeks.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to permit changes to the South East Plan which involve the removal of green belt protection in whole or in part. [201877]

Mr. Dhanda: The report of the independent panel is still under consideration and it would be inappropriate to comment on what may or may not be included in any proposed changes.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum: Deportation

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to which countries there is currently no safe route of return for failed asylum seekers. [201000]

Mr. Byrne: There are no countries to which the United Kingdom does not remove failed asylum seekers on the basis of the safety of the route. Officials consider not only the merits of the individual case but also the most effective means of achieving a safe and successful return. While there is no policy not to return to any country or territory, our ability to return may of course from time to time temporarily be affected by legal challenge. This is currently the case with Zimbabwe, where we have undertaken to the High Court that we will not enforce the return of failed asylum seekers to Zimbabwe until the current country guidance litigation is resolved, and that remains the case.

Asylum: Zimbabwe

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum seekers have been returned to Zimbabwe (a) voluntarily and (b) compulsorily during the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [201011]

Mr. Byrne: The latest published information showing removals of asylum seekers by destination can be found in Table 11.2 of the Asylum Statistics: United Kingdom 2006 bulletin.

We undertook to the High Court on 26 September 2006 that we would not enforce the return of asylum seekers to Zimbabwe until the current country guidance litigation is finally resolved, and that remains the case.

Copies of the aforementioned publication are available from the Library of the House and on the Home Office's Research Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gove.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Border and Immigration Agency

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for indefinite leave to remain have been lost by the Border and Immigration Agency's (a) Security Casework Unit, (b) War Crimes Unit, (c) Criminal Casework Directorate and (d) other casework units in each year since 1997. [198992]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not available. It is not possible for the UK Border Agency to be aware of an application until it has been received and logged using the case information database. The onus is on the applicant to ensure that the agency receives their application. In the event that evidence has been provided that such an application has been received, the date of receipt will be taken into account when considering whether such an application has been made prior to the expiry of any other granted period of leave that the individual has held.

Border and Immigration Agency: Complaints

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints were made to the Border and Immigration Agency in each year since establishment, broken down by the nature of complaint; and if she will make a statement. [199959]

Mr. Byrne: Data can be provided from 2000 for service delivery complaints and 2001 for misconduct complaints.

The number of complaints received from members of the public through the Border and Immigration Agency's central complaints unit (the customer focus team), broken down by category and year are as follows:

Misconduct complaints (relating to staff behaviour)

	Number
1 January 2001 to 31 March 2002	530

1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004	11,788
1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005	13,008

Case Resolution Directorate: Expenditure

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has spent to date on the Case Resolution Directorate, broken down by (a) wages and salaries, (b) IT costs, (c) administration costs, (d) legal fees, (e) consultant fees and (f) other costs; and if she will make a statement. [200112]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1456W. There are no "other costs" to those listed.

Community Policing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government has taken to improve links between the police and community. [199835]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 21 April 2008]: On 31 March 2008 the Government announced that their commitment that there would be a Neighbourhood Policing Team in every area by 2008 has been met. For the first time ever, every household across England and Wales has access to a visible and dedicated police team to help solve local problems. Announced on the same day, the 'Name in Every Neighbourhood' campaign aims to raise awareness and understanding of neighbourhood policing among the public and ensure they know how to find the contact details of their local team and know how to engage with them.

Neighbourhood policing teams focus on engaging with their local community and provide high visibility, reassurance policing in order to deal with the issues that matter most to the local community. Partnership working is a key element of neighbourhood policing and locally identified issues will be addressed by neighbourhood policing teams in partnership with other community safety partners.

The Government have committed to making consistent, monthly, local information on crime available throughout the country. This will include data on crime and community safety issues, such as information about what local agencies are doing to tackle their community safety priorities.

The Home Office is working with ACPO, APA and other stakeholders to identify how best this can be achieved.

Community Policing: Publicity

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on (a) newspaper advertising and (b) other forms of advertising for the launch of the Neighbourhood Policing programme. [200385]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office spent £440,000 on newspaper advertising and £450,000 on radio advertising.

Community Support Officers: Greater London

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of (a) police community support officers and (b) police officers are in each ethnic category in each London borough. [195604]

Mr. McNulty: The ethnicity of police service personnel is not collected at the borough level, and is only available at the force level.

The available data are given in the following tables.

Proportion of police officers[1] in London by ethnicity as at 31 March 2007

	Metropolitan police	Percentage City of London police
White	91.9	94.9

Crime Prevention: Internet

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the website www.crimereduction.gov.uk in each month since its inception; what the budget for the website is for 2008-09; how many staff are employed to maintain the website; and how many unique visitors there were to the website in each month since its inception. [200382]

Mr. Byrne: It is not possible to extract the costs of this website from the others we manage.

Crime: Statistics

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1251W, on crime: statistics, whether a perceived lack of response on previous occasions has been adduced as a reason for not reporting crime. [200474]

Mr. Coaker: The British crime survey (BCS) does collect information on reasons why victims had not reported crimes to the police. However, the BCS does not collect information specifically on whether crimes had not been reported to the police due to lack of response on previous occasions. These cases would be included in the broader category of people who had not reported crimes to the police due to previous bad experience with the police or the courts/dislike or fear of the police.

Information on reasons given for not reporting crimes to the police based on the latest figures (2006-07 BCS) is included in the following table, which is published in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 11/07 Crime in England and Wales 2006/07, table 2.11 at:

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person were recorded in (a) Eddisbury, (b) Crewe and Nantwich, (c) City of Chester, (d) Wallasey and (e) Weaver Vale constituencies in each of the last three years. [202325]

Copies of both the statistics table and the look-up table are available in the Library.

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes involving violence against a person were recorded in (a) North East Hampshire, (b) East Hampshire, (c) Winchester and (d) Romsey constituencies in each of the last five years. [202377]

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person were recorded in Mid Worcestershire constituency in each of the last five years. [201292]

Mr. Coaker: Statistics are not collected specifically on a constituency basis. The Home Office does publish statistics at crime and disorder reduction partnership (CDRP) area level. The number of offences of violence against the person for each of the last five years by CDRP is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrpog.xls

Also available is a look-up table that identifies which constituencies are associated with CDRPs. In many instances, a CDRP may comprise of more than one constituency. Conversely, some constituencies will come within two or more CDRPs, either wholly or partially. The look-up table is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrp-constituency-table.xls

Copies of both the statistics table and the look-up table are available in the Library.

Departmental Accountancy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 25 February 2008, Official Report, column 1252W, on departmental accountancy, what general rate of inflation is taken into account by her Department in uprating fees for its services. [195919]

Mr. Byrne: Fees for Home Office services are adjusted based on modelling of the future costs of provision. This is based on a range of factors which could include demand projections, the contracts involved, Government pay policy, efficiency plans and the general rate of inflation.

Therefore adjustments to fees will not directly track any particular measure of inflation.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will include the name of the relevant constituent on her Department's cards acknowledgement of correspondence from hon. Members about constituents to facilitate access to previous correspondence. [201645]

Departmental Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of overnight accommodation for (a) civil servants, (b) special advisers and (c) Ministers in her Department staying overnight in (i) mainland Great Britain, (ii) Northern Ireland, (iii) the Republic of Ireland and (iv) other countries in the last 12 months. [193532]

Mr. Byrne: Expenditure figures for the Home Office on overnight accommodation by civil servants and all Ministers for the financial year 2006-07 (the last 12 months for which audited figures are available) was £8.28 million.

These figures apply to the period prior to the machinery of government changes when the Department employed approximately 78,000 staff. They include information for the core Home Office, the Border and Immigration Agency, the Office for Criminal Justice Reform and the National Offender Management Service (the latter two are now part of the Ministry of Justice). The Home Office currently employs approximately 25,000 staff.

The requested staff and regional splits could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

When travelling on departmental business, officials are expected to make efficient and cost-effective accommodation arrangements.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for which losses her Department was granted Treasury approval in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [200495]

Mr. Byrne: All losses incurred by the Home Office during the last five years have been managed by the Department within the scope of authorities delegated by the Treasury. Current thresholds for losses agreed with the Treasury are:

	Loss (£)
Write-offs	25,000,000
Bad debts	10,000,000
Fraud/theft	50,000
Abandoned/waived claims	50,000
Penalties under the Immigration Act 1987	50,000

The overall level of losses incurred by the Home Office in any one year is reported in its Resource Accounts.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many written parliamentary questions her Department took longer than 10 days to answer in each of the last three years. [200502]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is set out in the following table.

Session	Total number of written parliamentary questions received	Total number of written parliamentary questions that took longer than 10 days to answer	Proportion of written parliamentary questions that took longer than 10 days to answer (Percentage)
2006-07	5,964	1,370	23

[1] Data based on questions answered up to 22 April 2008.

Discrimination

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claims for discrimination, based on (a) sex, (b) race and (c) sexual orientation, were brought by members of her Department and settled (i) in and (ii) out of court in each of the last five years. [194982]

Mr. Byrne: Information on employment tribunals is only available for part of the period requested.

Records held centrally within Home Office headquarters, the Border and Immigration Agency, the Identity and Passport Service and the Criminal Records Bureau show that the number of settled employment tribunal claims brought under each category is as follows:

Type of case	2005[1]	2006[2]	2007[3]	Total
Discrimination: Sex	0	3	6	9

[1] 2005 information includes Home Office HQ and the Criminal Records Bureau.
[2] 2006 information includes Home Office HQ, the Border and Immigration Agency and the Criminal Records Bureau.
[3] 2007 information includes Home Office HQ, the Border and Immigration Agency, the Identity and Passport Service and the Criminal Records Bureau.

Six of the claims brought in 2007 were settled out of court as follows:

Claims settled out of court	2007
Discrimination: Sex	4
Discrimination: Sexual Orientation	1

Information on the settlement of the other seven cases is not held centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Entry Clearances: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to facilitate attendance of overseas visitors to the 2012 Olympic Games through the visa system. [198820]

Mr. Byrne: We intend to facilitate attendance of overseas visitors to the 2012 Olympic Games. For those overseas nationals that require a visa to enter the UK, the UK Border Agency is considering whether value would be added by developing a major events visa—including to promote the 2012 Cultural Olympiad; the Olympic Games; and the Paralympic Games. This was included in recent consultation on visitor visas and we will discuss proposals further with appropriate stakeholders.

Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the number of foreign nationals on student visas who worked more than the permitted 20 hours during term time in the last 12 months. [199858]

Mr. Byrne: There is no estimate of the number of foreign nationals on student visas who worked more than the permitted 20 hours during term time in the last 12 months.

Refusals of applications for variations of leave on this basis are not recorded separately to refusals for other reasons and therefore cannot be identified, except at a disproportionate cost.

Genetics: Databases

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether any checks on the Dutch disk containing DNA samples of criminals remain to be completed; [196812]

(2) how many matches have been found between the Dutch disk containing the DNA samples of suspected criminals and (a) the national DNA database and (b) other records or databases checked; how many people whose profiles have been matched have been convicted of a criminal offence since January 2007; and what those offences were. [196813]

Jacqui Smith: As part of an initiative to exchange data between the UK and Holland, 2,159 DNA profiles from crime scenes in Holland were searched against the UK National DNA Database. The operational police response to the DNA crime scene data supplied by the Dutch is being led by a group chaired by the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) on which the Serious Organised Crime Agency, the National Policing Improvement Agency, the National DNA Database (NDNAD) Custodian, the Crown Prosecution Service and the Home Office are represented.

This remains a continuing police operation in liaison with the Dutch authorities.

I am continuing to liaise with ACPO to be clear when a formal report to Parliament would be appropriate.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimate she has made of the number of adventitious matches expected to arise between crime scene DNA profiles submitted by law enforcement agencies elsewhere in the European Union and individuals' DNA profiles held on the national DNA databases in each of the next five years; [197981]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of adventitious matches expected to arise between crime scene DNA profiles submitted by UK police and individuals' DNA profiles held on the national DNA database in each of the next five years. [197982]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 31 March 2008]: When the UK National DNA Database (NDNAD) was set up in 1995, the SGM profiling system was used. This looked at six areas of DNA, plus a gender marker. The probability of an adventitious (chance) match between full SGM DNA profiles of unrelated individuals is of the order of one in 50 million. As the NDNAD grew in size, instances did come to light where different individuals were found to have the same SGM profile, hence the decision to change to SGM Plus in 1999.

The quoted probability of a match between full SGM Plus DNA profiles of unrelated individuals is one in one billion (i.e. one in a thousand million).

The NDNAD Custodian carefully monitors replicate DMA profiles loaded to the Database, and a key reason for doing this is to identify potential adventitious matches between SGM Plus DMA profiles derived from unrelated individuals. To date, no such adventitious match has been found. This indicates the SGM Plus match probability to be significantly lower than the figure quoted—it is probably better than one in one trillion (i.e. one in a million million).

Safeguards against possible miscarriages of justice arising from adventitious matches operate at two levels—firstly, further investigation of matches using the SGM Plus technique, and secondly, the fact that if a person is to be charged on the basis of a DNA match, the CPS require that there must be supporting non-DNA evidence available to be used in evidence. DNA evidence is one piece of the information that the courts would require for a successful prosecution.

Other EU states use different profiling systems and do not publish information on the likelihood of adventitious matches using these systems. However, the level of overlap between SGM Plus DNA profiles and those developed by other systems is that the discriminating power will typically be of the same order as the SGM (rather than the SGM Plus) level. It is thus extremely important that all possible opportunities are taken to improve the discriminating power associated with a match, for example by re-analysis of the sample to upgrade the profile before any other information on the identity of a suspect nominated by a DNA match is disclosed to an overseas police authority.

Heathrow Airport: Security

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she held with BAA in advance of the introduction of universal fingerprinting at Heathrow Terminal 5; and if she will make a statement. [198630]

Jacqui Smith: In the building of Terminal 5 at Heathrow, the British Airports Authority (BAA) took the decision to introduce a common departure lounge (CDL). BAA were required to ensure that any immigration risks arising from the mixing of domestic and international passengers were mitigated and a working group, which includes BAA, British Airways (BA), the Border and Immigration Agency (BIA) and other control agencies, has worked together since 2005 to consider appropriate mitigation measures. BAA presented a number of systems which they believed were capable of mitigating the risks to Border Security and following a number of trials, fingerprinting together with digital facial recognition comparison were identified as the most effective solution. However, to ensure that the proposed system is fully validated by the Information Commissioner, it has been agreed that the system will operate using only digital photography until such validation is given.

HM Inspectorate of Constabulary: Public Appointments

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times the contract of the Chief Inspector of Constabulary has been extended without a competitive process since the inception of the post. [199393]

Mr. McNulty: The contracts of two HM Chief Inspectors of Constabulary (HMCIC) have been extended since 1962, when the first HMCIC was appointed. These appointments were made in accordance with the principles of the Commissioner for Public Appointments' code of practice.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of service of Chief Inspectors of Constabulary has been since the inception of the post. [199394]

Mr. McNulty: The average (mean) length of service for HM Chief Inspectors of Constabulary (excluding the current HM Chief Inspector of Constabulary) since the first appointment in 1962 is two years and eight months.

Identity Cards: Foreigners

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what characteristics distinguish the identity cards to be issued to foreign nationals from the visas that are currently issued to them. [201235]

Mr. Byrne: The identity card for foreign nationals will be a highly secure polycarbonate card which will contain the holder's biometric identifiers in a tamperproof embedded chip including a photograph and two fingerprints. The visas issued contain photographs but unlike the cards do not store the fingerprints that are enrolled when an application is made outside the UK. The biometric data collected as part of the visa application process are checked against immigration records in the UK.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which categories of foreign nationals require visas; which categories will be issued with identity cards in future and from what date; and which categories will be required to obtain the relevant documentation (a) before and (b) after entry to the UK. [201236]

Mr. Byrne: The categories of foreign nationals requiring visas can be found on the following website: www.ukvisas.gov.uk along with the documentation required to support applications for entry clearance to the UK. Non-visa nationals from outside the EEA will normally only require entry clearance if visiting the UK for longer than six months. The rollout strategy document Introducing Compulsory Identity Cards for Foreign Nationals' published on 6 March (a copy is available in the House Library) sets out the approach to issuing identity cards for foreign nationals. We will phase in the introduction of the card, starting with those applying for leave to remain as students. Within three years all new applicants will have to apply for an identity card alongside their immigration application.

Illegal Immigrants: Employment

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department's advertising campaign concerning the employment of illegal labour cost. [199430]

Mr. Byrne: The total cost for running the Illegal Working Campaign was £913,608. The campaign was run in two phases, the first phase ran in October/November 2007 the second in January/February 2008. The campaign comprised radio and press adverts in trade, national and regional publications.

Immigration

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) illegal immigrants and (b) failed asylum seekers detained by the police have been sent unaccompanied to immigration detention or removal centres in each of the last five years. [199010]

Mr. Byrne: Illegal immigrants and failed asylum seekers detained by the police are not sent unaccompanied to immigration detention or removal centres.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the proportion of immigrants who will be affected by the introduction of the proposed points-based system. [199161]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The Office for National Statistics produces total international migration (TIM) estimates of the number of people legally entering and leaving the country each year. The TIM calculations are based largely from data from the International Passenger Survey (IPS) which gives both the reasons for entry to the UK and the citizenship of those arriving.

Once fully established, the points based system will cover non-EU work-related migrants, students and their dependants. We estimate this will cover close to six in 10 of the non-British inflow.

Immigration Controls: Airports

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what process is used to admit UK service personnel who are nationals of Commonwealth countries through UK airport immigration; and what representations she has received on difficulties experienced by those personnel. [201360]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The Immigration Act 1971 exempts from immigration control a member of the United Kingdom's armed forces subject to service law. A person is regarded as exempt from control (except for the provisions relating to deportation) so long as he or she is a member of those forces.

Members of the United Kingdom's armed forces are required to produce to an immigration officer documentary evidence of their exemption from control. They may hold a national passport which has already been endorsed with an exemption from control stamp or, alternatively, they may hold a personal identity card issued by the military authority to which they belong. Both are normally sufficient to demonstrate their entitlement to be treated as exempt.

Data relating to representations made by HM forces personnel about difficulties experienced by them when passing through the immigration control are not collated and are therefore unavailable.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will introduce an expedited immigration service for UK service personnel who are nationals of Commonwealth countries entering the UK at airports. [201361]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The Immigration Act 1971 exempts from immigration control a member of the United Kingdom's armed forces subject to service law. A person is regarded as exempt from control (except for the provisions relating to deportation) so long as he or she is a member of those forces.

Members of the United Kingdom's armed forces are required to produce to an Immigration Officer documentary evidence of their exemption from control. They may hold a national passport which has already been endorsed with an exemption from control stamp or, alternatively, they may hold a personal identity card issued by the military authority to which they belong. Both are normally sufficient to demonstrate their entitlement to be treated as exempt.

Given their exempt status and the need to provide evidence of that status to an Immigration Officer, there are no plans to alter the processes in place for members of the United Kingdom's armed forces who arrive at airports in the United Kingdom.

Immigration Controls: Tuberculosis

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to prevent the entry to the UK of those with (a) tuberculosis and (b) extreme drug resistant tuberculosis. [200679]

Mr. Byrne: Those seeking leave to enter the UK for more than six months, who are subject to immigration control and who come from countries with a high prevalence of tuberculosis of all types (over 40 cases of TB per 100,000 population) as well as or those who claim asylum at port are routinely referred to the port medical inspector (PMI) for medical examination, which includes TB screening. In addition, immigration officers are required to refer for medical examination anyone who appears ill, or who mentions health or illness as a reason for coming to the UK.

In addition visa applicants from countries with a particularly high prevalence of TB are required to undergo TB screening before seeking a visa. Anyone found to have active infectious TB must complete a course of treatment in their home country before being granted entry clearance. The countries specified include Bangladesh, Kenya (which also covers Eritrean and Somali nationals who travel there to apply for visas), Ghana (which also takes applications from Burkina Faso, Cote d'Ivoire, Togo and Niger) and Pakistan, Sudan, Tanzania and Thailand (which also processes visa applications for residents of Cambodia and Laos).

Decisions on any further development of the programme will be taken in the light of an evaluation of the scheme which is expected to take place later this year.

Immigration Officers: Powers

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the offences are for which an immigration officer can (a) detain and (b) arrest an individual at a UK port. [199145]

Jacqui Smith: There are 50 offences for which an immigration officer may arrest and detain an individual at a United Kingdom port. A full list of offences is contained in Annex A.

Under section 2 of the UK Borders Act 2007 a designated immigration officer at a port in England, Wales or Northern Ireland may also detain (for a maximum of three hours) any individual who the officer thinks is subject to a warrant for arrest or may be liable to arrest by a constable for any offence, pending arrival of a constable.

Those data are the form of working hours lost to sickness and are published on the Home Office website. Data for and prior to 2003-04, are not on the same basis as those available for 2004-05 onwards. Those earlier data are the form of working days lost.

Immigration: EC Action

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the outcomes for the UK of the European Return Preparatory Actions 2005-06; and if she will make a statement. [196309]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 25 March 2008]: In 2005 the European Community funded a total of 16 projects under the RETURN 2005 programme. The UK was partner in four of these projects working with 12 other member states and one non-governmental organisation.

In 2006 the European Community funded a total of 20 projects under the RETURN 2006 programme. The UK was partner in five of these projects working with seven other member states and two non-governmental organisations.

The projects we have participated in have not yet been fully evaluated, however we have mostly supported assisted voluntary return which we consider very important in the UK. Reintegration assistance helps break the cycle of migration; meaning return is more sustainable for individuals and families, and contributes indirectly to communities in the country of origin. We have also gained expertise from working with other countries on these projects.

Immigration: Interpreters

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what scale of fees was payable to interpreters by (a) the Immigration Service and (b) each other police force in respect of (i) illegal entry and (ii) criminal matters in each of the last five years; how much was paid for such services in each such year in each category; and what expenses are payable. [198519]

Mr. McNulty: The following tables set out the scale of fees payable to and amounts paid for interpreters in respect of the Immigration Service and the Metropolitan police. Immigration: Iraq

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Iraqi nationals living in (a) Jordan, (b) Syria and (c) Iran who have worked under contract with British forces under Operation Telic have (i) applied for and (ii) been granted (A) asylum and (B) residency in the UK since March 2003; and what criteria are used in deciding on such applications. [196188]

Mr. Byrne: The figures requested are not collated and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Immigration: Local Authorities

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 611W, on immigration: local authorities, how much is available under the transitional costs fund in 2008-09; how many local authorities have submitted claims to the fund; what the value of the claims submitted have been; which local authorities have made claims; what the value of the claim was in each case; and how much had been disbursed to local authorities at the most recent date for which figures are available. [201158]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The financial support available will depend on the claims made by local authorities.

At the present time no payments have been made to any local authority. Support will be made available to individual authorities for a maximum of six months after they have begun to incur qualifying expenditure. Lin Homer will update the Home Affairs Select Committee in the summer.

Internet: Crime

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of cybercrime to the economy in 2007-08. [198638]

Jacqui Smith: There is no central estimate of the cost of cybercrime to the economy in 2007-08.

JP Morgan

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department paid to JP Morgan in each year since 1997; and what the purpose of the payment was in each case. [199592]

Mr. Byrne: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999; since that date, no payments have been made to this company.

Lorries: Foreign Companies

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the adequacy of police resources for ensuring that operators and drivers of non-UK lorries comply with regulations relating to the haulage industry; and if she will make a statement. [199153]

Mr. Byrne: The deployment of resources to enforce compliance with regulations relating to commercial vehicles, irrespective of whether there operating base is in the UK or elsewhere, is an operational matter for individual chief officers of police.

In addition to the enforcement carried out by the police on commercial vehicles, the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) has a specific responsibility to help ensure that all commercial vehicles and drivers travelling on our roads comply with the law. Additional funding has been made available to VOSA to enable them to increase significantly the number of checks they make on vehicles engaged in international journeys.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the Minister of State for Borders and Immigration, the hon. Member for Birmingham Hodge Hill, to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Wycombe of 28 February 2008 on visas. [199342]

Mr. Byrne: The UK Border Agency (International Group) replied on behalf of the Minister on 8 April 2008.

Migration

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with G6 member states on the European Pact on Migration; and if she will make a statement. [196958]

Jacqui Smith: Home Office Ministers have had discussions on migration in a variety of fora following the G6 Conclusions on a European Pact on Managing Migration in October 2007.

We will continue to hold discussions with G6 and other member states as part of our joint work to strengthen borders, reduce asylum shopping and combat illegal migration.

Missing Persons

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what support is available to relatives or friends of missing persons; and if she will make a statement. [199014]

Mr. McNulty: Help and support is available for the families and friends of missing people from family liaison officers of the investigating police force, the voluntary sector and the National Policing Improvement Agency's (NPIA) Missing Persons Bureau (MPB).

The MPB was launched on 1 April 2008 and works closely with the charity Missing People. Missing People, and a number of other similar charities, work with young runaways, missing and unidentified people, their families, friends and others who are, or have been, affected by the issue of missing people.

Missing People is part funded by the Government (approximately £700,000 this year). This service includes support, advice, guidance and practical help to the families of those who have gone missing through:

a dedicated national 24-hour support helpline for families and friends of missing people;

case publicity via poster campaigns, internet appeals, a network of national media partners and features; a national 24-hour confidential sightings service;

Runaway Helpline—a 24-hour confidential helpline for runaways, offering help and advice to young people who have run away from home or care, or who have been forced to leave;

Message Home—a 24-hour free confidential telephone service that offers help, advice and support to adults who are missing.

Identification—a specialist service offered by Missing People to support police, coroners, hospitals and social services to resolve cases of unidentified people (alive or dead).

Support is also available for families of abducted children from other charities including Reunite. Reunite provide advice, information and support to parents/guardians and family members, who have had a child abducted or who fear child abduction. Reunite also provide advice to parents who may have abducted their child as well as advising on international contact issues.

The MPB acts as the centre for the exchange of information connected with the search for missing people nationally and internationally. This includes the co-ordination between police forces, relevant agencies, charities and other organisations working in the field of missing people. The Bureau already works closely with Government Departments, including the Home Office and the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Morgan Stanley

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department paid to Morgan Stanley in each year since 1997; and what the purpose of each such payment was. [199682]

National Refugee Integration Forum

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason the National Refugee Integration Forum was dissolved; and if she will make a statement. [201001]

Mr. Byrne: The National Refugee Integration Forum was wound up in October 2006 as part of a wider programme of changes to stakeholder engagement within immigration which were announced in the Immigration and Nationality Directorate reform plan published earlier that year.

Offenders: Deportation

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much (a) was spent on the facilitated returns scheme in 2006-07 and (b) has been spent in 2007-08. [193231]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 14 March 2008]: The Facilitated Returns Scheme has been operating since October 2006. Between 1 November 2006 and 31 October 2007 around £350,000 has been spent on the scheme, including administrative costs.

Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 807W, on official residences, on what date the property was valued at £2.4 million. [199510]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 807W, on official residences, if she will provide a breakdown of the £4,500 incurred in costs. [199511]

Mr. Byrne: The breakdown is £3,000 for utilities and the balance for council tax. For completeness the annual rent for the property continued to be paid during this period, this amounted to £7,100 per year.

Police Stations

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what information she holds on the number of police stations per 1,000 people in (a) non-rural and (b) rural areas in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement; [199575]

(2) what information she holds on the number of police stations in each police force area in each year since 1997. [199576]

Mr. McNulty: The Department does not hold the information requested centrally, and this could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Police Stations: Greater London

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which police stations in the Metropolitan Police force area are planned to be closed; [199332]

(2) which police stations in the Metropolitan Police force area are planning to open to the public for fewer hours per week than at present. [199333]

Mr. McNulty: The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and the chief officer, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Bureaucracy

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average time taken by a police officer in England to complete the administrative requirements relating to an arrest, timed from the moment of arrest. [198452]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available. The number of forms and documents needed to be completed by a police officer is dependent on the circumstances of the arrest and the complexity of each individual case.

Sir Ronnie Flanagan's Review of Policing, published in February this year, addressed the issue of police-related bureaucracy. The review made a number of recommendations on this subject, including a review of police operational codes of practice, the expansion of mobile data, a more in-depth analysis of risk (and how this in turn may impact on bureaucratic tendencies in the service), and the further streamlining of criminal justice processes. My right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary, has endorsed Sir Ronnie's report and expects his recommendations to form the next drive against unnecessary bureaucracy in the police service.

Police: Finance

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effect of crime reduction on the police funding formula in each of the last 10 years. [199328]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 763W.

Police: Internet

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much her Department has spent on the website www.policecouldyou.co.uk in each month since its inception; what the budget for the website is for 2008-09; how many staff are employed to maintain the website; and how many unique visitors there were to the website in each month since its inception; [200379]

(2) how much was spent on the website www.police.homeoffice.gov.uk in each month since its inception; what the budget for the website is for 2008-09; how many staff are employed to maintain the website; and how many unique visitors there were to the website in each month since its inception. [200381]

Mr. Byrne: It is not possible to extract the costs of this website from the others we manage.

Police: Public Places

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the Association of Chief Police Officers on improving the visibility of the police in public places. [198574]

Mr. McNulty: As the Home Office, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and the Association of Police Authorities (APA) have announced, from 1 April 2008 every area in England and Wales has a dedicated neighbourhood policing team providing an accessible and visible police presence in local communities.

This marks a new era in policing where neighbourhood policing teams work with communities to agree local priorities for action, such as anti-social behaviour, and solve local problems. Teams will be contactable by phone, through community meetings or by accessing their details through a new website.

The Home Office has worked closely with ACPO and the wider police service, and partners, to deliver neighbourhood policing, and will continue to do so in order to embed this style of policing into everyday policing activity.

Police: Recruitment

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many job applications were received by each police force in each year since 1997; and how many people each recruited in each year; [198578]

(2) how many (a) applications to join and (b) recruits there were for each police force in each year since 1997. [195615]

Mr. McNulty: The information is as follows:

(a) The requested data on applications have been collected since 2002-03 and where available are given in Table 1. The data provided here are management information and as such it is important to note that they are provisional and have not been subjected to the usual quality assurance practices.

(b) The requested data on recruits have been collected since 2002-03 and are given in Table 2.

[1] Provisional management information data collected for planning purposes only. Data has not undergone usual quality assurance practices (including validation with individual police forces) and are therefore supplied for information purposes only.
[2] Does not include informal expressions of interest. Some forces no longer send out and receive paper application packs and instead receive electronic applications via the www.policecouldyou.co.uk website. Where forces receive application packs from other means it is not always possible to separately identify the number of paper application packs received, and in such cases forces have been instructed to return a zero response.
n/a = not available. Force was not able to supply data at the time of collection.

Police: Rural Areas

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received on the practice of requiring parish councils to pay for police patrols in rural areas. [199719]

Mr. McNulty: Parish councils and others write to me from time to time about a variety of funding issues but I have placed no requirement on them to pay for police patrols.

Police authorities set their own budgets, drawing on local revenues in addition to Government grant. They may seek further funding from the partners with whom they work, including parish councils, as evidence of their commitment to the partnership approach which is an essential element in the successful implementation of neighbourhood policing.

Police: Stun Guns

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures govern the use of Taser-style electric shock weapons by police; and what training police officers are required to receive before using such weapons. [196422]

Mr. Coaker: Following a trial in five forces in 2003, the Home Secretary agreed to allow Chief Officers of all forces in England and Wales to make the laser available to authorised firearms officers as a less lethal alternative for use in situations where a firearms authority has been granted in accordance with criteria laid down in the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) Manual of Guidance on Police Use of Firearms.

Following a request by ACPO my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary agreed in July 2007 that laser may be deployed by an authorised firearms officer beyond situations in which a firearms authority would be granted. In these cases, officers would be facing violence or threats of violence of such severity that they would need to use force to protect the public, themselves and/or the subjects.

My right hon. Friend also agreed to a 12 month trial, from 1 September 2007, in 10 selected forces of use of laser in similar circumstances by specially trained units who are not authorised firearms officers.

Full policy and operational guidance documents on the use of laser has been issued by ACPO, and there is a rigorous selection procedure for officers which is fully set out in the ACPO guidance. Laser is only issued to specially trained officers who have successfully completed approved ACPO sponsored training in the use of the device. All officers will be required to successfully complete annual refresher training.

Ports: Arrests

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) detained and (b) arrested at UK ports in the last five years. [199143]

Jacqui Smith: Information pertaining to the number of people detained at UK ports is not fully available due to a change in our data collation systems in 2003. Figures relating to 2003 do not therefore reflect the full year.

Information relating to persons detained at ports falls into two areas: Those who do not immediately satisfy the Immigration Officer of their eligibility to enter, or who are subject to further examination, and those who are further detained pending the outcome of their application or following refusal of leave to enter.

In the interests of completeness, figures have been provided in relation to persons detained in order to be subjected to further examination.

Totals of persons initially detained (at the arrivals control) are as follows:

	Number
2003	62,088
2004	61,113
2005	48,110
2006	49,392

The data provided above have been compiled from locally held management information and as such do not represent national statistics. They may therefore be subject to change.

Figures relating to arrests at UK ports are available only from April 2006, as these were not previously recorded centrally. Figures for March 2003-06 relate only to Heathrow and Gatwick, and all figures relate only to arrests by Immigration Crime Teams as follows:

	Heathrow	Gatwick	Number Total
April 2003 to march 2004	206	160	366
April 2004 to March 2005	410	196	606
April 2005 to March 2006	725	338	1,163
April 2006 to March 20057	—	—	1,321
April 2007 to February 2008	—	—	957

Numbers of persons arrested by HM Revenue and Customs are available only from April 2005 until March 2007, and are as follows:

	Number
April 2005 to March 2006	2,152
April 2006 to March 2006	2,222

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sentence-expired foreign prisoners are held in detention under immigration powers; and how many have been held in such detention in each year since 1997. [193823]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 13 March 2008]: The Chief Executive of the UK Border Agency advised the Home Affairs Committee in her letter of 20 November that there were 1,500 foreign national prisoners that were detained under immigration powers. She will continue to update the Committee with the most robust and accurate information available as requested. She has also explained in her letters to the Committee that information prior to April 2006 is not available due to the quality of management information that is held. Copies of these letters are available in the Library of the House.

South Yorkshire Police: Accidents

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many South Yorkshire police vehicles have been involved in an accident while attending an emergency call in each of the last five years. [199442]

Mr. McNulty: The data provided here are a supplementary series collected on behalf and released with the approval of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC). These data are normally used for inspection purposes only.

The available data on road traffic collisions on public roads during immediate/emergency response and police pursuit have been collected centrally from 2002-03 and are provided in the following table.

Road traffic collisions during immediate/emergency response and police pursuit for South Yorkshire, from 2002-03 to 2006-07

	Number

Terrorism Act 2000

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) charged and (b) convicted of offences under the Terrorism Act 2000 since it came into force. [198629]

Jacqui Smith: The Terrorism Act (TACT) 2000 came into force on 19 February 2001. Statistics compiled from police records are available on the Home Office website from 11 September 2001 to 31 March 2007.

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/?view=Standard

For this period, there were a total of 1,228 arrests; of which 1,165 arrests were made under the Terrorism Act 2000 and 63 arrests under other legislation, where the investigation was conducted as a Terrorist investigation. Of the total 1,228 arrested, 132 were charged with terrorism legislation offences only; 109 were charged with terrorism legislation offences and other criminal offences and 195 charged under other legislation, including murder, grievous bodily harm, firearms, explosives offences, fraud, and false documents.

Of those charged, there were 41 Terrorism Act 2000 convictions and 183 convictions under other legislation, including murder, explosives offences (including conspiracies), grievous bodily harm, firearms offences, fraud, false documents offences, and other offences (including 12 cautions). Figures are subject to change as cases go through the system. The Home Office is currently working with the police to review how terrorism statistics are collated.

In addition to the above, statistics on the number of convictions in significant terrorist cases are available for 2007 and 2008. In 2007, 37 individuals were convicted in 15 significant terrorist cases. So far in 2008, 21 people have been convicted in seven significant terrorist cases. There are a range of powers available under other non-TACT legislation, to arrest and charge individuals in connection with terrorist or terrorist related activity. Charges and convictions can and are brought under the most-appropriate legislation.

Terrorism: Crime Prevention

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times she has met home affairs front-bench spokespersons from other political parties to discuss her counter-terrorism proposals since 1st July 2007. [199429]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has met the Conservative Shadow Home Secretary and the Liberal Democrat Home Affairs spokesperson three times to discuss counter-terrorism proposals since 1 July 2007.

Translation Costs

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 785W, on translation costs, how much was spent on translating Home Office publications into languages other than English in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2006-07 and (d) in 2007-08 to date. [188082]

Mr. McNulty: It is not possible to provide this information on the basis of disproportionate cost.

UK Border Agency: Wales

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff of the new UK Border Agency will be based in (a) Pembroke Dock, (b) Fishguard, (c) Swansea, (d) Holyhead and (e) Wales. [200212]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The number of staff employed by the former Borders and Immigration Agency was 18,154 at the end of March 2008. This number is the actual active staff at 31 March 2008 and replaces earlier projected figures. Of this 176 were geographically located in Wales.

On 1 April 2008 the UK Border Agency was created and 2,303 staff transferred from UK Visas. More than 4,000 further staff are expected to join UKBA from HM Revenue and Customs and the final staff total is expected to be around 25,000 but figures are not yet finalised.

Video Conferencing

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will set a target to increase the use of video conferencing by her Department's officials as an alternative to staff travelling to meetings. [200483]

Mr. Byrne: There are no plans to introduce such a target, however it is now standard practice to put in at least one set of video conferencing (VC) equipment in Home Office properties.

Work Permits

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the number of illegal migrants employed in the UK without a valid work permit. [199167]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Since the phasing out of border controls in 1994, no Government have ever been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally and that includes illegal workers. By its very nature it is impossible to quantify accurately and that remains the case.

As one of the Government's 10 substantive changes to the border and immigration system in 2008 we will count in and out the majority of foreign nationals. This will build on the successes of our early testing of the e-Borders programme (Project Semaphore) which already covers over 30 million passenger movements and has led to 18,000 alerts and more than 1,500 arrests.

This is part of a large-scale programme of reform to border protection which also includes the global roll-out of fingerprint visas, compulsory watch-list checks for all travellers from high-risk countries before they land in Britain and ID cards for foreign nationals.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many employers in the residential and care home industries were (a) prosecuted and (b) fined for employing workers without valid work permits in each of the last three years; [199163]

(2) how many agricultural employers were (a) prosecuted and (b) fined for employing workers without valid work permits in each of the last three years; [199164]

(3) how many people were (a) arrested for, (b) prosecuted for and (c) convicted of working illegally in the UK without a valid work permit in each of the last three years; [199165]

(4) how much was collected in fines from employers of workers without valid work permits in each of the last three years; [199166]

Mr. Byrne: There are no centrally collated reports on how many employers have been prosecuted specifically within the residential care home and agricultural industries.

The Home Office publishes statistics on the number of persons proceeded against for offences under Immigration Acts 1971 to 2004 in England and Wales on an annual basis in table 6.7 of the Control of Immigration: Statistics Command Paper. Published statistics on immigration and asylum are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate web site at:

http://www/homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

No data are held centrally on the total amount of fines collected from employers prosecuted for employing those without a valid work permit.

Workers Registration Scheme: Greater London

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have registered on the Workers Registration Scheme in each London borough in each year since the scheme was introduced. [199301]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office only records the regional distribution of workers from A8 countries when they first registered to the Workers Registration Scheme. Data by local authority were published in February 2008 in concert with the Accession Monitoring Report (AMR) on the Local Government Analysis and Research (LGAR) website.

The table shows the last published available data by local authority for the number of workers when they first registered to the Worker Registration Scheme (WRS) in each London borough since the scheme was introduced.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

4. Because of rounding, figures may not add up to total shown.
5. The table presents a gross (cumulative) figure for the number of workers applying to the WRS. The figures are not current: an individual who has registered to work and who leaves employment is not required to de-register, so some of those counted will have left the employment for which they registered and indeed some are likely to have left the UK.

Workers Registration Scheme: Southwark

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people registered on the Workers Registration Scheme in the London Borough of Southwark since the scheme was introduced. [199302]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office only records the regional distribution of workers from A8 countries when they first registered to the Workers Registration Scheme. Data by local authority was published in February 2008 in concert with the Accession Monitoring Report (AMR) on the Local Government Analysis and Research (LGAR) website.

The table shows the last published available data for London borough of Southwark for the number of workers when they first registered to the Workers Registration Scheme (WRS) since the scheme was introduced.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Notes:
1. 98 per cent. of approved nationwide applications currently have an accurate postcode. Applications where postcodes could not be matched to the Office of National Statistics database are excluded from this data-set.
2. Figures based on employers address and the date the application is approved, rather than the date on the application form as used and published in the Accession Monitoring Report.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Astronomy: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much full economic costing funding the Science and Technology Facility Council's Grant Review Panel recommended to support sustainable research in the 2007 round of astronomy grants; and how much funding was provided. [200291]

Ian Pearson: STFC's Astronomy Grants Review Panel recommended the award of grants that included a full economic cost (FEC) element of £4.88 million. On receipt of this request the Science and Technology Facilities Council (STFC) allocated £4.88 million of full economic cost contribution towards the cost of new astronomy grant projects in the 2007 funding round.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the effects of recent changes in funding for Jodrell Bank on UK capacity in astronomy and physics (a) education and (b) research. [200622]

Ian Pearson: Jodrell Bank Observatory is owned and run by the University of Manchester. It is involved in a variety of radio astronomy activities including the e-Merlin project. E-Merlin is the development of a network of seven UK radio telescopes run by the Jodrell Bank Observatory and funded by the Science and Technology Facilities Council (STFC) in partnership with the North West Development Agency and the University of Manchester. The STFC has recently undertaken a review of all its existing programmes to make sure they are delivering, or will deliver, the anticipated science output, and that they continue to represent value for money. The initial results of this review have been subject to consultation with the relevant scientific communities, and STFC is currently considering the responses it has received. STFC has yet to take a decision on its future level of support for e-Merlin. However, STFC has made it clear that the e-Merlin project is part of its strategy for radio astronomy and that it is in discussion with its partners about the issues raised by the review.

Counselling: Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 4 March 2008, Official Report, column 2431W, on counselling: finance, if he will bring forward the review of exempted subjects from December 2008 to summer 2008. [201894]

Bill Rammell: No. We want to keep a close eye on how demand to study key subjects evolves over time, but this has to be evidence-based. As we have already informed Parliament, the first such review will take place starting in December 2008, in the light of entry data for the 2008-09 academic year. Since the review will look specifically at what happens as people enter higher education this autumn, we do not intend to bring the review forward from December.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201727]

Mr. Lammy: The Department have received a total of 27 requests since July 2007. Of these, 17 were responded to within 20 days and one within 40 days. The remaining nine requests are currently in progress. Of these nine cases, seven are new requests, one is at Internal Review stage and one is at Information Commissioner's stage. None of the cases in progress are currently overdue.

With regards to exemptions, seven cases were withheld in full or withheld in part. The following exemptions were cited:

Sec 36: 1

Higher Education: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make an estimate of the cost to the public purse of making the support available to part-time first degree undergraduates equivalent to that of full-time first degree undergraduates in respect of (a) grants, (b) student loans and (c) bursaries; and if he will make a statement. [196032]

Bill Rammell: There are around 200,000 part-time first degree undergraduates compared to around one million full-time. To estimate the cost to the public purse of giving part-time students the full-time package of support is complicated due to their diverse nature. We can give very broad estimates based on the assumptions we hold for full-time students and replicating the exact same package of support. This enables us to estimate grant costs in the region of £250 million and loan costs also in the region of £250 million per year. We are not able to estimate the cost to the public purse of bursaries as institutions determine the eligibility criteria and are responsible for payments.

These estimates assume that part-time students are identical to full-time students in every respect except they are part-time. They are highly dependent on uncertain factors such as household incomes on which student support is assessed, eligibility for and take-up of support, level of fees charged and earnings following completion of the course, all of which have been assumed the same as for full-time students. The support has not been pro-rated, but if part-time students take twice as long to complete their course compared to a full-time student the costs would be around a half.

This Government were the first to introduce statutory support for part-time students, in 2000-01. In 2006-07, we introduced the most generous package of financial support ever for part-time students in EnglanJ. This included increasing the maximum fee grant by 27 per cent. and an above-inflation increase in the income threshold for receiving this support. The part-time package is different from the support available to full-time students because it has been designed to meet the particular needs of part-time students. Unlike full-time students, many part-time students are in full-time employment —two thirds according to the Woodley report, published at the end of 2004. That report also found that 36 per cent. of part-time students receive full fee support from their employer.

We must ensure that statutory student support is carefully focussed to achieve maximum benefit.

Languages: Higher Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which English universities require a foreign language GCSE or equivalent qualification as a condition of admission for UK-domiciled undergraduates. [202005]

Bill Rammell: That information is not collected centrally by the Department. As independent bodies, higher education institutions are free to set their own entry requirements for individual courses. A large number of institutions are now providing Entry Profiles for their courses, to enable potential applicants to clarify the entry criteria for any courses that they may be interested in. It is important that HE institutions publicise the availability of Entry Profiles and that careers advisers take them into account when advising young people on their Options choices at age 13-14.

Learning and Skills Council: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much was spent on administering the Learning and Skills Council in the latest 12 months for which figures are available. [201123]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) spent £226.8 million on administration in financial year 2006-07; the latest 12 months for which figures are available. This includes expenditure on direct staff pay costs; other staffing costs including training and accommodation; and asset depreciation costs.

The LSC's Grant Letter published in October 2006 set out administration funding for 2007-08 of £219.5 million. The final audited expenditure figures for that year will be published before summer recess.

The LSC's administration costs have fallen steadily from 4.6 per cent. of total funding in 2001-02, to 1.9 per cent. of its total budget in 2007-08. The latest LSC Grant Letter published in November 2007, shows that further administration efficiency savings will be delivered over the course of the next three years. By 2010-11 the administration budget of the LSC will have fallen to £205.7 million which represents 1.6 per cent. of the total budget of the LSC in that year.

Overseas Students: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of students from other EU member states received financial assistance from his Department for (a) tuition fees and (b) living costs in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [202075]

Bill Rammell: EC nationals are eligible for tuition fee support only, provided that they have been ordinarily resident in the EEA and Switzerland for the three years prior to the start of their course.

The following table shows the number of new and continuing students in each academic year and those who received tuition fee support. Prior to 2006-07, this support was in the form of a means tested grant. Since 2006-07, new students were eligible to apply for a non-means tested loan.

10 countries acceded to the EC in May 2004, which has resulted in an increase in student numbers.

Only EEA and Swiss migrant workers and certain family members who have been ordinarily resident in the EEA and Switzerland and EC nationals who have been ordinarily resident in the UK and Islands may be eligible to the full support package.

Physics: Finance

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what discussions he has had with the Science and Technology Facilities Council on the level of funding for research in physics and astronomy; and if he will make a statement. [200623]

Ian Pearson: The Secretary of State and I have had a number of discussions with the Science and Technology Facilities Council (STFC) about research in physics and astronomy.

The STFC published its Delivery Plan on 11 December 2007 following its Science Budget Allocation which amounted to an additional £185 million over the CSR period and a total budget of £1.9 billion over that period.

STFC Council has made clear that the funding for physics exploitation grants will remain broadly level in this financial year (2008/09). Bill Wakeham, Vice Chancellor of Southampton University, has been asked to lead a review of the health of physics research in the UK, as part of a RCUK review of the continued health of key research disciplines. The review panel is expected to report to the RCUK Executive Group in September, and the results of the review will be published shortly afterwards.

STFC also announced that funding for Particle Physics grants will be 43 per cent. higher in 2008/09 than it was in 2005/06, while in Nuclear Physics, a grant round now in progress will provide an increase of 78 per cent. in 2008/09 compared to 2005/06.

STFC has also announced that support for astronomy grants will be 67 per cent. higher in 2008/09 than in 2005/06.

Students: Finance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will include current undergraduate students in plans for increased maintenance grants under the Government's new student finance package; and if he will make a statement. [180910]

Bill Rammell: The Government's plan for increasing the income thresholds for full and partial entitlement to maintenance grants, as part of the changes to the support package that were announced on 5 July 2007, will apply only to students who will be entering higher education in or after September 2008. We have no plans to extend this change to cover existing students. The fundamental changes to the system that we introduced in 2006, which included the deferment of fees by taking out a loan, rather than paying them up-front, offered a very attractive support package, and this continues to be available to current students.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what mechanisms his Department plans to introduce to ensure EU-domiciled students are subject to the new funding arrangements for people who are studying for equivalent or lower qualifications. [199657]

Bill Rammell: There will be amendments to the appropriate regulations to reflect that all students, including EU-domiciled students, who wish to study an equivalent or lower level course of higher education in England will be subject to the new funding arrangements.

The overwhelming majority of both EU and UK students are honest and will follow the rules in good faith. But there will be mechanisms to prevent deliberate fraud as there are under the current system and these will operate in a way that sets an appropriate balance between the need for regulation and the desire to avoid an overly bureaucratic system. In all cases, HEFCE will work with institutions to audit fundable student numbers and final HEFCE funding will be determined on the basis of audited returns and through a robust audit process. The Student Loans Company will be reviewing its processes to cover the new arrangements and ensure that mechanisms are in place to deter and detect fraudulent applications.

Students: Grants

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many undergraduates (a) qualified for maintenance grants of (i) £2,835, (ii) £2,2002, (iii) £998, (iv) £524 and (v) £50 and (b) received no grant in the most recent period for which figures are available; [194196]

(2) when he plans to answer Question 194196, tabled on 11 March 2008, on undergraduate maintenance grants; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply. [202022]

Bill Rammell: The figures in the question apply for the upcoming academic year. Therefore as yet no one is receiving grants on this basis. I apologise for the delay in responding to the hon. Member, this was due to an administrative error.

Students: Loans

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people making repayments of a student loan are yet to receive an updated statement, including details of repayments made in the 2004-05 tax year, due to delays in HM Revenue and Customs processing employer returns for that tax year; and if he will make a statement. [188035]

Bill Rammell: The Student Loans Company updates individual accounts and provides borrowers with an updated statement within a month of receiving details of borrowers' repayments from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC).

Repayments are linked to income, so it is not possible to know precisely how many borrowers have earned over the income threshold during a particular financial year until all employers' annual returns for student loan borrowers have been received, and the student loan repayments for every individual borrower have been processed. For the tax year 2004-05 HMRC has passed to the SLC repayment information for some 649,148 borrowers, against a projected range of 600,000 to 650,000 borrowers.

JUSTICE

Absent Voting: Overseas Residence

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many postal ballot papers were issued to UK citizens residing overseas during the last (a) local elections in England and (b) general election. [201146]

Bridget Prentice: Locally appointed returning officers are responsible for the conduct of elections and are responsible for storing and collecting any data arising from these elections. As such we do not collect or hold data centrally on the number of postal ballot papers which were issued to UK citizens residing overseas during the last local and general elections.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many postal ballot papers issued to UK citizens residing overseas in the last (a) local elections in England and (b) general election were (i) returned and (ii) rejected by acting returning officers for reasons of lateness. [201147]

Bridget Prentice: Locally appointed returning officers are responsible for the conduct of elections and are responsible for collecting and storing any data arising from these elections. As such, we do not collect or hold data centrally on either the number of ballot papers which were returned by UK citizens living abroad at the last local and general elections or the number of postal ballots from UK citizens overseas voters which were rejected by acting returning officers for reasons of lateness.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what period of time was provided for postal ballot papers to be (a) issued and (b) delivered to the address of UK citizens residing overseas during the last (i) local elections in England and (ii) general elections. [201148]

Bridget Prentice: There was no prescribed last date for the issue or delivery of postal votes to UK citizens residing overseas prior to either the last local or general elections in England. Postal ballot papers may be printed and prepared for delivery once the identity of the candidates is known, following the close of the period for nominations. The earliest date that postal votes will be issued and delivered at local and general elections in England to existing postal voters is 11 working days before polling day, which is the last date in which they can cancel or vary their arrangements. Postal ballots can be dispatched to new postal vote applicants as soon as practicable after their applications have been granted.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the period of time given for UK citizens residing abroad to (a) receive and (b) return completed postal ballot papers during the last (i) local elections in England and (ii) general election; and if he will make a statement. [201149]

Bridget Prentice: While no formal assessment has been made we are aware that some UK citizens residing abroad have experienced difficulties with the current period of time given for receiving and returning their completed postal ballot papers for elections in England.

Returning officers are aware of the need to put the Electoral Commission's guidance on issuing postal votes into effect. The guidance (i) stipulates that postal votes should be issued to all who have applied, including long-term postal voters as soon as practicable after the deadline for new applications for postal votes which is 11 working days before the election and (ii) communicates that consideration may also be given to prioritising the issuing of ballot papers that are going outside the UK.

We have and will continue to look at ways in which we can improve the voting process for UK citizens residing abroad. To date our work has included implementing provisions under the Representation of the People Act 2000 to allow overseas voters to vote by post. Previously, such voters were only able to appoint a proxy to vote on their behalf.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will increase the period of time given to UK citizens residing abroad to (a) receive and (b) return completed postal ballot papers during (i) local elections in England and (ii) general elections; and if he will make a statement. [201150]

Bridget Prentice: There are practical issues including uncertainty in the declaration of the results and outcomes of elections should any change be made to the timing of the postal ballots to overseas voters. Any change would also need to take into account the need to ensure that candidates continue to have reasonable time to put forward their nominations.

Returning officers are aware of the need to put the Electoral Commission's guidance on issuing postal votes into effect. The guidance (i) stipulates that postal votes should be issued to all who have applied, including long-term postal voters as soon as practicable after the deadline for new applications for postal votes which is 11 working days before the election and (ii) communicates that consideration may also be given to prioritising the issuing of ballot papers that are going outside the UK.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects the European Union to ratify the Hague Maintenance Convention. [201973]

Bridget Prentice: The 2007 Hague Convention on the International Recovery of Child Support and other Forms of Family Maintenance will be ratified by the European Union on behalf of all member states. The European Union has not yet indicated when they expect to be able to do this.

Work is being taken forward on this ratification in tandem with the negotiation of a new EU regulation on maintenance.

Coroners: Mesothelioma

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance is issued on the procedure to be followed in coroners' inquiries following a death from mesothelioma. [201448]

Bridget Prentice: In February this year, the Coroners' Society circulated best practice suggestions on mesothelioma investigations in England and Wales to all coroners and made the suggestions available on its website. The best practice suggestions were produced by the British Lung Foundation with the support of the Coroners' Society and my Department.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward legislative proposals to require (a) a specific authority to train police staff in areas where inquiries are conducted by police staff following a death from mesothelioma and (b) registered medical practitioners to compile medical evidence prior to a death from mesothelioma which can later be used in a coroners' inquiry. [201456]

Bridget Prentice: The Government's intention are to introduce a Coroners Bill when parliamentary time allows. One of the key aims of the Bill is to deliver an improved service for all bereaved people, including those bereaved as a result of mesothelioma. The Coroners Bill will establish the post of chief coroner who will be responsible, among other things, for establishing national standards and providing guidance and training to coroners and their staff. The chief coroner will not have direct authority over police officer training or the practices of medical practitioners but he or she will work closely with local police authorities to promote best practice and will have authority to intervene if investigations are not conducted in accordance with agreed guidance. Under a reformed system, the new national medical adviser to the chief coroner will provide an additional valuable resource for bringing guidance to the attention of those professionals in the health service who interact with people who are diagnosed with mesothelioma.

Crimes of Violence: Young People

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people aged (a) under 16 and (b) between 16 and 25 years were convicted of a violent crime in each of the last five years. [202231]

Maria Eagle: The information requested covering convictions for indictable offences within the violence against the person category for the years 2002-06 is provided in the following table.

The figures given in the table relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of defendants found guilty at all courts for violence against the person offences by age group, England and Wales, 2002-06[1,2]

	10-15	16-25	26-35	36 and over	All ages
2002	2,568	18,193	9,394	7,553	37,708
2003	2,495	18,041	9,490	8,010	38,036
2004	2,606	18,977	9,251	8,315	39,149
2005	2,810	19,928	9,273	8,918	40,929
2006	2,832	20,873	9,150	9,009	41,864

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collections processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Court proceedings database—Office for Criminal Justice Reform—Ministry of Justice

Criminal Proceedings: Genetics

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) in how many criminal prosecutions low template DNA has been used as evidence; and how many of those prosecutions resulted in conviction; [201449]

(2) in how many criminal prosecutions mixtures of DNA have been used as evidence; and how many of those prosecutions resulted in conviction. [201450]

Maria Eagle: The data held centrally by my Department on the court proceedings database do not contain information about the circumstances behind each case, including the use of DNA, other than the information that may be gleaned from the offence itself. As a result prosecutions involving the use of DNA evidence cannot be identified.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2008, Official Report, columns 356-7W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199183]

Mr. Wills: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179, and the written ministerial statement made my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected in spring 2008, and this report will detail the information to be included by Departments on data loss in their annual reports.

Drugs: Sentencing

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Answer of 1 April 2008, Official Report, columns 890-2W, on drugs, how many of those sentenced to immediate custody for dealing in (a) Class A, (b) Class B and (c) Class C drugs received the maximum possible prison sentence in each of the last five years. [200625]

Mr. Straw: The requested information is contained in the following table:

Number of persons given the maximum custodial sentence[1] for supplying various classes of controlled drugs, all courts, England and Wales, 2002-06

1. All figures are for the offences of supplying or offering to supply a controlled drug and for having possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply.

Electoral Register

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he last met the Electoral Commission to discuss its proposals for individual voter registration. [201144]

Bridget Prentice: I meet regularly with the Electoral Commission. My next meeting is on 15 May 2008 and individual registration will be on the agenda.

Our vision for electoral registration is clear: We want to protect the rights of every eligible person to participate in the United Kingdom's democratic process by ensuring complete, accurate and secure electoral registration.

Any new system of electoral registration in GB would need to be tailored to current circumstances, and in particular would need to address the challenge of under registration in GB, where an estimated 3.5 million eligible electors are not registered to vote.

Internet: Data Protection

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the effects of widespread up-take of internet technologies on the capacity of the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998 and Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to provide for the protection of personal data. [200777]

Mr. Wills: We have commissioned an independent review to consider whether there should be any changes to the legislation governing data protection. The Data Sharing Review, being conducted by the Information Commissioner, Richard Thomas, and Dr. Mark Walport, will publish its report before the end of June. The impact of technology was one of the issues covered by the review's consultation paper and we look forward to seeing the final report. More generally, the Government and the Information Commissioner's Office keep legislation under review in light of ever-increasing technological changes in the field of data protection.

Legal Advice and Assistance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what changes he plans to make the civil legal aid system as a result of the resolution of the dispute between the Law Society and the Legal Services Commission. [200922]

Maria Eagle: I refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement I made on 2 April 2008, Official Report, column WS104. Following constructive discussions between the parties, a settlement has been reached between the Ministry of Justice, the Law Society and the Legal Services Commission in the legal dispute over contracts. This will provide stability and certainty for civil legal aid providers, and heralds a strong commitment from all parties to a new collaborative working approach in the future to address concerns highlighted by representative bodies.

Details of the agreement include a revised arrangement covering historic unrecouped payments on account, increases in some fees paid to civil providers, and new joint collaborative working practices adopted between the parties to ensure that future concerns can be resolved in this way rather than through litigation.

Prisons: Paganism

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to Prison Service Instruction 2005/33, on the practice of paganism in prison, how many wards are available in prisons in (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland. [201871]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

No prison in England and Wales contains a ward.

There are four categories of prison health care. Type 1 provides daytime cover, generally by part time staff, with no in-patient facilities. There are 26 prisons in England, and two prisons in Wales that provide type 1 care.

Type 2 provides daytime with full time staff, with no in-patient facilities. There are 50 prisons in England, and no prisons in Wales that provide type 2 care.

Type 3 provides a health care centre with 24 hour nurse cover, usually with in-patient facilities. There are 56 prisons in England, and three prisons in Wales that provide type 3 care.

Type 4 is as type 3, but also serves as a national or regional assessment centre, used by other prisons. There are five prisons in England, and no prisons in Wales that provide type 4 care.

The management of prisons in Northern Ireland is a devolved matter for the Northern Ireland Administration.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to answer Question 196558, on the home detention curfew, tabled on 19th March 2008. [202312]

Mr. Straw: I replied to the hon. Member for Harborough's question on 24 April 2008, Official report, columns 2251-52W. I apologise for the delay.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the staff to inmate ratio of each (a) young offender institution and (b) secure training centre was at the latest date for which figures are available. [201648]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the overall staff to prisoner ratio and unified staff to prisoner ratio for each young offender and juvenile[1] institution at the end of March 2008. Youth Justice Board do not set precise staff to prisoner ratios for secure training centres (STCs); instead, they agree with providers the minimum starting levels necessary to ensure effective supervision. Broadly speaking, the minimum staffing levels are three members of custody staff to young people living in a group of eight and two members of custody staff to young people living in a group of six.

The figures for prison establishments and STCs are not directly comparable. The figures for prisons relate to all staff employed in the establishment, while the ratio for STCs relates only to staff engaging directly with offenders.

Young Offender Institutions: Education

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of those in each (a) young offender institution and (b) secure training centre were in education at the latest date for which figures are available. [202023]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service does not centrally collate education data at prisoner level. The following table shows the provisional average number of hours spent in educational activity per week per prisoner in young offender and juvenile institutions in 2007-08. Young offenders held in prisons categorised as adult are not included.

Prison	Average number of hours spent in educational activity

Each of the four secure training centres (STCs) in accordance with STC Rules 1998 ensure that each trainee participates in education or training courses for at least 25 hours a week, except when on authorised absence such us attending court appearances or sickness.

Young Offender Institutions: Telephones

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of inmates in each (a) young offender institution and (b) secure training centre has daily access to a telephone to communicate with family. [202026]

Maria Eagle: This information is not available for prisoners in young offender institutions (YOIs). However, all prisoners must be given access to telephones during association and other such times that can be facilitated by each prison's regime. The time available for prisoners to use telephones must not be less than two hours each day.

All trainees in Secure Training Centres have daily access to telephones.

Young Offender Institutions: Violence

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many incidents of (a) inmate on inmate and (b) inmate on staff violence were reported in each (i) young offender institution and (ii) secure training centre in each of the last five years. [202027]

Maria Eagle: The information requested is as follows:

(i) Assaults in Young Offender Institutions

The information requested is set out in the following table, but is subject to important qualifications. The Prison Service incident reporting system processes high volumes of data which are constantly being updated. The statistics provide a good indication of overall numbers, but should not be interpreted as absolute. Assault data are complex and may include threatening behaviour, projection of bodily fluids and other non-contact incidents. Information on assault incidents may involve more than one assailant or more than one victim. In a proportion of incidents only the victim is known.

Assault information is recorded at establishment level in four categories: Prisoner on Prisoner, Prisoner on Officer, Other (including miscellaneous assault information) and Prisoner on Other. Rises or falls in reported numbers from one year to the next are not a good indicator of underlying trend for a particular prison. There have also been improvements in reporting over the years, and this is reflected in the table.

Mr. Watson: The Deputy Prime Minister's Office residual responsibilities were transferred to the Cabinet Office, although the records of invoices and purchase orders pertaining to the Deputy Prime Minister's Office are held by the Department for Communities and Local Government and not by the Cabinet Office.

Government Departments: Charities

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the rules govern the provision of office accommodation by Government Departments to charitable organisations; and if he will make a statement. [201715]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells (Greg Clark) by the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, my right hon. Friend the Member for North-West Durham (Hilary Armstrong), on 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 1099W.

Official Residences: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1307W, on Official Residences: Repairs and Maintenance, what the infrastructure is that the Government intends to (a) renew, (b) upgrade and (c) refurbish in Downing street. [199105]

Mr. Watson: I have nothing further to add to the earlier answer.

Planning Permission: Costs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what initial estimate was made of the costs associated with planning application 08/00696 prior to the grant of authorisation for the project; and what completion date was set prior to the project's commencement. [199103]

Mr. Watson: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave on 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1307W.

Public Sector: Priory Healthcare

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many public-sector staff, including military personnel, have been treated at cost to the public purse at branches of the Priory chain of rehabilitation and treatment centres in the last 10 years. [198624]

Mr. Watson: Information on the cost to the public purse of public sector staff who have been treated at the Priory chain of rehabilitation and treatment centres is not held centrally by the Cabinet Office.

Trade Unions

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions he has had with trades union representatives on diversity among public service deliverers; and if he will make a statement. [198797]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office has met civil service union representatives regularly to discuss actions being taken to achieve a truly diverse civil service workforce, and have a diverse group of people delivering public services. These meetings are ongoing.

The procurement of private-sector suppliers to deliver public-services is governed by procurement policy. The Office of Government Commerce in HM Treasury leads on procurement policy.

TREASURY

Carbon Emissions

Alan Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the change in UK carbon dioxide emissions between 2006 and 2007; what proportion of this was attributable to the Government's carbon tax and spend policies; and what the equivalent figures are, excluding emissions reductions achieved by purchases from overseas under carbon trading arrangements. [201491]

Angela Eagle: In 2007, UK emissions of the basket of six greenhouse gases covered by the Kyoto protocol were provisionally estimated to be 639.4 million tonnes carbon dioxide equivalent. This was 2 per cent. lower than the 2006 figure of 652.3 million tonnes. In 2007, UK net emissions of carbon dioxide were provisionally estimated to be 543.7 million tonnes. This was 2 per cent. lower than the 2006 figure of 554.5 million tonnes.

The decrease resulted from fuel switching from coal to natural gas for electricity generation, combined with lower fossil fuel consumption by households and industry. Details of the Government's policies and their expected impact on emissions is set out in the Energy White Paper published in May 2007. Details of the impact of fiscal measuresintroduced by the Government are outlined in PBR and Budget documents, and were summarised in table 6.2 of Budget 2008.

The Government see emissions trading as one of the most powerful tools available to tackle climate change in a cost-effective manner. These figures do not include the effect of emissions trading, as 2007 EU Emissions Trading Scheme results will not be available until May 2008. However, figures for 2006 show that, including the impact of emissions trading through the EU ETS, UK greenhouse gas emissions in 2006 were 20.7 per cent. below the 1990 level.

Coinage: Design

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of organising the public competition to design the new set of British coins; and what the overall cost of the introduction of the new coins will be. [200316]

Angela Eagle: The estimated cost of the new coin designs is approximately £119,000, which includes, under the terms of the public competition, a £35,000 fee to the artist who submitted the final design.

Departmental Advertising

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 22nd February 2008, Official Report, column 1107W, on publication supplements, if he will place in the Library copies of the publication supplements commissioned by Ogcbuying. Solutions and HM Revenue and Customs. [193311]

Angela Eagle: The publication supplements were produced and distributed by Supply Management magazine not OGCbuying.solutions. We therefore do not hold a supply of copies, but we will place a copy in the Library.

HM Revenue and Customs did not commission the publication of any newspaper or magazine supplements in 2006-07.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201752]

Angela Eagle: Information to the level of detail requested is obtainable only at disproportionate cost.

Treasury Ministers are committed to answering written parliamentary questions promptly whenever possible. In the present parliamentary Session 71 per cent. of the 2,063 ordinary written questions we have received have been answered within a working week of tabling (as provided for in Erskine May, twenty-third edition, page 342) and 56 per cent. of our 538 named day questions have been answered on the day nominated by questioners. The corresponding figures for the whole of the 2006-07 session were 83 per cent. (of 3,689 questions) and 71 per cent. (of 743 questions) respectively.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects of the change in fuel duty rates announced in Budget 2008 on those living in remote areas. [202202]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor considers a range of factors when deciding on rates of fuel duty, including social, economic and environmental ones. The planned fuel duty increase for April 2008 will now take place on 1 October 2008. This Budget 2008 decision is consistent with an overall stance of ensuring stability for the long term, while maintaining responsiveness to short-term conditions.

Financial Services: Pay

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what conditions govern the payment of (a) dividends and (b) bonuses by banks and financial institutions which have received financial support from the public purse; and if he will make a statement. [197720]

Angela Eagle: The remuneration of the majority of staff of commercial undertakings is a matter for the boards of the organisations concerned. The normal practice for Executive Board remuneration is for the company's Remuneration Committee, formed of non-executive directors, to put forward proposals for shareholder approval where any bank is in receipt of financial assistance, whether or not it is in public ownership.

I refer the right hon. Member to what the Chief Secretary to the Treasury said in the House on 31 March, Official Report, 585.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his announcement on 23 April of measures to alleviate the impact of removing the 10p tax rate, what the estimated cost to the public purse is of these measures will be in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10. [202118]

Jane Kennedy: The Chancellor wrote to the Chair of the Commons Treasury Committee on 23 April to outline how the Government intend to do more to help low-income households. This letter made clear that a report on the issue will be published in the run-up to the pre-Budget report, and that the Chancellor will report back to the House in the pre-Budget report.

Inflation

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the likely effects on inflation of the provision by the Bank of England to banks of arrangements for enhanced liquidity. [201898]

Angela Eagle: The Bank of England's Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) has full operational independence in meeting the Government's inflation target. The MPC makes interest rate decisions based on rigorous analysis, taking into account all relevant information, which includes the provision of liquidity to banks by the Bank of England.

In addition, the Bank of England has stated that the Special Liquidity Scheme announced on 21 April 2008

> "will be ring-fenced and independent of the Bank of England's regular money market operations. So it will not interfere with the Bank's ability to implement monetary policy."

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 18 March 2008 on tax on Land Rovers used by farmers. [202387]

Angela Eagle: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Minimum Wage: Prosecutions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employers has been prosecuted for paying employees at a rate below the minimum wage in each year since the minimum wage was introduced, broken down by region. [202208]

Jane Kennedy: There have been no prosecutions of employers for the non-payment of minimum wage. In 2007 there were two successful prosecutions of employers, one for obstructing a compliance officer and one for failing to produce records, in the London and South West regions.

In the great majority of cases where minimum wage arrears are identified, the employer pays any minimum wage arrears without the need for any formal enforcement action. When arrears are not paid, an enforcement notice will be issued setting out the arrears that are considered to be due. An employer will then have 28 days to lodge an appeal and subsequently have his case heard before an employment tribunal. If the tribunal does not uphold the appeal, or the employer does not appeal, the enforcement notice against the arrears becomes due.

Sovereign Wealth Funds

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on sovereign wealth funds; and if he will make a statement. [201975]

Angela Eagle: The Government have received contributions from a wide range of parties with an interest in the current international debate about sovereign wealth funds, including the Business Council for Britain.

The Government welcome these contributions to the international debate that is currently taking place at the International Monetary Fund and the Office for Econmic Co-operation and Development to develop best practice for sovereign wealth funds and host countries.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether sovereign wealth funds are exempt from taxation in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement; [201976]

(2) how much was raised by sovereign wealth funds in the UK in each of the last five years. [201977]

Angela Eagle: Where a sovereign wealth fund is an integral part of the government of a foreign sovereign state it will benefit from immunity from UK tax. As a result of this immunity, no taxation will have been received from sovereign wealth funds.

The United Kingdom recognises the principle of international law known as sovereign immunity whereby one sovereign state does not seek to apply its domestic laws to another sovereign state. In accordance with this principle, current UK practice is to regard as immune from direct taxes all income and gains which are beneficially owned by the head of state and the Government of a foreign sovereign state recognised by the UK.

Sustainable Development: Expenditure

Alan Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government spent on incentivising low-carbon technologies and lifestyles in the form of (a) capital grants, (b) research and development grants, (c) tax and duty rebates, (d) enhanced capital allowances, (e) expenditure on the provision of information and advice to businesses and consumers and (f) other expenditure on achieving carbon dioxide emission reductions in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007. [201594]

Angela Eagle: The Government have a range of policies in place to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and support the move to a low carbon economy. These include spending programmes, fiscal measures and regulation.

Figures for the breakdown requested are not held separately, but spending in 2006-07 on major programmes to support Research and Development and provide information and advice was as follows. The Carbon Trust was given £100 million to take the lead on business and public sector energy efficiency and encourage the development of a low-carbon economy in the UK. The Energy Saving Trust received £67 million to encourage and promote the sustainable and efficient use of energy in the household sector. Spending on low-carbon energy innovation through the Research Councils Energy Programme was £63 million, and spending through the Technology Strategy Board was £20 million. These figures are for Government as a whole, including funding from devolved administrations.

All tax measures that have an impact upon the public finances are scored as a matter of course and reported in PBR/Budget documents.

Taxation: Voluntary Organisations

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will increase the level of milage for which tax-free expenses may be paid to volunteer drivers of voluntary and charitable organisations. [202096]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 12 November 2007, Official Report, column 22W. HMRC allows volunteers to use the approved milage allowance payment (AMAP) rate for convenience, but it is not mandatory and volunteer drivers can claim tax relief for the full cost of motoring by completing a return, if they wish to do so.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Health Hazards

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government plans to take to address health problems associated with consumption of super-strength lager. [200977]

Dawn Primarolo: We know that some people are drinking too much, and tackling the culture of harmful and binge drinking is a priority for Government. We are working with the alcohol industry and other stakeholders to implement a comprehensive strategy to tackle it, including:

a new public information campaign, which will start on 19 May;

more help for people who want to drink less—targeted advice and support will be available from the same date;

a Home Office led review of industry social responsibility standards, which will report this Spring;

an independent review of alcohol pricing, promotion, and harm, which will report in August; and toughened enforcement of the law on underage sales.

Much alcohol-related harm is preventable, and there are substantial health gains to be made through the widespread implementation of programmes to identify harmful drinking earlier, providing brief advice or referral to specialist alcohol treatment for those who need it.

We have put in place a new national indicator from April 2008 to measure change in the rate of alcohol related hospital admissions—the first ever national commitment to monitor publicly how the national health service is tackling alcohol harms. This indicator is expected to encourage earlier identification of people who drink too much linked to advice from general practitioners or hospitals. That is shown to be the best way of reducing the kind of 'everyday' drinking which over time leads to liver disease and other problems.

We will disseminate the lessons of the current trailblazer pilots on identification and brief advice to encourage uptake by NHS professionals.

Blood

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent estimate is of the (a) daily, (b) weekly and (c) monthly clinical requirement for blood units to meet demand in the NHS. [200638]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Blood Service (NBS) issued a total of 1,825,000 red cell units during 2007-08.

This equates to

an average daily issue of 5,000 red cell units;

an average weekly issue of 35,906 red cell units; and an average monthly issue of 152,083 red cell units.

The projected requirement for 2008-09 is a total issue of 1,765,000 red cell units, which would equate to:

an average daily issue of 4,836 red cell units;

an average weekly issue of 33,942 red cell units; and an average monthly issue of 147,083 red cell units.

Blood Donors

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many registered blood donors there were in England and Wales in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08, broken down by local authority area. [200635]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Blood Service (NBS) has provided information on the number of registered blood donors in England and North Wales. This information is contained in the following table.

	Active whole blood donors (million)
2003-04	1.66
2004-05	1.60
2005-06	1.58
2006-07	1.45
2007-08	1.37

Note:
The NBS are unable to provide a breakdown by local authority area.

Blood: Testing

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the change in capacity in processing and testing of blood resulting from the consolidation by the National Blood Service of testing and processing facilities. [200799]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Blood Service (NBS) needs to improve efficiency and provide value for money for the national health service. The changes set out in the strategy review will allow the NBS to stabilise the cost of blood to hospitals.

The NBS strategy review demonstrated that the service is currently operating at 40 per cent. excess capacity in blood processing and 35 per cent. excess capacity in blood testing. The consolidation of processing and testing sites to six and five respectively will retain a good geographic spread across the country, while enabling the service to be more productive and ensuring the necessary flexibility to meet clinical and safety requirements now and in the future. The changes set out in the review will remove 24 per cent. excess capacity in processing and 28 per cent. in testing.

The current network of 15 blood issue sites (where blood is stocked and from which it is issued) will continue to supply hospitals with blood, as and when they need it.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate has been made of the financial effects on the National Blood Service of the consolidation of testing and processing facilities. [200800]

Dawn Primarolo: The consolidation of processing and testing facilities will produce cumulative savings of £9.9 million up to 2010-11.

Cardiovascular System: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the modelling work on vascular risk assessment referred to in his Department's document Putting Prevention First. [198844]

Ann Keen [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The Department will publish a technical report on the modelling work used in developing its approach to vascular checks in the summer of 2008, which will be the subject of a consultation.

Care Homes: Protection

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what progress has been made on the implementation of a performance indicator to measure the effectiveness of protection processes for vulnerable adults; and if he will make a statement; [201283]

(2) what progress has been made on the introduction of a mandatory scheme for the collection and reporting of data by adult protection committees on vulnerable adult referrals; what resources his Department has provided for the project to date; and what resources it plans to provide in the next three financial years. [201284]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 24 April 2008]: A working group has been set up, comprising representatives from the Information Centre for health and social care, the Department, councils with adult social services responsibilities, Action on Elder Abuse, 'Respond' and academics.

A pilot data collection is planned for 2008-09, with a view to implementing a full data collection across all councils from 1 April 2009. The introduction of the national data collection will enable work to begin on developing an effective monitoring system, which will help support our drive to improve the lives of vulnerable and older people and the delivery of social care services.

The Department plans to provide the following resources to fund the project for the next three years.

2007-08	Identifying information requirements, development and set up costs including development of information technology collection tool.	78,000
2008-09	Developing analysis tools and answering queries.	23,000
2009-10	Collecting, analysing and disseminating data.	24,000

Once we have established the feasibility of collecting these data, we will be in a position to consider the development of a performance indicator.

Death

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce the number of people who die alone. [202204]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Over 500,000 people die each year in England. Approximately 55 per cent. of these deaths occur in hospital, around 20 per cent. at home, around 20 per cent. in care homes and around 4 per cent. in hospices. However, it is not known how many of these people die alone.

The Department is committed to improving people's care and choice at the end of life. Through the End of Life Care Programme, we have invested £12 million to support the rollout of end of life care tools such as the Gold Standards Framework, the Liverpool Care Pathway and the Preferred Place of Care. This summer, we will publish England's first End of Life Care Strategy. This comprehensive strategy will help deliver increased choice to all adult patients regardless of their condition about where they live and die.

Fibromyalgia

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the clinical causes of fibromyalgia. [201503]

Ann Keen [holding answer 25 April 2008]: We have made no assessment of the causes of fibromyalgia.

General Practitioners

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were registered with a general practitioner in each region in England in the latest period for which figures are available. [201773]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 25 April 2008]: Data showing the number of registered patients by region is shown in the following table.

Registered general practitioner patients—England

		All patients (headcount)
	England	53,588,174
Q30	North East	2,532,206

General Practitioners: Buckingham Palace

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether the closed-list GP practice at Buckingham Palace provides for (a) Royal Household staff based outside the area of Westminster Primary Care Trust and (b) staff employed in the households of other members of the Royal Family; and if he will make a statement; [199715]

(2) what revenue the closed-list GP practice at Buckingham Palace received under the additional needs-based allocation in each year since 2004; and what proportion of its income this represented in each such year; [199716]

(3) how many patients are registered on the closed-list GP practice at Buckingham Palace; and if he will make a statement; [199717]

(4) for what reasons there is a closed-list GP practice at Buckingham Palace; and if he will make a statement. [199718]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for providing local health services, including primary medical services, to reflect local needs and healthcare priorities. Westminster PCT has advised they it has a long-standing general medical services (GMS) contract with a general practitioner to provide primary medical services for staff who live within the borders of Buckingham Palace. All GMS contracts set out the practice's boundaries, and in this case the practice area covers only the environs of the Palace. The practice does not operate a closed list but, in common with all practices, it does not have to register patients who live outside the practice area. The latest available data show that at 30 September 2007 there were 296 patients registered at the Buckingham Palace practice.

Information about the revenue that the practice has received for additional needs is not held centrally. My hon. Friend may therefore wish to raise this issue with the chief executive of Westminster PCT. However, the issue here is not additional needs funding but payments made under the minimum practice income guarantee, which is being reviewed and on which announcements will be made as part of the Next Stage Review this summer.

General Practitioners: Public Participation

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many responses his Department received to the GP patient access survey, "Your doctor, your experience, your say" in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08; and what the response rate was in each year. [200889]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2006-07, the first year of the general practitioner patient survey, Ipsos MORI, which conduct, the survey on behalf of the Department, received a total of 2,295,987 valid responses from a total sample of 5,220,482, a response rate of 44 per cent. overall.

Survey data for 2007-08 are currently being processed and remain restricted and unavailable until official publication by the Information Centre for health and social care. Publication has been confirmed for the week commencing 14 July 2008.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioners failed to achieve the (a) minimum and (b) maximum percentage response of "yes" to access questions as part of the GP patient access survey "Your doctor, your experience, your say" survey, in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08, broken down by primary care trust. [200892]

Mr. Bradshaw: The first year in which the general practitioner patient survey was conducted was 2006-07. The number of primary medical care contractors in England who failed to achieve the minimum and maximum percentage responses of "yes" to the access questions have been placed in the Library. The table gives the breakdown by primary care trust. The survey does not apply in Wales.

The survey data for 2007-08 are currently being processed by Ipsos MORI, the appointed survey provider, and remain restricted and unavailable until official publication by the Information Centre for health and social care. Publication has been confirmed for the week commencing 14 July 2008.

Heart Diseases

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government have taken to reduce the incidence of heart attacks. [200979]

Ann Keen: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 25 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1191-92W.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria are used to appoint authorised persons to inspect (a) central sterile stores and (b) management of infection control. [202167]

Ann Keen: Guidance on the management and environment for the decontamination of reusable medical devices is set out in "Health Technical Memorandum (HTM) 01-01): Decontamination of re-usable medical devices". Copies of this document are available in the Library.

Section five of Part A of HTM 01-01, identifies the functional responsibilities including 'Authorised Persons (Decontamination)' to ensure equipment is operated safely and efficiently. The precise criteria concerning the appointment of an authorised person are covered in paragraphs 5.35 to 5.43 in this document.

Directors of Infection Prevention and Control are appointed by national health service trusts who decide which criteria to use. Guidance on competences for DIPCs was issued in May 2004. The detail can be found at www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Lettersandcirculars/Dearcolleagueletters/DH_4083982

In addition, all acute NHS trusts are inspected against the Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections by the Healthcare Commission. The Healthcare Commission decides which criteria to use when recruiting its specialist teams of inspectors.

Influenza

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 9 January 2008, Official Report, column 596W, on influenza, to which organisations providing essential services the National Capabilities Survey is sent; and if he will make a statement. [199239]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply

The 2008 National Capabilities Survey was sent to the full range of over 1,200 Category 1 and 2 responders in England and Wales, as defined by the Civil Contingencies Act 2004. Among these, the private-sector organisations providing essential services are to be found among the category 2 responders. The UK Resilience website provides a list of the kinds of organisations that fall into each of these categories:

http://www.ukresilience.info/preparedness/ccact/~/media/assets/www.ukresilience.info/err_ann_03a%20pdf.ashx

Copies of the lists have been placed in the Library for the reference of Members.

Mentally Ill People

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of people were diagnosed with mental health problems before the age of (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15 and (d) 20 years in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [200983]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected by the Department on the number of children and adults diagnosed with a mental health disorder.

The Office for National Statistics 2004 survey 'Mental health of children and young people in Great Britain' looked at the prevalence of mental health disorders. It found that 10 per cent. of young people aged five to 16 years had a clinically diagnosed mental disorder. This was further broken down to 8 per cent. of five to 10-year-olds and 12 per cent. of 11 to 16-year-olds. A copy of this publication is available in the Library.

NHS Blood and Transplant: Finance

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the budget was for the NHS Blood and Transplant Special Health Authority in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08; [200637]

(2) what the combined budget was of the National Blood Service and UK Transplant and Bio Products Laboratory in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08. [200847]

Dawn Primarolo: NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) was established in October 2005 following the merger of the National Blood Authority (NBA) (made up of the National Blood Service and Bio Products Laboratory) and UK Transplant (UKT).

Information on the total budget is provided in the following table.

	Special health authority	Total budget (£ million)
2003-04	NBA and UKT	415
2004-05	NBA and UKT	445
2005-06	NBA and UKT (until September 2005). NHSBT from October 2005	448
2006-07	NHSBT	448
2007-08	NHSBT	483

NHS Blood and Transplant: Manpower

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what changes in headcount in the National Blood Service and UK Transplant and Bio Products Laboratory are planned as part of the implementation of the findings of the Review of the National Blood Service; [200639]

(2) what estimate he has made of the effects on employee numbers in the National Blood Service of the consolidation of testing and processing facilities. [200801]

Dawn Primarolo: Consolidation of processing and testing to six and five sites respectively will result in a reduction of around 140 posts. This is part of an anticipated overall reduction of up to 600 posts across the National Blood Service (NBS) by the end of 2010-11. The NBS intends to reduce these posts largely through non-compulsory means, including voluntary redundancy, staff turnover and vacancy control. Help will be provided for all staff affected by change to find other jobs, across NHS Blood and Transplant and the wider national health service.

Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre: Finance

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much South Central Strategic Health Authority has spent on the Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre's (a) foundation trust diagnostic exercise, (b) strategic options exercise with KPMG and (c) Stage 1 financial viability assessment; and how much it is estimated will be spent on Stages 2 and 3 of the financial viability assessment. [200966]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The information requested is not held centrally. It is for South Central Strategic Health Authority (SHA) to work with Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre NHS Trust to develop the strategic future of the trust. The hon. Member may therefore wish to raise this with the chief executive of South Central SHA.

Polyclinics: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultation has been undertaken with local stakeholders on the proposed establishment of a polyclinic facility in the Peterborough primary care trust area in March 2009; and if he will make a statement. [201349]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 24 April 2008]: Decisions on the form of consultation process to adopt, whom to consult and the time allowed for this process will be made by each primary care trust, and will need to be taken in the light of all relevant factors, including any consultation already conducted or under way.

PCTs are working locally with their strategic health authorities and relevant stakeholders, including local clinicians and patients, to design their service specifications for new health centres.

Sight Impairment: Research

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to support the continuation of research into gene therapy for inherited blindness conducted at Moorfields Eye Hospital and the Institute of Ophthalmology; and if he will make a statement. [202308]

Dawn Primarolo: The ocular gene therapy research being undertaken by University College London Institute of Ophthalmology and Moofield Eye Hospital'Biomedical Research Centre (BRC) is at forefront of world science and should lead to the restoration of sight to many people. The project has been directly funded by the Department, along with other funding partners. The Moorfields BRC has been allocated some £14 million over five years by the Department's National Institute for Health Research (NIHR).

The project is an exemplar of translational research, and illustrates the importance of getting cutting-edge science from the laboratory to the patients whom it can benefit. To that end, we have set up the Office for Strategic Co-ordination for Health Research, chaired by Professor Sir John Bell, working with the Medical Research Council and the NIHR to ensure a major improvement in the translation of basic research into health and economic benefits; and have invested in a single health research fund that will rise to £1.7 billion by 2010-11.

Social Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people of working age were assessed for social care needs in each local authority in 2007-08; and how many people so assessed were found to have a (a) low, (b) moderate, (c) substantial and (d) critical level of social care need in each local authority; [202313]

(2) how many people of working age who were assessed for social care needs in 2007-08 and found to have a level of social care need (a) did and (b) did not go on to receive state-funded social care support from their local authority. [202314]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The latest available data are for 2006-07. The level of social care need is not held centrally.

The following table shows the number of new clients aged 18 to 64 with completed assessments and the anticipated sequel to assessment completed during the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007.

Trauma

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will meet representatives of the National Confidential Enquiry into Patient Outcome and Death to discuss its report Trauma: Who Cares? [201504]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 25 April 2008]: The Department has regular contact with the National Confidential Enquiry into Patient Outcome and Death (NCEPOD) on a variety of issues. We are carefully considering how to take forward the recommendations in the report, "Trauma: Who Cares?" and officials will be arranging a further meeting with NCEPOD shortly.

Tuberculosis: Foreigners

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what percentage of recent tuberculosis cases those diagnosed were not born in the UK. [200524]

Dawn Primarolo: The country of birth (United Kingdom or non-UK) was reported for 89 per cent. of cases of tuberculosis diagnosed in the UK in 2006 (latest available data). Of these cases, 72 per cent. were not born in the UK.

Notes:
1. The provisional data for 2007 were published in March 2008 but do not include detailed demographic data.
2. The finalised data for 2007 will be available in autumn 2008 and will include detailed demographic data.

Westminster Primary Care Trust: General Practitioners

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Thurrock of 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 884W, on Westminster Primary Care Trust: General Practitioners, what the names are of the 2 per cent. of GP practices with closed lists; and under which primary care trusts they operate. [199946]

Mr. Bradshaw: Data on individual general practitioner practice closed lists are held at primary care trust (PCT) level and not collected centrally. The following table lists the names of PCTs which have reported practices as having closed lists. The results of the quarter 4 (February) 2007-08 Primary Care Access Survey (PCAS) show that 148 practices have been reported as having a closed list, representing 1.7 per cent. of the total 8,505 practices reported in the PCAS.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what evaluations of the academies programme have been commissioned by his Department for publication in (a) 2008 and (b) 2009; and if he will make a statement. [201101]

Jim Knight: The Department has a contract with PricewaterhouseCoopers to carry out a yearly evaluation of the academies programme. This contract ends with the publication of the fifth annual report later this year. The Department is currently considering options for conducting future evaluations.

Academies: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether academies are permitted to select by aptitude in subject areas other than their specialism; and if he will make a statement. [201094]

Jim Knight: Any maintained school or academy may seek to admit up to 10 per cent. of its intake by aptitude in one of the relevant 'prescribed' subjects if it considers it has a specialism, whether or not that specialism is recognised formally by its designation as a specialist school or as an academy with a particular specialism. In the case of academies, such arrangements would have first to be approved by the Secretary of State.

Prescribed subjects are limited to modern foreign languages, performing or visual arts and physical education or sport. Academies may also continue to select 10 per cent. by aptitude in design and technology and ICT if and only if they or their predecessor schools already had such arrangements in place prior to the 2008 academic year.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many academies have refused to admit children after direction by local authorities since their establishment; how many such cases have been subject to an appeal to him; and if he will make a statement. [201113]

Jim Knight: Local authorities do not have the power to direct academies to admit children. The Secretary of State has the power of direction in the case of academies.

Academies: Head Teachers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 823W, on academies: head teachers, for what reasons the National Professional Qualification for Headship will be compulsory in all maintained schools other than academies; and if he will make a statement. [201404]

Jim Knight: We are considering the process for ensuring that all academies benefit from the best possible opportunities for enhanced leadership training appropriate to their circumstances, including the National Professional Qualification for Headship. I will write to the hon. Member with further details once that consideration is complete.

Academies: Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of rates of exclusions at academies; and if he will make a statement. [201052]

Jim Knight: As a group, academies have an overall pattern of exclusions that is almost identical to the pattern for a control group of similar schools. Academies often inherit a large number of disengaged pupils and need to establish good behaviour in order to raise attainment. Academies place great emphasis on getting the basics right and improving behaviour in particular. As the new ethos and behaviour policy are implemented in an academy's early days, the number of exclusions may rise, but it typically falls as behaviour improves. This phenomenon is not unique to academies; the same effect is often observed when a new head teacher transforms a struggling maintained school.

A paper illustrating the pattern of exclusions and comparing exclusions in academies with a control group of schools with similar characteristics has been placed in the House Library. The chart shows the overall distribution of exclusions in academies and a group of control schools.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what rights of appeal are available to pupils permanently excluded from academies; and if he will make a statement. [201067]

Jim Knight: The funding agreements of all academies provide that all pupils permanently excluded from academies have the right to an independent appeal panel in the same way as they would following permanent exclusion from a maintained school.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether academies are required to provide parents of excluded pupils with a right of appeal to an independent exclusions appeal panel; and if he will make a statement. [201112]

Jim Knight: All academies are required to provide parents of permanently excluded pupils with the right of appeal to an independent appeals panel.

Academies: Sponsorship

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who the (a) sponsors and (b) co-sponsors are of academies whose funding agreements were approved by his Department between 28 November 2007 and 15 April 2008. [201102]

Jim Knight: The information requested is in the chart as follows.

Academies: Teachers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what freedoms have been granted to academies over the pay and conditions of their staff; and if he will make a statement. [201044]

Jim Knight: It is the responsibility of the governing body of each academy to agree levels of pay and conditions of service with its employees. However, all teachers must have access to the Teachers Pension Scheme and all employees other than teachers must have access to the Local Government Pension Scheme. Any employees transferring to an academy from its predecessor school or schools have their existing pay and conditions protected under TUPE regulations.

Children

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many copies of his Department's Children's Plan Toolkit have been produced; and what the cost was of the production of those copies. [201265]

Beverley Hughes: A total of 1,550 packs have been produced. The total cost was £30,534, which included the design, production and distribution of the packs.

Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children in care were parents in each of the last 10 years; [201856]

(2) how many children in care committed suicide in each of the last 10 years. [201864]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of mothers aged 12 and over who were looked after by English local authorities in each of the years ending 31 March 2005 to 2007 is shown in table A5 as follows. Table A5 is taken from the Statistical First Release (SFR 27/2007) entitled 'Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2007'. The SFR is located at

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000741/index.shtml

and table A5 can be found within the first set of excel tables on the website.

Information on the number of children in care who committed suicide is not collected centrally by the Department.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many young people in the care of a local authority went on to enter (a) further and (b) higher education in each local authority area in 2007; [202220]

(2) how many young people in the care of a local authority moved into (a) hostel and (b) bed and breakfast accommodation in each local authority area in 2007; [202227]

(3) how many young people in the care of a local authority were not in education, employment or training in each local authority area in 2007. [202228]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of young people in the care of each local authority who went on to (a) further education and (b) higher education, as well as the number of young people who were not in education, employment or training is not collected centrally by the Department. However, information on the number of children who are now aged 19 who were looked after on 1 April 2004 but have since left care and are engaged in higher educational studies (i.e. studies beyond A level) or who are not in education, employment or training has been placed in the House of Commons Library (Table LAG1). Table LAG1 is taken from the Statistical First Release (SFR 27/2007) entitled 'Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2007'. The SFR is located at http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000741/index.shtml and table LAG1 can be found within the second set of Excel tables on the website. The measures that we are taking through the Care Matters White Paper and the Children and Young Persons Bill, such as requiring local authorities to pay a £2,000 bursary to care leavers who undertake a course in higher education and to provide a personal adviser for care leavers in education up to the age of 25, are designed to help them to achieve their full potential.

Information on the number of children looked after by English local authorities who moved into (a) children's homes and hostels and (b) independent living during the year ending 31 March 2007 has been placed in the House of Commons Library (Table 1). Where a child moved into either of the aforementioned placements on more than one occasion during the year, he or she has been counted only once.

[4] To ensure that no individual can be identified from statistical tables, we use conventions for the rounding and suppression of very small numbers. All numbers which appear in the national summary tables have been rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000 and to the nearest 10 otherwise. Numbers from one to five inclusive have been suppressed, being replaced in the table by a [6]. At local council level the England totals have been rounded either to the nearest 10, or the nearest 100 following the rule outlined above. Regional totals and totals for the number of children placed outside England have been rounded to the nearest 10. Children in Care: Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained schools did not give priority to children in care in their 2007-08 admission arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [201111]

Jim Knight: We do not collect that data centrally. However, we recently carried out an analysis of the 2008-09 admission arrangements adopted by schools in three local authority areas—Barnet, Manchester and Nottinghamshire—which showed that although a large majority complied with the school admissions code and admissions legislation, a significant minority of schools appeared to have adopted unlawful arrangements.

The Secretary of State made a statement to Parliament on 2 April on measures being taken to improve the admissions system, which also included details about the evidence gathered, which showed that 58 out of 570 schools across the three local authority areas failed to give children in care the unequivocal highest priority in school admission arrangements as required by law. This information is available in the House Library:

Children: Dyslexia

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment his Department has made of the efficacy of the reading recovery initiative for dyslexic children; [201774]

(2) what provision has been made for teaching dyslexic children within his Department's (a) Every Child a Reader, (b) Every Child a Writer and (c) Every Child Counts initiatives. [201775]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 25 April 2008]: Evaluations of the Every Child a Reader pilot—which provides Reading Recovery for children from among those having the most difficulties in learning to read—were published in 2006 and 2007. These are available on www.everychildareader.org.uk.

The evaluation of Every Child a Reader in London in 2005/06 showed that 87 per cent. of children who had received Reading Recovery were considered to have made average to exceptional progress in reading comprehension. However, these evaluations did not include looking at the efficacy of Reading Recovery for children with dyslexia.

Our commitment through the primary and secondary national strategies is to ensure Quality First teaching for all. The Every Child a Reader and Every Child Counts initiatives are focused on providing additional intervention for the 5 per cent. of children facing the most difficulties with reading and mathematics. They do not provide a specific focus on provision for children with dyslexia. Every Child a Reader is being rolled out to reach 30,000 children a year by 2010/11.

Every Child Counts is currently in a research phase and will be informed by the Williams review of the teaching of mathematics which is due to be published in June this year. The intention is that Every Child Counts will be aimed at children whose attainment in the early stages of mathematics shows they are not making expected progress for their age.

Every Child a Writer is a new programme announced at the end of last year. The intention—as stated in our Children's Plan—is that this will offer support later in primary school than Every Child a Reader and Every Child Counts and will reach a greater number of pupils. Further announcements will be made about Every Child a Writer in due course.

The SEN Code of Practice says that "effective management, school ethos and the learning environment, curricular, pastoral and discipline arrangements can help prevent some special educational needs arising, and minimise others" (paragraph 5:18). Where whole school arrangements for teaching and learning are not addressing a child's learning difficulties, schools have a statutory duty to do their best to ensure that the necessary provision is made for any pupil who has special educational needs. It follows that if a child with dyslexia is not benefiting from participation in any or all of the three initiatives, the school must make additional or different arrangements to address the child's special educational needs.

Departmental Operating Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 183W, on operating costs, what the administrative costs of his Department's predecessor were in each year from 1990-91 to 2006-07 in real terms using 2005-06 prices. [201305]

Ed Balls: The administrative costs from 1990-91 to 2006-07 for the Departments which preceded the Department for Children, Schools and Families, adjusted to 2005-06 prices using the latest GDP deflators, are set out in the following table.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many guidance notes to (a) schools and (b) local authorities have been issued by his Department, its predecessors and its agencies in each (i) year, (ii) quarter and (iii) month since 1 January 1997; and if he will make a statement. [201198]

Kevin Brennan: The number of documents sent to all primary and secondary schools is detailed in the table attached at Annex A. Where a document has been sent to both primary and secondary schools it will appear in the totals for both. The Department stopped sending regular paper mailings to schools in December 2004, replacing them with a regular fortnightly e-mail which allows schools to order the required numbers of documents at their discretion.

The guidance notes issued to local authorities are generally intended to help front-line staff to understand and implement their statutory duties effectively and improve outcomes for children, young people and families. The data available for this year and last are set out at Annex B.

Statistical data on the numbers issued is not normally collected and the cost would be prohibitive to supply figures for every guidance note we have issued for the 10-year period requested.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many working days were lost by his Department owing to stress-related illness in each of the last 24 months. [198945]

Kevin Brennan: The percentage of working days lost owing to sickness absence in 1 July to 31 December was 15 per cent. of all working days. The recorded total of working days lost was 1,583 compared to 10,404 working days lost for all sickness absences, and 680 days were lost in the latest quarter (1 January to 31 March 2008). Sickness absence information is collected quarterly in my Department, but monthly information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department has introduced a range of measures to support managers and employees on health and wellbeing issues, including the provision of professional counselling and support from the Department's Employee Assistance Provider, Right Corecare. The Department has piloted a Health and Safety Executive (HSE) Stress Questionnaire in one part of the organisation and conducted Individual Stress Risk Assessments for employees who require them. It will shortly be launching a comprehensive Stress Prevention Policy, based on HSE Management Standards.

Departmental Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what targets apply to his Department's performance in 2008; which targets have been (a) dropped and (b) amended since January 2007; and if he will make a statement. [201133]

Jim Knight: The DCSF was responsible for 12 public service agreements (PSAs) from the 2004 spending review, which ended in 2007-08. Over the 2007 comprehensive spending review period, which runs from 2008-09 to 2010-11, my Department has six departmental strategic objectives (DSOs) and leads five cross-governmental PSAs. Details are available on the HM Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/3/9/pbr_csr07_annexd1_189.pdf

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/publications/dsoindicators/

The 12 PSA targets over the 2004 spending review period, which ended in 2008, were underpinned by 20 indicators. Of these, 11 indicators underpin the five PSAs which the DCSF leads over the 2007 comprehensive spending review period. The remaining indicators underpin DSOs or, in the case of PE and school sport, a PSA led by another Department. Full details of the transition will be set out in the forthcoming DCSF departmental report, a copy of which will be placed in the House Library.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the education maintenance allowance is available to children aged younger than 16 who have taken their GCSEs early and are in further education; and if he will make a statement. [201077]

Jim Knight: Young people who are of compulsory school age when taking up further education are not eligible for education maintenance allowance (EMA) on the grounds of their age. EMA is not based on the academic level a pupil reaches. It is targeted at those who reach the end of their compulsory school phase and who have the option of dropping out of learning.

The purpose of EMA is to remove barriers to learning, and increase participation and retention rates among learners who can legally leave education. Therefore, EMA is not available to learners who by law must remain in education.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what forecast he has made of his Department's expenditure on education maintenance allowance over the next 10 years. [201686]

Jim Knight: The forecast expenditure for education maintenance allowance over the comprehensive spending review (CSR) period is £531 million/£544 million/£560 million in financial years 2008-09/2009-10/2010-11. Forecasts of expenditure beyond this period are not available.

Education: Assessments

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much schools spent on re-marking (a) GCSE, (b) A and AS level and (c) key stage 3 SAT papers in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007. [200313]

Jim Knight: The fees for re-marking of national curriculum tests are published by the NAA (National Assessment Agency) test operations agency each year and can be found on the Qualification and Curriculum Authority's website at http://www.qca.org.uk/qca_11997.aspx The NAA does not keep specific information on how much schools paid to the test operations agency for re-marking key stage 3 test papers via the review process.

The Department does not collect information on re-marking costs for GCSE, A and AS-level papers. The data could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average annual cost to schools of delivering (a) Key Stage 1, 2 and 3 national tests, (b) GCSEs and (c) A-Levels and AS-Levels; and if he will make a statement. [201206]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority estimates the costs of delivering the national tests for Key Stage 1, Key Stage 2 and Key Stage 3 in 2007/08 to be some £51 million. This is the cost of the delivery contracts for tests. Schools do not pay fees for tests.

GCSEs, and AS and A-Levels are administered by independent awarding bodies. The costs incurred by all local authority maintained schools for test administration and examination entry fees and any accreditation costs related to pupils taking GCSEs, GNVQs, AS and A2 qualifications in 2006-07, which is the most recent year for which figures are available, totalled some £241 million.

The new independent qualifications regulator, Ofqual, will be responsible for regulating the awarding body market to ensure good value for money alongside its responsibilities for maintaining standards. Subject to legislation, we intend that Ofqual will report annually to Parliament on this issue.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children attained (a) Level 1, (b) Level 2, (c) Level 3, (d) Level 4 and (e) Level 5 in (i) Key Stage 1 and (ii)

Key Stage 2 tests in each year since those tests were introduced; and if he will make a statement. [201320]

Further information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Education: Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of education spending in England as a proportion of gross domestic product, expressed to two decimal places, in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [201098]

Jim Knight: Education spend as a proportion of GDP is available only for the UK. The Government will increase UK spending in education as a proportion of GDP from 4.68 per cent. in 1996-97 to 5.55 per cent. in 2008-09 and 2009-10 respectively. The full run of figures from 1996-97 to 2010-11 is tabled as follows:

Educational Psychology: Manpower

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many full-time equivalent educational psychologists each children's services local authority in England employed at the latest date for which a figure is available; [200520]

(2) how many children and young people aged under 20 years old there are per educational psychologist in each children's services local authority in England at the latest date for which figures are available; [200521]

(3) if he will consider issuing guidance to children's services in local authorities in England on the number of educational psychologists who should be employed in each local authority; and if he will make a statement on ensuring an adequate supply of qualified educational psychologists. [200522]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of educational psychologists (EPs) and the number of children per EP employed in local authority maintained schools in each local authority in England in January 2007.

Some local authorities may purchase EP services from other authorities and therefore do not show any EPs in service.

EPs are a key means of supporting some of our most vulnerable children and young people. They play an important role both in assessing individual children's special educational needs and in helping schools to address those needs and behavioural, emotional and social issues.

EPs are employed by local authorities, and it is for those authorities to determine how many to employ in the light of their assessment of local needs and available resources.

It is clearly important that there should be a secure supply of trained EPs to match predicted vacancies. We have asked the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) to act as an intermediary body to oversee subscription arrangements for local authority funding of EP entry training, which replace the previous topslice funding. The CWDC has written to local authorities requesting subscriptions to the 2008 entry training fund, and my noble Friend the Lord Adonis, the Under-Secretary of State responsible for schools and learners, has also written to local authority chief executive officers and directors of children's services emphasising the importance of authorities' supporting training arrangements.

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199197]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Internally (i) all correspondence is carried out electronically and (ii) distribution of publications is monitored by exception, as all publishing is online barring the bi-monthly staff magazine. (b) (i) Most external correspondence received in the Department is processed through the central Public Communications Unit, which monitors the method of response. In 2007 63 per cent. of correspondence was replied to electronically. (b) (ii) The Department has put in place a range of protocols which govern e-mail communications to key stakeholders including all schools all local authorities.

Extended Schools: Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of delivering the extended schools programme in each year from 2007-08 to 2012-13. [200980]

Beverley Hughes: From 2007-08 local authorities were given £238 million to support the development of extended schools in their area. In 2008-09 to 2010-11 a total of £1.3 billion of funding will be made available. Schools are also given an additional £150 million each year through the schools standards grant which can support extended schools activities.

During 2007-08, a total of £9.7 million was split across the three national extended schools delivery partners to help schools and local authorities to deliver extended services. For 2008-09, a total of £9.9 million will be made available. We cannot estimate the costs from 2009 onwards, as the allocation of funding for the delivery partners is completed on an annual basis.

Faith Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary faith schools there were in England in each year from 1997, broken down by faith; and if he will make a statement. [201196]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the following link

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000744/index.shtml

to Statistical First Release "Schools and Pupils in England: January 2007 (Final)". Table 8 gives the information requested for the most recent year; figures for earlier years are available in equivalent publications for those years.

The earliest year for which this information is available electronically is 1998. Figures for this year can be found in volume 'Schools in England 1998', which is available via the following link:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/VOL/v000130/index.shtml

Copies of these publications are available in the Libraries of the House. Further information can be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Folkestone Academy: Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were (a) permanently and (b) temporarily excluded from Folkestone Academy in each month since September 2007; and if he will make a statement. [201066]

Kevin Brennan: Folkestone Academy did not open until September 2007 and therefore information on the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions is not yet available.

Information on exclusions from schools is derived from School Census returns made by schools to the Department. Data on exclusions are collected two terms in arrears, with exclusions data for autumn term 2007 being returned via the May 2008 Census.

Foundation Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have (a) applied for and (b) been granted (i) trust and (ii) foundation status in each (A) month and (B) quarter since 1 January 2005; and if he will make a statement. [201128]

Jim Knight: Schools do not have to apply to the Department for Children, Schools and Families to become a trust or foundation school. A change of school category to foundation and the acquisition of a trust are 'prescribed alterations'. To make such a prescribed alteration the governing body must publish statutory proposals in accordance with provisions are set out in the Education and Inspections Act 2006 and regulations made under that Act. Since 25 May 2007 proposals are decided by the governing body (or the Schools Adjudicator where proposals to acquire a trust have been referred by the local authority). There is no role for Ministers in the decision-making process.

To date 57 schools have acquired a trust under the provisions of the Education and Inspections Act 2006. 108 schools have changed category to foundation since January 2005. These are broken down by month and quarter as follows.

[1] Prior to 25 May 2007, proposals to change category to foundation were decided either by the Schools Organisation Committee or the school's governing body in accordance with the statutory provisions that applied at the time.

In addition to the schools included in the aforementioned table, 19 schools have published proposals to change category to foundation and acquire a foundation—the Department is awaiting confirmation that these particular foundations have been established.

Acquiring a trust or foundation is a way for a range of schools in different circumstances to raise standards, from those that are currently under-performing to those that are leading the way in the education sector as a whole. Trusts are a way for schools to strengthen collaboration and spread best practice among other schools, drawing on the expertise and energy of their partners to support their strategic leadership.

385 schools are on the Trust and Foundation Schools Support programme where they have access to advice and guidance on the processes associated with acquiring a trust and/or foundation.

Free School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the proportion of pupils entitled to free school meals who do not take up their entitlement; and if he will make a statement. [201177]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not available.

We do not collect information on the number of pupils who may be eligible for free school meals but do not register as eligible.

GCE A-level

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of eligible pupils were entered for an A-level examination in 2007, broken down by (a) local authority area and (b) multiple deprivation decile. [201684]

Jim Knight: Information on pupils entered into GCE/VCE/applied A-levels and double awards broken down by multiple deprivation decile can be found in the "DCSF: GCE/VCE A/AS and Equivalent Examination Results in England, 2006/07 (Revised)" statistical first release (SFR), found at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000769/index.shtml

Information broken down by local authority is given as follows. The proportion of eligible pupils can not be provided as DCSF does not hold information on the number of eligible pupils at A-level.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the performance of (a) school sixth forms and (b) sixth form colleges in relation to A-levels; and if he will make a statement. [201406]

Jim Knight: Level 3 (equivalent to two or more A-levels) is broadly similar, once young people's prior attainment at Level 2 (equivalent to five GCSEs A*-C) is taken into account.

Internal analysis shows the average Level 3 attainment score per qualification entry for a sixth form college student is around 2 points higher than for a school sixth-form student, with a similar level of prior attainment. Across a three A-level package of qualifications, the average difference in attainment would be around 6 points which is the equivalent of around a third of a grade. While this difference is statistically significant it is small.

Sixth-form colleges and larger school sixth forms—either operating individually or as part of a consortium—do an outstanding job and are popular with parents and students. We want to encourage more high quality provision of this type, often working in partnership, in order to overcome England's unacceptably low participation rate in education beyond GCSE. Collaboration between schools, and between schools and colleges, will be essential to ensuring that we have a high quality offer for all young people and to support the successful delivery of the 14-19 reform programme.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what proportion of pupils gaining five A* to C GCSEs, including English and mathematics, were awarded five C grades in 2007; [200326]

(2) what proportion of pupils gaining five A* to C GCSEs, including English and mathematics, were awarded a C grade in both English and mathematics in 2007. [200328]

Jim Knight: This information can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many otherwise eligible pupils were not entered for any GCSE examinations in the last year for which figures are available. [200329]

Jim Knight: There were 12,178 (1.88 per cent.) out of a total of 649,159 eligible pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 not entered for any GCSE examinations in the 2006/07 academic year.

However, only 3,099 (0.48 per cent.) out of a total of 649,159 eligible pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 were not entered for any GCSE or equivalent examinations in the 2006/07 academic year. This includes other qualifications approved for use pre-16 such as NVQs, Key Skills and Entry Level Qualifications.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what targets he has set for the proportion of pupils achieving (a) five A* to C GCSEs and (b) five A* to C GCSEs including English and mathematics by (i) 2010 and (ii) 2020; and if he will make a statement. [201075]

Jim Knight: The existing suite of Public Service Agreements (PSAs) targets expires this year, and as part of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR), a new set of PSAs and national targets is to be delivered by 2011. No formal GCSE targets are due for delivery in 2010.

There are currently no formal targets set for 2020, although the Children's Plan, launched last December, sets out the ambition that by 2020 at least 90 per cent. of young people should achieve the equivalent of five higher GCSEs at age 19.

In addition, the new PSA targets have a dual focus on ensuring that pupils reach the levels expected for their age in both English and mathematics (threshold targets) and improving the rates of progress made by pupils from ages 5 to 16 (new progression targets) with increased attention to achieving faster progress for underachieving groups such as children in care and minority ethnic pupils.

The progression targets will be a major factor in helping all pupils—regardless of their background and circumstances—to realise their potential in English and mathematics in particular. By 2011 we want to see a 15 percentage point improvement in the number of pupils making two levels of progress in English and a 13 percentage point improvement in those making two levels of progress in mathematics between Key Stage 3 and Key Stage 4.

The Key Stage 4 (GCSE) threshold target is for 53 per cent. of pupils to achieve 5A*-C GCSEs (and equivalent), including GCSEs in both English and maths by 2011.

In the Budget announcement of 12 March 2008, the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced new funding to bring forward by a year to 2011 the Government's ambition for no school to have less than 30 per cent. of its pupils achieving 5 A*-C at GCSE, including English and maths. This programme is called the National Challenge.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the likely effect on pupils' average GCSE grades of moving to modular GCSEs from September 2009; and if he will make a statement; [201085]

(2) what proportion of GCSEs will be examined in modular form in (a) 2008, (b) 2009, (c) 2010 and (d) 2011; and what proportion were so examined in 2005. [201086]

Jim Knight: It has been open to awarding bodies to propose either linear or modular GCSEs for a considerable time. In 2005 around 27 per cent. of GCSE specifications on which young people were examined were modular. Following changes to GCSE science specifications for first teaching in 2006, around 35 per cent. of specifications are now modular and these will apply to qualifications awarded up to 2010.

GCSE criteria for all subjects other than English, mathematics, ICT and science were revised in 2007, and the provisions allowing either linear or modular GCSEs remained unchanged. Awarding bodies have recently submitted new GCSE specifications for accreditation for first teaching in September 2009. It is not possible to say what proportion of GCSE specifications examined in 2011 will be in modular form until decisions have been taken on accreditation by Ofqual, the independent regulator of qualifications. The outcome of the accreditation process will be made public in the summer.

It is Ofqual's responsibility, as regulator, to ensure that standards are maintained so that students achieve the appropriate grade based on their knowledge, understanding and skills, regardless of whether the specification they are studying is modular or not. All GCSE specifications require that students undertake at least 40 per cent. of their assessment at the end of the course, and students are only able to retake individual modules of their GCSEs once.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of eligible pupils were not entered for an English, mathematics, science nor foreign language GCSE in each year since 1997. [201239]

Jim Knight: The readily available information is as follows:

There were 367.2 thousand pupils, approximately 57 per cent. of eligible pupils, who were not entered for English, mathematics, science and a modern language GCSE at the end of Key Stage 4 in the 2006/07 academic year.

There were 332.7 thousand pupils, approximately 52 per cent. of eligible pupils, who were not entered for English, mathematics, science and a modern language GCSE at the end of Key Stage 4 in the 2005/2006 academic year.

There were 269.8 thousand pupils, approximately 43 per cent. of eligible pupils, who were not entered for English, mathematics, science and a modern language GCSE at the end of Key Stage 4 in the 2004/05 academic year.

Further information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) in which local authority areas more than 80 per cent. of secondary schools did not have over 50 per cent. of pupils achieving five or more A* to C GCSEs in 2007, including English and mathematics; [201471]

(2) how many and what proportion of secondary schools did not have 30 per cent. or more of Key Stage 4 pupils obtaining at least five A* to C GCSEs, including English and mathematics, for each year from 1990 to 2007; and if he will make a statement; [201055]

(3) what the top 10 schools by (a) contextual value-added scores and (b) improved GCSE results over the previous year were in 2007; [201056]

(4) which 20 local authorities had the highest proportion of secondary school children in schools achieving less than 30 per cent. five A* to C grade at

GCSE including English and mathematics in 2007; and if he will make a statement; [201060]

(5) which 20 local authorities had the lowest performance in terms of the change in the proportion of their Key Stage 4 pupils achieving five or more A* to C GCSEs including English and mathematics between 1997 and 2007; and if he will make a statement. [201050]

Jim Knight: The information for the past four years can be obtained from the Achievement and Attainment Tables found in the House of Commons Library. Information for other years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Disadvantaged

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of white British boys eligible for free school meals achieved (a) no GCSE passes and (b) fewer than five GCSE passes at grade A* to C including English and mathematics in each year since 1995. [201051]

Jim Knight: The available information is in the following table; further information covering earlier years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Number of white British boys at the end of Key Stage 4 on free school meals	Percentage who did not achieve: 5+ A*-C at GCSE and equivalents	5+ A*-C at GCSE and equivalents including English and mathematics	Any qualification

Gifted Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether schools are required to inform parents when their children are identified as gifted and talented; and if he will make a statement. [201079]

Jim Knight: There is no legal requirement for schools to inform parents when their children are identified as gifted and talented but we strongly encourage all schools to do so as children benefit from the involvement of parents in support for their learning.

Gifted Children: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what his most recent estimate is of spending by his Department on the gifted and talented programme in each year from 2008-09 to 2011-12; and if he will make a statement; [200987]

(2) how much has been spent on the gifted and talented programme in each year since it was established; [201081]

(3) how much his Department plans to spend on the gifted and talented programme in each of the next five financial years; and if he will make a statement. [201082]

Jim Knight: The Department has historically spent between £10-£20 million annually on delivering gifted and talented education. Information on the cost of the contracts to deliver the gifted and talented programme is commercial in confidence. Projected figures after 2011 are not available because of the spending review.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the funding awarded to schools to support children identified as gifted and talented is ring-fenced; and if he will make a statement. [201080]

Jim Knight: Primary and secondary schools are together receiving some £1 billion, last financial year and this (i.e. 2006-08), to support personalised education for all pupils, including gifted and talented learners. The proportion of this funding that schools have available for gifted and talented education is decided locally.

Grammar Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children attended grammar schools in each year since 1996; what proportion of the secondary school population this represented in each year; and if he will make a statement. [201181]

Jim Knight: The requested information is given in the following table:

History: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of Key Stage 4 pupils took a GCSE course in history in each year from 1988 to 2007. [201140]

Jim Knight: Figures relating to pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 are only readily available for the past three years:

	Percentage of pupils at the end of the Key Stage 4 who attempted GCSE History

Languages: Education

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children aged (a) under 11, (b) between 11 and 16 and (c) between 17 and 18 years studied a foreign language in each of the last five years. [202230]

Jim Knight: Information on the subjects studied by children at schools is not held centrally by the Department. We can, however, provide figures for children attempting foreign language qualifications at GCSE and A-level. Information on the learning aims of post-16 learners is available from the School Census and the Individual Learner Record from colleges but can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows the number of attempts in GCSEs in modern foreign languages for the past five years.

Pupils attempting GCSEs in modern foreign languages

	Number (Thousand)
2007	301.6
2006	327.0
2005	375.3
2004	437.2
2003	453.9

Note: From 2005, figures are based on pupils at the end of key stage 4; prior to 2005, figures are based on 15-year-old pupils (age at start of school year).

Languages: GCE A-Level

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of those taking an A-level in a modern language were pupils in state-funded schools in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [201203]

Jim Knight: The percentage of GCE A-level modern foreign language entries that were taken by pupils in maintained schools and colleges in each year since 1997 is given as follows:

	Percentage of GCE A level modern foreign language entries that were taken by pupils in maintained schools and colleges	Percentage of all GCE A level entries that were taken by pupils in maintained schools and colleges
1997/98	70.1	83.3

	Percentage of GCE A level modern foreign language entries that were taken by pupils in maintained schools and colleges	Percentage of all GCE A level entries that were taken by pupils in maintained schools and colleges
1998/99	69.0	83.3
1999/2000	67.9	83.7
2000/01	68.0	84.0
2001/02	66.3	83.8
2002/03	64.8	83.8
2003/04	64.8	83.7
2004/05	65.4	84.6
2005/06	66.5	84.6
2006/07	67.7	84.9

The figures relate to 16 to 18-year-olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August).

Languages: Teachers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what minimum level of foreign language qualification is required for a teacher to teach foreign languages to (a) GCSE and (b) A-level. [201107]

Jim Knight: The Standards for trainee teachers do not set a minimum level of foreign language qualification for a teacher to teach foreign languages to GCSE or A-level. In order to take up employment as a teacher, a trainee should have successfully completed a course of initial teacher training, met all of the standards required of a skilled teacher, including passing the professional skills tests in numeracy, literacy and information and communications technology and been awarded Qualified Teacher Status (QTS).

All qualified teachers in England must have a first degree or equivalent qualification but this does not have to be in a specified subject or discipline. The Standards include a requirement that trainees have a secure knowledge and understanding of their subjects to enable them to teach effectively across the age and ability range for which they are trained. Trainees are required to meet all of the Standards, including the subject expectations, before QTS can be awarded.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent in developing the early years foundation stage profile. [201671]

Jim Knight: £1,349,495 has been spent by the Qualifications Curriculum Authority (QCA) on the development and running of the foundation stage profile (FSP) from 2001—April 2008. The FSP will become the early years foundation stage profile (EYFSP) from September 2008 and the total anticipated expenditure for developing materials in this financial year is £368,237.

Primary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects to publish the Rose review of the primary curriculum; and if he will make a statement. [201063]

Jim Knight: We have asked Sir Jim Rose to provide an interim report of his review of the primary curriculum by the end of October 2008 and to provide his final advice and recommendations by the end of March 2009.

Pupil Referral Units

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils have been educated for longer than three years in a pupil referral unit. [200327]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the suitability of facilities at pupil referral units; and if he will make a statement. [201097]

Kevin Brennan: We expect local authorities to provide a good standard of facilities for pupils educated in pupil referral units. We issued guidance on suitable learning environments for pupil referral units in February 2007 in response to Ofsted concerns that many pupil referral units have poor accommodation. We are currently working on implementing commitments set out in the Children's Plan to improve the quality of pupil referral units and other alternative provision.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were educated in pupil referral units in each year since 1996-97. [201135]

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000744/index.shtml

to Statistical First Release "Schools and Pupils in England: January 2007 (Final)". Table 1 gives the information requested. Copies of this publication have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were being educated in pupil referral units in each local authority area in England in the latest period for which figures are available. [201683]

Jim Knight: The latest available information relates to 2007 and is published in the Statistical First Release 'Schools and Pupils in England' which is available at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000744/index.shtml.

The headcount of pupils in pupil referral units in each local authority is in table 12 and the full time equivalent number of pupils in each local authority is in table 13.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the ratio of all pupils to pupil referral units is in each local authority. [201857]

Jim Knight: The Department does not calculate a ratio for the number of all pupils in a local authority to the number of pupil referral units.

The latest available information on the number of pupil referral units and the number of pupils relates to 2007 and is published in the Statistical First Release "Schools and Pupils in England" which is available at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000744/index.shtml

The headcount of pupils by type of school in each local authority is available in table 12 and the full-time equivalent number of pupils is in table 13. The number of pupil referral units in each local authority can be found in table 11.

Pupil Referral Units: Arrests

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in pupil referral units were arrested in each of the last 10 years. [201854]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Pupils: Absenteeism

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many fixed penalty notices have been issued in each local authority in relation to condoned absenteeism of pupils in each year since 2003; and if he will make a statement. [201040]

Kevin Brennan: The Department began collecting data in September 2004 on the number of penalty notices issued by local authorities to parents in respect of the offence of failing to ensure their children's regular school attendance. Between 1 September 2004 to 31 December 2007, the data on the number of penalty notices issued by each local authority in England are available at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/behaviourandattendance/about/data.cfm

Pupils: Disadvantaged

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the proportion of pupils entitled to free school meals in (a) all secondary schools, (b) the top performing 100 secondary schools and (c) the bottom performing 100 secondary schools. [201053]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the following link:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000744/index.shtml

to Statistical First Release "Schools and Pupils in England: January 2007 (Final)" where table 3 contains the information requested for all secondary schools. Copies of this publication have been placed in the Libraries of the House. School level performance information showing free school meal eligibility has also been placed in the House Library. Further information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in which schools more than 50 per cent. of pupils were entitled to free school meals in the latest period for which figures are available. [201139]

Jim Knight: The requested information has been placed in the House Library.

Pupils: Dyslexia

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the proportion of children of school age with dyslexia; and what assessment he has made of the effects of their condition on schooling needs; [202172]

(2) what provision has been made for teaching children with dyslexia within his Department's (a) Every Child a Reader, (b) Every Child a Writer and (c) Every Child Counts programmes; [202173]

(3) if he will take steps to ensure there is at least one teacher with specialist training in teaching children with dyslexia on the staff of every school; [202174]

(4) if he will take steps to reduce the number of children with dyslexia who do not succeed in school. [202175]

Kevin Brennan: Our latest figures for pupils in schools with specific learning difficulties (including dyslexia) show there are 75,920 pupils either with a statement of special educational need (SEN) or supported through School Action Plus. We do not collect data on the particular special educational needs of the tenth of all pupils who are supported through School Action.

All local authorities and schools must have regard to the Special Educational Needs Code of Practice which provides advice on their statutory duties to identify, assess and make provision for pupils' special educational needs. Children with dyslexia should have their needs identified and support put in place, as advised through the code.

To help those working in schools with identifying and supporting children with dyslexia, last October we launched the Inclusion Development Programme, which is offering professional development in key areas of SEN starting with training on communication difficulties, including dyslexia. The Inclusion Development Programme materials were developed in close consultation with dyslexia organisations.

To identify and promote best practice, we are working with dyslexia organisations on the No to Failure Project, through which children in trailblazer schools are screened and specialist teaching provided to those identified at risk of dyslexia and other specific learning difficulties. We are supporting this project with just over £1 million funding over three years.

The recently published report from No to Failure says a significant proportion of participating children not achieving expected levels of attainment are at risk of dyslexia or other specific learning difficulties. However, the report does not indicate how many children had already been identified with SEN, nor does it evaluate the impact of specialist teaching on children's progression. We are looking forward to seeing the final report later this year, which we understand will contain such an evaluation.

Through No to Failure, we have commissioned Dr. Chris Singleton to summarise published research on the impact of specialist dyslexia teaching. We will consider whether and how we should promote specialist dyslexia teaching as best practice in the light of evidence of its impact.

Our commitment through the Primary and Secondary National Strategies is to ensure Quality First teaching for all. The Every Child a Reader and Every Child Counts initiatives are focused on providing additional intervention for the 5 per cent. of children facing the most difficulties with reading and mathematics. They do not provide a specific focus on provision for children with dyslexia. Every Child a Reader is being rolled out to reach 30,000 children a year by 2010/11.

Every Child Counts is currently in a research phase and will be informed by the Williams Review of the teaching of mathematics that is due to be published in June this year. The intention is that Every Child Counts will be aimed at children whose attainment in the early stages of mathematics shows they are not making expected progress for their age.

Every Child a Writer is a new programme announced at the end of last year. The intention—as stated in our Children's Plan—is that this will offer support later in primary school than Every Child a Reader and Every Child Counts and reach a greater number of pupils. Further announcements will be made about Every Child a Writer in due course.

Evaluations of the Every Child a Reader pilot—which provides Reading Recovery for children from among those having the most difficulties in learning to read —were published in 2006 and 2007. These are available on www.everychildareader.org.uk. The evaluation of Every Child a Reader in London in 2005/06 showed that 87 per cent. of children who had received Reading Recovery were considered to have made average to exceptional progress in reading comprehension. However, these evaluations did not include looking at the efficacy of Reading Recovery for children with dyslexia.

The SEN Code of Practice says that "effective management, school ethos and the learning environment, curricular, pastoral and discipline arrangements can help prevent some special educational needs arising, and minimise others" (paragraph 5:18). Where whole school arrangements for teaching and learning are not addressing a child's learning difficulties, schools have a statutory duty to do their best to ensure that the necessary provision is made for any pupil who has special educational needs. It follows that if a child with dyslexia is not benefiting from their participation in any or all of the three initiatives, the school must make additional or different arrangements to address the child's special educational needs.

Runaway Children

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to improve the collection of data on child runaways. [200383]

Kevin Brennan: A new indicator on young people who run away from home or care has been included in the National Indicator Set, to be measured from April 2009.

Following The Children's Society report Stepping Up (August 2007) a cross-Departmental working group on young runaways was established, supported by a consultative group made up of experts from the voluntary sector. Immediate activities for the working group include consideration of data collection mechanisms which will best support the new indicator. I am expecting a progress report from the working group on this in June, and full technical consultation on the indicator will take place in autumn 2008.

In addition to developing the new indicator, the working group are also developing an action plan to be published in June which will set out ongoing actions for improvements to services for young runaways at local, regional and national level; reviewing the Missing from Care and Home guidance (2002) and carrying out a review of emergency accommodation provision for young runaways.

School Day

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have lunch breaks of less than 60 minutes; and if he will make a statement. [201209]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not held centrally by the Department.

School Leaving: Finance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the annual cost to his Department of compulsory education to the age of 18 years. [201701]

Jim Knight: Our proposals would not introduce compulsory education, but compulsory participation in some form of learning—young people will be able to participate in education, training, or a combination of employment and training.

The estimated costs and benefits of raising the participation age are set out in the Impact Assessment published alongside the Education and Skills Bill on 29 November. Annual costs were estimated at £774 million per cohort of young people, but recurring net benefits were estimated at around £1,626 million.

Costs will continue to be reviewed and revised estimates will be published on the website. The Impact Assessment can be accessed at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/publications/educationandskills/docs/Impact_Assessment_Education_and_Skills_Bill.pdf and I have placed a copy in the House Library.

School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether his Department met its target to increase the uptake of school meals by March 2008; and if he will make a statement; [201122]

(2) how much his Department and its predecessors spent on school meals provision in each financial year since 2000-01; and what its planned expenditure is in each financial year from 2008-09 to 2011-12; [201125]

(3) how many local authority school meal services were in deficit in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement; [201142]

(4) how many and what proportion of pupils in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools had school meals in (i) 2001, (ii) 2004, (iii) 2005, (iv) 2006 and (v) 2007; what the equivalent figures are to date in 2008; what target has been set for school meal consumption in (A) 2009, (B) 2010 and (C) 2011; and if he will make a statement. [201208]

Kevin Brennan: Increasing the take-up of school lunches remains a priority for this Department and for the School Food Trust (SFT), as demonstrated by the fact that it is one of the indicators in the new Child Health PSA and is one of the indicators in the National Indicator Set—PSA 12 of the 2007 CSR ('Improve the health and well-being of children and young people'); and an indicator of the local government National Indicator Set (NIS) (NI52—Take-up of school lunches).

The SFT is currently undertaking its third annual survey of school lunch take-up, which will provide information on the current position. The results of the survey will be announced at the Local Authority Caterers' Association annual conference in July 2008.

The Department does not fund school meals' provision. That is the responsibility of local authorities, schools, parents and carers. However, this Government are investing £656 million to support school meals provision between 2005-11. This figure can be broken down as follows:

2005-06	61
2006-07	87
2007-08	89.5
2008-09	242
2009-10	89

We do not have data on how many school meal services were in deficit in 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08.

In response to question 201208, I would refer the hon. Member to the response that I gave on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 400W.

School Meals: Prices

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to prevent increases in the prices of school meals; and if he will make a statement. [201859]

Kevin Brennan: The Government are taking forward a number of steps to help to keep down the price of school meals. We are investing over £650 million between 2005-11 to help raise nutritional standards and keep school lunch prices down. This funding is also being used to help build kitchens in areas with no kitchen facilities; to better support the development of training centres for the school food workforce; and to improve overall take-up.

The School Food Trust is working with manufacturers, caterers and schools to ensure the long term sustainability and efficiency of the country's school food service. They are working with food producers and manufacturers to ensure that the nutrient menus have a minimum effect on the price of school meals as well as working on kitchen efficiencies, including both skilling the workforce and looking at international business models. The Trust has produced guidance focusing on efficient and sustainable school food procurement. This guidance is being distributed to all schools in April 2008.

The Department is working in close alliance with the Trust and other Departments, to identify opportunities and develop initiatives to further improve efficiencies in procurement. These include price benchmark variance reporting, common food standards and terms and conditions to support local and national competitive tendering, as well as the use of shared contracts from other Departments, where they can be shown to meet the needs of schools.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of selection by ability in local authority areas with grammar schools on educational provision; and if he will make a statement. [201048]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has not made a comprehensive assessment of the effects of selection by ability in local authorities with grammar schools. We remain opposed to selection by ability and legislation prevents admission authorities from introducing new selection of this type. Grammar and partially selective schools already selecting in this way at the beginning of the 1997/98 academic year may continue to do so, with decisions on whether individual schools should continue to do so being made at a local level. Parents may object to the Adjudicator about continuing partial selection, and mechanisms are in place to allow parents to vote to remove selection at grammar schools.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans his Department has to collect information on oversubscription criteria used by schools admissions authorities; and if he will make a statement. [201049]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has asked the schools adjudicator to report to him on compliance with the statutory requirements on admissions, in respect of 2009 admission arrangements and annually thereafter. To inform his 2009 report, to be submitted to the Secretary of State on 1 September 2008, the adjudicator has written to all local authorities asking them to submit to him a full set of admission arrangements for all schools in their area, and their account of the legality, fairness and effectiveness of those arrangements. We will be tabling a government amendment to the Education and Skills Bill which would place a duty on local authorities to submit reports on school admissions to the schools adjudicator in future years which will assist him in producing future reports.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of the legal advice his Department received on the publication of the school admissions review on 2 April 2008; and if he will make a statement. [201084]

Jim Knight: It is essential that Government departments have access to high quality and comprehensive legal advice. This allows for decisions to be taken in a fully informed context. It is vital that Ministers and officials are able to consult lawyers in confidence in order to obtain effective legal advice in a forum which is conducive to a candid exchange of views and consideration and assessment of potential risks without fear of disclosure. Disclosure of legal advice is very likely to prejudice the Government's ability to conduct its business effectively and to defend its legal interests, either by unfairly exposing its legal position to challenge or by reducing the reliance it can place on the advice it has received. For these reasons, disclosure of legal advice would not be in the public interest.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) for what reasons specialist schools are allowed to select up to 10 per cent. of pupils by aptitude; and if he will make a statement; [201091]

(2) what systems of assessment are used by schools which select by aptitude; and if he will make a statement; [201093]

(3) what guidance his Department has issued on selection by aptitude; how this differs from guidance issued on selection by ability; and if he will make a statement. [201179]

Jim Knight: A school may select up to 10 per cent. of its intake by aptitude in prescribed subjects if the school considers it has a specialism, whether or not the school is a designated specialist school. It recognises the diversity of such schools, increases choices for parents and widens access to particular schools. We have published guidance in the school admissions code on aptitude selection which states that a child with aptitude is one who is identified as being able to benefit from teaching in a specific subject, or who demonstrates a particular capacity to succeed in that subject. Such selection is limited to subjects where there are recognised tests for aptitude which do not inadvertently identify high academic ability. Schools may also hold auditions or oral or practical tests to ascertain a child's aptitude. Prescribed subjects are modern foreign languages, performing or visual arts and physical education or sport. Schools may continue to select 10 per cent. by aptitude in design and technology and ICT if they already had such arrangements in place prior to the 2008 academic year.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what proportion of secondary schools are fully or partially selective by ability; and if he will make a statement; [201092]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 3 December 2007, Official Report, columns 971-72W, on schools: admissions, which the 40 schools referred to are. [201100]

Jim Knight: There are 164 schools designated as grammar schools under section 104 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. We do not collect the data on the proportion of secondary schools which are fully or partially selective by ability. The 40 schools which the Department are aware of which the hon. Member refers to in his question are shown in the following table.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will require admissions forums to publish an annual report on the extent to which admissions arrangements in their areas are operating fairly; and if he will make a statement. [201095]

Jim Knight: Legislation provides admission forums with a power to produce annual reports on the effectiveness of admission arrangements in their area, to feed into the School Commissioner's biennial report to Parliament on fair access.

As part of our recent announcements to strengthen the school admissions framework and ensure more compliance with the School Admissions Code and admissions legislation, we published, on 2 April, draft amendments to the Education and Skills Bill for consideration at Commons Report to place a duty on local authorities to report annually to the Schools Adjudicator on the legality, fairness, and effectiveness of admission arrangements in their areas. This duty on local authorities is in line with their role to monitor compliance with the statutory admissions framework and their duty to ensure fair access to educational opportunity. Copies of these draft amendments are available in the House Library.

We also signalled that we will publish detailed proposals in the early summer to further strengthen the admission system, which will include improvements to admission forums.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the role of the schools adjudicator is in monitoring and enforcing the code of admissions; and if he will make a statement. [201096]

Jim Knight: The school's adjudicator considers objections to admission arrangements where the admission authority concerned fails to comply with the mandatory provisions of the school admissions code, or does not follow its guidelines. Local authorities have a duty to refer to the adjudicator the admission arrangements of any school if it appears to them that they do not comply with the law or the mandatory requirements of the code. The Secretary of State made a statement to Parliament on 2 April in which he outlined his proposals to extend the role of the schools adjudicator to ensure that all admission arrangements are legal, fair and effective.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which local authorities use a system of authority-wide fair banding for school admissions; [201108]

(2) which 10 local authorities select the highest proportion of their secondary school children by ability; and what proportion of secondary school pupils were educated in selective schools in each of those authorities in the last year for which figures are available. [201058]

Jim Knight: We do not collect the information asked; however Sheffield Hallam University carried out research into secondary school admissions for 2006 (published in January 2008) which showed only a small minority of schools use banding. Three local authorities Greenwich, Lewisham and Tower Hamlets had authority-wide banding. Sheffield Hallam found that the following 10 authorities select the highest proportion of their secondary school children by ability.

	Total places	Selective places	Non-selective places	Percentage selective places	Percentage non-selective places
Trafford	3,066	1,200	1,866	39.14	60.86
Southend-on-Sea	2,178	750	1,428	34.44	65.56
Buckinghamshire	5,794	1,980	3,814	34.17	65.83
Slough	1,557	530	1,027	34.04	65.96
Kent	16,781	4,830	11,951	28.78	71.22
Bexley	3,451	991	2,460	28.72	71.28

Poole	1,705	360	1,345	21.11	78.89

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what research he has commissioned on schools admission arrangements; and if he will make a statement; [201109]

(2) what research his Department has commissioned on the effects of selection by aptitude; what assessment he has made of the merits of such selection; and if he will make a statement; [201110]

(3) what research his Department has commissioned on the merits of selection by aptitude in the last three years; and if he will make a statement; [201178]

(4) what research his Department has commissioned on selection procedures in schools using partial selection in the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [201180]

Jim Knight: The Department commissioned Sheffield Hallam university, in conjunction with the National Centre for Social Research, to undertake a comprehensive study of school admission arrangements in England. This study mapped the arrangements for all admission authorities of secondary schools and examined the experiences of parents and careers who applied for places in secondary schools for September 2006.

This report examines the major issues concerning school admissions, including regulation, coordination, oversubscription criteria (including banding, selection by attainment and selection by aptitude) and appeals. The full report was published in January 2008 and is available from the DCSF Research and Statistics Gateway:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the proportion of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools using faith-based criteria for admissions in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [201186]

(2) if he will make it his policy to collect information on the number of maintained schools which select by faith; and if he will make a statement. [201304]

Jim Knight: The latest figures published by the Department show that in January 2007 there were 6,255 maintained primary schools and 587 maintained secondary schools designated by the Secretary of State as having a religious character. These schools are permitted to use faith-based oversubscription criteria in order to give higher priority to children who are members of, or practice, their faith. The Department does not collect information on how many of these schools do or do not use faith-based oversubscription criteria.

As signalled in our statement to the House on 2 April, we will be tabling an amendment to the Education and Skills Bill which would place a duty on local authorities to produce a report on school admissions, to be submitted annually to the Schools Adjudicator.

We intend for these reports to include information about the admission arrangements for schools in their area and this could include, in the case of schools designated as having a religious character, whether they give higher priority to children who are members of, or practice, their faith.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the level of intra-year pupil turnover at the 50 schools in England with the highest levels of intra-year pupil turnover in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201189]

Jim Knight: The requested information could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of fully subscribed schools which have not been approved for expansion on the grounds of (a) neighbouring schools having surplus places and (b) unavailability of local authority capital funding. [201591]

Jim Knight: School place planning is a local matter and it is for the local authority and individual schools to decide whether to consult on, and then publish, statutory proposals to expand a school. Following publication of any statutory proposals, the final decision would be taken by the local authority or schools adjudicator, or, prior to 25 May 2007, the local School Organisation Committee or schools adjudicator.

Since January 2003 statutory proposals to expand nine schools have been rejected. The Department does not maintain records of whether the schools were oversubscribed or the reasons for rejection and we have made no estimate of rejections due to neighbouring schools having surplus places or the unavailability of local authority capital funding. The Department has no information on other cases where a school, or local authority, have decided not to proceed to publish expansion proposals.

Each local authority is allocated significant amounts of capital through a range of different programmes that can be joined-up and used flexibly according to local priorities. Additional resources are also available through the new Primary Capital Programme and, through application, for the expansion of successful and popular schools from the Standards and Diversity Targeted Capital Fund. The Government have made it clear that the wishes of parents should be taken into account in planning school place provision and that they want to encourage successful and popular schools to expand to meet parental demand.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many parental representations made to local authorities have been referred to his Department since the publication of Expanding a Maintained Mainstream School or Adding a Sixth Form: A Guide for Local Authorities and Governing Bodies in March 2008; and how many have been referred in the last 12 months. [201592]

Jim Knight: No parental representations have been received since March 2008 and one has been received in the past 12 months.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have more than 1,500 pupils, broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile. [201687]

Jim Knight: The requested information is shown in the table:

All state funded secondary schools [1,2], Number and percentage of schools with more than 1,500 pupils by level of deprivation of school [3]—Number of schools by Band. England, as at January 2007

Schools: Catering

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each local authority area had (i) no kitchen facilities for producing school meals and (ii) no daily access to hot school meals for pupils in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201207]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given previously for question number 187150.

Schools: Class Sizes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average (a) primary and (b) secondary class sizes in the 20 (i) highest and (ii) lowest deprivation local authority areas; and if he will make a statement. [201192]

Jim Knight: The requested information has been placed in the House Library.

Schools: Curriculum

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what guidance his Department provides to schools on the proportion of teaching time which should be allocated to (a) English and (b) mathematics at Key Stage (i) 1, (ii) 2 and (iii) 3; and if he will make a statement; [200990]

(2) what funding he plans to allocate to schools for new curriculum requirements on (a) cookery and (b) culture; and if he will make a statement; [201059]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2008, Official Report, column 1096W, on food: secondary education, for what reasons cookery lessons will be compulsory in all maintained schools other than academies; and if he will make a statement; [201321]

(4) what guidance his Department has issued to schools on the amount of weekday education in cultural subjects to be delivered; and if he will make a statement. [201322]

Jim Knight: The statutory national curriculum programmes of study set out what is to be taught in each subject, not how it is to be taught, nor for how many hours each week. The Department does not prescribe the amount of time that should be allocated to the teaching of English, mathematics or culture. However, the Rose Review of the teaching of reading recommended that 15-20 minutes a day should be spent on the teaching of phonics in order to secure children's early reading, particular during key stage 1.

In February 2008 the Government announced a £25 million Find Your Talent programme of 10 pilots that will trial different ways of offering young people a range of cultural experiences for at least five hours a week, both in and out of school. The pilots will test a variety of approaches to a cultural offer over the next three years and will build on the considerable amount of cultural activity already taking place, and provided by a range of partners in addition to schools.

In compulsory food technology lessons pupils will be taught a broad range of practical skills and techniques and how to use them to develop, plan and cook a range of dishes. They will also learn about health and safety, the characteristics of a broad range of ingredients and a balanced diet. This will equip them with the skills, knowledge and understanding they need to eat a healthy, balanced diet. This new curriculum for food technology will be introduced from September 2008 and will become compulsory from September 2011. From September 2011 schools will share £2.5 million a year towards the cost of ingredients for pupils on free school meals.

Schools: Facilities

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what guidance his Department has issued to (a) local authorities, (b) head teachers and (c) school governors on hygiene and the cleaning and maintenance of school toilet facilities; [201216]

(2) if he will assess the availability of fresh drinking water in schools for (a) pupils and (b) staff; and if he will make a statement. [201215]

Jim Knight: Although we have not issued discrete advice on hygiene and the maintenance and cleaning of school toilets, the Department's guidance on standard specifications for secondary schools, "Toilets in Schools" at http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/docbank/index.cfm?id=12420

makes clear the importance of well-designed and well-maintained facilities, so that pupils can and will readily make use of them.

We have no plans to assess the availability of drinking water in schools. The Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999 require schools to have a wholesome supply of water for domestic purposes including a supply of drinking water. The responsibility for ensuring maintained schools' compliance with the regulations rests with local authorities.

Schools: Sales

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many former school sites have been sold since 1997. [201700]

Jim Knight: We do not hold this information. Although local authorities and maintained schools in England need consent before they can dispose of a school playing field or any part of a school playing field, they do not require approval to sell buildings, or the marginal non-playing field land surrounding those buildings. Such decisions are made locally.

Schools: Sports

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools played inter-school sport in the latest period for which figures are available. [201867]

Kevin Brennan: The 2006/07 PE and School Sport Survey found that 94.1 per cent. of primary schools and 99.8 per cent. of secondary schools provided inter-school competition for their pupils.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which publicly funded agencies and departmental bodies are responsible for raising standards in schools; and if he will make a statement. [201437]

Jim Knight: Within their specific areas of responsibility, all the Department's agencies and other bodies which work with schools work to raise standards and narrow attainment gaps.

The main departmental bodies helping schools to raise standards are:

British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (BECTA)

National Strategies

National College for School Leadership (NCSL)

Ofsted

Partnerships for schools (PfS)

Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA).

Schools: Water

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much (a) water and (b) electricity was used by schools in (i) 2001, (ii) 2002, (iii) 2003, (iv) 2004, (v) 2005, (vi) 2006 and (vii) 2007. [200310]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have information on the volumes of water and electricity supplied to all schools in England. However, we have gathered benchmarking information on electricity and water use for the years 2001-2006 for a sample of schools. This has been analysed to determine average water use per pupil and electricity use per square metre of floor area as summarised in the following tables.

Average annual water consumption (cu.m/pupil)

Science: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many school pupils were studying for (a) biology, (b) chemistry and (c) physics GCSEs at the latest date for which figures are available, broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile. [201688]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Secondary Education: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the attainment gap at Key Stage 4 between children in (a) the 10 per cent. most deprived and (b) the 10 per cent least deprived local authorities; what this gap was in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [201089]

Jim Knight: The information can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many eligible pupils did not obtain level 4 in a combination of reading, writing and mathematics tests in Key Stage 2 tests in 2007, broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile. [201241]

Jim Knight: Figures broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Some related figures can be found at the following:

National figures for pupils achieving level 4 or above in a combination of reading, writing and mathematics can be found in 'DCSF: National Curriculum Assessments at Key Stage 2 in England, 2007 (Provisional)' found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000737/index.shtml (Table 5)

National and Government Office Region level figures of pupils achieving level 4 or above in English, Mathematics and Science broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile can be found in 'DCSF: National Curriculum Assessment, GCSE and Equivalent Attainment and Post-16 Attainment by Pupil Characteristics, in England 2006/07' found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000759/index.shtml (Table 1).

Sixth Form Education: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to publish the research conducted by KPMG on the funding gap between school sixth forms and further education colleges, as referred to on page 37 of the Learning and Skills Council Statement of Priorities, 2008-09 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [201205]

Jim Knight: As set out in the Learning and Skills Council's Statement of Priorities (November 2007), a common 16-18 funding approach for schools, colleges and providers will be introduced from 2008/09. This will support better partnership and collaboration between institutions and is key to the successful delivery of the 14-19 reforms.

In line with Cabinet Office guidance there are no plans to publish the KPMG report in the period leading up to the local elections. However, we aim to publish it thereafter.

Specialised Diplomas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils had registered to study for diplomas from September 2008 at the latest date for which figures are available. [201242]

Jim Knight: Students register for diplomas, as they do other qualifications, over a period of time between March and September. Schools and colleges will continue to revise numbers of students choosing particular courses between now and September.

Specialised Schools

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many maintained schools have specialist status, broken down by specialism. [201699]

Jim Knight: There are 2,880 maintained schools which have specialist school status. The breakdown of those schools by specialism is shown in the following table:

Maintained Specialist Schools, April 2008

	Number
Arts colleges	476
Business and enterprise	249
Engineering colleges	57
Humanities colleges	116
Language colleges	220
Maths and computing	272
Music colleges	26
Science colleges	316
Sports colleges	382
Technology colleges	564
Combined specialism	125
SEN specialism	77
Total maintained specialist schools	2,880

Specialist Schools and Academic Trust: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what financial contribution his Department and its predecessors made (a) directly and (b) indirectly to the Specialist Schools and Academic Trust in each financial year since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [201124]

Jim Knight: The DCSF funds SSAT through a range of grants and contracts to support the Specialist Schools and Academies Programmes and a range of other activities designed to raise pupil achievement. The total financial contribution made to SSAT over the last six years for which we have final information is: £2.395 million in 2001-02; £4.371 million in 2002-03; £11.326 million in 2003-04; £17.796 million in 2004-05; £24,350 million in 2005-06; and £35.152 million in 2006-07. Once accounts are finalised, we expect the contribution for 2007-08 will be in the region of £44 million. Within each grant and contract funded by the Department, a proportion of funding will cover the associated direct and indirect delivery costs, as appropriate for each programme.

Supplementary Schools: Finance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department provided for supplementary schools in each of the last five years; what funding it plans to provide in the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [200353]

Jim Knight: The Department does not provide direct funding to supplementary schools. However, last year, in partnership with the Paul Hamlyn Foundation, the Department contributed £596,000 towards funding the establishment of a National Resource Centre for Supplementary Education. This funding was initially planned to end on 31 March this year but as announced to the House on 26 February the Department has extended it to ensure that the centre's valuable work continues. In 2008-09 the Department will make available a grant of £350,000 and up to a similar amount in 2009-10 with arrangements to give the centre an incentive to become self-sufficient as early as possible. One key aim of the centre is to promote links between supplementary schools, local authorities and mainstream schools.

Supply Teachers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of spending on supply teachers in maintained schools in each year from 1997-98. [201129]

Jim Knight: The value of spend on supply teachers in maintained schools in each year from 1997-98 was as follows:

	Supply teaching staff	Agency supply teaching staff	Total
2002/03	484,510,938	356,530,225	841,041,163
2003/04	462,741,309	372,491,669	835,232,978
2004/05	438,806,050	384,905,468	823,711,518
2005/06	454,848,557	434,073,749	888,922,306
2006/07	117,646,342	268,443,722	386,090,064

Prior to 2002/03 expenditure on supply teachers was not separately identifiable and so this data is not available. Data for the period 2007/08 has yet to be fully collated and so too is omitted from the aforementioned table.

The Department's Educational Procurement Centre (EPC) is currently undertaking a Temporary Workers in Education project. This aims to provide schools (initially in London) with an accessible, quality driven electronic one stop shop for their temporary staff requirements. Two key benefits of this project will be safeguarding and efficiencies. All participating agencies will hold the DCSF Recruitment Employment Confederation (REC) Quality Mark, thereby meeting the requirements of the Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education guidance. All London boroughs will be able to benefit from a safe and value adding quality central service, reducing their own resourcing requirement in relation to temporary staff and allow them to redirect to other needs.

Teachers: Career Structure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to enhance continuing professional development opportunities for teachers; and if he will make a statement. [201045]

Jim Knight: Ongoing engagement in effective Continuing Professional Development (CPD) that makes a positive difference to teachers' effectiveness is essential if we are to achieve our aim of a world class work force.

Working with Social Partners and the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) we will introduce a new qualification, the Masters in Teaching and Learning (MTL), which will offer enhanced professional development for teachers. Building on the current performance management arrangements, we will continue to explore with Social Partners how we might frame an entitlement to CPD. Alongside this we will continue to invest in the National Strategies and other subject-specific priorities such as science and mathematics.

Teachers: Foreigners

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of teachers in each local authority area in London are not British nationals; and what the equivalent figures are for each year since 1997. [201197]

Jim Knight: The information is not collected centrally.

Teachers: Labour Turnover

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of teachers left the profession within (a) one year, (b) two years and (c) five years of joining in the latest period for which figures are available; what information his Department holds on the levels of qualifications of those teachers; and if he will make a statement. [201106]

Jim Knight: The readily available information relates to the percentage of newly qualified teachers who remained in local authority maintained service a number of years after qualification. This information is provided in the following table:

Percentage of full and part-time[1] secondary teachers that qualified in a particular year and were still in service in the maintained sector in England a number of years later

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time teachers entering the profession left the profession within (a) three and (b) five years in the latest period for which figures are available in each local authority area in Yorkshire and the Humber; and if he will make a statement. [201961]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available by local authority area.

The readily available information relates to the percentage of newly qualified teacher who remained in local authority maintained service in England a number of years after qualification. This information is provided in the following table.

Teachers: Performance Appraisal

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average time taken to complete the steps necessary to dismiss a persistently underperforming teacher in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201046]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect this information.

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what proportion of new teachers had (a) a first class, (b) an upper second class, (c) a lower second class, (d) a third class and (e) no degree in each year from 1996 to 2008; and if he will make a statement; [201042]

(2) what proportion of maintained secondary schools have no teacher on staff with a degree level qualification in physics; and if he will make a statement; [201131]

(3) what estimate he has made of teacher turnover in maintained schools in the most recent period for which figures are available, broken down by local authority area; [201184]

(4) what estimates he has made of teacher turnover rates in each local authority in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [201187]

(5) how many schools had a teacher turnover rate above 25 per cent. in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201188]

Jim Knight: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath on 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 924W with respect to question 201131.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of teachers in each local authority area was classed as unqualified in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201191]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the proportion of full-time equivalent unqualified teachers employed in local authority maintained schools in England by each local authority in January 2007. Unqualified teachers include 11,000 instructors and overseas trained teachers and 5,700 on employment based training routes to qualified teacher status (including teachers on the Graduate Teacher Programme, Registered Teacher Programme, Overseas Trained Teacher Programme and Teach First).

Teachers: Recruitment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many places there were on the Teach First programme in each year since its establishment; how many places there will be on the (a) Teach First and (b) Teach Next programme in each year from 2008 to 2012; and if he will make a statement. [201105]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the targets for Teach First places for the academic years 2003/04 to 2009/10. No allocations have been made beyond 2009/10.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of those entering teacher training schemes had no qualifications at (a) degree and (b) advanced level in each year since 1997. [201185]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the proportion of entrants to Initial Teacher Training (ITT) courses between 1998/99 and 2005/06 who had no qualifications at (a) degree and (b) advanced level. New entrants to undergraduate ITT programmes will gain their degree on successful completion of their programme, and by definition will not therefore hold a degree or equivalent on entry. Virtually all (99.99 per cent.) of the trainees represented by column "Proportion of entrants with no degree or degree equivalent" of the table were on undergraduate programmes.

5. Those with a degree or degree equivalent include trainees with non-UK degrees.
6. Those without a degree or degree equivalent or A/AS levels include trainees with GNVQs, Access and other qualification or undefined.

National Strategies Programme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the annual cost of the National Strategies programme managed by Capita for his Department; and if he will make a statement. [201485]

Jim Knight: In 2007-08 approximately £469 million has been allocated for the delivery of and engagement with the National Strategies programmes. This includes funding for school improvement, as well as the development and delivery of professional development materials for teachers. It also includes support for central coordination at local authority level and targeted funding for schools.

Teaching Methods: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department plans to spend on each scheme for personalised learning in schools in each year from 2008-09 to 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [200996]

Jim Knight: The Comprehensive Spending Review for the period 2008-11 allocated the following additional funding for personalised learning, including funding for Special Educational Needs, through the Dedicated Schools Grant:

	£ million
2008-09	330
2010-11	912

This money is included in schools' base budgets and is earmarked for personalised learning and special educational needs, but is not allocated to specific initiatives. The funding reflects the Government's commitment to tailor the support available for every child that allows them to reach their full potential, irrespective of their background or circumstances.

In addition to the allocations above, the CSR also allocated money for the following specific areas of work which relate to personalised learning:

£150 million to support Assessment for Learning, a key element of personalising learning (£50 million in each of 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11);

£453 million to enable 300,000 pupils a year to receive individual tuition in English, and a further 300,000 pupils in mathematics, by 2010-11 (£138 million in 2009-10; £315 million in 2010-11); and £167 million to fund the expansion of the Every Child a Reader, Every Child Counts and Every Child a Writer one-to-one intervention programmes for children in primary school (£19 million in 2008-09, £56 million in 2009-10, £92 million in 2010-11).

The funding settlement for 2011-12 has not yet been announced.

Written Answers to Questions

HEALTH

Allergies: Consultants

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many consultant allergists there are in England per head of population; [202669]

(2) how many consultants specialising in allergies there are in England. [202670]

Ann Keen: The majority of patients with an allergy are treated in primary care. There are 18 consultant allergists in England. This equates to 0.04 per 100,000 population. There are also 444 consultant dermatologists, 58 consultant immunologists and 2,156 consultant paediatricians who treat patients with allergies.

Autism

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people with autistic spectrum disorder have been detained under mental health legislation since the relevant provisions came into force. [200794]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

Autism: Diagnosis

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the frequency with which autistic spectrum disorder was misdiagnosed as a mental health condition, in the latest period for which figures are available; [200267]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of occasions on which a misdiagnosis of an autistic spectrum disorder led to an inappropriate prescription of psychoactive drugs in each of the last five years. [200268]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

The content of curricula of courses for health and social care professionals is a matter for a variety of independent professional and educational bodies such as the Royal College of Psychiatrists.

Children: Health Services

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role health visitors will play in delivering the Child Health Promotion Programme; and what estimate he has made of the number of health visitors required to deliver the target outcomes of the programme. [200518]

Ann Keen: Health visitors are central to delivering the Child Health Promotion Programme (CHPP). With expertise in children, families and public health, together with their background as nurses they are ideally placed to lead the delivery of CHPP in the community. The recent review into the future role of the health visitor, 'Facing the Future', recommended two roles for health visitors. One of the roles is to lead and deliver the CHPP for a defined population working across general practice and children's centres. The recently updated CHPP promotes the important role of the health visitor to commissioners and services providers.

It is the responsibility of local organisations to commission and develop services to respond to local needs, including the recruitment of health visitors. The operating framework for 2008-09 highlights the importance of children's services and the need for local organisations to commission and provide the necessary services and work force.

Chlamydia: Screening

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to have developed a national template for service specification for chlamydia screening through the Community Pharmacy Contractual Framework; and what steps he will take to encourage primary care trusts to commission chlamydia screening as an advanced service. [201335]

Dawn Primarolo: The Sexual Health National Support Team (SH-NST) will be working closely with the National Chlamydia Screening Programme (NCSP) to increase screening volumes. The SH-NST will also be working jointly with strategic health authorities to identify those areas facing the greatest challenge in commissioning services, to help drive up screening volumes. The Government plan to publish a national template later in 2008 to support primary care trusts' commissioning of chlamydia screening from community pharmacies as part of the NCSP.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that recommendations for research into myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome set out in the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines are met in respect of (a) the causes of the illness, (b) the clinical and cost effectiveness of intervention strategies and (c) identifying efficient ways to deliver domiciliary care for people who are severely affected. [201793]

Dawn Primarolo: Research recommendations made in National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) guidelines are considered on behalf of the Department by the National Institute for Health Research Health Technology Assessment programme (HTA). The director of the HTA programme meets annually with NICE for this purpose. The next of these joint meetings will be held in September.

Departmental Sustainable Development

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has adopted the Carbon Trust's Carbon Management Programme. [181317]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department started working with the Carbon Trust on the Carbon Management Programme last autumn. We are currently engaged in a tender exercise for the consultants who will work with us on the Programme.

Doctors: Pensions

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the NHS pension abatement rules on doctors who have been obliged to retire on the grounds of disability and who are re-employed by the NHS on a part-time contract. [200910]

Ann Keen: Abatement is a common feature of public service pension schemes. It affects all members of the NHS Pension Scheme who receive an enhanced national health service pension funded by the scheme or their employer if they return to NHS employment. It continues until they are aged 60 for members of the 1995 scheme, or age 65 for those members of the 2008 scheme. It does not affect those who have retired on voluntary grounds with an actuarial reduction in their pension. Abatement will usually only affect those who earn more than 50 per cent. of their previous salary.

Eyes: Diseases

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what requirements his Department places on ophthamologists to maintain statistics to monitor the incidence of keratoconus. [200437]

Ann Keen: The majority of keratoconus patients will receive contact lenses or glasses from their optometrist or ophthalmic medical practitioner and will have their condition managed in the community.

The Department places no requirements on individual ophthalmologists to maintain statistics on such patients. Hospitals are required to collect data on the diagnosis of patients being admitted to hospital. This include those patients with a diagnosis of keratoconus.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which hospitals in (a) Southend and (b) Essex had not been deep cleaned by the target date; and if he will make a statement; [198741]

(2) how much was given to each hospital in (a) Southend and (b) Essex to fund its deep clean; and if he will make a statement. [198742]

Ann Keen: As set out in my written ministerial statement on 21 April, Official Report, columns 93-94WS, a list of the trusts which have undertaken or are undertaking a deep clean as part of this national programme is available in the Library. This list sets out which trusts completed their deep clean by 31 March 2008 and which are still undertaking their deep clean and are due to complete by the end of May 2008.

Information provided by strategic health authorities (SHAs) shows that they have all made available the funding they promised for the programme, as also set out in my written ministerial statement. Further information on the implementation of the deep clean of the national health service is available from SHAs.

Maternity Services: Merseyside

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many perinatologists are employed in each hospital trust on Merseyside. [201621]

Ann Keen: This information is not available in the format requested.

The trusts that most closely correspond within the Merseyside area have been included in the following table.

Hospital and Community Health Services: Medical staff within the Obstetrics and gynaecology specialty by organisation within the Merseyside area

	Numbers (headcount)	Full-time equivalents
Merseyside	124	114
Wirral Hospital NHS Foundation Trust	21	18
St. Helens and Knowsley Hospitals NHS Trust	16	16
Liverpool Women's Hospital NHS Foundation Trust	63	57
Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust	24	23

Notes:
1. The table is up to date as at 30 September 2007.
2. The staff information cannot be summated at such a low level. Perinatologists have therefore been substituted for staff with the obstetrics and gynaecology specialty.
3. The information does not include primary care trusts in the area, some of which may have these specialities.
4. Only organisations which have obstetrics and gynaecological staff were shown. If a trust does not appear in the table, it indicates that there were zero obstetrics and gynaecological staff. This does not necessarily mean that this service is not provided at that trust.

Mental Health Services

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations the Government has received on the likely effects of implementing the provisions of the Mental Health Act 2007 on independent mental health advocacy six months after the introduction of community treatment orders; [201872]

(2) when plans for the commissioning and implementation of mental health advocacy services under the Mental Health Act 2007 will be published; [201873]

(3) when training for mental health advocates under the Mental Health Act 2007 will begin; and what criteria will be used to select advocates. [201874]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Mental Health Alliance has asked the Department to consider placing together the implementation dates for the Mental Health Act 2007, and independent mental health advocacy provision to provide additional safeguards, particularly for patients discharged from hospital under supervised community treatment.

We aim to publish guidance on commissioning and implementing independent mental health advocacy later this year.

National training materials are currently being developed and tested. We aim to make these available for organisations to start training later this year. Local commissioners are responsible for contracting with organisations to provide independent mental health advocacy services. Departmental guidance for commissioners will provide guidance on service specifications and standards.

NHS (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 2005

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department have had on the possible suspension of regulation 13 of the National Health Service (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 2005. [200433]

Dawn Primarolo: I discussed this matter with the hon. Member for West Chelmsford (Mr. Burns) recently and explained that there were no plans to suspend regulation 13 of the National Health Service (Pharmaceutical Services) Regulations 2005.

I meet officials regularly to discuss questions of policy. Our White Paper 'Pharmacy in England Building on Strengths—Delivering the Future' (Cm7341) published on 3 April 2008 sets out the Government's proposals in relation to pharmacies open at least 100 hours per week which have secured the right to provide NHS services under regulation 13. Full consultation will follow later this summer.

NHS European Office

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what work has been conducted by the NHS European Office since it was set up in 2007. [199416]

Dawn Primarolo: The NHS European Office intends to produce a report on its activities covering the period from establishment to the end of the financial year. This will be published shortly on the Office's website.

NHS: Consultants

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many consultants with clinical excellence awards, who have been obliged to retire on the grounds of disability and have been re-employed on a part-time contract by the NHS, have been required to repay a part of their pension under NHS pension abatement rules. [200914]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected centrally.

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether there are circumstances under which unused prescription medicines returned by patients may be re-allocated to other patients; and if he will make a statement. [201246]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not appropriate to promote the reuse of medicines returned from patients. The continuing quality of medicines returned from patients following storage in their homes and the ability of pharmacists to assure quality based on physical inspection cannot be guaranteed. Recycling medicines returned by patients is both unethical and unsafe.

NHS: Land

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 470W, on NHS: land, what progress has been made by his Department in examining how the review of surplus NHS land will apply to the NHS foundation trust sector; and if he will make a statement. [201978]

Mr. Bradshaw: The review of surplus land resulted in 299 national health service trusts replying to a request for details of their land holdings. About 190 sites were identified with a total area of 260 hectares, or enough for 6,300 new homes.

Of the responding trusts, 10 were foundation trusts. Discussions continue with all trusts to ensure that all surplus land is properly registered with English Partnerships.

NHS: Pay

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects of the market forces factor on hospital trusts that employ staff at nationally agreed pay rates in areas where average earning are below national averages. [201138]

Ann Keen: The Department has commissioned two pieces of research to look at the impact of external labour markets on national health service staff costs. The first, a study on regional pay differentials in 2005 known as the 'Aberdeen Study' found that private sector wage rates were correlated with the vacancy rate for qualified nurses. As part of its current work programme, the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation has carried out a review of the market forces factor. This work will be used to inform revenue allocations to primary care trusts for 2009-10 and 2010-11. The aim is to announce the revenue allocations by the summer.

NHS: Security

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at how many sites (a) Safe Estates Ltd and (b) Camelot have been commissioned by the NHS to provide site security for existing or former hospital or medical facilities. [202519]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has responsibility for one hospital site on which it has a current contract with Safe Estates Ltd. and Camelot. There are no other known contracts that the Department has with either firm.

The Department does not hold this information in respect of hospital sites owned and operated by the national health service. It is a matter for each NHS trust to make whatever arrangements it sees fit to cover its security needs.

Nurses: Schools

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many school nurses were employed by each primary care trust in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [200364]

Ann Keen: The annual national health service workforce census collected information on the number of school nurses employed by the NHS in England for the first time in 2004. A table showing the number of school nurses employed by each primary care trust in England from 2004-07 has been placed in the Library.

Plastic Surgery: Finance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what his policy is on funding for orbicularis oculi muscle strips. [201848]

Ann Keen: Funding for orbicularis oculi muscle strips is the responsibility of primary care trusts (PCTs), as they have their own policies covering the circumstances in which this treatment may be available on the national health service. Most policies are based around ensuring that treatment of this kind is available where there is a clinical need to secure physical or psychological health.

Radiography: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) part-trained and (b) fully-trained radiographers were employed by the Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals Foundation Trust in each year since 1997. [201926]

Ann Keen: The requested information can be found in the following table.

Royal National Hospital for Rheumatic Disease: Out of Area Treatment

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients resident in Wales (a) received rehabilitation treatment at the Royal National Hospital for Rheumatic Disease, Bath and (b) were referred for such treatment but failed to receive sanction for the referral in each of the last eight years for which figures are available. [202171]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Information about the number of patients resident in Wales, who received rehabilitation treatment at the Royal National Hospital for Rheumatic Disease in Bath, is not held centrally. In addition, information about patients resident in Wales who failed to receive sanction for referral for rehabilitation treatment, at the Royal National Hospital for Rheumatic Disease is not collected centrally. It is the responsibility of Welsh local health boards to commission and fund rehabilitation services to meet the needs of their local populations, including the commissioning of treatment at centres in England.

Smoking: Public Places

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects of the smoking ban on (a) public health and (b) his Department's expenditure; and what mechanisms he has put in place to measure these effects. [201663]

Dawn Primarolo: Smokefree legislation was introduced primarily to protect people from the harm of second-hand smoke in enclosed parts of work and public places.

Research has been commissioned which will evaluate various aspects of the impact of the smokefree law in England; the resulting reports will be published once completed and peer reviewed. While it is still too early for any of the Department's commissioned research to have been published, in October 2007 Cancer Research

UK and the Tobacco Control Centre published results from a small scale study of the impact of the new law. That research found that hospitality workers exposure to harmful second-hand smoke may have fallen by 95 per cent. since 1 July 2007.

An assessment of the costs and benefits of smokefree legislation is set out in the Final Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA), entitled "Final Regulatory Impact Assessment to be made under Powers in Part 1 Chapter 1 of the Health Act 2006" was published by the Department in December 2006.

Copies of the RIA are in the Library.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers' Allowances

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will review the level of the carer premium in the preparation of the national carer strategy. [200674]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government's review of the National Carers Strategy is examining all aspects of benefits for carers. The conclusions of the review are due to be published in summer 2008.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what mechanisms for redress are available to people in circumstances where maintenance orders made by the High Court are not fully implemented by the Child Support Agency. [201847]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Child Support Agency is not responsible for implementing maintenance orders made by the High Court. Therefore such mechanisms would not be appropriate.

Departmental Standards

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to report on his Department's performance against public service agreements with deadlines of March 2008. [200467]

Mrs. McGuire: For all PSA targets with deadlines on or before March 2008, a final assessment will wherever possible be provided in the 2008 departmental report, expected to be published in mid May. Where time lags mean that a final assessment cannot be provided, progress to date will be reported. A final assessment will be given in the 2008 Autumn Performance Report or subsequent departmental report as soon as data availability allows.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was allocated to each (a) London local authority and (b) region of the UK under the discretionary payment scheme in each of the last five years; and what proportion of funding allocated was used in each case. [200824]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information has been placed in the Library.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have issued on the maximum distance a tenant in receipt of housing benefit in the private rented sector may be required to move as a result of the introduction of local housing allowance and the use of broad rental market areas as a basis for calculating allowance levels. [201225]

Mr. Plaskitt: Where a customer chooses to live is entirely a matter for the individual and their family, therefore the Department for Work and Pensions or its agencies have not issued any guidance on the maximum distance a tenant in receipt of housing benefit in the private rented sector may be required to move.

The aim of the Local Housing Allowance is to give customers a choice as to whether to rent accommodation cheaper than their Local Housing Allowance rate and keep the excess (£15 a week maximum) or be able to rent a more expensive property and pay additional rent from their own income.

Local Housing Allowance rates are set by rent officers at the median level within each Broad Rental Market Area. This means that exactly half of the rental properties within any Broad Rental Market are affordable to people claiming housing benefit.

Housing Benefit: Standards

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken to process a housing benefit application was in each year since 2002-03. [200450]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table:

Average days to process housing benefit and council tax benefit claims

	Number
2002-03	55
2003-04	50
2004-05	45
2005-06	37
2007-08[1]	28

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken to process a housing benefit application in the worst performing 15 per cent. of local authorities was as at March 2008. [200461]

Jobcentre Plus: Leaflets

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance his Department issues to Jobcentre Plus offices about their (a) stock, (b) display and (c) use of public information leaflets. [195773]

Mr. Timms: The stock and display of information products in Jobcentre Plus offices is governed by the customer information display standards guidance. This guidance is available on the Jobcentre Plus intranet site. All Jobcentre Plus information leaflets, together with a specified number of DWP information leaflets, are mandatory stock items. The guidance stipulates which Jobcentre Plus leaflets are mandatory for display in Jobcentre Plus offices.

Separate internal guidance is available on the Jobcentre Plus intranet site that explains to our staff which public information leaflets are most appropriate to offer to an individual across a range of possible scenarios.

Members: Correspondence

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will answer Question 185261, tabled by the hon. Member for South West Bedfordshire on 4 February 2008, on children in workless households. [191465]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 4 March 2008]: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1858W.

Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pension traces were carried out by the Pension Tracing Service in each year since 2005. [200447]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is in the following table.

Successful pension traces since 2005-06

	Total successful trace
2005-06	30,458
2006-07	40,165
2007-08	64,852

Notes:

1. The Pension Service achieved the PSA target of 60,000 successful traces during 2007-08.
2. In compiling this data an error has been identified in the data given in my reply to the hon. Member on 22 January 2008, Official Report, column 1895W. The response said that there had been 40,160 successful pension traces in 2006-07. This should have said that there had been 40,165 traces. I apologise to the hon. Member for this inadvertent error.

Winter Fuel Payments: Swansea

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households in Swansea East constituency are eligible for winter fuel payments. [200455]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In winter 2006-07, 11,270 people in the Swansea, East constituency received a winter fuel payment. Figures for winter 2007-08 are not yet available but we expect the numbers to be similar.

Notes:

1. Figures rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Video Conferencing

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if she will set a target to increase the use of video-conferencing by the Government Equalities Office to reduce the need to travel to meetings. [195946]

Barbara Follett: GEO is a small department and its staff are based in Eland House in London. The vast majority of meetings are held there or in other Government buildings within walking distance. The GEO's needs for routine travel are limited and its staff are committed to minimise travelling and to use videoconferencing and teleconferencing whenever appropriate. In these circumstances GEO has no current proposals to set a target.

Females: Marriage

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the financial effect on women of changing their surnames on marriage, with particular reference to charges for amending official documents; and if she will make a statement. [201344]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The Government Equalities Office have made no assessment of the financial effect of women changing their surname on marriage.

OLYMPICS

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what payments the (a) London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and (b) the Olympic Delivery Authority have made to (i) Mandate Communications and (ii) AS Biss and Co since their establishment; on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202305]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) and the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) are committed to undertake a proactive programme of engagement with central, regional, devolved, and local government. To assist this process, both organisations have procured the services of Mandate Communications (formerly known as AS Biss) to provide research and event management support. ODA spend to date with AS Biss/Mandate Communications is £6,383.65 inclusive of VAT. LOCOG, which is a privately funded company, has a separate arrangement with Mandate.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by her in the last six months. [201768]

Tessa Jowell: Information on the average number of days taken to answer parliamentary questions is not readily available in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her latest estimate is of the cost to construct the Olympic Aquatics Centre for the 2012 Olympic Games; and for what reasons this estimate differs from initial estimates. [201376]

Tessa Jowell: The budget for the Aquatics Centre is £242 million. This iconic venue, designed by renowned architect Zaha Hadid, will provide state of the art facilities and a world class permanent legacy facility for elite and community use. The contract for the Aquatics Centre also includes constructing the land bridge that will be the main gateway into the Olympic Park and will also form part of the roof of the venue. The budget for both the Aquatics Centre and the bridge is £303 million, and this has not changed throughout the procurement process. This figure includes the contract price, allowance for inflation, an element of project management costs, VAT and the costs to convert the venue for long-term legacy use (and associated VAT and contingency). This budget is within the ODA's £6.090 billion baseline budget as set out in the statement made in December.

The Bid Book estimate for the Aquatics Centre was $117 million at 2004 prices (approximately £73 million at a USD/GBP exchange rate of 1.6). However, this did not include inflation, legacy transformation costs, project management costs or VAT.

The overall venues budget remains broadly in line with the Bid Book when an allowance is made for inflation, project management costs, transformation costs and VAT.

SCOTLAND

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199188]

David Cairns: Most ministerial and internal correspondence is now undertaken electronically although formal mechanisms are not in place to monitor the method of correspondence.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons on average were eligible for pension credit in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [199400]

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 56W, on Afghanistan: drugs, what steps (a) UK and (b) US troops are taking to support the government of Afghanistan's counter-narcotics effort. [201956]

Des Browne: As part of the UN-authorised, NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) British and American troops do not have a direct role in counter narcotics. They can, however, provide indirect support in accordance with the NATO Operational Plan for Afghanistan, such as intelligence, logistics and planning assistance.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the decision was made to put armour on the Jackal M-WMIK vehicle; whether all the M-WMIK vehicles have been armoured; whether any M-WMIK vehicles have been armoured after they were manufactured or delivered to theatre; and how much armouring each vehicle has cost. [201417]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The requirement to protect Jackal was a Key User Requirement and was stated within the Business Case, in May 2007. All vehicles delivered to the operational theatre are fitted with armour (during production), while some vehicles within the UK training fleet are not, but will be fitted retrospectively. The armour kit costs £83,000 per vehicle installation.

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft lifts have been ordered; and how many will be required for each future aircraft carrier. [202674]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Each Future Aircraft Carrier requires two aircraft lifts. Four have been ordered in total.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel were deployed on operations, broken down by location, in the latest period for which figures are available. [201024]

Des Browne: The following table provides the number of UK service personnel deployed on operations by location at 21 April 2008. The number of personnel in theatre will naturally fluctuate on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including leave (rest and recuperation), temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces and other factors.

Number of personnel deployed by location at 21 April 2008[1]

Location	Number
Total	[2]14,810
of which:
Afghanistan[3]	9,100
Iraq	3,800
At sea	430
Qatar	410
Cyprus	280
Kuwait	250
Oman	210
Kosovo	140
Bahrain	70
Other	30

[1] Countries with 10 or more personnel are shown separately. Other countries with fewer than 10 personnel per country include Bosnia, Georgia, Nepal, Sudan, Sierra Leone, Democratic Republic of Congo and Liberia. With the exception of Bosnia, personnel in these countries are participating in smaller UN operations, e.g. we contribute five military personnel to the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia (UNOMIG).

[2] Figures for Iraq and Afghanistan have been rounded to the nearest 100 for operational security reasons. Other figures have been rounded to the nearest 10. Due to rounding, the total is not equal to the sum of the individual locations.

[3] Figures for Afghanistan are artificially high due to the handover period while a relief in place (RIP) is in operation. The operational establishment for Afghanistan is 7,800.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Queen's Colour Squadron will cease ceremonial duties prior to its deployment to Afghanistan. [201030]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Queen's Colour Squadron will cease ceremonial duties once it has represented the RAF at the state opening of Parliament later this year prior to deployment to Afghanistan in February 2009. The precise date of this deployment has yet to be decided.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people who applied to join the armed services in 2006-07 were rejected because they did not meet fitness criteria. [200541]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The numbers of armed forces applicants in 2006-07 who were recorded as rejected before entering service because they were classified as permanently unfit were as follows:

	Number
Naval service	312
Army	825
RAF	365
Total	1,502

The figures exclude those who were temporarily unfit at the point of application but whose fitness later improved.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what specific training in tropical medicine medical officers undertaking the Army's Entry Officers course receive. [200944]

Derek Twigg: Medical officers undertaking the Army's Entry Officers course undergo two days of training in travel medicine. Specific topics for study include: Malaria and its prevention, practical parasitology, blood borne viruses, Leishmaniasis and its prevention, immunisation schedules and sources of information for travellers. Another day is spent at the Institute of Naval Medicine where students look at the effects of heat and cold injuries. In addition to these specific topics all subjects on the 13 week course include an environmental component which incorporates the treatment of casualties in hostile and remote situations.

Students also undertake public health training which includes looking at the needs of refugees and misplaced persons and their associated temporary camps.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 791W, on armoured fighting vehicles, how many individual shipments were required to transport the first tranche of Mastiff armoured vehicles into the theatre of operations; and what the (a) lowest, (b) highest, (c) mean and (d) mode number was of individual shipments of Mastiff armoured vehicles to (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan during the delivery period of the first tranche. [201233]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The chosen method for the deployment of all tranche 1 Mastiff vehicles was by commercial air.

The number of individual consignments to Iraq was 21 and to Afghanistan was 18.

I am withholding the details of individual shipments since disclosure could reveal the strength and capability of UK forces operating in theatre, and could prejudice operational security.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 791W, on armoured fighting vehicles, how many individual shipments were required to transport all Bulldog armoured vehicles into the theatre of operations; and what the (a) lowest, (b) highest, (c) mean and (d) mode number was of individual shipments of Bulldog armoured vehicles to (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan during the delivery period. [201234]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Bulldog armoured vehicles have not been deployed to Afghanistan.

The number of individual shipments required to transport all Bulldog armoured vehicles to Iraq was three.

I am withholding the details of individual shipments since disclosure could reveal the strength and capability of UK forces operating in theatre, and could prejudice operational security.

Defence: Internet

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the UK's contribution is to NATO's Cyber Defence Management Authority; and if he will make a statement. [201678]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As part of the Department's cooperation on cyber defence operations with our allies, the MOD, together with other Government Departments, are fully engaged with the development of NATO's Cyber Defence Management Authority. Such cooperation would include the sharing of intelligence, experience and expertise. However, it is Government policy not to make comments on details of protective measures, techniques and strategies applied to protecting communication and information systems as these could assist potential attackers.

Departmental Publications

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what guidance is issued to members of his Department on the authorship and publication on the internet of material relating to their official duties; and if he will make a statement. [196739]

Derek Twigg: The Civil Service Code, the Civil Service Management Code and Propriety Guidance on Government Communications, all provide guidance to staff on the publication of material relating to their official duties. Copies of each of these are in the libraries of the House. They are also available on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/.

Armed forces and MOD staff publishing material on the internet as part of their official duties, for example on the MOD's own website, are governed by a number of internal MOD documents including training manuals and style guides.

HMS Southampton

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where (a) HMS Southampton and (b) HMS Exeter have been deployed in 2008; what plans he has for further deployments prior to their decommissioning; and if he will make a statement. [201914]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: HMS Southampton and HMS Exeter have been engaged in Maritime Security operations in UK waters during 2008. I am withholding information about these ships' future programmes as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Land Rovers have been lost due to damage sustained from an improvised explosive device or landmine in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; [201566]

(2) how many WIMIK equipped vehicles have been lost due to damage sustained from an improvised explosive device or landmine in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; [201567]

(3) how many Vector patrol vehicles have been lost due to damage sustained from an improvised explosive device or landmine in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; [201568]

(4) how many service personnel have been (a) injured and (b) killed by improvised explosive devices or landmines in WIMIK equipped vehicles in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) Iraq; [201569]

(5) how many service personnel have been (a) injured and (b) killed by improvised explosive devices or landmines in Vector patrol vehicles in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) Iraq; [201570]

(6) how many service personnel have been (a) injured and (b) killed by improvised explosive devices or landmines in Land Rovers in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) Iraq. [201584]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the details as disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Iraq: Ports

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which projects his Department (a) initiated, (b) oversaw, (c) directed and (d) funded in connection with the modernisation of the port of Umm Qasr; and if he will make a statement. [196916]

Des Browne: Since 2003 the British Military have initiated, overseen and directed 15 reconstruction projects in the vicinity of Umm Qasr to a value of approximately £500,000. These projects have been funded by the Multi-National Force Commanders Emergency Response Programme (CERPs).

Regeneration plans for the port are now being led and co-ordinated by the government of Iraq, supported by UK and US personnel in Baghdad and southern Iraq.

Karian and Box

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value was of each contract awarded by his Department to Karian and Box since 1997. [199646]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are no records held centrally of any contract awarded to Karian and Box by the Ministry of Defence since 1997.

Information on contracts awarded by Defence agencies, top level budget areas, trading funds, joint headquarters, single service commands and military units is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

War Graves: Seas and Oceans

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps the Government have taken to protect military shipwrecks as final resting places. [201656]

Derek Twigg: The Protection of Military Remains Act (PMRA) 1986 allows the MOD to protect the remains of aircraft and ships lost while in military service from unauthorised interference. The latest tranche of wrecks designated under the Act will come into force on 1 May 2008, raising the total number of designations to 58.

WALES

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201733]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial se had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 89 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was three based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental Manpower

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many (a) permanent civil service posts, (b) permanent non-civil service posts and (c) agency workers there were in his Department in each month since May 2005. [200215]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The following table shows the number of staff employed by the Wales Office from May 2005.

Details for agency staff were not kept in the format for the financial year 2005-06 and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the total cost was of (a) salaries for permanent civil service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-civil service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department in each month since May 2005. [200214]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Salary costs for the Wales Office are broken down in the format requested in the following table.

The figures for agency staff, in the financial year 2005-06, were not kept in this format and could be obtained only at disproportionate costs, however the annual figure for agency staff in this period was £91,923.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201767]

Mr. Paul Murphy: To provide the answer in the format requested would incur disproportionate cost. However over the last six months the Wales Office has responded to written questions on average within four days.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Parking

Mr. Spellar: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether provision is planned in the House of Commons car park for installing facilities for re-charging electric or hybrid vehicles. [200632]

Nick Harvey: There are no plans to make any special provision but the Speaker will ask the Administration Committee to look into this matter.

TRANSPORT

A12

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many representations she has received from Essex county council on the adequacy of the A12 since 2005; [202119]

(2) if she will allocate funds to the Highways Agency to hold an inquiry into the adequacy of the A12 from London to Ipswich; [202120]

(3) what plans she has for improvements to the A12 through Essex to Ipswich; and if she will make a statement; [202121]

(4) if she will allocate funds to Essex county council to undertake improvements to the A12 through Essex; and if she will make a statement. [202122]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The A12 through Essex is considered to be primarily of regional importance. Decisions on such schemes are made on the basis of advice from regional bodies, including the Regional Assembly and the Regional Development Agency, on the priorities for funding within an indicative budget. The advice provided by the East of England regional bodies in 2006, which Ministers have accepted, did not prioritise any A12 schemes in the period to 2016.

The Government intend, by the summer, to invite each region to carry out a further review of its funding priorities. This will provide an opportunity for those who support improvements to the A12 to press their case within the region.

Officials in the department have regular meetings with Essex county council and have received correspondence over the period in question from both individual councillors and the council itself.

A46: Nottinghamshire

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will amend the proposals for the dualling of the A46 between Newark and Widmerpool to keep the project within budget. [201266]

Mr. Tom Harris: The current proposals for dualling the A46 between Newark and Widmerpool forms one of the highway schemes which is planned to be funded from the East Midlands' Regional Funding Allocation for major transport schemes. The region is considering how to accommodate the A46 scheme within its recommended programme of schemes in the light of emerging cost pressures. We will carefully consider the region's advice both for the programme as a whole and in relation to the A46 scheme.

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what payments Network Rail made to (a) Mandate Communications and (b) AS Biss in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202274]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London
NW1 2EE

Heathrow Airport: BAA

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what meetings took place in 2007 between her Department's (a) officials and (b) Ministers and representatives of BAA to discuss the project for the development of Heathrow Airport; and on what date each took place; [201310]

(2) if she will publish the minutes or notes of each meeting that took place in 2007 between her Department's officials and representatives of BAA to discuss the project for the development of Heathrow Airport. [201311]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 24 April 2008]: No such meetings took place between Ministers and BAA. Notes of all meetings with officials prior to the issue of the recent Heathrow consultation document have been released in response to requests under the Freedom of Information Act. That information is on, or can be requested via, the Department's FOI response website (March 2008). I will see that the hon. Member is sent copies of all the relevant documents.

Heathrow Airport: Consultants

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much her Department paid to WS Atkins for its work on the Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow resulting in the October 2007 technical report entitled Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow: Population Exposure to Air Pollution; and if she will make a statement; [201467]

(2) how much her Department paid to WS Atkins for its peer review work which resulted in the November 2007 report entitled Project for the Sustainable Development of Heathrow: Demonstrating Confidence in the PSDH Air Quality Work; and if she will make a statement. [201468]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The two reports in question were commissioned as part of the suite of supporting technical documents to the recent Heathrow consultation. The work to produce them was part of the contract with Atkins to provide technical assistance throughout the project on local air quality issues and has not been separately costed.

Kemble to Swindon Railway Line

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will publish the Network Rail evaluation of proposals to re-double the Kemble to Swindon line, including any cost predictions. [201573]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Office of Rail Regulation is currently evaluating proposals published by Network Rail this month for enhancing both the North Cotswold and the Stroud Valley lines and expects to publish its preliminary determination in June 2008.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which (a) hon. Members and (b) local authorities have made representations to (i) her and (ii) Network Rail on the re-doubling of (A) the Kemble to Swindon line and (B) the North Cotswold line. [201574]

Mr. Tom Harris: The following hon. Members have made written representations to the Department in the last three years:

Swindon—Kemble line

Geoffrey Clinton-Brown MP
David Drew MP
Mark Harper MP
Sir Malcolm Rifkind MP
Laurence Robertson MP

North Cotswold line

David Cameron MP
Geoffrey Clinton-Brown MP
David Drew MP
Michael Foster MP
Peter Luff MP
John Maples MP

We have received no written representations from local authorities about either line during this period.

My hon. Friend will need to contact the chief executive about representations made to Network Rail. His address is:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London
NW1 2EE

Lorries

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) foreign and (b) British-registered lorries made at least one journey on UK roads in each year since 1997. [202128]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information is not centrally collected.

M5

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on proposals to modify junction 12 of the M5; and what plans she has for consultation prior to the introduction of any modifications. [201572]

Mr. Tom Harris: Committed developments in Gloucester will increase pressure on the M5 junction 12. Following the first release of funds from developers, the Highways Agency is about to commission the preparation of design works in respect of an improvement at the junction.

The Highways Agency will be developing a communications strategy, to include stakeholder involvement. This will provide an opportunity for interested parties to see and discuss the improvement scheme proposals.

North Cotswold Railway Line

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria were used to (a) accept the North Cotswolds line and (b) reject the Stroud Valleys line for future re-doubling. [201430]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Government are supportive of rail growth to meet the needs of our growing economy and we have specified and funded the high level improvements in capacity, safety and reliability required by 2014. It is for the rail industry to determine the enhancement schemes required to deliver this specification, subject to independent evaluation by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR).

The ORR is currently evaluating proposals published by Network Rail this month for enhancing both the North Cotswold and the Stroud Valley lines and expects to publish its preliminary determination in June 2008.

Ports: Automatic Number Plate Recognition

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to install number plate recognition systems at all major British ports. [200676]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

It is not possible, for reasons of operational security, to divulge the current level of automatic number plate recognition (ANPR) systems currently in use at British ports. It is however, the Government's intention to ensure that ANPR systems are installed in all major British ports in the future, subject to the necessary funding being made available.

Public Transport: Yorkshire

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the tram trains for use on the Penistone line will be built in the UK. [200630]

Mr. Tom Harris: Northern Rail will undertake the procurement of tram-trains for the Penistone line trial, acting in accordance with European procurement regulations.

Railway Stations: Halifax

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will estimate the number of passengers who used Halifax railway station in each of the last five years. [202093]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport does not hold this information. The Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) publishes data on station usage which is available from their website:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Railways

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the feasibility and cost of a maglev rail system. [200629]

Mr. Tom Harris: In the preparation of the 2007 rail White Paper, "Delivering a Sustainable Railway", the Department for Transport commissioned a report into maglev systems. This report reviewed a number of features of maglev systems including safety, environmental, and engineering feasibility. A copy of this report is available on the Department's website at:

www.dft.gov.uk

The only operational maglev in the world had costs three times higher than equivalent high speed lines.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the division of responsibilities is between (a) her Department and (b) Network Rail on (i) the safeguarding of lines for possible future expansion of the network, (ii) the building of new lines, (iii) the collection of data relating to passenger numbers before and after new lines have been opened and (iv) decisions relating to the electrification of existing lines; and if she will make a statement. [201267]

Mr. Tom Harris: Regional and local planning authorities are responsible for the safeguarding of alignments via spatial plans. The Secretary of State for Transport may issue safeguarding Directions under the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995. The Office of Rail Regulation regulates the disposal of land owned by Network Rail.

Towards a Sustainable Transport System describes a new, multi-modal approach to transport planning. Network Rail, working with the rail industry, will provide a view on the ways in which the railway can contribute most effectively to the Secretary of State's wider transport objectives for the period from 2014. This may include new lines and electrification proposals.

Passenger demand is forecast by the sponsor of a scheme and train operators collect data on subsequent patronage.

Railways: Death

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many deaths of (a) railway workers and (b) others occurred as a result of electrocution by the third rail in each year since 1997. [201260]

Mr. Tom Harris: The number of railway fatalities caused as a result of electrocution by the third rail in each year since 1997 are provided in the following table.

	(a) Railway employees	(b) Others (members of the public)
1997	0	9
1998	0	8
1999	0	13
2000	0	16
2001	0	6
2002	1	9
2003	1	12
2004	0	5
2005	0	6
2006	1	12
2007[1]	0	4

[1] The data for 2007 is provisional.

Source:
Data provided by the Office of Rail Regulation

Most fatalities result from members of the public trespassing on railway infrastructure.

Railways: Electric Cables

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway overhead lines fell down in each year since 1997. [201261]

Mr. Tom Harris: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton Street
London
NW1 2EE

Railways: Theft

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much copper from signalling cables on the railways has been stolen in each of the last five years; how many thefts there were in (a) England and Wales, (b) Scotland, (c) North East of England, (d) Yorkshire and Humber, (e) South East, (f) Midlands and (g) South West in each of those years; and if she will make a statement. [201482]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, e-mail: parliament@btp.pnn.police.uk

Roads

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects the Nichols costs review of Highways Agency road schemes to be completed; and whether the review will be published on her Department's and the Highways Agency's websites. [201247]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency is currently in the final stages of completing revised cost estimates for their major roads projects. We expect to be in a position to publish these on the Department for Transport's and the Highways Agency's websites in the late spring.

Roads: Tax Evasion

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road tax evaders there were in (a) 2000-01 and (b) 2005-06; what proportion of these were prosecuted in 2005-06; and what the loss was of revenue as a result of such tax evasions in 2005-06. [202134]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There was no roadside survey to measure road tax evaders conducted in 2000-01. The nearest estimate available is from the 2002 roadside survey. The estimated number of unlicensed vehicles at that time was 1.76 million vehicles, representing an estimated loss of revenue through evasion of £193 million.

The 2005 roadside survey estimated the number of unlicensed vehicles as 1.55 million, with an estimated revenue loss figure of £147 million.

In 2005-06 DVLA brought 144,884 successful prosecutions at magistrates' court relating to the use of unlicensed vehicles. A further 516,808 cases were dealt with via out of court settlements.

Rolling Stock

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1034-35W, on rolling stock, what requests received from train operating companies for extra rolling stock have been rejected since 1 January 2005. [201308]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The Department for Transport has frequent discussions with train operators on a range of issues, including the possibility of providing extra rolling stock. However, no formal requests to approve leases for additional vehicles have been rejected.

As part of the HLOS process, the Department for Transport is in discussions with train operators about delivering 1,300 additional vehicles.

Rolling Stock: Northampton

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has for the improvement of the rolling stock on the London to Northampton train service. [202696]

Mr. Tom Harris: London Midland are committed to replacing the class 321 electric multiple units with brand new Siemens Desiro class 350 electric multiple units, on services between London and Northampton as part of its franchise.

Rolling Stock: Standards

Mike Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she takes to ensure that passengers' seating comfort is taken into account in train design; and if she will make a statement. [201219]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport is working with the industry to develop a whole life cost model for evaluating the design of rail vehicles. Passenger seating comfort is one of the many factors within the model which recognises the significance of comfortable seating in encouraging the use of rail services. The model also balances the desire for spacious seating against the requirement to provide a sufficient number of seats.

During the procurement of the Intercity Express trains the Department will be working with passenger groups to assess the relative comfort of the various proposals for passenger seating.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Hemp

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) estimate his Department has made of the costs and (b) assessment he has made of the merits of growing industrial hemp in England, with particular reference to the production of cellulose for (i) biodegradable plastics and (ii) paper manufacture. [200534]

Mr. Woolas: Approximately 1,416 hectares of industrial hemp are grown and processed in England, mainly for the bio-composite, construction, and animal bedding industries. Such end uses are driven by the market and represent the most cost beneficial application of this high value raw material.

The DEFRA renewable materials LINK programme is set up to assist consortia of academia and industry bring innovative technologies based on novel crops to market. New products based on hemp and hemp fibre would be eligible for consideration for LINK funding.

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the merits of a licensing regime for farmers wishing to grow industrial hemp. [200535]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

The United Kingdom already has a licensing regime for growing industrial hemp.

Agriculture: Nitrate Vulnerable Zones

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has made an assessment of the likely environmental impacts arising from the application of slurry and poultry manure to non-sandy farmland in the days immediately following the end of closed periods proposed for nitrate vulnerable zones. [200927]

Mr. Woolas: This will be included in the Government's response to the consultation, which I intend to announce and publish before Parliament breaks for summer recess.

Air Pollution: Standards

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent consideration the Government have given to lowering the maximum permissible levels of air pollution; and what assessment the Government have made of the effects of increased use of diesel vehicles on levels of air pollution. [201275]

Jonathan Shaw: A new ambient air quality directive, due to come into force in May 2008, consolidates existing EU legislation and includes new controls over very fine particulate matter (PM 2.5), where the World Health Organisation (WHO) advises that there is no safe level of exposure. The main elements are a 'backstop' limit value, to be met everywhere by 2015, and an 'exposure concentration obligation' to be met across urban background locations (as an average), also by 2015. The directive must be transposed into UK law within two years of it coming into force.

Estimates of future air pollution emissions from transport include assumptions modelling the increase in diesel car market share, with an assumption that this will stabilise at 42 per cent. in 2010. These estimates are used for assessing new vehicle emissions standards and the revised National Air Quality Strategy, published in 2007. Diesel cars currently emit significantly higher levels of both particulate matter and oxides of nitrogen than petrol cars. However, the recently agreed Euro 5 and 6 emissions standards will reduce particulate emissions from new diesel cars to comparable levels to petrol cars by 2011 and substantially reduce the difference between petrol and diesel NOx emissions by 2015.

Angling: Licensing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) full and (b) concessionary cost of a (i) coarse and trout and (ii) salmon and sea trout rod licence was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [201440]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table shows the full and concessionary cost of a (i) non-migratory trout and coarse and (ii) salmon and sea trout licence in each of the last five years.

	Salmon and sea trout		Non migratory trout and coarse fish
	Full	Concessionary	Full	Concessionary
2004-05	62.00	31.00	23.00	11.50
2005-06	63.50	31.75	23.50	11.75
2006-07	65.00	32.50	24.00	12.00
2007-08	66.50	33.35	24.50	12.25
2008-09	68.00	45.00	25.00	16.75

I should point out that the Environment Agency is under no legal obligation to offer rod licences to any class of persons at concessionary duty rates. Both the agency and I recognise that the increase in concessionary duty rates for this year is significant and the agency has publicly stated that it will use a significant proportion of the monies raised by the higher duty rates to improve access to angling for the disabled and senior anglers. I welcome this and I will seek evidence from the agency that it has honoured that commitment.

Biofuels: Marketing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to raise awareness of the effects of more widespread use of biofuels. [201254]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have consulted widely on their biofuel support policies since 2004. On each occasion they have drawn attention to the potential environmental, economic and social impacts of increasing levels of biofuel use. Ministers and officials have made regular presentations on this subject at conferences and other public events, and the Government have held a large number of stakeholder workshops which have been well-attended by representatives from a wide range of different interest groups.

Information on biofuels has also been made available via the Department for Transport's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/environment/rtfo/and, in recent months, via the Renewable Fuels Agency's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/rfa/

The Renewable Fuels Agency will report regularly on the effects of the biofuels used under the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO). These reports will be made available via the RFA's website.

Climate Change: Seas and Oceans

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has conducted into the impact of the melting of ice-sheets; and what estimates his Department has made of the lowest and highest potential rise in sea levels as a result of such melting. [201323]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA funds research at the Met Office Hadley Centre (MOHC) aimed at improving the representation of ice sheets in climate models, and (through the DEFRA/Ministry of Defence funded MOHC Integrated Climate Programme) scientists at the MOHC are working with the wider academic community to study future changes in ice-sheet volume and sea level. DEFRA also funds research into the potential impacts of sea level rise on the United Kingdom through the UK Climate Impacts Programme.

The Government advise the operating authorities to factor a predicted change in the rate of sea level rise from the current 2.5 to 4 millimetres per year from 13 to 15 millimetres per year by the end of the century, depending on location, into the design of present-day river and coastal defences. As part of a precautionary approach, this advice includes predicted land level changes as well as predicted changes in global average sea level.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200720]

Jonathan Shaw: It is not appropriate to disclose values for staff, other than those whose details are reported on in Remuneration Reports in the Department's Resource Accounts. A copy of the Resource Accounts for the year 2006-07 can be found in the Library.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many respondents took part in each consultation held by his Department in each of the last three years. [198676]

Jonathan Shaw: Departments publish consultations as an integral part of their policy development work. In compliance with the Government's Code of Practice on Consultation, departments publish summaries of the responses received to their consultation exercises. These state how may responses were received.

Information is not held centrally on how many respondents took part in each consultation for over the last three years. To acquire this information would be at disproportionate cost. The number of responses to DEFRA consultations varies greatly, from 12 in the case of our Consultation on the Reform of Fruit and Vegetable Regime to 16,919 responses for the Climate Change Bill.

Since January 2005 until December 2007 the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has launched 289 public consultations.

The breakdown, per year, is as follows:

Calendar year	Number
2005	100
2006	108
2007	81

Fisheries: Quotas

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will ensure that compensation is provided to under-10 metre fishing fleets when new catch limits are in place. [201921] metre fleet are set by the Marine and Fisheries Agency, taking into account the amount of quota available to the under 10 metre fleet and estimates of the likely pattern of fishing activity. The proposed limits for 2008 were published earlier this year. These are subject to revision following discussion at quarterly meetings with representatives of the fishing fleet at quarterly meetings around the coast and in London.

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Monthly catch limits of quota stocks for the under 10

I have recently consulted under 10 metre fishermen on a package of measures intended to bring fleet capacity more into line with fishing opportunity. My officials are developing detailed proposals and I expect to be able to publish a formal consultation on these proposals in the summer of this year. Compensation payments do not form part of those proposals.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timetable is for discussions between his Department and the Marine and Fisheries Agency with regard to changes to the under-10 metre fleet catch limits. [201923]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 April 2008]: DEFRA officials and the Marine and Fisheries Agency discuss fisheries management issues, including the under 10 metre catch limits, on a regular basis as required. For this reason, there is no set timetable for discussions.

Fisheries: Sustainable Development

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration has been given to the situation of under-10 metre fleets that use sustainable rod and line fishing methods in formulating fisheries policy [201922]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 April 2008]: As DEFRA continues to develop its policy on environmentally responsible fishing we will be considering the environmental impacts of all types of fishing, including rod and line fishing.

Flood Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the capacity of internal drainage boards to undertake responsibility for flood prevention beyond their traditional locations. [201325]

Mr. Woolas: The current consultation on surface water management seeks views on the role that internal drainage boards might play in producing surface water management plans in the future. It is suggested that internal drainage boards might play a greater role in managing surface water drainage in rural areas in a parallel role to the equivalent operating authority in urban areas.

The consultation suggests that operating authorities, in fulfilling their surface water drainage responsibilities, could set up a working group made up of the relevant local authorities, water companies, the Environment Agency and the relevant internal drainage boards. In certain circumstances, a local authority may choose to discharge its responsibilities for leading a surface water management plan through a relevant internal drainage board in their area. This board would then play a lead role in preparing the plan and ensuring that other operating authorities' activities are consistent with it.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authority areas fall within the catchment of an internal drainage board. [201779]

Mr. Woolas: There are approximately 170 internal drainage boards (IDB) in England and Wales concentrated mainly in East Anglia, Yorkshire, Somerset and Lincolnshire. Most IDB catchments overlap several local authority boundaries. This means there is at least one, and usually multiple local authorities within each IDB catchment.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will encourage local authorities in areas where two tiers of local government exist to form joint bodies to oversee flood prevention measures. [201782]

Mr. Woolas: Local authorities have permissive powers (but no statutory obligation) to undertake works to manage flood risk from the sea and from watercourses for which the Environment Agency and internal drainage boards do not hold such powers. In areas where there are two tiers of local government, county councils will not normally exercise such powers unless this has been requested by the district council.

The current consultation on surface water management is considering the role that local authorities might play in preparing surface water management plans. It suggests that such plans should be prepared by the same tier of authority that currently prepares strategic flood risk assessments. In two-tier authorities, this is normally the district council, although this can depend on local circumstances.

Where flooding issues cut across district boundaries within a county, district councils would provide the detailed surface water management plan as the local planning authority, with county councils potentially exercising a scrutiny function across several local authorities.

We are currently reviewing the responsibilities of all delivery bodies involved in flood risk management and will look to the recommendations from the Pitt Review to determine how any changes might be implemented.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will encourage localised measurement of rainfall to present more accurate information on potential flooding. [201783]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency maintains a network of 750 telemetered rain-gauges which feed data directly into computer models to forecast river levels, using the national flood forecasting system (NFFS). The Environment Agency is about to gain access to a further 110 telemetered rain-gauges that are owned by the Met Office. The Environment Agency also maintains a network of 2,250 rain-gauges across England and Wales that are monitored on a daily basis and which are used in a planning capacity to establish potential flood risk.

Due to the limitations of measuring rainfall at fixed point locations, spatial data on actual and forecast rainfall is provided by a network of weather radars (which measure rainfall to a resolution up to 1 sq km), and by the Met Office's weather forecasting models. The Environment Agency has evaluated each area with a flood risk to ensure that each is served with information from an appropriate number of rain-gauges or data from weather radar. Where gaps are identified, then improvements in rain-gauge coverage (and/or weather radar) are under way.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what powers are available to a person who is appointed as a flood warden by a parish or town council. [201785]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency recently produced a policy statement on the use of flood wardens for flood warning purposes and supports the practice of using volunteers in local communities in times of flooding. Flood wardens provide community cohesion and support during and after flooding.

The Environment Agency is not aware of any powers available to volunteers who undertake this role.

Floods: Construction

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many occasions the Environment Agency has objected to a development on the basis of flood risk in the last five years, broken down by local authority; and what the outcome of the application was in each case. [201784]

Mr. Woolas: The high level target (HLT) 5 (previously HLT 12) and its appendices, provide information on the impact of the technical advice on flood risk provided by the Environment Agency on planning decisions made by English local planning authorities. This includes a list of all of the Environment Agency's objections on flood risk grounds (major and minor development).

All annual HLT reports compiled by the Environment Agency, from 2000-01 on development and flood risk, have been submitted to the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (and before that to the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food), with recent reports copied to Communities and Local Government.

The Environment Agency's list of all its objections lodged during 2006-07, are currently available via the Environment Agency's website and copies of the annual HLT report from 2001-02 have been placed in the Library of the House.

Livestock: Exports

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) cattle or calves, (b) sheep and (c) other livestock species were exported from the UK for (i) further fattening and (ii) slaughter in 2007. [201169]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not collected centrally and to do so would incur disproportionate cost.

Local Food Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria he has established to determine eligibility for the local food scheme; and whether such criteria vary between regions. [201256]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have been asked to reply as Minister with responsibility for national lottery issues.

The Local Food programme is run by the Royal Society of Wildlife Trusts as an award partner of Big Lottery Fund. It is one of five England wide award partner programmes funded through the Big Lottery Fund's Changing Spaces programme. Not-for-profit community groups and organisations in England can apply to the Local Food programme. The eligibility criteria do not vary between regions. For full details of eligibility criteria and further information about the programme visit:

www.localfoodgrants.org

Natural Gas

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has commissioned or funded into gas use in households which have introduced energy efficiency measures. [201324]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA has a research programme in place to test and quantify the in-situ performance of energy efficiency measures. We have also undertaken research into householder 'comfort taking'. This research feeds back into the modelling and the carbon savings prescribed to policies in the climate change programme.

Although yet to be fully quantified, we now know that UK gas consumption has fallen 12 per cent. since 2005, which we believe to be at least in part the impact of our regulatory energy efficiency policies such as the supplier obligation and building regulations.

Packaging: Recycling

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to encourage the introduction of a standardised labelling system indicating the recyclability of product packaging. [201556]

Joan Ruddock: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has helped the British Retail Consortium (BRC) to develop a voluntary scheme for on-pack labelling on recycling. WRAP and the BRC consulted on the scheme in November 2007, and expect to launch it formally soon.

Pet Travel Scheme

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of failure of microchips used to obtain pet passports there were in each of the last five years. [200967]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 24 April 2008]: Animal Health (AH) do not hold records of pets whose microchips have failed when scanned by their local vet.

AH do hold records of microchip failures when pets are presented at ports of entry. These show that, between 1 January 2003 and 1 January 2008, 297 pets were presented at ports and were refused entry into the UK under PETS due to microchip failure.

Plastic Bags: Taxation

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to exempt plastic bags made from biodegradable film from the proposed plastic bag tax. [202677]

Joan Ruddock: The Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in the Budget on 12 March that we will introduce legislation to require retailers to impose a charge on single-use carrier bags from 2009, if retailers have not achieved a substantial reduction in the number of bags distributed on a voluntary basis.

The criteria for the types of bags subject to the charge, and any appropriate exemptions, will be a matter for secondary legislation. This will be consulted on beforehand.

However, as the purpose of the proposed charge is to reduce the numbers of all types of single-use carrier bags being distributed, there are no current plans to exempt bags made from biodegradable film.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether plastic bags manufactured before the start date for any plastic bag tax will be subject to the tax. [202678]

Joan Ruddock: The Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in the Budget on 12 March that we will introduce legislation to require retailers to impose a charge on single-use carrier bags from 2009, if retailers have not achieved a substantial reduction in the number of bags distributed on a voluntary basis.

The criteria for the types of bags subject to the charge, and any appropriate exemptions, will be a matter for secondary legislation. This will be consulted on beforehand.

However, as one of the aims of the proposed charge is to change consumers' behaviour by ensuring that they have to pay a small—but meaningful—charge every time they accept a single-use bag, there are no current plans to exempt bags on the basis of the date on which they were manufactured.

Recreation Spaces: Urban Areas

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs under what circumstances the public may be excluded from land designated as a town green under section 15(1) of the Commons Act 2006. [200072]

Jonathan Shaw: There is some uncertainty over this issue, but our view is that local inhabitants have a right to indulge in lawful sports and pastimes on a registered town or village green. However, such rights do not extend to the public generally.

Tobacco: Wastes

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the percentage of waste accounted for by tobacco-related products. [201327]

Jonathan Shaw: No estimate has been made of the amount of waste accounted for specifically by tobacco-related products.

However, the most comprehensive measure of litter on the street today is that provided by the Local Environmental Quality Survey of England, conducted by ENCAMS on DEFRA's behalf. The survey is based on a random selection of 12,000 sites across a third of all England's local authority areas. The percentage of tobacco related products is shown in the following table.

	Percentage of sites on which smoking related litter is found
2001-02	60
2002-03	63
2003-04	79
2004-05	79
2005-06	79
2006-07	78

Water: Conservation

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to encourage the manufacture and sale of water efficient toilets that have a flush volume that is lower than the water regulation standard flush volume of six litres. [201555]

Mr. Woolas: The Water Supply (Water Fittings) Regulations currently set minimum levels of water efficiency performance for key water using appliances such as WCs, urinals, dishwashers and washing machines. A review of the regulations over the coming year will include options for setting new performance standards for key water using fittings. These measures will apply to individual appliances installed in both new and existing houses and non-domestic buildings.

DEFRA is working with Communities and Local Government on measures to improve the standard of water efficiency in new homes. New provisions in building regulations and the Code for Sustainable Homes set new performance standards for new homes, which will encourage the take-up of efficient water fittings.

Additionally the enhanced capital allowance (EGA) scheme for water efficient technologies provides accelerated tax relief to businesses investing in designated sustainable water technologies, including efficient toilets with flush volumes below six litres.

To assess future consumption trends for WCs, and identify what actions are necessary to improve WC design and efficiency, the Government's market transformation programme (MTP) has published a number of documents related to the water use of WCs. These documents are available on the MTP website.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts: Olympic Games 2012

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment he has made of the effects of expenditure on the 2012 London Olympics on arts funding. [201377]

Margaret Hodge: ACE Lottery will be contributing a total of £112.5 million towards the costs of the 2012 London Olympics, spread over the four years leading up to the Games. That amounts to £28 million per year, i.e. 5 per cent. of the expected total income for the arts in the period 2008-09 to 2011-12. There will still be approximately £500 million of new Lottery money for ACE over those four years and existing Lottery commitments will not be affected.

The Government have a proud record of support for the arts and over the last 10 years we have increased funding to the arts by 73 per cent. in real terms. In October 2007, we announced that grant-in-aid funding for Arts Council England (ACE) would continue to rise above inflation to £467 million by 2010-11, i.e. an increase of 3.3 per cent. above inflation over three years.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 February 2008, Official Report, column 1049W, on departmental ICT, how many missing or stolen (a) laptops and (b) personal digital assistants have been replaced by his Department; and at what cost. [202477]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All of the PDAs lost or stolen since 2001 have been replaced. The value of each is not recorded but as a guide the current price of a PDA is 159. All of the laptops were replaced by re-allocating existing equipment.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of (a) salaries for permanent Civil Service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-Civil Service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department was in each month since May 2005. [199624]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The cost of (a) salaries for permanent civil service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in the Department for each month since May 2005 are shown in the tables.

We have no permanent non-civil service posts.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200734]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There would be no effect on the Department for Culture, Media and Sport's expenditure from increasing the employee contribution by one per cent. to each pension scheme for which it is responsible.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201756]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the average number of days taken to answer parliamentary questions is not readily available in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fossils

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he proposes to take steps to bring fossils within the remit of the Waverly system; and if he will make a statement. [201010]

Margaret Hodge: I do not propose to bring fossils within the remit of the Waverley System. The export legislation for which my Department is responsible covers cultural goods only and does not cover fossils, since they are neither manufactured nor produced.

Gaming

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many adult gaming centres have closed in the last 12 months. [202522]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not hold centrally information on gaming centres.

Sports: Drugs

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects the new independent anti-doping agency to be established; and if he will make a statement. [202345]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport has been developing a business case outlining its proposals for the new National Anti-Doping Organisation (NADO). This was presented to me on 28 April.

Decisions on the new organisation, including possible timescales for establishment, will be made following consideration of the business case.

Strategic, Necessary and Proportionate Test

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on developing his Department's Strategic, Necessary and Proportionate test. [202338]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The SNaP test was developed by Departmental staff as part of the DCMS Transformation Programme, following the Department's Capability Review. Staff costs for this specific element of the Transformation Programme are not held but are expected to be minimal.

Theatres: Closures

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many regional theatres closed in each year since 1997. [194916]

Margaret Hodge: Information on independent theatres and theatres funded only by local authorities is not held centrally.

The following information provides a breakdown of producing theatres receiving Arts Council funding that have closed, are currently closed temporarily and that have opened since 2002. Arts Council England does not hold data on theatre closures and openings prior to the merger of the Arts Council of England and the Regional Arts Boards in 2002.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

ConstructionSkills: Stratagem

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what payments ConstructionSkills made to (a) Fishburn Hedges, (b) Stratagem and (c) Grayling Political strategy in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202261]

Mr. Lammy: I have written to Peter Lobban, the chief executive officer of CITB-ConstructionSkills, asking him to reply to the hon. Gentleman's question directly.

Apprentices: Social Security Benefits

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect on family incomes of young people taking on work-based apprenticeships with day release to college which are not eligible for education maintenance allowance and which result in the loss of child benefit, tax credits, child support agency and other passported benefits. [202425]

Mr. Lammy: In 2004 a cross-departmental review on financial support for 16 to 19-year-olds reported that apprenticeship pay should be on par with the overall package of financial support provided to learners in other learning routes. In response, the Government set an expectation that apprentices be paid a weekly wage of at least £80 per week which is broadly the equivalent of the package of child and family benefits paid in respect of unwaged learners. A research survey published by the Department in April 2008 showed that average apprenticeship pay has risen in line with inflation since 2005, from a weekly average of £137 to £170 in 2008. A copy of the survey report will be placed in the Library. To ensure that apprenticeship pay remains at least on par with financial support for other learning routes, the Government have remitted the Low Pay Commission to report on apprenticeship pay by February 2009. The Government will consider its findings once they have been published.

Business: Higher Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many (a) British nationals, (b) EU citizens, (c) non-EU citizens and (d) individuals in total with a Masters degree or equivalent M-level or continuing professional development qualification received a Master of Business Administration degree from each institution in each of the last 10 years; [201605]

(2) how many (a) British nationals, (b) EU citizens, (c) non-EU citizens and (d) individuals in total received a Masters degree from each institution in each of the last 10 years; [201606]

(3) how many (a) British nationals, (b) EU citizens, (c) non-EU citizens and (d) people in total received PGCEs in each subject from each institution in each of the last 10 years; [201607]

(4) how many UK nationals of each (a) age, (b) sex and (c) ethnic group completed an equal or lower qualification following (i) full-time and (ii) part-time study in each subject at each institution in each of the last 10 years; [201609]

(5) how many (a) British nationals, (b) EU citizens, (c) non-EU citizens and (d) people in total who already had a PGCE qualification received a Masters degree or equivalent or lower qualification except an M-Level or continuing professional development qualification in each subject from each institution in each of the last 10 years. [201611]

Bill Rammell: Most of the information is not held centrally or could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The data we hold are set out in tables which have been placed in the Libraries.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201745]

Mr. Lammy: All property occupied by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills is managed on our behalf by, and is the responsibility of, the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, and the Department for Children Schools and Families. Therefore steps taken to reduce energy consumption in those Departments will apply to his Department as well.

No separate figures are yet available for departmental expenditure on energy.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200721]

Mr. Lammy: Arising from its responsibilities as an employer, the Department has to ensure that appropriate employer pension contributions are made to the pension schemes into which its employees make contributions under their contract of employment. The Department does not have responsibility for the management of these schemes.

The overriding majority of my Department's staff are members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme.

The information sought in the question is contained in the resource accounts of the pension schemes.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200722]

Mr. Lammy: The Department was established as a result of Machinery of Government changes in June 2007.

Arising from its responsibilities as an employer, the Department has to ensure that appropriate employer pension contributions are made to the pension schemes into which its employees make contributions under their contract of employment. The Department does not have responsibility for the management of these schemes.

The overriding majority of employees in the Department are members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme.

Information about pension scheme liabilities in present value terms is shown in scheme resource accounts (since 2000/01), although these are produced under differing sets of assumptions—for example, of longevity—so are not comparable across years.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200723]

Mr. Lammy: The Department was established as a result of Machinery of Government changes in June 2007.

Arising from its responsibilities as an employer, the Department has to ensure that appropriate employer pension contributions are made to the pension schemes into which its employees make contributions under their contract of employment. The rate and cost information being sought is contained in the pension scheme resource accounts (since 2000/01).

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be from increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200724]

Mr. Lammy: An increase in the employee contribution would not affect the Department's expenditure.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200725]

Mr. Lammy: The majority of the information requested will be set out in the Departmental Remuneration Report, which is part of the Department's accounts.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many public consultations have been held by his Department since its establishment; and how many respondents took part in each consultation. [198644]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills has launched eight public consultations since its establishment. The number of respondents that took part in the process for each consultation is stated in the following table. Please note that "a respondent" may be an individual or equally it can be an organisation representing the views of its full membership of thousands. The tracking system cannot distinguish between the two.

Financial Services Skills Council: Cicero Consulting

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what payments the Financial Services Skills Council made to Cicero Consulting in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202262]

Mr. Lammy: The Financial Services Skills Council has contracted with Cicero Consulting since December 2006. The payments and contract between Financial Services Skills Council and Cicero Consulting are current and commercial in confidence. Under the arrangements Cicero Consulting provide expertise and advice on financial services for a fixed amount of hours per month. It is important that the SSC has a sound understanding of the issues faced by and the views of the industry and consumers.

Part-Time Education: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of making the support available to part-time 19 to 25-year-olds enrolled on their first full level 3 course equivalent to that of full-time, home-based, first degree undergraduates in respect of (a) grants, (b) maintenance loans and (c) fee loans; and if he will make a statement. [196896]

Bill Rammell: Our internal modelling estimates for extending the Level 3 entitlement to adults aged 25-29 is around £20 million over the CSR period (i.e. from 2008/09 to 2010/11) in respect of tuition fees. Our estimate of extending it to adults aged 25-34 is around £40 million over the same period. This is probably near the bottom end of likely costs: were participation to increase as a result of the entitlement, costs could be much greater.

We currently have no plans to extend the Level 3 entitlement beyond its current age-range of 19-24.

Student Loans Company: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how much money was retained by the Student Loans Company for eventual repayment to graduates in each month of the last year for which figures are available; [200279]

(2) how much money has been refunded to graduates by the Student Loans Company (SLC) in the form of (a) refunds of overpayments for people who have extinguished their debt, (b) refunds for people who have overpaid but who continue to owe money to the SLC and (c) refunds for any other reason in each of the last five years. [200280]

Bill Rammell: The Student Loans Company (SLC) does not retain funds to repay student loan borrowers, but refunds any overpayments from the cash repayments it receives from borrowers. Refunds include any interest due, which is awarded at the same rate of interest as that charged on student loans (matching the Retail Price Index). The net repayments collected by the SLC are paid back to the Government on a monthly basis.

Refunds to borrowers who continue to owe money to the SLC may arise for a number of reasons—mainly due to administrative errors or because their overall annual income is below the annual repayment threshold (£15,000) but income at some paydates in the year exceeds the weekly or monthly threshold.

The amounts refunded to borrowers by the SLC for the five years commencing 2002-03 are set out in the following table. Refunds in 2006-07 represented 1.7 per cent. of the repayments collected by SLC totalling £529,800,000.

Type of refund	Financial year 2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Borrowers who have extinguished their debt	764,124	2,324,109	4,314,058	6,796,132	8,184,667
Borrowers who have overpaid but continue to owe money	1,051,751	873087	1,468,336	1,558,074	1,039,750
Total	1,815,875	3,197,196	5,782,394,	8,354,206	9,224,417

Notes:
1. Includes income contingent (ICR) loans and publicly owned mortgage style (MS) loans.
2. Domicile—England for ICR loans and England and Wales for MS loans.
3. It was not practical to isolate other refunds from the category of borrowers who continue to owe money.

Students: Grants

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many and what proportion of part-time undergraduates in England studying (a) between 50 per cent. and 59 per cent., (b) between 60 per cent. and 74 per cent. and (c) 75 per cent. or more of a full-time course received a fee grant in the last year for which figures are available; [200287]

(2) what the average value was of the fee grant received by part-time undergraduates studying (a) between 50 per cent. and 59 per cent., (b) between 60 per cent. and 74 per cent. and (c) 75 per cent. or more of a full-time course in the last year for which figures are available. [200288]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is not available centrally.

Students: Loans

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North Devon of 18 March 2008, Official Report, columns 84-6WS, on Education (Student Support) Regulations, how much in (a) student loans and (b) maintenance grants was paid to prisoners undertaking full-time higher education courses in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and how much has been repaid to the Student Loans Company by such prisoners since it was established. [196706]

Bill Rammell: In his written statement on 7 February 2008, Official Report, columns 85-86WS, on the Education (Student Support) Regulations, the Secretary of State announced that he was amending the student support regulations to disallow prisoners who were also full-time students from receiving financial support for maintenance, thereby removing the long-standing provision which had allowed prisoners to claim such support. In a further written statement on 25 March 208, Official Report, column 6WS, he announced that an investigation showed that 154 individual prisoners had received some form of maintenance payment while a full time student since 1998. In total, prisoners received £570,000 in maintenance loans and £160,000 in maintenance grants over that period. The investigation also showed that assessments for student support were carried out in accordance with the rules that applied at the time. There was also evidence of some maintenance payments made to prisoners between 1990 and 1998.

The following table shows the amounts in maintenance loans and maintenance grants paid to prisoners undertaking full-time higher education courses in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available.

Academic year	1998/99	1999/2000	2000/01	2001/02	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Student Loans[1]	12,675	19,912	13,602	19,879	39,860	41,587	60,285	105,437	143,564	108,670
Maintenance Grants[2]	0	0	0	0	0	0	9,189	24,999	68,704	54,816
Total	12,675	19,912	13,602	19,879	39,860	41,687	69,474	130,436	212,268	163,486

[1] Student Loans consist of pre-1998 mortgage-style loans; income contingent loans introduced in 1998 and transitional loans (1998/99).
[2] Maintenance grants consist of the former Higher Education grant in 2004/05 and 2005/06 and maintenance grant from 2006/07.

Repayment of student loans by prisoners is the same as for other borrowers. For income contingent loans, borrowers start to repay in the April after they graduate or withdraw from their course. Repayment is linked to income and repayable through the PAYE or Self Assessment Tax system and is at 9 per cent. on earnings above £15,000 a year. Interest paid is linked to the rate of inflation, so in real terms what is paid back is equivalent to what was borrowed. The repayments to the Student Loans Company by these borrowers and posted to their accounts as at 19 March, 2008 is shown in the table as follows.

Loan type	Amount repaid (£)
Mortgage Style loans	3,566
Income Contingent Repayments (covers repayments to end March 2007).	22,091
Total repaid	25,657

The figures do not include payments that have been made but not yet credited to Borrowers' accounts. Prisoners will typically take longer to start repayments than other students. For example, some prisoners will complete their course several years before release; and there will therefore be a longer period between prisoners finishing their studies and starting work and earning above the annual threshold.

Students: Part-Time Education

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of undergraduate part-time students in England are studying between 30 and 49 per cent. of a full-time course. [200290]

Bill Rammell: In academic year 2006/07 there were 33,400 English domiciled part-time undergraduates studying in the UK at between 30 per cent. and 49 per cent. of an equivalent full-time course. This represents 7 per cent. of part-time undergraduate students.

Training: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of the foundation learning tier under the (a) adult learner response strand and (b) employer response strand has been allocated to (i) 14 to 19 year olds and (ii) 19 and over in (A) 2008-09, (B) 2009-10 and (C) 2010-11. [202433]

Mr. Lammy: The joint grant letter to the Learning and Skills Council from this Department and the Department for Children, Schools and Families (November, 2007) set out the Government's funding strategy for learning and skills over the comprehensive spending review period (2008-09 to 2010-11).

All planned expenditure for the foundation learning tier (FLT) through the adult learner responsive and employer responsive model relates to adults aged 19 and over. This is set out in the following table in line with Annex B to the grant letter.

Planned expenditure for foundation learning tier 2008-09 to 2010-11

£ million

	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Adult learner responsive model	243	275	290
Employer responsive model	16	15	15

Planned expenditure for 14-19 year olds is based on the expected route of learning such as schools, further education and work-based learning rather than level of learning. The LSC statement of priorities presents these figures for 16-18 year olds only as 14-16 year olds are funded by local authorities.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Aerials: Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to ensure that local authorities apply business rates to phone masts at a single uniform rate. [201904]

John Healey: Authorities have no discretion over the level of business rates they apply to phone masts in their areas. Legislation requires this to be charged at a uniform rate on the rateable value of the hereditament incurred, subject to any other reliefs, which are also determined by legislation.

Allotments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the provision of allotments; and what role her Department has in such provision. [202130]

Mr. Iain Wright: A revised good practice guide, "Growing in the Community", was published by the Local Government Association in March 2008, and includes a section on allotment provision. A free copy was sent to all local authorities.

The provision of allotments is the responsibility of local authorities. Section 23 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act 1908 places a duty on local authorities (except for inner London boroughs) to provide allotments where they perceive a demand for them in their area. Furthermore, "Planning Policy Guidance Note 17: Planning for Open Space, Sport and Recreation", 2002 requires local authorities to make provision for all types of open space and requires them to undertake robust assessments of local needs and audits of existing open space, to establish standards for new provision. By implementing the guidance in PPG17, local authorities should make adequate provision for allotments.

Career Structure

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what plans she has for the training and development of finance staff in her Department's headquarters under the Finance Professionalism agenda; and whether those proposals have been (a) equality-proofed under Civil Service equality provisions and (b) subject to an equality impact assessment; [202210]

(2) how many staff within the finance team in her Department's headquarters have been promoted under the Finance Professionalism agenda; [202211]

(3) how many staff within the finance team in her Department's headquarters have been promoted in the last 12 months otherwise than under the provisions of the Finance Professionalism agenda; [202212]

(4) whether her Department's trade union side or the relevant recognised trade unions was consulted on the Finance Professionalism agenda before it was announced to staff; and whether the trade union side or the relevant recognised trade unions has written to her Department seeking consultation on the Finance Professionalism agenda. [202213]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The agenda for financial management and finance professionalism is mandated by HM Treasury. The objectives are:

"Delivering world class standards of financial management in Government requires the cost effective translation of resources into desired outcomes. This means having the right decision making structures in place, and the financial information and skills capacities to operate them.

In seeking to deliver world class standards of financial management the Treasury aims to:-

Promote improvements in the effectiveness of financial management and finance professionalism in Government.

Implement reporting frameworks that build on best practice and deliver efficient and effective integrated reporting mechanisms for Government financial data.

Promote excellent accountability in the use of public funds through setting standards of governance, risk management and internal control."

Delivery of the Finance Professionalism agenda in each Government Department is the responsibility of the Head of Finance Professionalism. They operate within the framework and accountabilities established by Dame Mary Keegan within the auspices of the Government Finance Profession.

For details of the role see:

http://thegfp.treasury.gov.uk/professional/hofps_58.html

The accountabilities include training and development of finance staff. Communities and Local Government ("CLG") participate in the "Big 7" group of Heads of Finance Professionalism in sharing best practice and developing the professionalism agenda.

In September 2007, CLG launched its current training and development programme for finance staff. At present, this is focused on London-based staff and has not yet been rolled out to the Government offices and the shared service centre. The main strands of the training and development programme are:

Continuous professional development activities and events for qualified and part qualified staff.

"Bite sized" learning events on both finance and other Professional Skills for Government ("PSG") topics that are relevant to CLG for all finance staff.

Professional training courses for a CCAB qualification delivered by England's leading providers and open to all finance staff.

Development of a set of finance competencies, based on best practice, against which finance staff can benchmark themselves.

The training and development programme has been equality-proofed and subject to an equality impact assessment. Specifically:

There is no limitation on any finance staff attending training and development events.

There is no funding limitation or restrictions in finance staff taking up professional training.

The training providers have a range of courses, including day release; evening study; weekend study and distance learning to fully meet flexible working requirements. There are no restrictions on which course finance staff select and there are generous study leave arrangements.

The training providers operate from a number of localities to meet the needs of finance staff.

The finance training manager provides open support and is available to assist with any individual difficulties.

The training and development programme also covers non-finance staff and provides for accessibility and support for finance Professional Skills for Government through the National School of Government "Finance Love Learning" portal.

There are approximately 135 finance staff based in central London. Since the launch of the current finance professionalism scheme in September, there have been six promotions internally on successful completion of accountancy examinations. Three finance staff have been promoted on transfer to other Government Departments, including one to the senior civil service. In addition, three members of the CLG fast stream have joined the Government Finance Profession ("GFP") fast stream.

Prior to the new scheme, only one member of staff had been promoted in the preceding five months from 1 April 2007. This promotion was of a member of staff who had worked independently to pass accountancy qualifications.

The Finance Professionalism agenda is a Government-wide initiative, the objectives of which are publicly set out on the GFP website.

For details see:

http://thegfp.treasury.gov.uk/home.aspx

The policy strands of the current training and development programme were discussed with the trade union side on 7 September 2007.

On 28 January 2008, the PCS union wrote to the Head of Finance Professionalism in relation to the finance competency framework that had been issued to support finance staff unable to take finance qualifications. On 29 January, the Head of Finance Professionalism wrote to the PCS to answer the questions that they had raised and offered to meet the PCS to discuss any concerns. There have been regular communications to staff.

Council Tax

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it a requirement for local authorities to check households appearing in the electoral register against the council tax database to ensure that two-into-one property conversions are properly assessed for council tax; and if she will make a statement. [201143]

John Healey: Maintaining a list of bandings for council tax purposes is already the statutory responsibility of the Valuation Office Agency.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what her Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201747]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government have taken numerous steps to reduce its energy consumption over the last twelve months.

The Department has developed a detailed Energy Efficiency Action Plan which provides a structured, timetabled approach to reducing its carbon emissions. Efficiency controls have been fitted to fans and pumps, and plant operating hours have been reduced. The building energy management system in the Department's main headquarter building has also been upgraded to enable more effective control of heating and cooling. Air conditioning plant has remained off during the winter season, and external solar blinds have been permanently lowered during summer periods to reduce solar gain. An audit was also undertaken to ensure that sensors fitted to lights were operating as intended. (The Department's office floor lighting is fitted with daylight and movement sensors which automatically switch lights off after 2 ½ minutes of inactivity.)

Ongoing staff awareness campaigns continue to help towards reducing the energy consumption of office equipment and the total number of computer printers has been reduced. The Department also participated in the Lights Out London energy efficiency awareness raising event.

As part of the Department's wider estate rationalisation strategy, the total number of buildings occupied has been reduced, thereby reducing total energy consumption across the estate.

Actions taken to reduce energy consumption within the Department's executive agencies have included installation of more energy efficient lighting systems, reductions in heating plant operating hours, installation of timer devices on boilers and investigations into options for on-site renewable energy generation.

Energy expenditure in the last twelve months and the twelve months immediately preceding was as follows:

	2006-07	2007-08
London headquarters	1,447,997	895,565
Executive Agencies	2,322,468	1,802,928

These figures do not include data from the regional Government Offices.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what criminal offences have been created by primary legislation sponsored by her Department since July 2007. [198309]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department has sponsored five Acts that have received Royal Assent during or after July 2007. Four of these have not created any criminal offences:

The Ratings (Empty Properties) Act;

The Greater London Authority Act;

The Planning Gain Supplement (Preparations) Act; and

The Sustainable Communities Act.

Section 130 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health (LGPIH) Act 2007 creates an offence of failing to provide address details when required to do so, or providing a false address, as part of arrangements to allow for a fixed penalty to be paid in lieu of prosecution for byelaw offences.

The LGPIH Act also includes provision in section 194 which whilst not creating criminal offences per se, can be used in regulations to replicate existing offences contained in section 63 of the Local Government Act 2000 relating to improper disclosure of information.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what budget each Minister in her Department has for entertainment in 2008-09. [202085]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Ministers do not hold entertainment budgets. All hospitality is provided in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the effect on her Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which her Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if she will make a statement. [200739]

Mr. Dhanda: An increase in 2007-08 employee contributions for the firefighters' pension scheme 1992 and the new firefighters' pension scheme 2006 of 1 per cent. would amount to £10 million. An increase in employee contributions to the local government pension scheme would amount to some £300 million on the latest figures available.

The impact of these on the budgets of fire and rescue authorities and other local authorities would depend on other factors including any knock-on effect of the change on pay, recruitment or retention.

Domestic Wastes: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1248W, on carbon dioxide emissions, what role household waste plays in any definition of zero carbon. [202472]

Mr. Iain Wright: Household waste has no role to play specifically in the definition of zero carbon, which is focused on the energy performance of the home in relation to energy use from cooking, washing and electronic appliances as well as space heating, cooling, ventilation, lighting and hot water. However, the Code for Sustainable Homes contains a minimum entry requirement on household waste which must be met in order to gain a star rating against the code at any level. This ensures that when developers are building to higher environmental standards, and ultimately zero carbon standards at level 6 of the code, waste is taken into account in the design, construction and occupation of the house.

East of England Regional Assembly: Elections

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on direct elections to the East of England Regional Assembly; and if she will make a statement. [202091]

John Healey: I have received no such representations. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Gloucester (Mr. Dhanda) on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1397W, which sets out the Government's policy on regional assemblies.

Farms: Planning Permission

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will bring forward proposals to amend planning legislation to enable farmers to build on-farm accommodation for their children more easily. [201222]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government recognise that rural communities do face particular housing pressures. That is why the hon. Member for Truro and St. Austell has been asked to conduct an independent review to advise and assist Government on how land use and planning can better support rural business and deliver affordable housing, and which is due to report in July this year.

The policy approach in Planning Policy Statement 3 "Housing" (PPS3) and Planning Policy Statement 7: "Sustainable Development in Rural Areas" (PPS7) allows the development of new dwellings within existing farm holdings or, for example, the conversion of disused or underused farm buildings for housing, in certain, suitable locations. Annex A of PPS7 advises that one of the circumstances in which isolated residential development may be justified is when accommodation is required to enable agricultural, forestry and certain other full-time workers to live at, or in the immediate vicinity of, their place of work.

Local planning authorities should include appropriate policies in their local plans which will help deliver the amount of housing they need and decide where that housing should be located. It is for them to determine individual planning applications, such as those for the development of new dwellings within existing farm holdings, in accordance with their local plans, unless material considerations indicate otherwise.

The policies in PPS3 and PPS7 apply to England only. Planning policy in Wales is a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government.

Fire Services: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) whole-time firefighters, (b) retained firefighters and (c) non-uniformed fire and rescue service staff were employed on 11th September (i) 2001 and (ii) in each subsequent year, broken down by fire authority area. [202135]

Mr. Dhanda: Available information, for the period 2001-02 to 2005-06 (at 31 March in each year), has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Flags

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role her Department plays in (a) the process by which counties may establish their own flags and (b) the planning permission rules relating to the flying of county flags; and how many counties have established such flags. [200925]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government plays no part in the process by which counties may establish their own flags. Similarly, we hold no records on how many counties have established such flags.

Under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 flags come within the definition of "advertisement". The rules relating to the flying of county flags are to be found in the Town and Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) (England) Regulations 2007, which came into force on 6 April 2007. Under Class H Schedule 1 of these Regulations certain flags, including those of any English county, may be flown without requiring the express consent of the local authority in whose territory they are being flown, provided that neither the flag nor the flagstaff displays any advertisement or subject matter additional to the design of the flag.

Floods: Local Government Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers parish and town councils have to levy a precept in order to deal with flooding issues. [201800]

John Healey: Section 41 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 provides powers to parish and town councils to issue a precept to their local billing authority as their budget requirement for the year. A precept must be issued before 1 March in the financial year preceding that for which it is issued.

There is no requirement for the precept to be broken down against specific services provided.

Greenbelt: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1275W, on regional planning and development, in which local authorities has a planning inspector has (a) amended a proposed policy on the Green Belt and (b) rejected a development plan document as unsound due to the proposed policy on the Green Belt. [202480]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the Statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200217]

Mr. Dhanda: My Department does not provide health or social care services, but does provides grant funding for local authorities, through, for example, Formula Grant, which may be used to support local authority social care functions.

There are no plans at present to apply the proposed power in clause 69 of the Health and Social Care Bill, enabling the Care Quality Commission to perform any of its functions in relation to health or social care schemes, to any activities which are within the policy responsibility of my Department.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what plans the Government have to establish a standard definition for zero-carbon with regards to housing; and if she will make a statement; [201803]

(2) what discussions her Department has had with HM Treasury on defining zero-carbon for the purposes of housing; and if she will make a statement. [201870]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the Building a Greener Future policy statement, published on 23 July 2007, we committed to consulting on the definition of zero carbon homes from 2016. In the 2008 Budget the Government announced that the 2016 definition of a zero carbon home would be set by the end of 2008 following a consultation in the summer.

Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what representations her Department has received on the comparative carbon dioxide emission reductions potentially available from refurbishing existing housing to higher energy efficiency standards and building new zero carbon housing; and if she will make a statement; [201868]

(2) what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the carbon dioxide emissions from refurbishing existing housing to higher energy efficiency standards; and if she will make a statement. [201869]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government anticipate that, in order to meet the long-term carbon reduction target set out in the Climate Change Bill, substantial reductions will be required both from new and existing homes. A number of studies have been undertaken on the potential in each of these. In particular:

In 2007, following analysis published by my Department (http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/reviewsustainability), the Office of Climate Change published its analytical slide pack on household emissions (http://www.occ.gov.uk/publications/index.htm). This estimated that existing policies (including zero carbon homes) would reduce carbon emissions by some 45 million tonnes carbon dioxide ($MtCO_2$) per year by 2020 and that there was further potential (not from existing policies) to reduce emissions by some 47.5 $MtCO_2$ per year (including some 11.7 $MtCO_2$ from measures with a payback of seven years or less).

In 2007, following consultation, my Department published the "Building a Greener Future" policy statement (http://www.communities.gov.ukypublications/planningandbuilding/building-a-greener) and accompanying regulatory impact assessment, which estimated that our policies on revising building regulations towards the zero carbon standard will save some 2.7 $MtCO_2$ per year by 2020 and at least 15 $MtCO_2$ per year by 2050. A further consultation on the detailed definition of zero carbon will follow later this year.

Housing: Insulation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of properties in England unsuitable for cavity wall insulation; what proportion of the total housing stock this represents; what reports she has received on the reasons why cavity wall insulation is inappropriate in some circumstances; and what effect such circumstances are likely to have on her Department's ability to meet its targets on improving the energy efficiency of existing housing stock. [201317]

Caroline Flint: The Explanatory Memorandum for the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target includes an estimate of the number of cavity walls in GB that can not be insulated for the following reasons:

High rise blocks of flats.

Cavity width less than 50mm (or less than 40mm) if UF foam is used.

Walls below ground level.

Finlock gutters (unless they have been lined)

Water penetration or rising damp (unless treated)

Timber, steel, concrete or stone walls.

Walls exposed to driving rain (unless the outer leaf is in good condition and appropriate to the locality).

We estimate that there are currently 7.3 million homes in Great Britain with unfilled but fillable wall cavities and around 807,000 homes with unfillable cavities, for the reasons set out above. We estimate that around 2.9 million cavities will be filled under the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target.

However, the insulation industry has informed the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) that improvements in technology mean that some of these cavities can now be filled; for example, three of the main insulation companies have installed cavity wall insulation in blocks of flats up to 45m, and CIGA (the cavity wall insulation guarantee agency) has assured DEFRA that cavity wall insulation is regularly retrofitted to homes in areas of driving rain (for example, Cornwall, Shetland and the Hebrides) provided that the external leaf of the building is in good condition. We therefore believe that the figure of 807,000 unfillable cavities in Great Britain is an over-estimate.

Housing: Lancashire

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to increase the supply of affordable housing in (a) Morecambe and Lunesdale constituency and (b) Lancashire. [194713]

Mr. Iain Wright: The North West has been allocated £837 million for housing over the next three years, an increase of £341 million on the previous spending review period.

Of the £837 million, £526 million is specifically for the provision of affordable housing. The Government are expecting a minimum output of 6,900 homes for social renting and 3,000 units for affordable home ownership. However decisions still have to be made on how best to spend these resources to achieve these aims.

Part of this regional allocation will go towards the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing Programme (NAHP). The first tranche of the 2008-11 programme was announced on 26 February 2008. £45.3 million will be allocated to Lancashire, and £2.9 million will go to Lancaster, which includes Morecambe in its area. Further allocations will be made later.

In addition, £311 million of the regional allocation will go to local authorities over the next three years, and Lancaster city council has been allocated £1.28 million for 2008-09.

Housing: Planning Permission

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will consider giving local authorities greater powers within the planning process on decisions to convert family dwelling houses to flats; and if she will make a statement. [201897]

Mr. Iain Wright: In general, the conversion of a dwelling house to flats would involve a material change of use and therefore require planning permission. It would then be for the local authority to determine whether this is appropriate based on their local plans and policies and the need for such housing in the area. It is important for local authorities to strike a balance between the need to make efficient use of land by building at higher densities in accessible locations and making sure that satisfactory living conditions are either maintained or could be achieved.

I have no plans to give local authorities greater powers in relation to planning decisions on the conversion of dwelling houses to flats, as I consider that existing powers are sufficient. It would not be appropriate to restrict generally the opportunities that conversions can bring to overall housing stock, as these are decisions best taken locally after careful consideration of the merits and drawbacks of each particular case.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in respect of how many new dwellings Bournemouth borough council has granted planning permission in each of the last three years. [202330]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government collects quarterly aggregate statistics on the number of planning decisions granted for major and minor developments relating to residential development. We do not collect data on individual planning applications. However, data obtained directly from the borough of Bournemouth show that the authority gave planning permission for the following numbers of dwellings over the past three years.

	Number
2005-06	2,900
2006-07	2,677
2007-08	2,253

The figures exclude any applications granted on appeal. The statistics may also include applications for the same site.

Housing: Prices

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average purchase price of a domestic dwelling was for a first-time buyer in (a) England and (b) the United Kingdom in the most recent period for which figures are available. [202554]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government calculate monthly mix-adjusted average purchase prices of domestic dwellings bought by first time buyers based on data from the Regulated Mortgage Survey. This is available for the UK, by country and Government Office region back to February 2002 on our website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table-592

From this table the average mix-adjusted price of a property bought by a first time buyer in February 2008 was £166,101 in England and £160,338 in the UK.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on the average purchase price of a domestic dwelling paid by first time buyers. [202649]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government calculate monthly mix-adjusted average purchase prices of domestic dwellings bought by first time buyers based on data from the regulated mortgage survey. This is available for the UK, by country and Government Office region back to February 2002 on our website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/table-592

Housing: Standards

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many (a) local authority, (b) private rented, (c) owner-occupier and (d) housing association homes did not reach the decent homes standard in each region in England in each year since 2001. [201652]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 25 April 2008]: Nationally, the English House Condition Survey (EHCS) is used to monitor house conditions and has been carried out and reported every five years until 2001 and annually from 2003. The survey provides the following national estimates of non-decency for all sectors from 2001 to the latest date available, 2006:

Table 1: Number of non-decent homes by sector, 2001-06

Number (Thousand)

	2001	2003	2004	2005	2006

The EHCS cannot provide robust regional figures for each tenure on an annual basis. However, the following regional aggregates for local authorities (LAs) and registered social landlords (RSLs) have been reported by local authorities in their Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA) returns and by housing associations in the Housing Corporation's Regulatory Statistical Return (RSR):

Index of Deprivation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will place in the Library copies of the original datasets used to calculate the geographical barriers sub-domain in the English Indices of Deprivation 2007, including data for each lower layer super output area for (a) road distance to a GP surgery, (b) road distance to a general store or supermarket, (c) road distance to a primary school and (d) road distance to a post office or sub post office; [202620]

(2) if she will place in the Library a copy of the dataset of difficulty of access to owner-occupation used to compile the Index of Deprivation 2007, including data for each lower layer super output area. [202466]

John Healey: The Department is seeking the relevant permissions to enable us to publish the underlying indicators of the Index of Multiple Deprivation 2007 at Lower Super Output Area level, including those in the geographical barriers sub-domain. I will place a copy of these indicators in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes were made to the methodology of the Index of Deprivation in (a) 2000, (b) 2004 and (c) 2007 in relation to the manner in which the geographical barriers sub-domain was calculated. [202629]

John Healey: The Index of Multiple Deprivation 2000 (IMD 2000) is a ward level measure of multiple deprivation. For the geographical access sub-domain, average distance travelled to each service was calculated as the average distance that claimants in a particular ward would have to travel to that service, as the crow flies. The distances to post offices, doctors' surgeries and food shops were computed for claimants of means tested out-of-work benefits, while the distance to primary schools was computed for all children aged 5 to 8.

The same four indicators were used in the IMD 2004 and 2007. However both these indices are based on Lower Super Output Area (LSOA) geography, rather than ward geography. The measurement of distance changed from ;as the crow flies' to measuring road distance, to each service. The distances were measured to the nearest 10 metres. In 2004 and 2007 distance was measured for all people rather than just for people claiming out-of-work benefits. In the case of primary schools, the population used is the relevant child population.

Infrastructure Planning Commission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice her Department has received from the Planning Inspectorate (PINS) on the number of cases which would have been reported or determined by PINS, which are likely to be dealt with by the Infrastructure Planning Commission. [201551]

Mr. Iain Wright: The advice that the Planning Inspectorate has given to the Department is that fewer than 10 cases per year that are or would have been dealt with by the Inspectorate would be handled by the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) on the basis of the definitions contained in the Bill. This is consistent with departmental statements that it would only be a handful of cases that would pass from the Inspectorate to the IPC.

Infrastructure Planning Commission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average number of planning applications which will be considered by the Infrastructure Planning Commission each year. [202465]

John Healey: The Planning Bill Impact Assessment, published in November 2007, estimated that the Infrastructure Planning Commission would consider around 45 major infrastructure projects a year. In addition, the May 2007 Planning White Paper made clear that there would also be a larger number of less complex cases, such as works necessary to ensure the operational effectiveness and resilience of the electricity transmission and distribution network.

Local Authorities: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has given local authorities guidance on carbon offsetting. [202653]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government has not given advice to local authorities on carbon offsetting. However, in January 2007, DEFRA wrote to local authorities to inform them of the work it has been doing to develop a voluntary code of practice for offsetting. Government are continuing to develop this work, in the form of a voluntary quality assurance scheme.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes have been made to the equalisation formula for local government funding in England since May 1997. [202627]

John Healey: The method of calculation of formula grant is detailed in the Local Government Finance Report (England) for each financial year. The Local Government Finance Report (England) for each year has been placed in the Library of the House.

Local Government: Consent Regimes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 586W, on local government: consent regimes, how many (a) listed building consents made by the Local Planning Authority (LPA), (b) Conservation Area Consents, (c) less than best price disposals, (d) allotments disposals and (e) LPA TPO consents were considered by the Government Office for London in the last year for which figures are available. [189234]

Mr. Dhanda: Details for the financial year 2006-07 are detailed as follows:

	Number
Listed Building Consents (LPA)	143 (including 2 withdrawn cases)
Conservation Area Consents	3
Less Than Best Price	3 (including 1 withdrawn case)
Allotments Disposals	2

For the current financial year up to and including 22 February the figures are as follows:

	Number
Listed Building Consents (LPA)	119 (including 2 withdrawn cases)
Conservation Area Consents	4
Less Than Best Price	3 (including 1 withdrawn case)
Allotments Disposals	4

The requirement to apply to the Secretary of State under LPA Tree Preservation Order (TPO) consents was repealed on 2 August 1999. However, there were 123 TPO Appeals (including 30 withdrawn) decided in the financial year 2006-07 and there have been 86 (including 28 withdrawals) decided in the current financial year up to and including 22 February.

Mayor of London: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance (a) her Department and (b) the Government Office for London has issued on the Mayor of London's new powers to grant and refuse planning permission. [202611]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Town and Country Planning (Mayor of London) Order 2008 sets out which planning applications must be referred to the Mayor, the process for considering them and the test the Mayor must apply to decide whether his intervention would be justified.

GOL Circular 1/2008 is the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government's guidance on the arrangements for strategic planning in London. Section 5 of the circular explains how the Mayor's powers over planning applications will operate.

The Mayor's new powers over planning applications came into force on 6 April 2008. Both the Order and Circular are available on the Government Office for London website (link below):

http://www.gol.gov.uk/gol/Planning/624901/?a=42496

Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the function and purpose is of business rates buoyancy factor allowance. [202604]

John Healey: The purpose of the "buoyancy factor" is to adjust the gross provisional revenue contribution by local authorities to the non-domestic pool to take account of additions and removals of properties from the local authority's lists and the impact of appeals which will impact on the overall rateable value of the local authority's list.

Non-Domestic Rates: Tax Allowances

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will introduce in England a scheme with similar structure and objectives to the Northern Ireland scheme of business rate relief for automatic telling machines in rural areas. [202615]

John Healey: There are no plans to introduce a mandatory rate relief for automatic telling machines in rural areas. However, the existing rural rate relief allows local authorities to grant up to 100 per cent. discretionary relief to a hereditament in a rural settlement with a rateable value of up to 14,000, where they judge that the business is of benefit to the community.

Planning Permission

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planning requirements and processes apply to proposals for (a) new urban development and (b) eco-towns. [202307]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 28 April 2008]: All planning applications for new urban development are determined in accordance with the development plan unless other material considerations indicate otherwise. This is also the case for eco-towns and the planning process is set out in the recently published consultation document—"Eco-towns—Living a greener future". Copies of the document are available in the House Library.

Planning Permission: Consultation Papers

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to publish the consultation on revisions to Planning Policy Statement 6. [198804]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 3 April 2008]: We intend to publish the consultation on revisions to Planning Policy Statement 6 in the summer.

Planning: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department provides to planning authorities on the potential for excess water to flood neighbouring properties following the displacement of water by new developments. [201576]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning Policy Statement 25 Development and Flood Risk, sets out the Government's policy for managing flood risk, including that from surface water. It requires local planning authorities to prepare strategic flood risk assessments in consultation with the Environment Agency, which should form the basis for preparing appropriate policies for flood risk management in those areas. Planning applications for development on sites of 1 hectare or greater in areas with low probability of flooding and all proposals in areas with medium and high probability of flooding should be accompanied by a site-specific Flood Risk Assessment. This will identify and assess the risks from all forms of flooding to and from the development, and demonstrate how these flood risks will be managed, so that the development will be safe and will not increase flood risk elsewhere. Annex F of the PPS specifically deals with the management of surface water.

Quarrying: Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 18 February 2008, Official Report, columns 49-50W, on quarrying: public participation, which local authorities have submitted minerals development plan documents for examination. [195908]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following local authorities have submitted minerals development plan documents for examination:

Hampshire county council joint with New Forest National Park, Portsmouth and Southampton on 31 May 2006;

Shropshire county council (two Minerals Development Plan Documents) on 27 October 2006;

Kent county council (three Minerals Development Plan Documents) on 29 November 2006;

Suffolk county council on 22 July 2007;

Lancashire county council joint with Blackburn and Darwen and Blackpool on 30 November 2007;

Wiltshire county council joint with Swindon on 26 March 2008; and North Yorkshire county council on 22 of January 2008.

The minerals development plan documents for Kent and Shropshire were withdrawn following submission.

Regional Development Agencies: Local Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities will be represented on the proposed leaders' fora for scrutiny of regional development agencies. [202556]

Mr. Dhanda: On 31 March 2008, the Government published "Prosperous Places: Taking forward the Review of Sub-National Economic Development and Regeneration". This document states that the Government believe that local authorities should decide the most effective structure for a leaders' forum and that it expects that this will differ between regions. However, each forum should be streamlined, manageable and representative of local government across the region. The consultation seeks views on this proposal and on whether the Government should take powers to intervene if local authorities were unable to reach consensus on a forum that met the criteria set out above or a forum failed to operate effectively.

Regional Planning and Development: Local Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether new integrated regional strategies will require the agreement of local authorities to be adopted. [202598]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our consultation document "Prosperous Places: Taking forward the Review of Sub-National Economic Development and Regeneration", which was published on 31 March, proposes that local authorities would be involved in signing off the draft strategy before the RDA submits it to Ministers for approval. The consultation seeks views on this proposal.

Regional Planning and Development: South West

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received from the Environment Agency about the South West Regional Spatial Strategy; which parts of the Strategy the Environment Agency has objected to; and if she will make a statement. [261564]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 25 April 2008]: The Environment Agency were consulted on the draft Regional Spatial Strategy in the summer of 2006. In their response the Agency supported the sustainable construction, green infrastructure, renewable energy, waste and overarching sustainable development policies. The Agency also:

sought further amendments to the policies on flood risk, renewable energy and sustainable development;

advised that the relevant water companies should be consulted with regard to the capacity for accommodating increased sewage flows in Cheltenham, Salisbury, Truro and Swindon and also water supply with regard to the latter; raised issues of flood risk in the Plymouth and west of England sub-regions and nature conservation issues in south east Dorset; objected to the policy on airports;

suggested amendments to the text on climate change and CO_2 emissions and the relationship between future growth and infrastructure provision.

The panel appointed to undertake the examination in public (EiP) of the draft RSS considered all of the submitted representations. In drawing up the matters and timetable the panel invited the Environment Agency to participate in further discussions.

Regional Planning and Development: Standards

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the (a) minimum and (b) maximum length of the consultation period for each stage of regional spatial strategies. [201878]

Mr. Iain Wright: Two rounds of public consultation take place during the revision of a regional spatial strategy (RSS):

public consultation on Draft RSS, 12 weeks minimum; public consultation of Secretary of State's Proposed Changes, eight weeks minimum.

Government guidance does not set a maximum period for public consultation at the Draft RSS or at the Secretary of State's proposed changes stage.

Regional Planning and Development: Thames Gateway

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the proposed development in the Thames Gateway area entails building on green belt land. [194998]

Caroline Flint: There are no proposals in the East of England or South East Regional Spatial Strategies for amending Green Belt boundaries in the Thames Gateway area. Any planning applications for development on Green Belt land must satisfy the national planning policies on Green Belts set out in Planning Policy Guidance note 2. Under this policy, strict planning controls in Green Belt land are in place and there remains a general presumption against inappropriate development within Green Belts. As we reaffirmed in last year's Planning White Paper, the Government have no intention of making fundamental changes to this policy.

I would also point out that one of the reasons land may be included in the Green Belt is to assist in the urban regeneration of urban land, by encouraging the recycling of derelict and other land. The opportunities for urban regeneration in the Thames Gateway are recognised in the Government's investment programme for the area.

Small Businesses: Tax Allowances

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the number of businesses eligible for small business rate relief in each financial year since April 2005; and how many of these claimed the relief in each year; [201472]

(2) how much was claimed in small business rate relief by (a) small businesses and (b) post offices in each financial year since April 2005; [201473]

(3) how many post offices claimed small business rate relief in each financial year since April 2005; and what the value of relief claimed by each post office branch was in each year. [201474]

John Healey: Local authorities reported there were 392,000 businesses in England in receipt of small business rate relief as at 31 December 2006, the only year for which this information is currently available. Information on the number of businesses who are eligible for small business rate relief is not available.

Details of the total relief granted since 2005-06 are given, in millions, in the following table:

	£ million
2005-06	202
2006-07	237
2007-08	235

Data for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are outturn figures while the figure for 2007-08 is a forecast.

It is not possible to say how many post offices claim small business rate relief or the value of the relief granted as we do not collect data on the type of business claiming small business rate relief or the value.

Stamp Duty: Tax Allowances

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1223W, on stamp duties: tax allowances, how many transactions claimed stamp duty tax relief for new zero carbon homes in March 2008. [202517]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

Of those transactions for which a stamp duty land tax certificate was issued in March 2008, one transaction claimed the stamp duty land tax relief for new zero-carbon homes.

The tax relief will help kick-start the market for new highly efficient technologies in homes, both for the fabric of the building and in the use of microgeneration, and sets a gold standard for green homes.

We expect the numbers of qualifying transactions to rise as more properties eligible to claim the relief go on the market. For example, in December 2007 the Government announced details of 200 new homes to be built to a zero-carbon standard in Hanham Hall, near Bristol. The media release can be found at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/corporate/611694

The Government are committed to conducting an interim review of the relief in 2010 which will examine the effectiveness of the relief in stimulating the innovation necessary to ensure that all new homes are built to a zero-carbon standard from 2016.

Valuation Tribunal Service: Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Tribunal Service's business rates manual. [202584]

John Healey: The Valuation Tribunal Service does not have a Business Rates Manual.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bangladesh: Climate Change

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department has offered to Bangladesh to (a) promote the development of greener technologies, (b) counter the impact of climate change and (c) prevent flooding. [199156]

Mr. Malik: We are helping the Government of Bangladesh to develop its national climate change strategy and action plan and we provide support to the comprehensive disaster management programme, which includes disaster preparedness and climate change adaptation. On flood adaptation, we support a 50 million programme which assists poor people to cope with severe floods by raising homesteads. In response to the direct needs from last year's floods and cyclone, we have provided £15 million as disaster relief and early recovery activities to Bangladesh.

We have recently committed £30 million to climate change adaptation. The programme will protect around £10 million poor and vulnerable people against climate change related disasters such as flood, drought, tidal surges and cyclones. The climate change programme will facilitate access for Bangladesh to major global funds, such as the environmental transformation fund and the multi-billion-dollar global environmental facility. These funds support low-carbon development initiatives through adaptation of greener technologies.

Bangladesh: Energy

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the potential for greener energy generation in Bangladesh. [199157]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) has not carried out any overall assessment in Bangladesh of the potential for greener energy generation.

However, the Government of Bangladesh, through support from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), has made assessments on solar, wind, biogas and micro-hydro potentials.

The World Bank has also carried out assessments on renewable energy and currently supports solar panels in several thousand villages through Grameen Bank's "Shakti" branch. Germany, Japan and France are also funding various renewable energy and technology transfer projects in Bangladesh.

Burma: Ethnic Groups

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to (a) provide humanitarian assistance to internally-displaced people and (b) alleviate the humanitarian situation in Karenni state. [200344]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) funds humanitarian assistance to people in Karenni state through:

the UN Development Programme's Human Development Initiative to improve the livelihoods of poor families in rural areas;

the Three Diseases Fund which supports the work of CARE, World Vision, UNICEF and the World Health Organisation in fighting HIV, TB and malaria in Karenni State;

the Thailand-Burma Border Consortium (TBBC) which allocates part of its funding to assistance for internally displaced people inside Karenni State; and local faith based organisations which are able to reach internally displaced people in Karenni state from inside Burma.

DFID funding for TBBC is also used to provide assistance for people from Karenni state who are living as refugees in Thailand.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200706]

Gillian Merron: Staff employed by the Department for International Development (DFID) are members of one of the five principal civil service pensions schemes and as such DFID cannot identify its share of the underlying assets and liabilities of these schemes.

Information on unfunded liabilities can be found in the resource accounts of the Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200707]

Gillian Merron: Information on unfunded liabilities in present value terms of the Civil Service pensions schemes can be found in the resource accounts of the Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation at www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk.

This information is only available since 2000-01 and has been produced under differing sets of assumptions (e.g. on longevity) since 1990 and as such is not comparable during the period in question.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be from increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200709]

Gillian Merron: Staff employed by the Department for International Development (DFID) are members of one of the five principal civil service pension schemes. Only the Partnership scheme offers the possibility of DFID increasing its expenditure as a result of an increase in employee contributions. In the Partnership scheme DFID matches member contributions up to 3 per cent. of pensionable earnings. Currently 25 DFID staff are members of the Partnership scheme and have varying contribution levels. A 1 per cent. increase will have a very minimal increase to DFID's overall expenditure.

Departmental Public Opinion

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for his Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200009]

Gillian Merron: The various services provided by polling companies in financial year 2007-08 were as follows:

Company	Piece of work	Date
Solutions Strategy Research	Qualitative research into ethical shopping	April to June 2007
Taylor Nelson Sofres RSGB	Questions on omnibus survey to provide interim measure on concern about global poverty among UK adults	June 2007
Taylor Nelson Sofres	Annual attitudinal tracking survey into public perceptions of global poverty	July 2007
ICM	Quantitative research to measure UK adults' interest in shopping ethically.	November 2007
Creative Research	Qualitative stage of audience segmentation research	January to February 2008

Company	Piece of work	Date
Taylor Nelson Sofres RSGB	Quantitative research (questions on omnibus survey) to measure UK adults interest in shopping ethically for Valentines Day	February 2008
Ipsos MORI	Quantitative stage of audience segmentation research	March to May 2008
GfK NOP	Annual survey of young people's attitudes towards global poverty and development issues	March to June 2008

Developing Countries: HIV Infection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department plans to ask other countries to increase funding to combat HIV/AIDS in developing countries. [201943]

Gillian Merron: The UK Government are pushing G8 colleagues to ensure that fulfilling and implementing previous summit commitments is a priority at the G8 Leaders' Summit in July this year. In 2007, the G8 committed to scale up their efforts to achieve Universal Access to comprehensive HIV prevention, treatment, care and support, including providing with other donors a projected $60 billion over the coming years. The UK will be pressing G8 and other colleagues to contribute their share towards the goal of Universal Access.

The UK Government announced an unprecedented long-term commitment of £1 billion for the Global Fund for AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria (GFATM) to 2015 at the GFATM replenishment conference in September 2007 and encouraged other governments and agencies to consider committing long-term, predictable financing. At this conference, international donors pledged a total of around $6.3 billion for the three-year period to 2010. The Global Fund Secretariat estimates that a further $3.4 billion has been pledged since then, making a total of $9.7 billion.

Diplomatic Service

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development in which countries the head of his Department's field office acts as the senior UK representative for diplomatic purposes. [200904]

Gillian Merron: None of the Department for International Development's (DFID) heads of overseas offices act as the senior UK representative for diplomatic purposes in their respective countries.

Gaza: Overseas Aid

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of unplanned financial expenditure incurred by his Department and its implementing agencies in providing assistance to Gaza since the imposition of access restrictions from June 2007. [202316]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides its humanitarian assistance through partner agencies such as the UN Relief Works Agency and the International Committee of the Red Cross. The UK also makes a substantial contribution to the World Food Programme's central budget. For these implementing agencies, the partial closure of Gaza's crossings has significantly increased the time and costs involved in importing humanitarian supplies into Gaza. Verified estimates are unavailable, although the World Food Programme has calculated that additional costs created by Israel's food clearance procedures will reach $6 million over the two years from September 2007 to August 2009. As the situation deteriorates, we expect these costs to rise.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the Government or their implementing agencies have faced delays in importing humanitarian items into Gaza in the last 12 months. [202317]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Movement and access restrictions are constricting the flow of urgent humanitarian goods and staff, as well as increasing the cost of humanitarian transfers. The frequency and size of those transfers that do make it into Gaza are insufficient to meet the humanitarian needs of the population.

The UK continues its diplomatic efforts to ease the situation and we condemn the violence from both sides. DFID is considering support for a UN access cell to facilitate the access of humanitarian staff and goods through the crossing.

River Nile: Climate Change

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) funded on (i) the likely effects of climate change on water levels in the River Nile and (ii) the likely consequences of such changes on the region. [201316]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) has commissioned no research directly on the impact of climate change on water levels in the Nile and the likely consequences on the region. However, we support the Nile Basin Initiative (NBI), a partnership of nine of the 10 countries that share the Nile, which seeks to ensure that the water resources of the Nile are equitably and sustainably managed. The NBI is looking at climate change as part of broader work to predict variations in water availability and the potential of that variability on the region.

The NBI is supported by a number of donors and DFID has contributed £14 million to this programme since 2004.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Public Order Offences

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) cautioned, (b) prosecuted and (c) given a penalty notice for disorder for failing to comply with a request from police (i) not to consume alcohol in an alcohol consumption designated public place and (ii) for failing to surrender alcohol in their possession in each of the last 10 years. [191314]

Mr. Coaker: The number of persons issued with a caution, penalty notice for disorder (PND), and proceeded against at magistrates courts for failing to comply with a request from police not to consume alcohol in an alcohol consumption designated public place, and for failing to surrender alcohol in their possession in England and Wales for 2006 can be viewed in the following tables.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) on premises and (b) off premises licences were (i) suspended and (ii) revoked for selling alcohol to people under the age of 18 years in each of the last five years, broken down by police area. [197363]

Jacqui Smith: This information is not held centrally.

Prior to the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003 which came into force on 25 November 2005, data on the number of liquor licences issued under the Licensing Act 1964 (the 1964 Act) in England and Wales were collected by petty sessional divisions (magistrates courts areas), on a three yearly basis. The previous set of data relating to the 1964 Act covered the triennial renewal process when 273 on-licensed and 81 off-licensed premises had their licences revoked in England and Wales between July 2003 and June 2004. These data do not indicate the reason for revocation which could include premises having simply ceased trading. These data are not available broken down by police area.

The first DCMS Statistical Bulletin on Alcohol, Entertainment and Late Night Refreshment, under the provisions of the Licensing Act 2003, was published on 8 November 2007. This shows that, between April 2006 and March 2007, there were 675 completed reviews which resulted in 92 licences being revoked and 91 being suspended (based upon a 85 per cent. response rate from licensing authorities). The data do not indicate the reason for revocation or suspension, nor by type of licensed premises. Licences may be revoked on review for one or more reasons relating to the four licensing objectives, including sales of alcohol to children.

There were also 37 personal licences revoked, suspended or declared forfeit by the courts in 2006-07 (80 per cent. response rate). The loss of personal licence could relate to conviction for any one of a number of relevant offences, including the sale of alcohol to children.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are used to determine which of the four categories of suffering set out in the Animal (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 specific scientific procedures come under. [201454]

Meg Hillier: The criteria used to assign severity limits to regulated procedures are set out in paragraphs 5.40 to 5.42 of the Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321). Copies of the guidance have been placed in the House Library.

Anti-terrorism Control Orders

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals who absconded while subject to a control order under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 have since been located. [200921]

Jacqui Smith: In relation to the total number of individuals who absconded while subject to a control order that have been located, I would refer the right hon. Gentleman to written ministerial statements in relation to control orders published on 11 December 2006, 16 January 2007, 22 March 2007, 24 May 2007, 21 June 2007, 17 September 2007, 12 December 2007 and 10 March 2008. These statements give as much information as we can provide about the individuals concerned given the national security sensitivities of these cases and the need to avoid publishing any information that could lead to the identification of an individual who is subject to an anonymity order.

Asylum

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the number of failed asylum seekers in the UK. [200546]

Jacqui Smith: Since the phasing out of embarkation controls in 1994, no Government has been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally and that includes failed asylum seekers. By its very nature it is impossible to quantify accurately and that remains the case.

As part of the Government's 10-point plan for delivery, by Christmas 2008 the majority of foreign nationals will be counted in and out of the country. This is part of a very wide ranging programme of border protection which also includes the global roll-out of fingerprint visas, compulsory watch-list checks for all travellers from high-risk countries before they land in Britain and ID cards for foreign nationals.

Asylum: Children

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the report of the Children's Commissioner, published on 3 March 2008, insofar as it relates to unaccompanied asylum-seeking children; whether she plans to take steps to address such issues; and if she will make a statement. [197487]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 31 March 2008]: The UK Border Agency is carefully considering the report and, before responding formally to each of the recommendations, has met representatives of the Children's Commissioner on 3 April. Work to improve the arrangements for unaccompanied asylum seeking children has already addressed a number of the report's recommendations.

BAE Systems

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what requests the Government have received from the US Department of Justice to assist in its investigation into BAe Systems; and if she will make a statement; [198012]

(2) what provisions have been made by the Government to assist the US Department of Justice in its investigation into BAe Systems; and if she will make a statement. [198013]

Meg Hillier: I refer the hon. Member to previous answers provided on this matter. I can confirm that the Home Office has received a request for assistance from the USA in respect of corruption allegations concerning BAE Systems. The request is being dealt with in accordance with the bi-lateral treaty on mutual legal assistance between the UK and the USA. It would be inappropriate to comment further.

Border and Immigration Agency: Finance

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the budget of the UK Border Agency is for each of the next three years; how much has been spent on its establishment; and what criteria she proposes to use to assess its effectiveness. [199148]

Jacqui Smith: The UK Border Agency was established in shadow form on 1 April 2008. The 2008-09 budget is detailed in the Business plan with total spend of £2,059 million. This budget excludes the transfer from HMRC which is not yet finalised. Future year budgets are not yet finalised.

Targets and milestones for the UKBA for the period 2008-11 are set out in the agency's business plan which was published earlier this month.

Border and Immigration Agency: Manpower

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) staff and (b) immigration officers are to be employed in the UK Border Agency in 2008-09. [199147]

Jacqui Smith: The number of staff employed by the former Borders and Immigration Agency was 18,246 at the end of February 2008. On 1 April 2008, 2,303 staff transferred from. UK Visas. More than 4,000 further staff are expected to join UKBA from HM Revenue and Customs and the final staff total is expected to be around 25,000.

British Nationality: Armed Forces

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-British citizens who served with British services in (a) Iraq, (b) Afghanistan and (c) other military campaigns have subsequently (i) applied for British citizenship, (ii) been granted and (iii) not been granted British citizenship. [197284]

Mr. Byrne: This information is not available, as the details requested are not supplied by the applicant when making an application for British citizenship.

Cannabis

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what types of cannabis were seized by police in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and what estimate she has made of the percentage of cannabis seized which was skunk, home grown or sinsemilla in each year. [200037]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office collects and publishes figures on seizures by the police in England and Wales of cannabis (herbal), cannabis resin and cannabis plants. Figures for the years 2001 to 2005 (the most recent published period) are shown in the following table.

The Home Office has undertaken a project to identify the market share of sinsemilla to other forms of cannabis (resin and traditional imported cannabis products) and their respective mean tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) and cannabinoid (CBD) content. The findings of this project, which have been shared with the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs as part of its review of the classification of cannabis, will be published in due course. However, an early finding from samples submitted over a three month period in 2007-08 by a number of police forces in England and Wales suggests that sinsemilla accounts for 80 per cent. of the market share of police seizures.

Number and quantity of police[1] seizures of cannabis by type[2], England and Wales, 2001-05

	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005[5]
Number of seizures
Cannabis (herbal)	28,532	36,911	32,858	38,595	69,766
Cannabis plants	1,711	2,199	2,680	2,780	4,098
Cannabis resin	46,626	44,662	40,976	32,727	38,572
Total cannabis[3]	73,220	74,250	79,600	74,613	111,212
Quantity of seizures (weighed)[4]
Cannabis (herbal) (kg)	7,183	3,823	13,909	2,789	12,905
Cannabis resin (kg)	20,011	8,657	27,861	21,676	25,045
Quantity of seizures (unweighted)
Cannabis plants (plants)	67,679	52,118	80,498	88,674	208,357

[1] Includes seizures by the National Crime Squad, but not joint operations with HM Revenue and Customs.
[2] Categorisation of drug type broadly follows the lists scheduled in the Misuse of Drugs Acts.
[3] The totals are lower than the sum of the constituent parts, as some seizures contain more than one drug type.
[4] These drug types have been converted from other units using standard conversion factors. These factors were revised in 2005, so 2005 weighed quantities should not be compared with those for previous years.
[5] Increases in cannabis seizures in 2005 are thought to be associated with the introduction of cannabis warnings on 1 April 2004.

Community Policing: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on neighbourhood policing in North Yorkshire. [201223]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office is not aware of any recent representations made on neighbourhood policing in North Yorkshire specifically. However, neighbourhood policing has now been successfully rolled out across North Yorkshire with 45 dedicated teams providing visible and accessible local policing.

Crimes of Violence

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person were recorded in Bosworth constituency in each of the last five years. [202660]

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person have been recorded in each constituency in Sussex in each of the last five years. [202671]

Mr. Coaker: Statistics are not collected specifically on a constituency basis. The Home Office does publish statistics at crime and disorder reduction partnership (CDRP) area level. The number of offences of violence against the person for each of the last five years by CDRP is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrpog.xls

Also available is a look-up table that identifies which constituencies are associated with CDRPs. In many instances, a CDRP may comprise of more than one constituency. Conversely, some constituencies will come within two or more CDRPs, either wholly or partially. The look-up table is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrp-constituency-table.xls

Copies of both the statistics table and the look-up table are available in the Library.

Crimes of Violence: Disabled

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many disability hate crimes were recorded in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [200405]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 23 April 2008]: The Home Office is responsible for the police recorded statistics. Statistics are collected on the number of racially or religiously aggravated offences but no information is available on those offences which are specifically 'disability hate' crimes.

Crimes of Violence: Mentally Ill

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were committed by people undergoing treatment by out-patient psychiatric services in each of the last five years. [200913]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available centrally.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the most recent redesign and implementation of her Departmental website. [200146]

Mr. Byrne: The most recent redevelopment/redesign of the Home Office website was in 2005. Costs were embedded in the business as usual costs for that year and could be extracted only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criminal offences have been abolished by primary legislation sponsored by her Department since May 1997. [198295]

Jacqui Smith: Legislative provisions creating criminal offences are sometimes amended or repealed and re-enacted in modified form, to reflect changes in the law, or to restate the law more conveniently, without significantly altering the underlying legal rule. There are examples of this in legislation passed since May 1997 for which the Home Office retains responsibility, but no examples have been found of criminal offences which have been completely abolished.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what new criminal offences have been created by primary legislation sponsored by her Department since July 2007. [198315]

Jacqui Smith: New criminal offences were created in the following provisions of primary legislation sponsored by the Home Office since July 2007:

UK Borders Act 2007

Absconding from detention (section 3)

Assaulting an immigration officer (section 22)

Wrongful disclosure (section 42)

Serious Crime Act 2007

Failing to comply with serious crime prevention order (section 25)

Intentionally encouraging or assisting an offence (section 44)

Encouraging or assisting an offence believing it will be committed (section 45)

Encouraging or assisting offences believing one or more will be committed (section 46)

Offences in relation to disclosures of information (section 69)

Supplementary provision in relation to new powers (section 81)

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on publicity and advertising in 2007-08. [199029]

Mr. Byrne: In the fiscal year 2007-08, the Home Office spent £8,143,961 on advertising and £1,195,743 on publicity. This expenditure covered public facing campaigns on kerb crawling, alcohol harm reduction, mobile phone theft, passport authentication by interview, Frank drugs campaign, immigration, crime reduction advice and community safety.

Departmental Pay

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials in her Department were paid gross remuneration of (a) between £50,000 and £75,000, (b) between £75,001 and £100,000, (c) between £100,001 and £125,000, (d) between £125,001 and £150,000, (e) between £150,001 and £175,000, (f) between £175,001 and £200,000 and (g) in excess of £200,000 in each of the last five years. [187248]

Jacqui Smith: Information about the remuneration of senior civil servants in the Home Office is published in the annual departmental report which is available on the Home Office's website. Copies of the report for previous years are available in the House of Commons Library.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what her most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which her Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200741]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which her Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91; [200742]

(3) what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which her Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if she will make a statement; [200743]

(4) what the effect on her Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which her Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if she will make a statement. [200744]

Mr. McNulty: Individual police authorities rather than the Home Office are required to account for police pension liabilities. Each authority's liability along with details of certain assumptions used in the calculation of the liability are published by each authority in its annual accounts. Data from those accounts are compiled each year by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA). These are available either for purchase or via subscription on the CIPF website, www.cipfa.org.uk.

The Government Actuary's Department (GAD) has estimated the unfunded liability of the police pension scheme in England and Wales to have been £70 billion as at 31 March 2006, based on data from police authorities' published resource accounts. This is part of the figure of £650 billion discussed in box 4.3 of the Long-Term Public Finance Report published in March 2008 and available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/A/E/bud08_longterm_586.pdf.

The discount rates used are also discussed there, but the longevity assumptions used have not generally been disclosed by police authorities.

The earliest comparable estimates of the unfunded liability of the police pension scheme are in the note placed in Library by my right hon. Friend the then Chief Secretary to the Treasury on 2 March 2006, which gave combined UK wide figures for the police and fire service pension schemes of £64 billion as at 31 March 2004 and £85 billion as at 31 March 2005, based on data from police and fire authorities' published resource accounts. The note is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/4/A/foi_publicservicepensions260406.pdf.

The discount rates used are discussed in that note, but the longevity assumptions used have not generally been disclosed by police authorities. No breakdown of those figures is readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Although we have previously provided some estimates of the police pension scheme's unfunded liability prior to 2004, they were not based on data from police authorities' published resource accounts, and so are not comparable with the aforementioned figures.

There were no employer contributions for police pensions for the years prior to 2006-07 since until this point police authorities had to meet the cost of pensions in payment out of their operating accounts. However, the system for financing police pensions changed on 1 April 2006. Police authorities now have a separate pensions account, into which they pay officers' contributions and a new employer's contribution. Any shortfall in an authority's pensions account each year is topped up with a grant from central Government; any surplus is recouped. The employer contribution rate is a combined one for both the Police Pension Scheme 1987 (PPS) and the New Police Pension Scheme 2006 (NPPS). In 2006-07 and 2007-08, the employer contribution rate was 24.6 per cent. of each officer's average pensionable pay, and was reduced to 24.2 per cent. with effect from 1 April 2008. Returns from individual authorities show a total employer contribution cost of £1.108 billion for 2006-07 based on forces' unaudited accounts, and £1.151 billion for 2007-08 based on forces' estimates.

The employee contribution rate for the PPS is currently 11 per cent. of pensionable pay, and 9.5 per cent. for the NPPS. The annual saving from increasing these rates for police officers in England and Wales would be £47 million, based on 1 per cent. of the estimated annual pensionable payroll in 2007-08. Such a change would, in isolation, reduce the call made by police forces on the central Government top-up grant, although this may differ if other changes were introduced at the same time.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which programmes funded by her Department have experienced a real terms reduction in their annual budget for the 2007-08 financial year; and what the budget was in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08 in each case. [200491]

Mr. McNulty: Budgets reflect internal allocations for both capital and resource expenditure within departmental expenditure limits. For consistency, budgets are stated at their opening position in each year.

Home Office budget plans are reviewed on a regular basis in response to the changing nature of the Department's business. For the financial year 2007-08, security and counter-terrorism, crime and policing, and identity and passports programmes received increased resources.

	2006-07	2007-08	Nominal percentage change
Counter terrorism and intelligence	564	770	37
Crime and policing	6,667	6,849	3
Identity and Passport Service	99	130	3

The costs of the UK Border Agency borne by the taxpayer were reduced in real terms as a result of increases in the level of income generated by managed migration activities. As a result, the Home Office increased its gross expenditure on borders and immigration in 2007-08 compared to 2006-07.

Departmental Renewable Energy

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much energy in kilowatt hours was purchased by her Department from renewable sources in each year between 1997-98 and 2005-06. [200496]

Mr. Byrne: Renewable electricity was first purchased by my Department in 2000-01 and the figures up to and including 2005-06, are given in the following table. We do not currently use any other forms of renewable energy.

	kWh renewable electricity purchased
2005-06	65,502,271
2004-05	62,505,257
2003-04	58,067,730
2002-03	53,827,816
2001-02	24,962,370
2000-01	4,628,468

Departmental Sustainable Development

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when her Department plans to publish its sustainable operations policy statement. [200484]

Mr. Byrne: In order to meet the requirements of the sustainable operations in Government targets, a new sustainable operations policy statement has been prepared and will be issued in the next few months following approval by the relevant Home Office boards.

Deportation

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of memoranda of understanding signed with (a) Libya, (b) Algeria and (c) Jordan. [200508]

Jacqui Smith: The UK has Memoranda of Understanding with Libya, Jordan and Lebanon which make provision for the protection of the human rights of, and set out the arrangements for seeking further assurances in respect of, people facing deportation to those countries. We do not have a Memorandum of Understanding with Algeria on this subject. Separate arrangements for seeking assurances in individual cases apply.

In the light of the recent ruling by the Court of Appeal in the case of two Libyan nationals, AS and DD, we have decided to discontinue deportation action in those cases, and in the cases of 10 other Libyan nationals.

We are seeking leave to appeal to the House of Lords against the Court of Appeal's ruling in the case of Abu Qatada, who is a Jordanian national.

Eight people have been deported to Algeria under the arrangements with that country after withdrawing their appeals against the decision to deport them, and I am satisfied with the way these arrangements are operating.

I remain of the view that diplomatic assurances in the context of deportation are a legitimate means of safeguarding the human rights of the individuals concerned, and contribute to the process of assessing whether or not to seek to deport particular individuals to those countries.

Detection Rates

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the crime detection rate in (a) each police force and (b) England and Wales was in each year since 1997. [200476]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is given in the following table.

The non-sanction detections that contribute to the overall detection rate have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detection rates over time are not fully comparable. From 1 April 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they can be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances.

[1] The number of crimes detected in that financial year using the expanded coverage and revised counting rules which came into effect on 1 April 1998.

[2] New instructions which clarified the rules for detecting crime were introduced on 1 April 1999.

Note:

It should be noted that non-sanction detections that contribute to the overall detection rate have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detection rates over time are not fully comparable. Entry Clearances

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are applied in determining a visa application from an individual accused of promoting race hate. [197334]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Secretary may exclude from the UK any person where she judges that their presence here would not be conducive to the public good. A person so excluded will be refused a visa or permission to enter the UK should they make such an application. In August 2005 the then Home Secretary published a list of certain behaviours which, if engaged in, would normally lead to a person being excluded or deported from the UK. That list includes the expression of views that

> "foster hatred which might lead to inter-community violence in the UK".

Those who promote "race hate" fall within this provision.

Forced Marriage

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps the Government has taken to reduce the number of forced marriages; [201657]

(2) what steps the Government has taken to assist those who have been subject to forced marriage. [201659]

Mr. Coaker: In January 2005, the joint Forced Marriage Unit (FMU) was set up by the Home Office and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

The FMU leads on Government policy on forced marriage and has developed guidelines for professionals (the police, education professionals, health and social workers) on how to deal with cases of forced marriage. In addition, as part of the National Domestic Violence Delivery Plan, the FMU coordinates an outreach programme to raise awareness of the problem, and runs a dedicated support and advice helpline for victims of forced marriage. The FMU also works with embassies and high commissions overseas to rescue and repatriate those British citizens forced into marriage overseas.

Last year the FMU:

- assisted approximately 400 victims of forced marriage (168 of these were overseas cases);
- spoke at over 80 awareness raising events around the country;
- contributed to the passage through Parliament of the Forced Marriage (Civil Protection) Act 2007. One of the provisions of the Act is to make the guidelines for professionals statutory; and also
- assisted in the development of the 'Honour Network'—a helpline to support survivors of forced marriage.

We have also established an Honour Based Violence Steering Group, led by the Home Office, to identify actions and develop a work programme to address honour based violence and also develop a more dedicated approach to respond to the needs of Black, Asian and minority ethnic victims of domestic violence over the next few years.

Genetics

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the advantages and disadvantages of taking mandatory DNA samples from all UK citizens as part of her policy formulation on DNA sampling; and if she will make a statement. [201164]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 24 April 2008]: We have no current proposals for the establishment of a universal database for DNA. There are practical and ethical implications of moving to such a position and any proposal to do so would need to be subject to lengthy and detailed public debate.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Forensic Science Service has taken to ensure compliance with the Scientific Working Group on DNA Analysis Methods' standards. [201457]

Meg Hillier: The Scientific Working Group on DNA Analysis Methods ("SWGDAM") standards refers to guidelines that were written primarily for assisting North American forensic laboratories in meeting defined quality standards. Forensic Science Service Ltd. ("FSS") operates to a forensic science quality framework that incorporates independent accreditation of the organisation's scientific methods, and standards employed for validating techniques, to the international quality standard IS017025, (General Requirements for the Competence of Testing and Calibration Laboratories). The FSS is also registered as compliant with the international quality standard IS09001 (Quality Management Systems). The FSS' validation standards and the SWGDAM validation guidelines are similar; however as an additional measure since December 2007, the FSS has implemented a process that involves checking against the SWGDAM validation guidelines when implementing new DNA techniques into casework. The FSS has shared its standards for technique validation with the European Network of Forensic Science Institutes, who have adopted them in their own published guidelines for validation, with which the FSS are fully compliant.

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the average annual cost is of storing a DNA sample with a company or organisation that analyses such samples for the purposes of producing profiles for the national DNA database; and if she will make a statement; [188148]

(2) how much the Department has spent storing DNA samples with companies and organisations that analyse samples for the purposes of producing profiles for the national DNA database in each year since it became operational (a) in total and (b) broken down by organisation or company; and if she will make a statement; [188149]

(3) what information accompanies a DNA sample sent to a company or organisation for the purposes of producing a profile for the national DNA database; and if she will make a statement; [188150]

(4) how many DNA samples are stored by companies or organisations that analyse samples for the purpose of producing profiles for the national DNA database (a) in total and (b) broken down by company or organisation; and if she will make a statement. [188151]

Meg Hillier: The costs of processing and storing DNA samples fall to individual police forces and are dependent on the contractual agreement between the force and their forensic supplier or suppliers. This information is commercially confidential.

The information accompanying a DNA sample taken under Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 powers from a person arrested for a recordable offence which is sent to a company or organisation for the purposes of producing a profile for the national DNA database is as follows:

a barcode number from the sampling kit;

a police national computer arrest summons report number;

a force custody number (if available);

surname of the person sampled;

forenames;

date of birth;

whether male or female;

an indicator of ethnic appearance;

whether the sample is taken from a mouth swab or hair roots;

the date the sample was taken;

whether the sample is a resample;

a code number showing which police force took the sample and at which police station;

the ID number and surname of the police officer taking the sample;

one of the following indicators of the type of offence for which the person sampled was arrested: homicide; rape; robbery; other violent crime; other sex offences; domestic burglary; other burglary; theft of vehicle; theft from vehicle; criminal damage; drugs offences; other recordable offence; exhibit number (if known);

police reference/crime number (if known).

Information is not held on the number of samples held by each forensic supplier.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) without a criminal conviction and (b) in total had their profiles recorded on the national DNA database in each of the last three years. [201987]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 28 April 2008]: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Lynne Featherstone) on 13 December 2007, Official Report, column 761W.

Hemp

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the licensing regime for industrial hemp cultivation in preventing illegal drug production. [200536]

Mr. Coaker: Cultivation was first permitted in 1992 since when it has not given rise to any significant problems.

Illegal Immigrants: Restaurants

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many immigration raids have taken place on eating establishments in each month since 1 January. [199438]

Mr. Byrne: There is no published information on how many immigration raids have taken place on eating establishments in each month since 1 January.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were found to be working illegally in the restaurant industry in (a) 2007 and (b) each month in 2008. [199439]

Mr. Byrne: There is no published information on how many people were found to be working illegally in the restaurant industry in (a) 2007 and (b) each month in 2008.

Immigration

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the evidential basis is of her estimate that the annual inflow of immigrants contributes £6 billion to the economy; and what estimate she has made of the annual expenditure of immigrants on goods and services, including repatriated earnings. [199708]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The evidential basis for the impact of migration on trend economic growth is set out in the joint Home Office—DWP submission to the House of Lords Select Committee on Economic Affairs, The economic and fiscal impact of immigration.

According to official data from the Office for National Statistics, migration added around 0.5 percentage points per annum to growth in the working age population between mid 2001 and mid 2006, and, therefore to overall trend output growth. On this basis, the contribution of migration to economic growth in 2006 would have been some £6 billion.

The trend growth framework employed by the Treasury, and the impact of migration on the trend growth projection, is set out in Trend growth: new evidence and prospects, available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/3/1/pbr06_trendgrowth_345.pdf.

The information requested on expenditure and remittances falls within the responsibility of the Office for National Statistics. No statistics are collected on expenditure by immigrants on goods and services. The available information on remittance payments was laid out in a letter from the National Statistician to Lord Lament of Lerwick on 19 November 2007, Official Report, House of Lords, columns WA47-48, in answer to his parliamentary question of that date, to which I refer the hon. Member.

Immigration Officers

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has given on the distance a designated officer may pursue an individual they have detained or attempted to detain at a port who subsequently leaves the port under the powers in section 2 of the UK Borders Act 2007. [199146]

Jacqui Smith: I reported to the House on 3 April on the creation of the UK Border Agency, setting out the purpose and power of the agency to protect our border and making reference to the delivery of new powers to front line officers, including the powers in section 2 of the UK Borders Act.

Full guidance and suitable training will be provided to designated officers before they exercise the section 2 powers. In relation to pursuit, guidance will reflect that this power was introduced to enable a designated immigration officer to go to the immediate vicinity outside the port for the purpose of returning to the port an individual who has absconded from detention.

The guidance will also reflect that in practise, the use of the pursuit power will need to be assessed dynamically on a case by case basis by the designated officer, while weighing benefits against risk and taking full account of their own and their colleagues' safety, as well as that of the individual and members of the public.

Immigration: Housing

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 276W, on immigration: housing, how much funding is available for local authorities in the transitional costs fund; how much has been disbursed; which local authorities have received funding; and over what timescale such funding will be available. [198249]

Mr. Byrne: The financial support available will depend on the claims made by local authorities. Funding will be available for some items of expenditure incurred by local authorities on an agreed cohort of supported families cases processed by the Agency. We cannot therefore accurately estimate the level of funding required.

At the present time no payments have been made to any local authority. Support will be made available to individual authorities for a maximum of six months after they have begun to incur qualifying expenditure.

Immigration: Iraq

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Iraqi nationals were granted asylum in the UK in each of the last five years. [197382]

Mr. Byrne: Information on the number of Iraq nationals granted asylum in the United Kingdom is published in the annual Statistical Bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom. Provisional figures for 2007 are published in the Quarterly Asylum Statistics Fourth Quarter 2007. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Immigration: Pakistan

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of immigration applications from Pakistan claiming Afghan refugee status in each of the last 10 years. [201631]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Information on asylum applications is published quarterly. Copies of asylum publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Immigration: Standards

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps will be taken to reduce queuing and waiting times at ports and borders, as referred to in the UK Borders Agency Business Plan; and if she will make a statement. [200587]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 23 April 2008]: The UK Border Agency is committed to improving the customer experience at our borders and we continue to engage with port operators to deliver this. Work on a set of port by port national standards is already under way and this will be rolled out from June 2008.

The UK Border Agency is also working with the Department for Transport to implement an action plan (as published in November 2007), which will set new standards for the processing of passengers on arrival for implementation over the course of 2008.

Also during the course of 2008 we shall be introducing Service Level Agreements with port operators which will include:

agreed port by port targets for major locations and mechanisms for monitoring and reporting performance against them; ways of best matching the availability of frontline Border offices and predicted passenger flows; and a more coordinated approach to flight scheduling to prevent unnecessary pressures when large numbers of flights arrive at the same time.

We would expect these plans to be completed in time to deliver real operational benefits over the course of 2008.

In addition to this we have already implemented the following:

queuing levels are continually monitored and managed and are reported regularly to senior officials; flexible response teams are deployed to port operations during peak periods as was the case last summer; and we continue to expand and develop new technologies that might add further relief to queue length and enrolment on IRIS now exceeds 190,000 passengers with over one million crossings through the gates to date.

The level of staff engaged in frontline Border Force activity is at an all time high and we are committed to facilitating the passage of legitimate travellers and goods, without delay at all ports.

Missing Persons: Databases

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces are using computerised data systems for management and recording of missing persons reports. [202229]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 April 2008]: All police forces in England and Wales use some form of computer system for the management and recording of missing persons reports. The details of the systems that each police force has in place are given in the following table. This information was obtained from the October 2007 Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary "Inspection Reports on Protecting Vulnerable People—Missing Persons", in combination with research carried out by the Missing Persons Bureau (MPB).

A total of 20 police forces use WPC Software's Community Policing and Case Tracking (COMPACT) computer system to record and manage their missing persons' cases. Electronic data transfer between 'COMPACT' forces and the MPB's 'Hermes' system is being arranged.

Automatic data transfer mechanisms for the other systems are being investigated.

At a national level, the MPB use Hermes, which is a purpose-built electronic database, developed and implemented by the Missing People charity through the Invest to Save Initiative in 2004-05. The shared technology between the MPB and the charity facilitates effective transfer of data between the two organisations and collaborative efforts on research and analysis projects.

All police forces and the MPB also have access to the Police National Computer (PNC). The national Guidance on the Management, Recording and Investigation of Missing Persons indicates that officers should record details of all missing persons reported to them on the PNC within 48 hours.

Missing Persons: Young People

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people under the age of 18 years were reported missing to the police in each police force area in the latest period for which figures are available. [202225]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Figures for the number of children and young people who are reported missing from home are not collected centrally and this is a matter for individual police forces.

Motorcycles: Training

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the police record the occasions on which they request evidence that a rider of a motorcycle with an engine capacity under 50cc has undertaken compulsory basic training. [200916]

Mr. McNulty: This is an operational matter for the police.

Police Interrogation: Speech Impaired

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what instructions are issued on the procedure and protocol which a police officer must follow in (a) questioning and (b) physically taking hold of a person with a speech impediment observed to be under the influence of neither drugs nor alcohol, when the officer cannot understand what the suspect is saying. [201355]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The Code of Practice for the detention, treatment and questioning of persons by police officers (Code C) issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984, provides that if a person appears to be blind, seriously visually impaired, deaf, unable to read or speak or has difficulty orally because of a speech impediment they shall be treated as such while in police detention. A person with speech difficulties must not be interviewed in the absence of an interpreter unless they agree in writing to being interviewed without one. Where there is doubt about the speaking ability of a parent or guardian attending as an appropriate adult, an interpreter should also be called unless they agree in writing to the interview being proceeding without one.

Police Stations

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1320W, on police stations, how many (a) police kiosks, (b) mobile police stations, (c) police shops in high streets and (d) other public access methods are operated by the police in England and Wales, broken down by police authority. [201342]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and the Chief Officer, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Accidents

Police: Airports

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 11 March 2008, Official Report, columns 11-12WS, on policing (UK borders), how much each airport operator has reimbursed police authorities for the costs of uniformed police officers at airports designated under section 25 of the Aviation Security Act 1982 in the latest period for which figures are available. [194698]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 17 March 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer on this matter of 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 612W.

This information is not held centrally. There is no requirement for the police or airport operator to provide Government with the details of the agreed policing provision or the related costs. The number and cost of uniformed police officers at designated airports is for negotiation at local level by the airport operator and police.

However, the Government are also considering how to implement the conclusions of the independent report into airport policing, with the aim of clarifying the roles and responsibilities of the police, airport operators and other agencies to deliver a high level of security at UK airports and we will set out proposals on this later in the year.

Police: Internet

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the website www.direct.gov.uk/neighbourhoodpolicing in each month since its inception; what the budget for the website is for 2008-09; how many staff are employed to maintain the website; and how many unique visitors there were to the website in each month since its inception. [200384]

Mr. Byrne: It is not possible to extract the costs of this website from the others we manage.

Police: Labour Turnover

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers left each police force due to (a) retirement, (b) resignation, (c) transfer to another force and (d) other reasons in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [201809]

Mr. McNulty: Data for police officer leavers during 2007-08 are scheduled for publication at the end of July 2008. The available data for 2006-07 are given in the following table.

Police: Translation Services

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the costs of providing translation services in each police authority area of England and Wales were in each of the last two years. [187206]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people have been (a) proceeded against for and (b) convicted of failing to disclose information in encrypted form under section 53 of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000; [200550]

(2) how many prosecutions and convictions there have been under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 for withholding passwords and encryption keys to hard drives since that provision entered into force. [200588]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 23 April 2008]: These provisions came into force on 1 October 2007 and to date eight section 49 notices have been served, four of which were in terrorism related cases. In these four cases two people have been charged with the offence of failing to comply with a section 49 notice, and the appropriate investigating authorities are also considering what action to take in regard to the other two terrorist related cases. These cases have yet to come before the courts.

In two of the remaining (non-terrorism related cases) the encryption keys have been disclosed.

Robbery

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many robberies there were in each police force area in each year since 1997. [200390]

Runaway Children

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reports police forces received of children missing from home in each of the last three years, broken down by (a) age and (b) sex. [193590]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics on the number, age or gender of children who are reported missing from home are not collected centrally.

The new national Missing Persons Bureau (MPB) was launched by the National Policing Improvement Agency on 1 April 2008 and will be seeking to develop national information to support local police operations. One of the priorities for the MPB is to carry out a strategic assessment on the missing person phenomenon and to produce a "problem profile", thereby establishing a baseline on which to formulate, develop and measure future policy initiatives in close consultation with the missing persons Strategic Oversight Group.

Terrorism

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to Appendix A of the Joint Committee on Human Rights' Nineteenth Report of Session 2006-07, how many of the individuals arrested and charged with terrorist offences were (a) released on bail and (b) had their charges subsequently dropped. [197346]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 31 March 2008]: Of the 24 individuals arrested as a result of Operation Overt, as listed in Appendix A of the Joint Committee on Human Rights' Nineteenth Report of Session 2006-07, 17 were charged. Of these 17, four individuals have been granted conditional bail by the court while awaiting trial. An additional two, charged with having information about an act of terrorism, have had their cases dismissed at court. These statistics were compiled from figures provided by the Metropolitan Police Service.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the evidential basis was for the figures quoted in the National Security Strategy, and her interview in the News of the World newspaper of 13 April 2008, on the number of individuals, networks and active plots being monitored by anti-terrorism agencies in the UK; and to what period of time these figures were relevant. [200514]

Jacqui Smith: The Director General of the Security Service spoke publicly in November 2007 about the scale of the terrorist threat facing the United Kingdom, as did his predecessor 12 months earlier. Based on available intelligence and their judgment, they described it in terms of numbers of plots, groups or networks and numbers of individuals. Those were the figures to which I referred in the interview and are included in paragraph 3.4 of the National Security Strategy.

Terrorism: Detainees

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been detained on suspicion of terrorist or related offences but were released by the police or security services because they were not able to compile enough evidence to charge them within the 28 day period allowed for detention without charge in each police authority in the last two years. [201439]

Mr. McNulty: The police do not centrally hold information on the release of terrorist suspects who they do not wish to detain beyond the pre-charge detention period set out in legislation or the detailed circumstances of each case where a suspect is not charged.

Theft: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the five most common makes and models of vehicles stolen in each police authority area were in each of the last five years. [200480]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available from the recorded crime statistics collected centrally.

The Car Theft Index shows the makes and models of car most at risk of being stolen in England, Scotland and Wales but does not highlight any regional trends. A copy of the latest edition is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/car-theft-index/

Tourists: Fingerprints

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has (a) issued and (b) published on the fingerprinting of UK citizens arriving at British airports from overseas; and if she will make a statement. [196677]

Mr. Byrne: I am advised that no guidance has been issued or published with regard to a requirement to fingerprint UK Citizens arriving at British airports from overseas.

UK Border Agency: Logos

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on the design and introduction of a logo for the UK Border Agency, broken down by category of expenditure. [200178]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The development of the new UK Border Agency logo incurred a cost of £12,000 in design fees. A further £17,000 was spent on producing a set of templates and guidelines to cover all applications of the logo. A further £1,200 was spent on printing a summary guidelines booklet to distribute to senior managers within the UK Border Agency.

UK Border Agency: Uniforms

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on the design and introduction of uniforms for the UK Border Agency to date; how much the total projected spend is on the design and introduction of new uniforms for the UK Border Agency; and if she will provide a cost breakdown by category of expenditure. [200179]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 21 April 2008]: To date there has been no expenditure on the design and introduction of new uniforms for the UK Border Agency. No costs have yet been forecast. A cost breakdown by category is therefore not available.

Violence: Media

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library the full Home Office research report entitled The effects of video violence on young offenders (1998). [190059]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 29 February 2008]: A summary of the findings from the report regarding Video Violence and Young Offenders (1998) were published as a Research Findings by RDS in 1998. The full report has not been published by the Department and hence has not been subject to RDS editorial and quality assurance checks that apply to any of our published research.

We have forwarded a copy of the full report to the House of Commons Library.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

British Nationality: Prisoners

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what records he keeps of consular visits to prisoners abroad. [201237]

Meg Munn: Records of consular visits to prisoners abroad are entered onto the Foreign and Commonwealth Office central consular assistance database: "Compass". Consular staff overseas aim to write up a detailed description of a visit within 48 hours of it having taken place.

Burma: Constitutions

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessments he has made of the likelihood that the planned referendum on the Burmese draft constitution will be free and fair; and if he will make a statement. [200929]

Meg Munn: The Burmese regime's referendum on their new constitution, set for 10 May 2008, is being conducted in an atmosphere of harassment and intimidation. Criticism of the process and the draft constitution is punishable by long prison sentences. The regime has excluded opposition figures and representatives of ethnic groups in Burma from participating in the process and denies the "No" campaign a platform to air its arguments. The referendum seeks to perpetuate the role of the military in the government of the country. The constitution as drafted specifically targets Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, disqualifying her from office for having a foreign spouse. Members of religious orders will also be disenfranchised.

We endorse the view of UN Special Rapporteur on human rights, Professor Paulo Sergio Pinheiro, who commented on 14 March:

"No referendum or elections can be fair, no transition to democracy can be effective, without the release of political prisoners, the authorisation for all political parties to operate, and the protection of the basic civil and political freedoms, all non-existent in Myanmar".

Chevening Scholarships Programme

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with (a) the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, (b) the Department for International Development, (c) non-governmental UK organisations and (d) other governments before the announcement of 23rd March 2008 on the funding of the Chevening and Commonwealth Scholarships programmes. [200283]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Reading, East (Mr. Wilson) on 23 April 2008; Official Report, column 2122W.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the recent decision to reduce funding for the Chevening Scholarship programme will affect people who have applied to the scheme for a place during 2008-09. [200284]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The decision was made before scholarships for 2008-09 were offered. So while there is increased competition for scholarships for 2008-09, those who have been offered scholarships will not be affected.

China: Olympic Games

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Chinese authorities on the conditions placed on British athletes participating in the Beijing Olympics. [202165]

Meg Munn [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Athletes' conditions, at the Beijing Olympic Games, are a matter for the British Olympic Association (BOA), an independent organisation, and are firmly covered by the International Olympic Committee charter. The BOA has a responsibility to safeguard the interests of all athletes and provide an environment where preparations can be undertaken to optimise performance with the minimum of distraction.

China: Oppression

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the arrest of human rights lawyer Ms Ni Yulan in China; and if he will make a statement. [200912]

Meg Munn: We have not received any reports of the arrest of Ms Ni Yulan.

We have previously raised individual cases of human rights lawyers with the Chinese authorities and continue to urge them to protect the legitimate rights of lawyers in China. The role of defence lawyers was a key theme at both the 14th and 15th round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue. At the most recent round of the dialogue, we welcomed the new revisions to the Lawyers' Law, coming into force on 1 June, which give increased rights to defence lawyers.

Commonwealth: Scholarships

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the change in the number of Commonwealth scholarships as a result of the reduction in funding announced on 23rd March 2008. [200286]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The number of new Commonwealth scholars each year depends on the number staying on from previous years for a second or third year of study. For example, in 2006 there were 56 new scholars funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and in 2007, 46. For 2008, 68 candidates have been selected in anticipation that not all will be able to take up their places.

As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary told the House on 13 March 2008, the changes we are making to FCO scholarship programmes mean that we will end the FCO contribution to the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan. From 2009 there will be no new scholars funded by the FCO, but we will continue to pay for those on two or three-year awards.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199182]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1119 and the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected in spring 2008, and this report will detail the information to be included by Departments on data loss in their annual reports.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost of introducing his Department's new website was; for what reasons his Department's website was changed; and if he will make a statement. [201078]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The recent upgrade of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) corporate website is part of a wider project to deliver a new web platform and improved web presence for the FCO over five years.

The work will provide a single technical platform for all the FCO websites (including the main FCO website, Arabic and Urdu versions of the FCO website, UKvisas website, the FCO Freedom of Information website, and 229 embassy, high commission and special mission sites in multiple languages) as well as new designs, content, functionality and a new hub and spoke model for delivering business support.

The project will complete in September 2008, by which time all of the FCO posts websites will have joined the new platform and will operate under the central domain, fco.gov.uk.

The initial cost of £9.7 million for the web platform was set out in the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Meg Munn) on 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 398W. The project is on target to cost £19.2 million over five years. This includes running costs, for example hosting and support, and some staff salaries. The cost of the project to date is £9.2 million which includes the design and implementation of the FCO and UKvisas websites, and the design of the embassy and high commission websites. It also includes procurement costs, client side advice, setting up regional hubs to provide business support, and training. Details of the project and costs were published in Whitehall and Westminster World on 4 April:

http://www.civilservicenetwork.com/index.php?id=41&no_cache=1&tx_ttnews[tt_news]=34250&tx_ttnews[backPid]=29

The web is vital for the delivery of the FCO's Departmental strategic objectives. More people, in the UK and overseas, have contact with the FCO through the web than through any other channel. The FCO is committed to using the web to deliver its Policy Goals as well as key services such as travel advice and visa information.

The project has followed the Office of Government Commerce Gateway Review process and is delivering on time and to budget.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many public consultations his Department has held in the last three years; and how many respondents there were to each. [198678]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) welcomes views on policy issues from the public and stakeholders, for example during the recent review of its strategic priorities. FCO departments and posts hold their own budgets for public consultations and therefore the information requested is not held centrally. A more detailed answer would require a survey of all of our Embassies, High Commissions and subordinate posts, which could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Developing Countries: Human Rights

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to promote human rights in developing countries [200976]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

A reply to my hon. Friend's question will be issued shortly.

Substantive answer from Gillian Merron to Jim Cunningham:

The UK Government continues regular bi-lateral dialogue with governments to raise human rights issues and as part of country planning. This includes working with governments in developing countries to assess human rights as a basis for development programmes and to develop human rights commitments with agreed indicators of progress.

Active participation in international fora to promote human rights is a priority for the UK Government. This includes support to the UN Secretary-General's initiative to strengthen human rights institutions at country level; and to the UN's new Universal Periodic Review process which will review the human rights record of all UN states over a four year period.

The UK Government support a range of programmes at country level which support civil, economic, political, social and cultural rights. This includes support to women and excluded groups to participate in elections, livelihoods work focusing on the right to a decent standard of living and work on the law to secure disabled people's rights.

Embassies: Republic of Ireland

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date consultation with the Unite trade union on the possible need to reduce the level of locally-engaged staffing in the UK Embassy to the Republic of Ireland commenced; what discussions on (a) the provision of redeployment, (b) retraining and (c) the avoidance of compulsory redundancy ensued; and if he will make a statement. [188030]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Consultation with the Unite trade union on the decision of UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) management in London to restructure the UKTI section at our Embassy in Dublin began on 22 January.

Our Embassy and Unite, the union acting on behalf of the Embassy's Local Staff Association, reached a mutually satisfactory agreement on the consequences for staff of the restructuring of the UKTI section on 21 February.

Gaza: Borders

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to encourage the opening of all border crossings into Gaza. [202366]

Dr. Howells: We continue to make clear our desire to see the Gaza border crossings opened for both humanitarian and commercial activity. We are working with the UN to secure Israeli agreement to support efforts to facilitate humanitarian access. In addition, on a regular basis my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary engages with the Israeli Ministers of Defence and Foreign Affairs on issues of the border crossings into Gaza.

International Seabed Authority

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the UK's role is in the International Seabed Authority; and if he will make a statement. [201032]

Meg Munn: The UK has maintained a strong interest in the role of the International Seabed Authority since its inception. The UK is currently a member of the Council and is represented on both the Finance Committee and the Legal and Technical Commission (although appointees to these bodies are in a personal capacity). The UK delegation to the authority consists of officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office who liaise closely with experts from the National Oceanography Centre on matters of a technical and scientific nature.

We will continue to take an active interest in the work of the authority as the development of mining activities on the seabed becomes increasingly viable from a technical and economic standpoint, and will seek to ensure that potential future UK commercial interests are protected whilst at the same time ensuring that environmental concerns are adequately addressed.

Kosovo: Politics and Government

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Russian Federation counterpart on the UK's recognition of the unilateral declaration of independence by Kosovo. [202111]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 28 April 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed Kosovo with his Russian counterpart since the UK's recognition of its independence on 18 February 2008. However, UK officials at all levels have continued to discuss the issue with Russian officials. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Permanent Under-Secretary, Sir Peter Ricketts, discussed Kosovo with the Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, Vladimir Titov, and the First Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei Denisov, on 24 April during his visit to Moscow.

Malaysia: Military Decorations

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions officials from his Department or members of the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals met Malaysian officials to consult them before the Committee decided that veterans could accept but not wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [201115]

Meg Munn: Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office met with officials from the Malaysian high commission on several occasions to discuss this issue. The Malaysian authorities were kept fully informed about discussions on the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal, including the Government's decision to allow the medal to be accepted but not worn.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions officials from his Department or members of the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals, contacted the Malaysian High Commission or the Committee on the Malaysian authorities to consult them before the Committee decided that veterans could accept but not wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [201116]

Meg Munn: I refer my right hon. Friend to my answer to his previous question (PQ 201115).

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish the correspondence between the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals, Ministerial officials and the Malaysian authorities prior to the decision by the Committee that British veterans may accept but not wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [201168]

Meg Munn: There was no correspondence between the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals and the Malaysian authorities.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 526W, on Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals, if he will direct the Committee to reverse its decision on the acceptance and wearing of Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medals by British veterans. [201332]

Meg Munn: The Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals has considered the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal thoroughly. We respect its conclusions and do not plan to seek any re-consideration.

Morocco

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 533W, on Morocco, what account he takes of the position taken by the Polisario; if he will hold discussions with the Polisario; and if he will make a statement. [201453]

Dr. Howells: The Government take regular note of the positions of both parties to the ongoing dispute over the status of Western Sahara, as well as those of the UN Secretary-General, his Personal Envoy on Western Sahara, Peter van Walsum, and the wider international community.

The UK continues to support the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and Peter van Walsum to achieve a negotiated solution that will provide for the self determination of the people of Western Sahara. The UK shares the view of the UN Secretary-General that both parties to the dispute must try to find a way out of the current political impasse though realism and a spirit of compromise.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I do not currently have plans to hold discussions with representatives of the Polisario. However, Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials maintain regular contact with the representatives of the parties to the dispute, including the Polisario.

President of the European Council: Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 20 February 2008, Official Report, column 710W, on President of the European Council: pay, what the timescale is for discussions on the salary and job-related benefits of the President of the European Council. [198910]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Discussions on the identity of the new full-time President, on his/her terms and conditions, and on the new rules of procedure of the European Council will take place at the appropriate time before he/she takes up the post. All of these decisions will, of course, depend on ratification of the treaty by all 27 member states.

The treaty will only enter into force once every country has ratified, and not before January 2009.

Promoting Prosperity: Progressive Governance Summit

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost to the public purse was of the Promoting Prosperity: Progressive Governance Summit. [202090]

Meg Munn: Final figures are not yet available. A working budget was set at £250,000 and we expect the final figure to be within this target.

A clear distinction was maintained between costs falling to the summit and those which fell to the Policy Network, who organised the Progressive Governance conference on the preceding day.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of reports of increased Sudanese government military presence in the Abyei region; and if he will make a statement. [200931]

Meg Munn: We are aware of reports of a military build up around Abyei. We plan to raise the resolution of Abyei's status, and the installation of joint integrated units of the Sudanese armed forces and the Sudan People's Liberation Army for the area's protection, during forthcoming high-level contacts.

Sudan: Chad

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of Chadian involvement in Darfur; and what representations he has made to President Deby on this issue. [201385]

Meg Munn: We are aware of reports that both Sudan and Chad continue to support each other's rebel groups. The Government, together with the UN, the EU and the African Union, have urged both sides to cease all support for armed groups in the region, commit to a peace process and abide by previous ceasefire agreements.

The Dakar Accord, signed in Senegal on 13 March 2008, commits Chad and Sudan to reconciling their differences, normalising relations and contributing to stability in the region. We have made clear to both parties that we expect them to abide by the terms of this agreement.

We regularly raise the issue of Darfur in our bilateral contacts. Staff from our high commission in Yaoundé, accredited to Chad, raised Darfur with the Chadian Deputy Foreign Minister on 9 April 2008.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the government of Sudan on its obligations under the Abyei Protocol. [200930]

Meg Munn: My right. hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development, and my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown have all pushed Sudanese Government Ministers to resolve the dispute over Abyei as part of the implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in the last six months. Our embassy in Khartoum has raised Abyei regularly in its contacts with the Government of Sudan.

We plan to raise Abyei during forthcoming high-level meetings.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the terms of appointment are of Sir Derek Plumbly as the head of the Assessment and Evaluation Commission in Khartoum in bringing progress to the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. [201384]

Meg Munn: Sir Derek Plumbly's appointment is unique: having completed his career as a UK diplomat he has been placed on full-time secondment from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC) for two years. He was appointed by Sudanese Presidential Decree 39 of 11 February 2008 as chair of the AEC charged with delivering its mandate as defined in Sudanese Presidential Decree 36 of 2005, including monitoring and assessing the Comprehensive Peace Agreement implementation and producing mid-term evaluation reports. He took up his post in Khartoum on 26 March 2008.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what countries have made commitments to the UNAMID force for Darfur. [201381]

Meg Munn: Countries that have offered troops and that are scheduled to deploy with the force of the UN-African Union Mission in Darfur include Nigeria, Senegal, South Africa, Rwanda, Ethiopia, Egypt, Gambia, Kenya, Ghana, Malawi, Tanzania, Burkina Faso, China, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Thailand, Nepal and the Netherlands.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether UNAMID the joint AU/UN force for Darfur has a Chapter 7 mandate from the UN; and if he will make a statement. [201382]

Meg Munn: The UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1769 mandates the UN-African Union Mission in Darfur (UNAMID) under Chapter VII of the UN Charter in respect of the tasks set out for UNAMID in operative paragraph 15 of that resolution.

The UK was instrumental in securing unanimous adoption of UNSCR 1769 on 31 July 2007.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what countries have made definite commitments of helicopters to UNAMID in Darfur. [201383]

Meg Munn: Ethiopia is contributing four light tactical helicopters to the UN-African Union Mission in Darfur. No other country has made a definite commitment to provide helicopters and we continue to explore with the UN Department for Peacekeeping Operations all possible options for the provision of helicopters.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of reports of divisions within the Lord's Resistance Army over the content of the draft peace agreement in Uganda; and if he will make a statement. [200928]

Meg Munn: The Government are aware of unverified reports of divisions within the Lord's Resistance Army although reports of the death of International Criminal Court indictee Okot Odhiambo appear to have been erroneous. The Government continue to fully support the Juba Peace Process and hope that the Final Peace Agreement will be signed soon.

UN Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the process is for nominating members of the United Nations Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women; and for what reason there is no British nominee for forthcoming elections to the Committee. [201426]

Meg Munn: States parties are invited to nominate one candidate from among their own nationals to the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW). States parties to the convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women elect 23 members to the Committee. The convention states that CEDAW nominations should be experts of "high moral standing and competence in the field covered by the convention".

The UK strongly supports CEDAW and believes that an effective treaty monitoring body is one of the best mechanisms to promote and protect the human rights of women around the world. But we need to consider carefully the balance of UK representation across all the UN bodies and this sometimes means making difficult decisions about which bodies to seek election for.

This year we are seeking re-election to the Human Rights Council and the International Court of Justice. These are respectively the UN's principal bodies for the promotion and protection of all human rights, including gender equality and for the maintenance of the international rule of law.

Zimbabwe: Elections

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government has had with other governments on the non-publication of the results of the recent presidential election in Zimbabwe. [201658]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown have held regular substantive and frank discussions with African and other leaders about the non-publication of the recent presidential election results and the unacceptable level of political violence in Zimbabwe. In addition our embassies and high commissions are engaging in dialogue with key interlocutors in the region and beyond. We have and will continue to seek out opportunities to raise the issue of the urgent situation in Zimbabwe through and in the margins of multilateral fora including the EU and the UN.

Zimbabwe: Human Rights

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken to establish the extent of human rights violations in Zimbabwe. [201655]

Meg Munn: Government officials are carefully monitoring the current situation in Zimbabwe, paying close attention to the extent of human rights violations. Our facts are cross checked and ascertained through direct contact with victims and non-governmental organisations who corroborate statements and facts. As a consequence we can confirm there have been at least 456 victims of post election violence reported to date and we are also aware of hundreds of displaced civilians. We have repeatedly raised our condemnation of these abuses with the Government of Zimbabwe and states in the region.

TREASURY

Adjudicator's Office

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases the Adjudicators Office dealt with in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [202664]

Jane Kennedy: The number of complaints accepted by the Adjudicator's Office for investigation, and the number finalised each year are published in the adjudicator's annual report. Reports for each of the last five years are available on the adjudicator's website: www.adjudicatorsoffice.gov.uk

Adjudicator's Office: Complaints

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints have been received about the Adjudicators Office in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [202662]

Jane Kennedy: Figures for the number of complaints made against the Adjudicator's Office are not available.

Where a complaint is made against the handling of a complaint by the Adjudicator's Office, the adjudicator will attempt to resolve the complaint directly with the complainant. Where agreement cannot be reached, the complainant may refer the matter to the parliamentary and health services ombudsman.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how long on average the Adjudicators Office took to (a) respond to a complaint and (b) successfully deal with a complaint in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [202663]

Jane Kennedy: During 2007-08 the adjudicator took on average 8.98 working days to make their initial response to a complainant. The average time taken to finalise an investigation during the same period was 23.44 weeks.

Adjudicator's Office: Finance

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the annual budget of the Adjudicators Office is; and if he will make a statement. [202665]

Jane Kennedy: In 2006-07 the cost of the Adjudicator's Office was £2.48 million. This figure was given in written evidence to the Treasury Committee on 15 January 2008 by Mr. Simon Oakes, the head of the Adjudicator's Office. The figure includes an apportionment for accommodation and other services provided directly by HMRC, and is therefore higher than the £1.99 million quoted in the annual report for 2006-07.

Adjudicator's Office: Manpower

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time workers are employed by the Adjudicators Office; and if he will make a statement. [202666]

Jane Kennedy: The Adjudicator's Office currently has 47 members of staff. The breakdown of staff years is given in the following table:

Department	Full-time	Part-time
HM Revenue and Customs	42	2
Valuation Office Agency	1	0
Insolvency Service	1	0
Office of the Public Guardian	1	0

Bird and Bird

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contracts were awarded by his Department to Bird and Bird solicitors in each year since 2005; and what the (a) value and (b) duration of each such contract was. [201642]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury have awarded no contracts to Bird and Bird since 2005.

Car Allowances

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether HM Revenue and Customs plans to review the authorised mileage allowances for tax purposes to take account of rising fuel costs. [202376]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Lady to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Mid-Dorset and North Poole (Annette Brooke) on 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 535W. I also refer the hon. Lady to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 306W. The Chancellor announced in Budget 2008 that the Government would maintain the tax-free mileage allowance (AMAPs) rates and thresholds at current levels.

Crown Estate: Weber Shandwick Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what payments the Crown Estate made to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payments were made in each case. [202260]

Angela Eagle: The Crown Estate employed Weber Shandwick for corporate PR advice as well as general communications support on a number of property development projects for their central London urban portfolio. The primary focus of Weber Shandwick's work here was community consultation.

The figures are given in the table:

2002-03	129
2003-04	170
2004-05	178
2005-06	255
2006-07	126

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201748]

Angela Eagle: HMT has been working with Exchequer Partnership, HMT's PFI partner, to implement recommendations from the Carbon Trust and is currently developing further initiatives with both parties.

The energy consumption figures for the Department are:

2006-07	427,472
2005-06	371,854

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200686]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91; [200687]

(3) what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement; [200688]

(4) what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200689]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury is not responsible for any public sector pension schemes.

Equitable Life

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent producing the report of the Equitable Life inquiry. [200428]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to HM Treasury's Resource Accounts 2003-04 for the total cost of Lord Penrose's inquiry into Equitable Life.

Fuels: Excise Duties

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much (a) the Assets Recovery Agency and (b) HM Revenue and Customs recovered from those involved in fuel laundering in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [200616]

Angela Eagle: The nature of civil recovery proceedings is such that it is not possible to quantify the exact value of assets recovered in relation to specific forms of criminality, although the Assets Recovery Agency has recovered assets from individuals whose criminality is believed to include fuel smuggling.

In the last three years in Northern Ireland, HMRC has made two cash seizures under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 from persons involved in oil laundering:

2005	[1]8,510.00
2007	[2]3,599.54

[1] Proceeds of fuel laundering.
[2] Proceeds of fuel laundering, with prosecution for laundering plant pending.

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many prosecutions for offences relating to fuel laundering there were in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years; [200617]

(2) how many people have been convicted of and received prison sentences for offences relating to fuel laundering in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [200615]

Angela Eagle: In Northern Ireland, in each of the last three years, there have been two prosecutions commenced for offences relating to oils laundering.

Within the same period, there have been three persons who have been convicted of offences relating to oils laundering of which:

Two, convicted in August 2006 and January 2008, have received suspended sentences

One, convicted in January 2008, is awaiting sentencing.

Criminal investigation and prosecution for hydrocarbon oils offences form only one part of HMRC's overall approach to tackling oils fraud, together with the investigation/prosecution of wider oils excise offences, combined with a strong regulatory control system and the civil penalties regime.

Government Departments: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what price his Department requires Government Departments to use for one tonne of carbon dioxide when calculating their budgets. [202537]

Angela Eagle: The shadow price of carbon (SPC) is used to value the expected increase or decrease in emissions of greenhouse gas emissions resulting from a proposed policy. The SPC reflects the damage costs of climate change caused by each additional tonne of greenhouse gas emitted—converted into carbon dioxide equivalent (CO_2e) for ease of comparison. Supplementary guidance to the Green Book has been published, and the SPC should be used in all policy and project appraisals across government with significant effects on carbon emissions.

The value of the SPC is dependent upon the year the carbon is abated/emitted and rises over time to account for observed (and assumed) inflation, and at 2 per cent. a year to account for rising damage costs from higher greenhouse gas concentrations. The SPC in 2008 is £26.50 per tonne of CO_2e.

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the Statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17th January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200226]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury provides no such services.

Income Tax: Tax Evasion

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) cases of and (b) prosecutions for income tax evasion there have been since 2001. [201616]

Jane Kennedy: Since the creation of the RCPO and HMRC in 2005, 863 cases of direct tax and VAT evasion have been successfully prosecuted and a further 1361 settled under Civil Investigation of Fraud proceedings. Separate figures for income tax evasion are not available. Cases of less serious income tax evasion are resolved through inquiries, but HMRC does not keep records of this.

Prosecutions for income tax evasion prior to April 2005 were carried out by the former Inland Revenue. In total, there were 76 successful direct tax prosecutions between 2001 and 2005.

Details of these are published in the IR annual reports.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people who will be worse off in Beverley and Holderness constituency following the abolition of the 10 pence tax rate ; and if he will make a statement. [201851]

Jane Kennedy: It is not possible to provide reliable estimates of the impact of tax reforms at constituency level.

The removal of the 10p rate is part of a package of reforms announced in Budget 2007 and should not be looked at in isolation. As a result of these reforms four-in-five households in the United Kingdom are better or no worse off than if they had not taken place.

Budget 2008 announced additional measures supporting low income households including increased child tax credit, child benefit and housing benefits that will lift up to a further 250,000 children out of poverty, and one-off payments of £100 to households with someone aged 80 or over and £50 to households with someone aged 60 or over, to be paid alongside the winter fuel payment in 2008-09.

Loans

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the effects on financial intermediaries of financial lenders withdrawing products and lending directly to end customers; [201339]

(2) what assessment (a) his Department and (b) the Financial Services Authority has made of the effects on the economy of financial lenders withdrawing products from the marketplace. [201340]

Angela Eagle: Budget 2008 presented the Government's assessment of the ongoing disruption in global financial markets, including the effect on housing finance markets, and is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/budget/budget_08/bud_bud08_index.cfm.

The 2008 Financial Risk Outlook published by the Financial Services Authority (FSA) presents the FSA's consideration of the effects on the economy of a reduced availability of credit, and is available at:

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/Pages/Library/corporate/Outlook/fro_2008.shtml.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, dated 10 March 2008, transferred from the Department for Children, Schools and Families, on value added tax on school uniforms, PO reference: 7/15810/2008. [202394]

Jane Kennedy: I replied to the hon. Member on 26 April.

Northern Rock

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what forecast he has made of the size of Northern Rock's mortgage book at the end of (a) 2008 and (b) 2009. [201668]

Angela Eagle: During the period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock will be managed on an arms' length, commercial basis. It is a matter for the company's management to release specific business updates.

On 31 March 2008, Northern Rock published a business plan that meets the Government's objectives, setting out its strategic priority to reduce the size of its balance sheet by over 50 per cent. to £49 billion by 2011.

Northern Rock: Nationalisation

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received since nationalisation on the operations of Northern Rock bank in (a) Denmark, (b) the Republic of Ireland and (c) Guernsey. [194567]

Angela Eagle: There were a number of representations about the operations in question, including Northern Rock's announcement of 18 March 2008 of their intention to close their Danish branch and maintain their branch in the Republic of Ireland and subsidiary in Guernsey.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he has taken to provide greater flexibility for Government Departments, with reference to the use of capital expenditure and operational expenditure spending budgets. [202536]

Yvette Cooper: The Government set separate capital and resource budgets for Departments at spending reviews. Separate resource and capital budgets support the Government's fiscal rules and ensure sustained investment in priorities, including infrastructure, schools and hospitals. The Government have introduced firm three-year spending plans and Departments have flexibility to focus resources within budget limits, subject to the rules set out in Managing Public Money and the Consolidated Budgeting Guidance 2008-09 (please see the links to these documents as follows). The Government have also introduced End Year Flexibility, which enables flexibility across financial years.

Tobacco: Excise Duties

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward proposals for a levy on cigarette manufacturers to pay for the removal of discarded cigarette butts. [202486]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor keeps all taxes under review. The Government currently have no plans for such a levy.

DEFRA has recently funded four smoking litter campaigns, organised by Environmental Campaigns (ENCAMS), the organisation which runs the Keep Britain Tidy campaign. The Government will continue to encourage local authorities to use their powers in this regard to take action, where appropriate, against those discarding smoking related litter.

JUSTICE

Offenders: Cost of Punishment

10. Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will give consideration to charging offenders for the cost of their punishment. [202053]

Mr. Hanson: The 1952 Prison Act requires all expenses incurred in the maintenance of prisons and prisoners to be met from public funds.

The Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 enables the confiscation of criminally acquired assets. Courts frequently impose compensation orders against defendants under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002.

In this way prisoners who have funds can be made to contribute directly towards the costs of the criminal justice process, including those costs incurred in their imprisonment.

We are currently looking at how the work and behaviour of prisoners can be better linked to the regime they are under in prison through a prisoner compact. I will be publishing proposals on this shortly.

Reoffending Rates

11. Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking through the youth justice system to reduce reoffending rates. [202054]

Mr. Hanson: Between 2000 and 2005 youth re-offending has reduced by 2.5 per cent. We are building on this by developing a cross-government youth crime action plan which will set out work to reduce offending and reoffending by young people. We also continue to work with partners to improve practice and performance. This includes ensuring that the right performance frameworks and indicators are in place and putting in place a delivery plan to reduce youth reoffending.

Postal Voting

12. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the integrity of the postal voting system. [202055]

Bridget Prentice: The Government take the integrity of the electoral process very seriously. Postal voting has proved popular and has helped to boost turnout at elections. However, we must balance accessibility with security, and we have put in place a range of measures to safeguard the security of postal voting. We are not complacent on this issue and will consider what further action may be taken to ensure postal voting is secure.

ClearSprings

13. Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with ClearSprings on property in Basildon district. [202056]

Mr. Hanson: ClearSprings are not currently seeking property in Basildon but will consult if further properties are identified as being required.

RAF Coltishall

14. Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make a statement on the development of plans for a prison in the former RAF Coltishall. [202057]

Mr. Hanson: A detailed planning application was submitted to North Norfolk district council and Broadland council on 18 April 2008.

The proposal is to provide a new 500 place Category C prison for males on the former RAF Coltishall site by converting some of the existing accommodation and providing some new buildings.

The prison will be in the public sector and run by HM Prison Service. Subject to planning permission, the first offenders are planned to be received in early 2009 and the prison will be fully operational later in the year.

"Governance of Britain"

15. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has for electronic consultation on the proposals in the Governance of Britain Green Paper. [202058]

Mr. Wills: We have set up the Governance of Britain website to provide information and updates on proposals in the Green Paper (http://governance.justice.gov.uk). As well as providing regular updates on progress, the site can give people the opportunity to contribute to discussion and debate in online forums and through e-mail.

Young Offenders

16. Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent estimate he has made of the time taken to bring young offenders' cases to court; and what targets he has set for this process. [202059]

Maria Eagle: The Government have a pledge to halve the average time from arrest to sentence for persistent young offenders from its 1996 level of 142 days. The 71-day target was first met in 2002, and the most recent monthly average for January 2008 is 62 days.

The average time between offence and first court hearing for all youth defendants whose cases were disposed of in 2007 is estimated at 53 days.

The Criminal Justice: Simple, Speedy, Summary (CJSSS) initiative is presently being rolled-out to further improve the speed and effectiveness of youth courts.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the operation of youth referral orders. [201318]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

July 2007 data on reconvictions show that the referral order has the lowest reconviction rate, 44 per cent., of all juvenile court imposed sentences. This is against the overall reconviction rate for juvenile community sentences of 70 per cent.

The Youth Justice Board is responsible for the monitoring of the provision and operation of youth justice services. It issued a consultation document on referral orders at the end of last year and is now in the process of drawing up an action plan to address issues raised in the responses.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people under the age of 21 years were serving sentences for public protection offences at the latest date for which figures are available. [202024]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the number of young offenders in prison establishments in England and Wales serving indeterminate and extended sentences for public protection as at end February 2008:

	Under 18s	Young adults[1]
Extended sentence for public protection (EPP)	110	330
Indeterminate sentence for public protection (IPP)	50	520

[1] Young adults are those aged 18-20 and those 21 year olds who were aged 20 or under at conviction who have not been reclassified as part of the adult population.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing so numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Prisoners: Foreign Nationals

17. Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress is being made in conjunction with the Home Department in securing agreements with other countries to transfer foreign national prisoners to their countries of origin. [202061]

Mr. Hanson: There are 98 Prisoner Transfer Agreements in place. I continue to look for opportunities to develop agreements with countries for the return of their nationals. This would enable them to serve their sentences closer to their families in the country to which they will ultimately be deported.

I recently visited Nigeria to progress a prisoner transfer agreement with them.

Prison Building

18. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent progress has been made on the prisons building programme. [202062]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have announced a programme to provide an additional 20,000 prison places and increase overall capacity to just over 96,000 by 2014. The programme has already provided 2,475 places, and will provide a further 1,708 places this year.

Prisons: Illegal Commodities

19. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to reduce the supply of illegal drugs and mobile telephones in prisons. [202063]

21. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department is taking to tackle the availability of illegal drugs in prisons. [202065]

Mr. Hanson: Prisons deploy a comprehensive framework of drug supply reduction measures and have achieved considerable success. Drug use as measured by random mandatory drug tests has dropped by 64 per cent. since 1996-97.

On 11 March 2008 I announced that David Blakey, former inspector of constabulary, has been commissioned to conduct a review of the effectiveness of the measures to disrupt the supply of illicit drugs into prisons. His report will also look into mobile phone use in prisons and their interrelation with drug supply.

The Prison Service is developing an action plan to tackle the problem of mobile phones in prisons. We are working closely with partner agencies to develop and trial new technologies and procedures.

Legal Aid

20. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress he has made on reform of legal aid. [202064]

Bridget Prentice: Our reform programme, set out in "Legal Aid Reform: the Way Ahead" (Cm 6993) in November 2006, designed to deliver a sustainable system of legal aid, is on track. The Legal Services Commission (LSC) has successfully delivered the first phase of reform, and has introduced new fixed and graduated fees covering most areas of civil, family and criminal legal aid. Together with the Legal Services Commission, we are considering arrangements for the second phase of reform. The next phase of reform for civil legal aid is set out in the civil route map published on 10 April 2008. The Legal Services Commission is also considering responses to its consultation on best value tendering.

Youth Justice

22. James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the priorities of the Youth Justice Unit and other youth justice initiatives. [202067]

Mr. Hanson: Since the creation of the Joint Youth Justice Unit in November 2007, I have had a number of meetings with my right hon. Friend the Member for Normanton (Ed Balls) to discuss youth justice. Our respective Ministers of State also meet one another regularly to discuss these matters. There are also regular meetings between Ministers and the Youth Justice Board to monitor performance and discuss topical issues.

Belmarsh Prison

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether there is a regime at HMP Belmarsh whereby prisoners are granted access to amenities in recognition of good conduct; [201632]

(2) what amenities are available for use by prisoners at HMP Belmarsh. [201633]

Maria Eagle: In common with all other prisons, HMP Belmarsh provides an Incentive and Earned Privileges Scheme (IEP) enabling prisoners to earn additional privileges in recognition of good conduct and compliance with individual sentence planning targets.

Prisoners have access to a range of amenities. These include education facilities, workshops, the gymnasium, the chapel and chapel groups, pool tables, board games, and in-cell television. Prisoners are also able to purchase a range of items for personal use. Under prison rules all prisoners are entitled to receive social visits and to communicate with friends and family either by writing or by telephone.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200681]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91; [200682]

(3) what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200683]

Bridget Prentice: For the vast majority of staff, information since 2000-01 is contained in the resource accounts for the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS). These have been produced under differing sets of assumptions (e.g. on longevity) so are not comparable across years. Full details can be found on the civil service pensions website at:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk

Additionally, as a result of the creation of Her Majesty's Courts Service in April 2005, this Department became responsible for staff previously employed by 42 magistrates courts committees (MCCs). With the exception of the Greater London Magistrates Courts Authority who were also part of the civil service pension scheme, each of the remaining 41 areas were members of a Local Government Pension Scheme. The Department took responsibility for all pension liabilities at that time which were estimated to be £268 million. This was reflected in the departmental accounts as a provision. The true value of this provision will only be known when all the returns are received from the Local Government Pension Funds. When that figure becomes clearer, HM Treasury will need to determine the discount rate to be applied.

This Department is also responsible for the administration of the pension scheme for the judiciary. Information since 2003-04 is contained in the resource accounts for the Judicial Pension Scheme. Copies of the resource accounts can be found on the Department's website.

Probation boards participate in the Local Government Pension Scheme (LGPS), administered by various bodies. The MOJ is not responsible for the LGPS. Details of liabilities and contribution rates relevant to probation boards can be found in the annual accounts of the national probation service.

The Legal Services Commission operates two pension schemes providing benefits based on final pensionable salary. The assets are held separately from those of the Commission and the Trustees set contributions having taken advice from the Scheme Actuary. Details can be found in the Commission's annual report.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be from increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by 1 per cent.; and if he will make a statement; [200684]

(2) what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its Executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200685]

Bridget Prentice: Under the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme, increasing the employee contributions will have no impact on the Department's expenditure. There is no direct link between the employee and the Department's contributions so the cost would fall only to the member of staff.

The majority of the information about the value of pensions for the highest paid members of staff is contained in the Remuneration Report which is part of the Department's accounts.

No formal estimates have been made of any effect of a change in the member's contribution under the Judicial Pension Scheme.

Probation boards participate in the Local Government Pension Scheme (LGPS), administered by various bodies. The MOJ is not responsible for the LGPS. Details of liabilities and contribution rates relevant to probation boards can be found in the annual accounts of the national probation service.

The Legal Services Commission operates two pension schemes providing benefits based on final pensionable salary. The assets are held separately from those of the Commission and the Trustees set contributions having taken advice from the Scheme Actuary. Details can be found in the Commission's annual report.

Domestic Violence: Prosecutions

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prosecutions for offences relating to domestic violence there were in each year since 2003; [201486]

(2) what proportion of prosecutions for offences connected to domestic violence resulted in conviction in each year since 2003. [201487]

Maria Eagle: The data held centrally by my Department on the court proceedings database do not contain information about the circumstances behind each case other than the information that may be gleaned from the offence itself. As a result offences involving an element of domestic violence cannot be identified.

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199186]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not have any mechanisms to undertake monitoring of the extent of electronic correspondence (internal or external) or publication distribution. However, the Department and its agencies are taking steps to reduce paper usage by encouraging the take-up of electronic channels, formats and technology wherever possible.

Limitation of Actions

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 186W, on A v. Hoare, what progress has been made by the Government in their consideration of the implications of the ruling for civil claims. [201962]

Bridget Prentice: Following the decision of the House of Lords in A v. Hoare and a number of other cases, the limitation period for actions involving trespass to the person has been brought into line with that for other actions for personal injury, namely three years from when the injury occurred or the date on which the victim knows that he or she has good grounds to sue the defendant for the injury caused, whichever is the later. The court has a discretion to extend this period without limit in appropriate cases.

The decision addresses a significant criticism of the law of limitation made by the Law Commission in their 2001 report Limitation of Actions (Law Com 270). This report recommended a general overhaul of current legislation contained in the Limitation Act 1980. The Government accepted the Law Commission's recommendations in principle, subject to further work in certain areas, in July 2002. This detailed examination of the impact has revealed several issues that need to be resolved. The Government will make a further announcement about the way forward when this work is complete.

Miscarriages of Justice: Compensation

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what provision there is for appeal against refusal of compensation for wrongful conviction, following the abolition of the discretionary scheme in November 2006. [202658]

Maria Eagle: Applicants who are refused eligibility for compensation under section 133 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 may make written representations to the Secretary of State if they believe that he did not take into account evidence which they had provided when reaching his decision to refuse their application, or if they have fresh evidence. Alternatively it is always open to the applicant to seek leave to judicially review the decision.

Office of the Public Guardian: Powers of Attorney

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what information he has on the time taken to administer the registration of lasting powers of attorney by the Public Guardian Office (PGO); and what steps are being taken to improve the performance of the PGO in this respect. [201243]

Bridget Prentice: The Mental Capacity Act 2005 was fully implemented on 1 October 2007. It also introduced new lasting powers of attorney (LPAs) to enable people to appoint someone to make decisions on their behalf in relation to their property and affairs and/or their health and welfare.

In addition, enduring powers of attorney (EPAs) made prior to October 2007 remain valid.

All LPAs must be registered with the Office of the Public Guardian (OPG) before they can be used. EPAs only need to be registered with the OPG once the person to whom they relate has lost capacity.

The total number of applications to register both types of power of attorney since the new legislation came into force in October has greatly exceeded forecasts. The last three months in particular have seen volumes again increase even more sharply. This has put a strain on resources and led to delays.

It is currently taking staff around six weeks to process and check LPAs to ensure they are valid before other parties can be notified that an application has been made. Applications then enter a statutory waiting period of 42 days during which objections can be made against the application. This is an important safeguard to allow any concerns about the power to be aired. Where no objections are received, staff are registering the power and notifying the applicant within another week.

Steps have been taken to address the delays in this process which exist mainly at the point where applications are received and checked:

Additional staff are being taken on at all levels to deal with processing the higher than expected volumes.

Some staff have already been taken on temporarily in some of the more process-driven areas to increase capacity quickly.

Other staff are currently undergoing training to ensure they can carry out their new roles effectively.

Procuring additional IT equipment to increase the team's capacity to scan and check applications at the front end. The additional equipment has been ordered and is awaiting installation.

As a result of these steps, I expect the OPG to have reached a point where it has reduced the front-end period spent processing and checking applications to two weeks in June. This would be in line with the level of service that we aim to offer our customers and which is tracked as a corporate target as one of the OPG's key performance indicators.

Open Prisons: Employment

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether prisoners in open prisons employed by outside companies are subject to prison rules. [201707]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners that undertake work placements under the supervision of outside companies are subject at all times to prison rules. Placements are supported by memoranda of understanding agreed between the prison, the prisoner and the employer setting out the terms of the arrangement.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have been released in April 2008 as a result of early release schemes. [202060]

Mr. Hanson: The latest available information relates to February, when there were about 2,500 releases on end of custody licence, 1,000 releases under home detention curfew and 50 prisoners removed from the country under the Early Removal scheme. About 150 prisoners were released on parole.

Prisoners: Children in Care

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of the prison population was in local authority care at some point when under the age of 16 years at the latest date for which figures are available. [201200]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the total number of prisoners in all prison establishments in England and Wales who were in local authority care at some point when under the age of 16 is not centrally available.

However, a Social Exclusion Unit report "Reducing re-offending by ex-prisoners" published in 2002 reported that 27 per cent. of the prison population had been taken into care as a child against an average across the general population of 2 per cent.

Prisoners: Females

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many incidents of self-mutilation by women were recorded in each prison in the last five years. [201713]

Maria Eagle: The Prison Service does not use the term 'self-mutilation'.

The following table includes all incidents of self-harm by girls and women in any prisons that held them in the period in question. It should be noted that the numbers refer to incidents not people (a number of individuals self-harm on more than one occasion and account for a disproportionate ,number of incidents), and do not reflect the severity of incidents, i.e. include all incidents no matter how minor the self-harm as well as noose/ligature making (even where no injury occurred).

[1] The numbers of self harm incidents reported here are based on information supplied by prisons through the Prison Service Incident Reporting System (IRS). Self-harm is a high volume incident and is subject to technical and recording problems. Nevertheless, the system provides a sensible indication of the scale of self-harm but the numbers should not be treated as absolute. These figures may differ from previously published figures as some incidents are retrospectively added to IRS.

Prisoners: Suicide

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to reduce suicides in prison. [201819]

Maria Eagle: The National Offender Management Service has a broad, integrated and evidence-based prisoner suicide prevention strategy that seeks to reduce the distress of all who live and work in prisons. This encompasses a wide spectrum of prison and Department of Health work around such issues as mental health, drugs, resettlement, leadership and training.

A revised strategy was published in October 2007 with implementation to be completed in every prison by the end of April 2008. This builds on several years of learning from the experiences of prisoners, staff, investigators, inspectors and others, and aims to embed improved suicide prevention and self-harm management methods of working in all areas of prison life. It incorporates the care-planning system for at-risk prisoners, improved cross-agency information flows, and also reflects long-standing areas of safer custody work such as listener and insider peer supporters, local suicide prevention co-ordinators and working with outside organisations.

Prisons

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what consultative meetings Lord Carter has held as part of his prisons review; [201704]

(2) what written submissions Lord Carter has received as part of his prisons review. [201705]

Maria Eagle: In December the Government accepted Lord Carter of Coles' report 'Securing the Future: proposals for an efficient and sustainable use of custody in England and Wales'. Lord Carter had access to a range of expertise and advice in drawing up his report and consulted a variety of stakeholders.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many visitors to prisons were found to be in possession of illegal drugs in each year since 1997; how many were referred to the police; and what action was taken in respect of those not referred to the police. [200242]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service takes very seriously any attempt to smuggle drugs. The firmest possible action is taken against prisoners and visitors caught supplying drugs. The Offender Management Act 2007 creates a specific criminal offence of smuggling drugs into prisons. I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 89W.

A comprehensive framework is in place for dealing with visitors who seek to smuggle drugs through visits. The number of visitors suspected of involvement in drug smuggling incidents and the action taken internally by prisons along with the number of visitors arrested is detailed in the following table.

No record is kept of the number of visitors found to be in possession of illegal drugs but a good indication is the number arrested.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

[2] Number of reported drug incidents in which a visitor was suspected of involvement and arrested by police. A particular incident may involve more than one arrest.

Data covering the 2007-08 financial year are not yet available.

Prisons: Employment

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what rules are in place governing the employment of prisoners by external companies. [201706]

Maria Eagle: The Prison Service has a significant number of contracts and contacts with the private sector that lead to prisoners undertaking work or training within prisons but these do not create legally recognised employee/employer relationships and the prisoners are always under the governors, overall management and supervision.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any prisoners in contracted out prisons are employed by outside companies. [201708]

Maria Eagle: There are no prisoners currently in the 11 contracted prisons who are employed by outside companies either at the prison or while Released On Temporary License (ROTL).

Prisons: Housing

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison residential quarters are occupied by prison officers; and if he will make a statement. [201810]

Mr. Hanson: The remaining Prison Service quarters are occupied by Prison Service staff, including prison officers, chaplains and agricultural workers or in a small number of cases, by former prison staff or relatives on compassionate grounds. Of the 480 or so remaining quarters some 285 are occupied by serving prison officers.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison residential quarters occupied by prison officers are planned to be let to avoid the costs that would be incurred in upgrading properties to meet the 2010 Decent Housing Standard; and if he will make a statement. [201818]

Mr. Hanson: Since 1987 the policy has been not to provide prison quarters and to dispose of the existing quarters under the then discount sales scheme or on the open market. Since that time some 12,000 quarters have been sold and some 480 remain. Once these remaining quarters are declared surplus to requirements and become vacant they are sold on the open market. In the financial year 2008-09 some 50 quarters are anticipated to be sold in this manner.

There are four quarters at HMP Wandsworth however that are not to be sold, on account of their strategic location on the front of the prison wall, and these are due to be transferred on a short to medium-term basis to a housing association or similar body who will source funding, possibly from a housing corporation to undertake the necessary works and then let the properties to local families who are deemed most in need of affordable social housing. A similar arrangement has been in place for some years for residential flats adjacent to Wormwood Scrubs.

Secure Training Centres: Manpower

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff in each secure training centre are educated to degree level; and how many have postgraduate qualifications in child care or education. [201711]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the number of staff working in Hassockfield, Medway and Rainsbrook secure training centres who hold a degree, or have a postgraduate child care or education qualification. Oakhill does not collate the information requested.

Secure Training Centres: Sick Leave

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average sickness rate was for staff in each secure training centre in the latest year for which figures are available. [201710]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the average rate of sickness absence at each secure training centre during the 12 months ending 24 April 2008.

Rainsbrook	5.6
Medway	5.9
Hassockfield	4.2

Sentencing

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department has conducted a race impact assessment of indeterminate sentencing for public protection. [201702]

Mr. Hanson: A consultation on the Criminal Justice Bill: Initial Partial Race Equality Impact Assessment was undertaken in 2003. Additionally the Commission for Racial Equality helped the Home Office identify a list of provisions in the Criminal Justice Act for race equality impact assessment, which did not include indeterminate sentences for public protection. We have not conducted a race assessment impact on these provisions since their implementation. The Criminal Justice and Immigration Bill contains clauses which will reform public protection sentences.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many black and minority ethnic (a) men and (b) women have received an indeterminate sentence for public protection in each month since sentencing was introduced. [201703]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the number of prisoners received into prison establishments in England and Wales under an indeterminate sentence for public protection in each month since April 2005:

[1] Combined.

These monthly figures are too small to provide a reliable breakdown by gender and ethnicity, but we can provide the total number of black and minority ethnic men and women currently serving an indeterminate sentence for public protection (IPP).

As at the end of February 2008 there were 4,000 offenders serving an IPP in prison establishments in England and Wales, including 820 males and 10 females from black and minority ethnic groups.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems. As with any large scale recording system they are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing, so the numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Young Offenders: Custodial Treatment

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) under 18 and (ii) 18 to 21 years old were held in the adult prison estate on the latest date for which figures are available. [201646]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of February 2008 there were (a) (i) 2,283 males aged under 18 and (ii) 9,112 males aged between 18 to 20 and (b) (i) 65 females aged under 18 and (ii) 434 females aged 18 to 20 in all prison establishments in England and Wales.

Juvenile prisoners (those aged under 18) are usually held in designated units and prisons. In exceptional individual circumstances they may be held separately within an adult prison for a short period. Similarly sentenced 18 to 20-year-olds are usually held in designated units and establishments. Current operational practice is to hold unsentenced 18 to 20-year-olds in either an adult prison or in cells designated as prison cells within young offender institutions, and in exceptional circumstances the Secretary of State has the power to direct an 18 to 20-year-old sentenced offender to be held as an adult.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children under 18 years were placed in young offender institutions in each of the last 10 years. [201861]

Mr. Hanson: Young Offender Institutions accommodate sentenced prisoners aged from 15 to 21. The following table gives the number of 15 to 17-year-olds received under immediate custodial sentences into prison establishments in England and Wales between 1997 and 2006.

	Aged 15 to 17 (Male and Female)
1997	5,617
1998	5,585
1999	5,877
2000	5,834
2001	5,903
2002	5,738
2003	4,918
2004	5,172
2005	5,175
2006	5,291

This table is taken from table 7.6 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2006, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library and which can be found at this website:

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Young Offenders: Self-Mutilation

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many incidents of self-mutilation by juveniles were recorded in each prison in the last five years. [201714]

Maria Eagle: The Prison Service does not use the term 'self-mutilation'. The following table includes all incidents of self-harm by 15 to 17-year-olds in any prisons where they were held in the period in question. It should be noted that the numbers refer to incidents not people (a number of individuals self-harm on more than one occasion and account for a disproportionate number of incidents), and do not reflect the severity of incidents, i.e. include all incidents no matter how minor the self-harm as well as noose/ligature making (even where no injury occurred).

[1]The numbers of self harm incidents reported here are based on information supplied by prisons through the Prison Service incident reporting system (IRS). Self-harm is a high volume incident and is subject to technical and recording problems. Nevertheless, the system provides a sensible indication of the scale of self-harm but the numbers should not be treated as absolute. These figures may differ from previously published figures as some incidents are retrospectively added to IRS.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Bell Pottinger Group

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what payments his Department and its predecessor made to the Bell Pottinger Group in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202302]

Kevin Brennan: Our financial records show that the Department has not made any payments to the company Bell Pottinger Group in the last five years.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many new schools have been commissioned under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and how many of them were commissioned under the private finance initiative model. [202535]

Jim Knight: Approximately 180 new schools in 40 local authority areas have been commissioned following the approval of outline business cases as part of Building Schools for the Future. Of these we expect approximately 125 to be delivered under the private finance initiative.

For the purpose of this question, new schools have been defined as those that are undertaking a minimum of 75 per cent. or greater new build content. The figures provided are approximate because the scope of individual BSF projects and/or procurement methods may change as projects are further developed.

Cadets: Armed Forces

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has provided to cadet forces in schools in the last three years. [201698]

Jim Knight: The Department does not provide funding for cadet forces in schools. Cadet forces in schools are funded by the Ministry of Defence.

Children in Care: Missing Persons

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in care were reported missing in each of the last 10 years. [201866]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of children looked after by English local authorities who were reported as missing in each of the years ending 31 March 2003 to 2007 is shown in the following table 1. Where a child was reported missing from his or her agreed placement on more than one occasion during the same year, he or she has been counted only once.

Table 1: Children looked after who were reported missing during the years ending 31 March 2003 to 2007[1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8]—England

[2] Children looked after at any time during the year ending 31 March.
[3] Figures exclude children looked after under an agreed series of short term placements.
[4] A child is recorded with a missing placement if he/she is absent for more than 24 hours from his/her agreed placement. Children who are missing from care are categorised in three types of missing placements:
(a) In Refuge for children at risk, as defined in Section 51 of Children Act 1989, (b) Whereabouts of young people known to social services (but not in refuge) excluding agreed absences from placement such as holidays or planned breaks, (c) Whereabouts unknown.
[5] Figures are taken from the SSDA903 one-third sample survey.
[6] Figures are taken from the SSDA903 return which since 2004 covered all looked after children.
[7] Historical figures may differ from older publications. This is mainly due to the implementation of amendments and corrections sent by some local authorities after the publication date of previous materials.
[8] To maintain the confidentiality of each individual child, data at national level are rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000 or to the nearest 10 otherwise.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of child care (a) places and (b) providers were (i) maintained, (ii) private, (iii) voluntary and (iv) independent in (A) Basingstoke constituency, (B) Hampshire and (C) England at the latest date for which figures are available. [200553]

Beverley Hughes: The information is not available in the form requested.

Since 2003, Ofsted has been responsible for the registration and inspection of child care providers. The tables show the number of providers and places registered with Ofsted at 31 March 2007 for Hampshire local authority and England.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of paid childcare staff in those settings for which his Department has responsibility were dismissed from employment in each year since 1997. [201907]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the dismissal from employment of paid child care staff is not collected or held centrally by the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF).

Children: Daycare

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many childcare places there are in each local authority; what estimate he has made of the level of demand for places in each authority; and if he will make a statement. [202146]

Analysis of demand for child care formed a significant element of the child care sufficiency assessments which local authorities were required to complete by 31 March 2008. Local authorities are now in a position to compare the local supply of, and demand for, childcare places, and to work to fill gaps between the two so as to satisfy their new duty to secure sufficient child care for working parents.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of his Department's budget was allocated directly by his Department and not devolved to schools or local authorities in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [200981]

Jim Knight: The proportion of DCSF's budget allocated directly by the Department and not devolved to schools or local authorities in 2007-08 is 18 per cent.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the (a) most recent annual budget, (b) purpose and (c) staff complement is of each of his Department's (i) advisory bodies, (ii) tribunals and (iii) corporations. [201182]

Kevin Brennan: The following answer outlines the (a) most recent annual budget, (b) purpose and (c) staff complement of the each of the Department's (i) advisory bodies, (ii) corporations and (iii) tribunals.

(i) Advisory Bodies

Independent Advisory Group on Teenage Pregnancy

(a) The annual net budget is £0.4 million.

(b) The Independent Advisory Group on Teenage Pregnancy provides advice to Government and monitors the success of its strategy towards reducing the rate of teenage conceptions, with the specific aim of halving the rate of conceptions among under 18s by 2010, and increasing the participation of teenage parents in education, employment and training to reduce risk of their long-term social exclusion.

(c) The body does not employ any staff.

Teachers' TV board of governors

(a) Net annual budget is £0.2 million.

(b) The Board provides open accountability about the plans and performance of Teachers TV to the channel's audience, stakeholders and to the public. The Board upholds the editorial independence of Teachers TV; ensures that the channel supplier adopts the best practices of a UK public service broadcaster; incentivises the supplier to fulfil the Departments strategic aims; holds the supplier to account for the public funds it receives via an annual performance review; monitors the contractual relationship with the supplier and ensures that Teachers TV develops so that it meets the needs of its audience.

(c) The board currently employs 1.9 Staff FTE.

Children's Plan Expert Group

(a) Net annual budget is £0.1 million.

(b) There are three expert groups (ages 0-7, 8-13, and 14-19) whose remit will be to look at services and policies affecting children, young people and families and to make recommendations to the Secretary of State on how best to deliver his long-term objectives to:

Improve the health and well-being of children and young people

Safeguard the young and vulnerable

Close the gap in educational achievement between those from disadvantaged backgrounds and their peers

'Raise our game' on raising standards

Increase post-16 participation and attainment

Increase the number of children and young people on the path to success

(c) There were five staff employed for three months of the year

Information Standards Board

(a) Net annual budget for £0.01 million.

(b) The Information Standards Board (ISB) for education, skills and children's services in England is the system-wide authority for all information and data standards. Its mission is to facilitate information sharing across the system; agree information standards to aid front line delivery; improve efficiency, reduce costs and minimise bureaucracy. The ISB is designated as an Internal Advisory Committee, but has ministerial authority to make recommendations and approve decisions on behalf of the system.

(c) The board does not employ staff

Talent Taskforce

(a) The net annual budget is £1.84 million.

(b) The Talent and Enterprise Taskforce is based in the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) but reports through to the cross-government Talent and Enterprise Committee, chaired by the Prime Minister underlining his personal commitment to the talent agenda. Central to the role of the Taskforce is promoting the imperative to unlock talent. The projects we undertake should aim to provide vehicles to communicate and bring that narrative alive. There is already a great wealth of constructive activity happening. The Taskforce aim is to recognise and build on that. Though based in Government, the Taskforce is outward facing. Our goal is to engage a wide range of influential networks, organizations and individuals across the educational, business, community and voluntary sectors and to add value.

(c) The taskforce currently employs five Staff FTE.

National Council for Educational Excellence

(a) The net annual budget is £0.03 million.

(b) The National Council for Educational Excellence (NCEE) has a remit to provide advice to the Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families about strategy and measures to achieve world-class education performance for all children and young people from birth to age 19.

The Council is focused on providing advice and mobilising all sectors to provide the support to increase standards. Council members will act as advocates and champions to transform expectations and aspirations for the education system, and to rally the teaching profession, businesses, the third sector, universities and colleges, schools, and parents to raise standards year on year.

(c) The council employs four staff.

Ministerial Taskforce for Home Access to Technology for Children

(a) The taskforce does not have a dedicated budget.

(b) In January 2007 Minister of State Jim Knight announced the setting up of a Home Access taskforce to advise Government of possible solutions for universal home access for all school age children in England. Representatives on the taskforce come from industry, the third sector and teaching profession. Working together in partnership with industry and the third sector is the only way we can hope to deliver and sustain universal access.

(c) The taskforce does not employ any staff.

(ii) Corporations

General Teachers Council of England

(a) Net annual budget of £0.7 million.

(b) The General Teaching Council for England is the independent professional body for teaching in England.

It works for children, through teachers, in the interests of the public. It is committed to making sure young people have the best possible standards of learning and achievement.

It keeps a register of qualified teachers in England and sets out and enforces standards for the teaching profession in the interests of the public.

It provides advice to government and other agencies on important issues that affect the quality of teaching and learning.

It works with teachers to make sure its advice is based on practical experience and reliable research.

It brings together teachers and other partners with an interest in the education service, including parents, governors and employers.

(c) The staff complement is 206.

(iii) Tribunals

Currently, the Department is not responsible for any tribunals.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for his Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200019]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested is not held centrally. Information on individual management units conducting their own opinion polls of either the public or of staff can be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) internal and (b) external reviews his Department is conducting; and if he will make a statement. [201069]

Kevin Brennan: The Department is collating the information requested. When I have had the opportunity to consider this information I shall write to the hon. Member and place a copy of that reply in the House Library.

Departmental Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the principal objectives and targets of each directorate within his Department are; and if he will make a statement. [201057]

Kevin Brennan: There are four main directorates in my Department. Each directorate contributes to departmental strategic objectives (DSOs), to ensure cross-directorate working. Primarily, the Children and Families Directorate contributes to DSOs 1 and 2; the Schools Directorate contributes to DSOs 3 and 4; and the Young People's Directorate contributes to DSOs 5 and 6. Full details of DSOs and their underpinning indicators, which were announced in the 2007 comprehensive spending review, are available on the DCSF website at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/publications/dsoindicators/

Dyslexia

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what representations his Department has received on the proposal that at least one teacher in every school should have the nationally recognised specialist qualification accredited by the British Dyslexia Association for teachers to assess and support dyslexic children; [201804]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the results of the Xtraordinary People No to Failure report on the rate of dyslexia-specific learning difficulties among failing children; and if he will make a statement; [201805]

(3) what provision his Department has made for (a) training dyslexia specialists and (b) specialist dyslexia teaching support within personalised learning plans; [201806]

(4) what provision has been made for specialist dyslexia teaching within the (a) Every Child a Reader, (b) Every Child a Writer and (c) Every Child Counts programme; [201807]

(5) what assessment his Department has made of the efficacy of the reading recovery scheme for dyslexic children. [201808]

Kevin Brennan: We have received a number of representations that at least one teacher in every school should have a specialist dyslexia qualification.

All local authorities and schools must have regard to the special educational needs code of practice which provides advice on their statutory duties to identify, assess and make provision for pupils' special educational needs. Children with dyslexia should have their needs identified and support put in place.

To identify and promote best practice, we are working with dyslexia organisations on the No to Failure project, through which children in trailblazer schools are screened and specialist teaching provided to those identified at risk of dyslexia and other specific learning difficulties. We are supporting this project with just over £1 million funding over three years.

The recently published report from No to Failure says a significant proportion of participating children not achieving expected levels of attainment are at risk of dyslexia or other specific learning difficulties. However, the report does not indicate how many had already been identified with SEN, nor does it evaluate the impact of specialist teaching on children's progression. We are looking forward to seeing the final report later this year, which we understand will contain such an evaluation.

Through No to Failure, we have commissioned Dr. Chris Singleton to summarise published research on the impact of specialist dyslexia teaching. We will consider whether and how we should promote specialist dyslexia teaching as best practice in the light of evidence of its impact.

All schools receive a school development grant which they are able to use to support improvements in any aspect of teaching and learning. This can include professional development for teachers intending to be dyslexia specialists. It is however for individual teachers and their schools to determine training and development needs and how best to address them. This would also hold true for support staff. Local authorities may retain a proportion of this grant, under certain conditions, to provide specific training and development in SEN.

To help those working in schools with identifying and supporting children with dyslexia, last October we launched the Inclusion Development Programme, which is offering professional development in key areas of SEN starting with training on communication difficulties, including dyslexia. The Inclusion Development Programme materials were developed in close consultation with dyslexia organisations.

Our commitment through the Primary and Secondary national strategies is to ensure Quality First teaching for all. The Every Child a Reader and Every Child Counts initiatives are focused on providing additional intervention for the 5 per cent. of children facing the most difficulties with reading and mathematics. They do not provide a specific focus on provision for children with dyslexia. Every Child a Reader is being rolled out to reach 30,000 children a year by 2010-11.

Every Child Counts is currently in a research phase and will be informed by the Williams review of the teaching of mathematics that is due to be published in June this year. The intention is that Every Child Counts will be aimed at children whose attainment in the early stages of mathematics shows they are not making expected progress for their age.

Every Child a Writer is a new programme announced at the end of last year. The intention—as stated in our Children's Plan—is that this will offer support later in primary school than Every Child a Reader and Every Child Counts and reach a greater number of pupils. Further announcements will be made about Every Child a Writer in due course.

Evaluations of the Every Child a Reader pilot—which provides Reading Recovery for children from among those having the most difficulties in learning to read—were published in 2006 and 2007. These are available on www.everychildareader.org.uk.

The evaluation of Every Child a Reader in London in 2005-06 showed that 87 per cent. of children who had received Reading Recovery were considered to have made average to exceptional progress in reading comprehension. However, these evaluations did not include looking at the efficacy of Reading Recovery for children with dyslexia.

The SEN code of practice says that "effective management, school ethos and the learning environment, curricular, pastoral and discipline arrangements can help prevent some special educational needs arising, and minimise others" (paragraph 5:18).

Where whole school arrangements for teaching and learning are not addressing a child's learning difficulties, schools have a statutory duty to do their best to ensure that the necessary provision is made for any pupil who has special educational needs. It follows that if a child with dyslexia is not benefiting from their participation in any or all of the three initiatives, the school must make additional or different arrangements to address the child's special educational needs.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of those in post-16 education were in receipt of the education maintenance allowance in the latest period for which figures are available. [201685]

Jim Knight: In the academic year 2006/07, 46 per cent. of 16-19 year old learners in full time education received education maintenance allowance.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of eligible pupils gained no A* to C graded GCSEs in 2007, broken down by (a) multiple deprivation decile and (b) local authority area. [201669]

Jim Knight: For statistics based on school location the available information can be found in the Statistical First Release 'GCSE and Equivalent Examination Results in England 2006/07' available at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000768/index.shtml.

Within this Statistical First Release:

(a) Table 21 shows the GCSE and equivalent achievement of pupils by the income deprivation affecting children index (IDACI) decile of the school location.

(b) Table 18 shows the GCSE and equivalent achievement of pupils by local authority area.

Information on pupils gaining no A* to C graded GCSEs can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

For statistics based on pupil residence, further information on GCSE and equivalent attainment of pupils by the IDACI decile can be found in the additional tables attached to the Statistical First Release 'National Curriculum Assessment, GCSE and Equivalent Attainment and Post-16 Attainment by Pupil Characteristics, in England 2006/07' available at:

Grammar Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on selection by ability in grammar schools; and if he will make a statement. [201405]

Jim Knight: We do not support selection by high academic ability and do not wish to see it extended. Legislation prevents admission authorities from introducing new selection of this type. Grammar schools already selecting in this way at the beginning of the 1997/98 academic year may continue to do so with decisions on whether individual grammar schools should continue to do so being made at a local level. Mechanisms are in place to allow parents to vote to remove selection at a grammar school.

Higher Education: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils eligible for free school meals went on to higher education upon leaving school in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [192631]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

This information is currently not available.

Mandate Communications

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what payments his Department made to (a) Mandate Communications and (b) AS Biss & Co in each of the last five years; on what dates; for what purpose the payment was made in each case; and what ongoing financial commitment exists. [202301]

Kevin Brennan: Our financial records show that the Department has not made any payments to the companies Mandate Communications or AS Biss in the last five years.

Midwives: Training

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what training in nutrition (a) midwives and (b) health visitors are required to undertake. [200566]

Ann Keen: I have been asked to reply.

Setting standards and curricula for health professional training is the responsibility of the statutory and professional bodies. Nutritional training is a component of the standard training for midwives and health visitors set by the Nursing and Midwifery Council. This can found at www.nmc-uk.org.

Access to training is affected by a number of factors such as the availability of funding, whether staff can be released, the availability of appropriate training interventions, mentors and assessors. It would not be practical for the centre to be prescriptive on this.

Playgrounds: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department plans to allocate to improving playgrounds in each year from 2008-09 to 2011-12; what cost/benefit analysis has been undertaken of this expenditure; and if he will make a statement. [201072]

Kevin Brennan: In response to consistent feedback received from children, young people and their families that there are not enough safe and stimulating places for them to play, we have made the biggest ever investment in play by Government. A total of £235 million over the next three years (2008-09 to 2010-11) will be made available to all local authorities to provide a range of innovative play facilities, accessible to all children. A total of 30 'Pathfinder' authorities will each receive on average £2 million capital and a substantial amount of revenue funding to develop public play areas and deliver 30 adventure playgrounds by 2011. By 2010 all the remaining authorities will each receive on average £1 million capital and a contribution towards their revenue costs to deliver our aim of developing up to 3,500 public play areas by 2011. The development of all sites will be shaped by local children, parents and communities to help meet the clear demand from the public for improved play facilities that our Children's Plan consultations revealed.

To inform a full cost-benefit analysis of the impact of this expenditure, my Department is currently piloting and testing, via the Pathfinder programme, innovative approaches to promoting and supporting the play areas we are developing. Through the evaluation of this programme, we will identify the impact of our capital investment as well as identifying the most cost-effective way of implementing further national roll-outs of adventure playgrounds and play areas beyond 2010-11.

In advance of the publication of "Fair Play: A Consultation on the Play Strategy" my Department completed a provisional value for money calculation expressed as the required reduction in future obesity costs resulting from play to offset the costs of the proposed spending. Other unquantified benefits such as attainment, emotional development and reduction in antisocial behaviour would only add to the attractiveness of our capital investment programme.

Pre-School Education

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the occupancy rate of nursery places provided in children's centres in each local authority; and if he will make a statement. [202138]

Beverley Hughes: Sure Start Children's Centres serving the most disadvantaged communities in England must provide integrated early learning and full day care as part of their core services while centres serving less disadvantaged communities may provide integrated early learning and day care places where local demand is not being met by existing, good quality providers.

The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on the number of places and vacancies in full day care providers based in Sure Start Children's Centres in England. The 2006 survey estimated that there were 37,700 Ofsted registered places and 6,600 vacancies for children in these providers; therefore 82 per cent. of places were occupied.

Data are not available at a local authority level.

Pupils: Bus Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on arrangements for free bus transport to and from schools for pupils aged (a) under nine, (b) nine to 11 and (c) over 11 years (i) in the Isle of Wight, (ii) in Hampshire and (iii) in England. [201986]

Jim Knight: Home to School transport is not arranged around the three age groups quoted in the question. local authorities (LAs) have to make transport arrangements where they consider it 'necessary', to secure a child's attendance at school. Where they consider transport 'necessary', it must be free of charge. LAs have wide discretion in deciding whether transport is necessary, but they must provide free home to school transport for pupils of compulsory school age who are attending their nearest suitable school, provided that the school is beyond the statutory walking distances (two miles for pupils below the age of eight years and three miles for those aged eight years and over).

The Education and Inspections Act 2006 extended entitlement to free school travel for pupils entitled to free school meals or whose parents are in receipt of maximum working tax credit. Since September 2007, primary school pupils aged over eight have been entitled to free travel to their nearest school where this is more than two miles from their home. At secondary age (11 to 16), pupils attending one of their three nearest schools that is between two and six miles from the child's home, and those attending their nearest school preferred on grounds of religion or belief, between two and 15 miles, will be entitled to free transport from September 2008.

Pupils: Hearing Impaired

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the number of school pupils who are (a) hearing impaired and (b) have a special educational needs statement on grounds of hearing impairment. [202074]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the following link

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000732/index.shtml

to Statistical First Release "Special Educational Needs in England: January 2007". Table 9 gives the available information on type of special educational need for pupils with a Statement or at School Action Plus. Copies of this publication have been placed in the House Libraries.

School Improvement and Targets Unit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the annual cost of the School Improvement and Targets Unit was in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201436]

Jim Knight: The outturn running costs for School Improvement Division (formerly School Improvement and Targets Unit) for 2007-08 were £1,968,158.

During the last financial year, the principal responsibilities of staff in this division were:

the publication of national Achievement and Attainment Tables and associated data systems;

the New Relationship with Schools;

all aspects of policy relating to school attainment and progression targets; school interventions and policies relating to schools placed in Ofsted categories of concern; general school improvement policy and strategies; and administrative support.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which non-grammar schools have special dispensation to operate a partial system of selection by ability based on grandfathered rights; and if he will make a statement. [201090]

Jim Knight: Legislation prevents admission authorities from introducing new selection by high academic ability. Schools that selected a proportion of their pupils in this way at the beginning of the 1997-98 school year may continue to do so but they must publish a notice each year to inform parents who may wish to exercise their right to object to the Adjudicator.

We do not formally collect information about which schools select a proportion of their pupils in this way. However the Department is aware of 40 such schools and they are shown in the following table.

Schools: Construction

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have been commissioned outside the Building Schools for the Future programme in each of the last three years; and how many of them were commissioned under the private finance initiative model. [202534]

Jim Knight: The Department does not commission school buildings itself except for academies; such decisions are usually taken by the local authority or school owner.

However, for new academies, traditionally procured by the Department, the following numbers of Funding Agreements were issued in each of the last three years: 15 in 2005-06, 21 in 2006-07, and 17 in 2007-08. A further 14 Funding Agreements were issued for academies to be delivered through the National Framework.

Since 2005-06, the Department's private finance initiative resources have been allocated to Building Schools for the Future.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many new schools went over their construction budget in each of the last five years. [202548]

Jim Knight: The Department does not usually commission schools itself, except for academies; such information would, therefore, be held locally.

In the case of the academies programme, 16 of the 42 completed projects have exceeded their agreed construction budget. In a further six projects, final accounts have not yet been received.

To date, 13 schools have been built as part of Building Schools for the Future and none of these received additional funding from central Government over and above the budgetary allocation agreed with the local authority for its group of schools.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what public spending on schools in England (a) was in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08 and (b) is planned to be in (A) 2008-09, (B) 2009-10 and (C) 2010-11, in real terms using 2006-07 prices; and if he will make a statement. [201099]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not yet available. The Department is currently updating this information for its 2008 departmental annual report due to be published in May. I shall write to the hon. Member as soon as the information is available and place a copy of my response in the House Library.

Secondary Education: Assessments

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many eligible pupils did not obtain level 4 in a combination of reading, writing and mathematics tests at Key Stage 2 in 2007, broken down by local authority area. [201682]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Specialised Diplomas: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his latest estimate is of the cost to his Department of delivering the new diplomas in each year from 2008-09 to 2015-16; and if he will make a statement. [200989]

Jim Knight: We have invested £45 million in 2007-08 to training the workforce and supporting consortia across the country to deliver diplomas.

In addition, in 2008-09 schools will receive approximately £1,000 per student doing diplomas in KS4, to reflect the additional costs of delivering these courses.

Schools and colleges delivering diplomas post-16 will receive funding for their diploma students at rates set by the LSC funding methodology for 2008/09. The funding rates for diplomas paid to schools and colleges will vary by line and level of learning, the additional learning options chosen by the student, factors particular to the school or college in which it is delivered including disadvantage, area costs and success rates, and funding for additional support learners may need.

An illustrative example of funding that a school sixth form would receive over two years for a student on a diploma, A level and Edexcel national diploma vocational programme respectively, and excluding institutional and individual learner factors, is shown as follows:

	Funding (£)
Advanced Diploma	8,914
A levels (3 AS, 3 A2)	7,383
Edexcel National Diploma	8,561

The full details of LSC funding rates are published at http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/funding-policy/strategic-overview.

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers had the equivalent of at least three A levels at grade B or better upon entering the profession in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201130]

Jim Knight: Data from the TDA's Performance Profiles database show that a minimum of 26 per cent. of all undergraduate mainstream primary Initial Teacher Training (ITT) trainees who gained Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) in 2005/06 and entered a teaching post in a maintained schools within six months of gaining QTS had the equivalent of at least three A-levels at grade B or better upon entering their ITT course. The corresponding figure for secondary is 14 per cent.

It is optional for HEIs to complete the tariff score for undergraduate trainees on the Performance Profiles database and approximately 30 per cent. of primary trainees and 42 per cent. of secondary trainees had unknown tariffs.

Undergraduate trainees represent a small proportion of trainees entering teaching posts, only 37 per cent. for primary and 5 per cent. for secondary, the remainder were postgraduate trainees, whose A-level scores are not collected.

The A-level scores for Employment Based ITT trainees are also not collected centrally.

Teachers: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanisms are in place for the removal of teachers deemed to be incompetent in the classroom; and what role the General Teaching Council has in such procedures. [202545]

Jim Knight: We have introduced a revised performance management regime to support the on-going professional development of teachers. Classroom observations are a part of this process, and where significant weaknesses have been identified which performance management has been unable to address, teachers become subject to a school's capability procedures. The point at which this happens is determined locally.

The School Staffing (England) Regulations 2003 require governing bodies to establish procedures for the regulation of the conduct and discipline of staff and for dealing with lack of capability on the part of staff and set out the processes governing bodies, in their role as employers, should follow in relation to the dismissal of staff.

Where an employer dismisses a teacher on grounds of competency, they are required to notify the GTCE so the GTCE can consider—following investigation by them—action to remove the teacher from their register—which would effectively bar them from teaching in maintained schools. They should also notify the GTCE of instances where a teacher has resigned in circumstances where they would have been dismissed for that reason or consideration would have been given to their dismissal had they remained in post.

Teachers: Television

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what payments the Teachers' TV Board of Governors has made to (a) Hanover Communications and (b) Open Road in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202300]

Kevin Brennan: The Teachers TV Board is in the process of making one payment of £934.13 (inclusive of VAT) to Hanover Communications for handling media around the publication of the board's 2007 annual report. No other payments have been made to Hanover Communications in the last five years. The Teachers TV Board has not made any payments to Open Road Communications.

Teachers: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers aged under 60 years left the profession in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [192898]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the number of qualified teachers who are aged under 60 recorded as being out of service in March 2006, whose last recorded service was in the local authority maintained sector in Yorkshire and Humberside Government office region and England, broken down by the year that they left. The figures exclude teachers that have retired. It is unknown whether they have left service permanently.

The total provided is different to that provided to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 20 March, Official Report, column 1433W, because the series commences from 1996 not 1997 and excludes the first three months of 2006.

The information provided is from the Database of Teacher Records which is maintained on behalf of the Department for pension administration purposes.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) teaching assistants there were in each local authority area in Yorkshire and the Humber in each of the last five years, broken down by (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools; and if he will make a statement. [201895]

Teaching Methods

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of lessons in each school year were set in the latest period for which figures are available.[1] [202073]

Jim Knight: Ofsted collects data on the use of streaming and setting in lessons observed during inspections, the latest period for which their data indicate the proportion of lessons in each school year which are set by ability is 2002/03.

Lessons set as observed by Ofsted, 2002/03

	Percentage
Year 7	28
Year 8	38
Year 9	43
Key Stage 3	36
Year 10	37
Year 11	40
Key Stage 4	39
Overall Secondary	38

Until 2002/03, Ofsted recorded lessons observed during inspections as being set, streamed, mixed ability or otherwise organised. For clarity, 'setting' is the term used to describe the organisation of pupils in classes on the basis of their prior attainment in the particular subject being taught. The term 'banding', which is very similar to streaming, is used when the decision as to which pupils are included or not in a class is based on the prior attainment in a range of subjects.

From 2003/04 the distinction between streaming and setting was removed and Ofsted now record data on whether classes they observe are mixed ability or set/streamed. They no longer record data on setting alone. It is therefore not possible to provide data on the proportion of lessons which are set for the period from 2003/04 onwards.

Young Offenders: Police Custody

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children aged (a) 13, (b) 14, (c) 15, (d) 16, (e) 17 and (f) under 18 years have been held in police cells under Operation Safeguard. [201862]

Mr. Straw: I have been asked to reply.

Since October 2006 the Government have used significant numbers of police cells provided through Operation Safeguard to help manage pressure in the prison population. Juveniles are not held under Operation Safeguard itself although over this period our records indicate that 36 juveniles were held overnight on an ad hoc basis. It is not possible to break this figure down by age without incurring disproportionate cost. The Government's policy is that juveniles should be held overnight in police cells only in the most exceptional circumstances. It does not happen routinely.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Rented Housing: Private Sector

Ms Keeble: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many households were living in private rented accommodation during each of the last three years. [201983]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

Estimates of the number of households in England living in private rented accommodation in each of the last three years are:

	Number of households in private rented accommodation in England
2005	2,385,000
2006	2,488,000
2007	2,595,000

These figures were published by the Department in December 2007 in 'Survey of English Housing Preliminary Results: 2006-07'.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Water Charges: Churches

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) for what reasons exemptions and reliefs on water charges for churches and charities will be removed in 2010; and if he will make a statement; [201152]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on churches and charities of the removal of exemptions and reliefs on water charges in 2010; and if he will make a statement; [201153]

(3) what representations he has received on the removal of exemptions and reliefs on water charges for churches and charities in 2010; [201154]

(4) what discussions he has had with (a) Ofwat, (b) the Consumer Council for Water and (c) other water industry representatives on the removal of exemptions and reliefs on water charges for churches and charities in 2010; [201155]

(5) if he will review the decision to remove exemptions and reliefs on water charges for churches and charities in 2010. [201156]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

In 2000 the Secretary of State issued guidance on matters to be taken into account by Ofwat, the industry's economic regulator, in agreeing companies' charges schemes, including charging non-household users that are not businesses. These include places of worship, community facilities, charities and voluntary bodies. The guidance stated that those making similar demands on a service should be charged on the same basis. It also made clear that where premises impose customer-related costs in line with or lower than those of typical households, they should be able to benefit from tariffs which reflect their small demand on the water system.

Churches were traditionally zero rated under the rateable value system of charging, meaning that they did not have to pay surface water drainage (SWD) charges. However the replacement of rateable value charges for SWD with a site area based charge means that churches will be required to pay surface water drainage charges and will no longer benefit from the cross subsidy that resulted from the rateable value system.

Ofwat reviewed companies' approaches to charging for SWD in 2003. In RD35/03, 'Surface water drainage—charging policy' (September 2003), Ofwat concluded that charging according to site area was the best method of charging for SWD. Ofwat recommended that water companies consider introducing site area-based charging for SWD—particularly for non-household customers where the process is simpler to implement. However Ofwat also noted that, given that set up and administration costs of introducing this method were considerable, and would vary depending on customer base, it was for individual companies to decide if the benefits of implementing site area SWD charging outweighed the costs.

For sewerage customers served by United Utilities the site area based SWD charge was introduced in 2007-08 for new and substantially altered properties. In 2008-09 it is being introduced for all non-household properties, including churches. The move to site area charging will be phased in over three years to reduce the year-on-year impact on those customers who will see an increase in their charges.

The most cost reflective way of charging non-household customers for SWD is by reference to the customer's site area, because the larger the site area, the more surface water will drain from it. SWD charges based on site area are only payable for areas which drain (directly or indirectly) into public sewers. Chargeable areas will be adjusted to take account of large grassy or gravelled areas, such as church yards or burial grounds that do not drain into a public sewer. Surface area based charging offers strong incentives to customers to reduce surface water drainage costs they impose on companies, for example by installing soakaways. Charges can therefore be mitigated by customers by installing such devices. The approach aligns with the Government's water strategy for fair, affordable and cost reflective water and sewerage charges which incentivise environmentally responsible behaviour.

Companies are obliged under their licences to ensure that charges are neither unduly preferential or unduly discriminatory between groups of customers. Ofwat therefore considers that churches and other places of worship should be treated no differently to other non-household customers.

Ofwat has held discussions with the Consumer Council for Water which supports the proposal for all companies to charge surface water drainage by site area.

SCOTLAND

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether his Department provides (a) tax-free benefits and (b) other allowances for its staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197011]

David Cairns: All staff in the Scotland Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice and are able to access any initiatives operated by their parent Departments.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality: Legislation

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if she will publish the responses to the consultation on the Government's proposals for a single equality bill. [196983]

Barbara Follett: The Government intends to publish the responses from organisations to its consultation on proposals for a Single Equality Bill at the same time as it publishes its own full and formal response to this consultation.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199198]

Mr. Woodward: There are no mechanisms in place to monitor the extent to which the Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically.

Firearms: Licensing

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people with convictions for scheduled offences were granted a licence to carry a personal firearm in Northern Ireland in each year since 1998. [202257]

Paul Goggins: The chief constable has advised me that the information requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Mobile Phones Recycling

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if the Commission will make it their policy to introduce mobile phone recycling on the Parliamentary Estate. [201259]

Nick Harvey: Arrangements for the secure disposal of mobile phones provided for use by House staff are in place. This does not currently cover their recycling. The House authorities will review these arrangements with particular reference to the recent waste electrical and electronic equipment (WEEE) regulations and the responsibilities that suppliers now have. No arrangements are currently in place for phones belonging to Members and their staff but the aforementioned regulations will apply.

The House already seeks to maximise re-use and recycling generally as a commitment in its waste policy. There are already facilities available for recycling batteries, including those used in mobile phones.

WALES

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department provides (a) tax-free benefits and (b) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [198769]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Wales Office staff are able to apply for an advance of salary (which is then deducted at source and is therefore tax-efficient) to purchase bicycles and safety equipment.

The Wales Office does not have any non-departmental public bodies.

TRANSPORT

Biofuels

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what account she took of the First Report of the Environmental Audit Committee, Session 2007-08, on Are Biofuels Sustainable?, HC 76-I before requesting the Renewable Fuels Agency to carry out a review of biofuels. [201270]

Jim Fitzpatrick: New evidence has emerged in recent months on the net greenhouse gas benefits of certain types of biofuels. There is currently little consensus on much of this new evidence and there are widely diverging views on the sustainability of current and future biofuels targets. The Environmental Audit Committee's report is an example of this evidence and the report both contributed to the Secretary of State's decision to call the review and forms part of the evidence that will be used in the production of the review. The Government's response to the Environmental Audit Committee's report has been submitted to that Committee.

Bird and Bird

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what contracts were awarded by her Department to Bird and Bird Solicitors in each year since 2005; and what the (a) value and (b) duration of each such contract was. [201638]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following contracts have been awarded by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency to Bird and Bird Solicitors since 2005:

Contract description	Contract start date/award date	Contract end date	Contract value (exc. VAT)
MOT computerisation contract management	17 March 2005	31 March 2007	337,747.93
Legal services for Test Lane Refreshment Programme	13 July 2005	31 August 2008	99,887.25
Ad-hoc strategic legal advice	14 June 2006	19 March 2008	7,813.84
Legal Review of Transport for London Low Emission Zone Contract	20 January 2007	19 July 2007	31,112.95
Commercial Data Exploitation Advice	1 February 2007	31July 2007	33,491.70

In addition work has been placed with Bird and Bird Solicitors by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) via OGC Buying Solution's legal services framework. This was to represent DVLA in relation to a dispute on the procurement of a Storage Area Network and associated equipment. The value of this work was:

2005-06	34,645
2006-07	21,478
2007-08	1,122

The central Department placed a one off order with Bird and Bird Solicitors in January 2006 for professional charges associated with a DVO e-Learning system. The value of this work was £1,969.

Bus Services

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with local authorities on maintaining and extending the provision of free or subsidised bus shelters funded by advertising companies; and what assessment her Department has made of the role of well-positioned, well-maintained bus shelters in encouraging passengers to make use of local bus services. [201276]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There have been no discussions between this Department and local authorities on the specific issue of maintaining and extending the provision of free or subsidised bus shelters funded by advertising companies.

However, waiting for a bus, train or tram is accepted as part of a public transport journey so infrastructure provision at the point of boarding or alighting will affect user experience and demand. The physical waiting environment includes shelters, vehicle access, information provision, and the safety and security of the location.

The Department has commissioned a detailed research project into a wide spectrum of factors that influence bus patronage, with particular reference to 'softer' factors, including the quality of the waiting environment, and the perceived safety of the walk to that point.

The results are due by the end of this year, and will be used to inform operators and local authorities about the most effective packages of measures to increase patronage, including what value passengers place on the waiting or interchange environment.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which local authorities in England have withdrawn concessionary fare schemes offering reduced fares for people with disabilities travelling before 9.30 am in the last 12 months. [202018]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government are responsible for the statutory minimum concession that all travel concession authorities (TCAs) are required to provide. From 1 April this year, the statutory entitlement to concessionary travel is improved to give residents of England aged 60 or over and eligible disabled people free off-peak bus travel in any part of England. Off-peak is defined in legislation as 9.30 am to 11 pm Monday to Friday and at all times at weekends and bank holidays. TCAs have discretion to enhance its statutory minimum at their own expense. They can give residents concessionary travel beyond the statutory times or extend eligibility to other groups of people. Any decision to change these discretionary elements is a matter for individual TCAs and, as such, no record is kept centrally of such changes.

As part of our monitoring of concessionary travel, the Department intends to carry out a survey of TCAs during summer 2008 to establish the range of local enhancements available at end of December 2007 and at end of June 2008. This will report in the autumn and provide an indication of the discretionary concessions that were withdrawn between these two dates and since the previous survey carried out in the summer of 2006.

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what payments the Civil Aviation Authority made to (a) Waterfront Public Affairs, (b) Mandate Communications and (c) AS Biss in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202273]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Civil Aviation Authority has advised that payments over the last five years to these companies were as follows:

Total	483,720.19

AS Biss/Mandate

2004-05	86,367.45
2005-06	179,549.90
2006-07	169,883.59
Total	704,054.06

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what payments the Northern Lighthouse Board made to Grayling Political Strategy in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202275]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Grayling Political Strategy has a contract with the Northern Lighthouse Board to provide the following services to highlight issues directly or indirectly affecting the board.

1. provide full information, intelligence and advisory service covering the proceedings of (i) the Scottish Parliament, its Committees, the Scottish Government and the political parties in Scotland; (ii) the UK Parliament, its Committees, the UK Government and the political parties in UK; and (iii) the European Parliament, its Committees, and the European Commission;

2. maintain a watching brief on issues directly or indirectly affecting the board in the Isle of Man by monitoring activities at Tynwald and the Manx Government; and

3. monitor all UK National and Scottish and Manx newspapers and the Edinburgh Gazette.

The contract payment arrangement is for a flat rate monthly fee. Total payments over the last five years, including payments to Strategy in Scotland who were taken over by Grayling Political Strategy, were as follows:

2003-04	18,000
2004-05	20,017.50
2005-06	20,538.75
2006-07	32,180
2007-08	50,398

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether (a) her Department and (b) her Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if she will make a statement. [197626]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport does offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees.

This scheme also enables other employers to purchase cycles and loan them to employees to support them in taking greener journeys to work.

The Department also offers interest free loans up to £1,000 for the purchase of bikes to cycle to work, which is akin to the interest free loans for train season tickets. In addition, a commuter centre is available to staff to encourage greener commuting. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee.

The Civil Aviation Authority, which is a public corporation sponsored by the Department also offers the scheme to its employees. However, none of the Department's non-departmental public bodies offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees. It is for each organisation to determine its own policy with regard to offering the scheme and encouraging greener travel.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what her Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201749]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport engaged the Carbon Trust to conduct a Carbon Management Programme on the high impact areas of our estate. This was published in December 2007 and identifies a wide range of measures that can be undertaken to reduce energy consumption. The department is currently developing programmes to implement these recommendations in addition to a number of local initiatives that are already in place.

The most recent period for which we have energy costs is 2006-07. Expenditure on energy was £4,866,886 during this period and for the preceding 12 months was £5,321,606.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by her in the last six months. [201763]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The figures requested are set out in the table as follows.

	Ordinary Written		Named-day
	Total questions due for answer	Percentage answered within agreed deadlines	Total questions due for answer	Percentage answered on due date
October	245	85	102	88
November	411	56	74	66
December	202	70	53	52
January	316	67	163	54
February	350	56	88	62
March	326	66	96	48

A breakdown of these figures by each hon. Member is not available.

Driving Tests

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many candidates were examined at each test centre in England in the latest year for which figures are available. [202362]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 29 April 2008]: The table has been placed in the Libraries of the House which shows the number of practical tests of all types taken at each DSA test centre in England from 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008. These figures identify the number of tests taken, not the number of candidates. This will include individuals who have taken the test on multiple occasions at the same or different test centres.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the likely number of candidates presenting at each test centre in England in each year to 2012. [202363]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 29 April 2008]: The Driving Standards Agency (DSA) forecasts demand for tests nationally for three years ahead. These figures are published in the agency's business plan for 2008-09. DSA does not make forecasts of test demand for each driving test centre. Candidates are free to choose at which centre they prefer to take their test.

Driving: Standards

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her definition is of most customers as used in the Driving Standards Agency Code of Practice on Driving Consultations, Annex B, paragraph 3. [202360]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 29 April 2008]: Most customers is defined as more than 50 per cent. of candidates wanting access to a test centre in order to take their driving test.

Driving: Working Hours

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what exemptions from the road transport working time directive are to be allowed. [201387]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The European Regulation on drivers' hours (Regulation (EC) No 561/2006) provides a number of automatic exemptions and national derogations. The national derogations granted in Great Britain (GB) are set out in the Community Drivers' Hours and Recording Equipment Regulations 2007 (SI 2007/1819).

European Directive 2002/15/EC on the working time of mobile workers (drivers, crew and other travelling staff) operating on vehicles subject to the European Regulation on drivers' hours was implemented in GB by the Road Transport (Working Time) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005/639). The Regulations do not apply to mobile workers who only occasionally work in-scope of the rules and self-employed drivers (as defined in the Regulations).

Copies of the legislation are available in the Libraries of the House.

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which her Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199194]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We monitor items such as Freedom of Information requests; parliamentary questions; letters from MPs and the public addressed to Ministers; and emails received in email addresses on the Department's website. We do not however carry out systematic quantitative monitoring of general electronic communication from individual email addresses in the department.

Our general aim in correspondence and publishing, both internally and externally, is to reduce paper consumption and to communicate electronically whenever it is both possible and appropriate. The volume of items we publish electronically on the Department's website has grown significantly in recent years.

Motorcycles: Training

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to ensure that riders of motorcycles with an engine capacity of under 50cc have undertaken compulsory basic training. [200915]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A motorcycle with an engine capacity of under 50cc is classed as a moped. Learner moped riders must undertake a compulsory basic training course before they can ride on the road. This is a legal requirement specified in the Road Traffic Acts. Once a course has been successfully completed, a rider is issued with a certificate. The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency will update the rear of the persons photocard licence on successful completion of the course to show code 122. Any persons riding on the road who ignore this training requirement are committing an offence and are liable to prosecution.

Public Transport: Concessions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the effect of the introduction of the nationwide concessionary fare scheme on (a) the level of eligibility set by local authorities and (b) the level of access by disabled people. [202493]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The criteria for eligibility for the statutory minimum concession are set out in statute supported by revised guidance recently issued by the Department.

The Transport Act 2000 (or for those resident in London, the Greater London Authority Act 1999) makes provision for concessionary travel to a wide range of disabled people. Categories of disability were drawn up following representation from local government and support from the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee. The people eligible are as follows:

any person who:

is blind or partially sighted;

is profoundly or severely deaf;

is without speech;

has a disability, or has suffered an injury, which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on his/her ability to walk;

does not have arms or has long-term loss of the use of both arms;

has a learning disability, that is, a state of arrested or incomplete development of mind which includes significant impairment of intelligence and social functioning or;

would, if he/she applied for a grant of a licence to drive a motor vehicle under Part III of the Road Traffic Act 1988, have his/her application refused pursuant to section 92 of the Act (physical fitness) otherwise than on the ground of persistent misuse of drugs or alcohol.

Travel concession authorities (TCAs) continue to be responsible for administering concessionary travel schemes for their residents, assessing eligibility and issuing passes. They remain able to offer travel concessions on a more generous basis than that specified as the statutory minimum.

As the England-wide statutory minimum was introduced on 1 April it is too soon to assess the effect of its introduction, but as part of our monitoring of concessionary travel the Department intends to carry out a survey of TCAs during summer 2008. This may include details of which authorities choose to offer more generous concessions and is due to report in the autumn.

Roads: Cameras

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the maximum penalty which can be imposed for vandalism of a road safety camera is. [201554]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

Vandalism to safety cameras constitutes criminal damage, the maximum penalty for which is 10 years' imprisonment.

Roads: Satellite Navigation Systems

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will consult the producers of satellite navigation systems to discuss the display of routes unsuitable for motorised vehicles. [202568]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Responsibility for recommending routes via satellite navigation systems lies with system providers. However, the Department for Transport is supporting a Network Management Board sub-group that aims to bring together a wide range of stakeholders to consider how best to address the issue of inappropriate routeing. The Department has also conducted initial public consultation as part of a review of route guidance system issues.

Rolling Stock: Thameslink

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the new carriages for Thameslink announced on 9th April 2008 are in addition to the new carriages announced in July in the White Paper, Delivering a Sustainable Railway. [202209]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Some of the new vehicles for Thameslink are a component of the 1,300 new vehicles announced in July 2007 in the White Paper 'Delivering a Sustainable Railway' which committed a high level output statement (HLOS) for the railways. However, Thameslink and the HLOS have overlapping timescales. The HLOS vehicles are required to be delivered by March 2014. The final complete fleet of new Thameslink vehicles are required to be in service by December 2015.

By December 2015, the full 1,100 vehicles will be in use on Thameslink routes. This represents a net increase in the number of vehicles on the network, over and above HLOS commitments. The precise number of net, additional vehicles resulting from the Thameslink programme will depend on the contracted delivery profile of the new Thameslink vehicles.

Taylor Nelson Sofres

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the value of contracts awarded to Taylor Nelson Sofres by her Department was in each year since 1997. [201661]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport was formed in May 2002. Since this date the Department has not awarded any contracts to Taylor Nelson Sofres.

Traffic Management Act 2004

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what considerations underlay the decisions to introduce permits under the Traffic Management Act 2004; what baseline data she plans to collect in respect of these permits; and whether she plans to review the operation of these permits. [201262]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government wanted to provide local authorities with additional tools for managing works on their road network and minimising unnecessary disruption to road users. Permit schemes can accomplish this by enabling traffic managers to positively control all works activities carried out on their network by both utility companies and highway authorities, in the interests of road users.

The Department is committed to reviewing permit schemes and we will do this after the first full year of scheme operation. This review will provide evidence to determine whether permit schemes are delivering the expected benefits and whether permit fee levels are appropriate.

The data required to establish the baseline in respect to permit schemes will be taken from the noticing information exchanged between highway authorities and statutory undertakers, together with additional information recorded on highway authorities' local registers.

Transport: Exhaust Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what specific matters her Department's Environment Directorate is examining in pursuance of their sub-objective to tackle the climate change impacts of transport through putting a price on carbon. [201274]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The functions of the Environment and International Directorate of the Department for Transport include the management of the Department's programme on climate change and the delivery of certain, but not all, individual policy elements of that programme. Some specific matters which bear upon the price of carbon in relation to transport are:

fiscal measures such as fuel duty, vehicle excise duty, and company car tax (taxation policy is a matter for the Chancellor); mandatory European targets for new car CO_2 emissions, the Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation, European biofuel regulations; inclusion of transport in emissions trading schemes at both global and regional levels e.g. through the International Maritime Organisation, the International Civil Aviation Organisation, the European Union; taking account of the shadow price of carbon in transport appraisal and decision making.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax: Students

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 28 March 2006, Official Report, columns 920-21W, on council tax, whether she (a) has made and (b) plans to make changes to the operation of student council tax exemption for grant calculation purposes. [202516]

John Healey: I announced the 2008-09 and provisional 2009-10 and 2010-11 settlements on the 24 January 2008. The taxbase projections used in the calculation of these settlements reflect a change to use the average of student council tax exemption numbers from counts as at 31 May 2007 and 8 October 2007, rather than use a count solely as at 8 October 2007. The full calculation is shown in the Local Government Finance Report (England) 2008-09 (HC262) approved by the House on 4 February 2008.

Councillors: Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what records her Department holds of the local authorities which have introduced pensions for councillors. [202602]

John Healey: Central Government does not collect this information.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) her Department and (b) her Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if she will make a statement. [197627]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not currently offer a Cycle to Work scheme to its employees. Nor does it offer any other tax-free benefits in kind to encourage green commuting. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee.

Information on whether any of the Department's non-departmental public bodies operate a Cycle to Work scheme is not held centrally.

Digital Broadcasting: Television

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the status is of the DigiTV Project originally sponsored by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. [202619]

John Healey: The DigiTV Project began in 2002 as part of the then ODPM's Local eGovernment Programme. Although this programme and the Department's involvement ended in April 2006, DigiTV continues under the ownership of Kirklees council. It is currently being used to deliver local services via digital television and mobile phones to citizens in 74 local authority areas.

Electronic Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much she has allocated to the London Connects e-Government regional partnerships since inception. [202635]

John Healey: From 2002-06, the London Connects regional partnership received £1,510,000 in Local e-Government Programme capital funding.

Energy Performance Certificates: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Valuation Office Agency has to use data from energy performance certificates on non-domestic dwellings to inform non-domestic rates valuations. [202590]

John Healey: None.

Geographical Information Systems

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of the original datasets used to calculate the geographical barriers sub-domain in the English Indices of Deprivation 2000, including data for each electoral ward of (a) road distance to a general practitioner surgery, (b) road distance to a general store or supermarket, (c) road distance to a primary school and (d) road distance to a post office or sub post office. [202462]

John Healey: This Department does not hold the underlying data that were used in the construction of the English Indices of Deprivation 2000.

Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average dwelling size of new homes was (a) in the latest period for which figures are available and (b) in each previous year for which figures are available; and whether such figures are broken down by (i) social and (ii) private sector dwellings. [194413]

Mr. Iain Wright: We do not have information on dwelling size but do have data on numbers of bedrooms. The following table shows the proportions of new build completions in England by number of bedrooms for private dwellings and registered social landlord dwellings. The information is presented as proportions not absolute numbers because number of bedrooms has been collected centrally for only about half of the new build activity since 2001-02.

Housing: Disabled

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much Enfield Borough Council spent on improving homes for disabled people in each of the last three years. [202858]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 2 April 2008, Official Report, columns 928-29W.

Housing: Mortgages

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent meetings she has had with the Local Government Association to discuss the potential effects of mortgage foreclosures on local housing demand. [201412]

Caroline Flint: I have had no such meetings with the Local Government Association but I have asked discussions to be held at official level with regard to the potential effects of mortgage foreclosures on local housing demand.

Licensed Premises: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, columns 509-10W, on valuation: licensed premises, if she will place an updated copy of Volume 5 of the Rating Manual in the Library. [202478]

John Healey: Work on updating The Rating Manual section on public houses, licensed restaurants and wine bars has not yet been completed. When the work is complete it will be published on the Valuation Office Agency's website to replace the existing section.

Local Authorities: Pay

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what pay scales for chief executives of local authorities are rated by the Audit Commission as poor; [202687]

(2) what pay scales for chief executives of local authorities are judged by the Audit Commission to be fair. [202697]

John Healey: It is a matter for the individual councils to determine the pay for their chief executives.

Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what provisions of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 have yet to be (a) commenced and (b) implemented. [202650]

John Healey: Section 245 of the Act sets out which provisions were commenced at Royal Assent on 30 October 2007, and which were commenced on 30 December 2007. All remaining provisions have or will be commenced by order. There have been five such orders to date which apply to England. The note annexed to the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 (Commencement No 5 and Transitional, Saving and Transitory Provision) Order 2008 (S.I. No. 2008/917) sets out the provisions which have so far been commenced. The planned timetable for implementing relevant policies is set out in the latest version of the White Paper implementation plan which was published on 1 November 2007. A further version will be published shortly.

Local Government: Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the long-term solvency of the Local Government Pension Scheme following the March 2007 valuation. [202610]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander) on 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 66-67W.

National Muslim Women's Advisory Group

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what issues have been discussed in her meetings with the National Muslim Women's Advisory Group; and what steps have been taken as a result of these meetings. [201434]

Hazel Blears: The first meeting with the National Muslim Women's Advisory Group was held in November 2007, prior to the launch which was on 31 January 2008. It was an introductory meeting for both the Secretary of State and the advisory group members. This meeting set the context for the group's involvement and identified what key areas and issues the group would be interested to get involved in over the coming year. It was agreed that it was important to ensure that Muslim women received positive media and were engaging with Muslim women from all parts of society. As a result Communities and Local Government has organised media training and will be offering the group leadership training in May 2008.

The second meeting was held in March 2008. This meeting provided the Secretary of State with an update of the challenges and issues faced by the group in their regions. The group also agreed the terms of reference and an operating structure that they would work within. The group identified the priority areas they wanted to work on and are in the process of working up an action plan for 2008-09.

In order for the group to produce a robust and challenging action plan, a facilitated away day has been organised in May 2008. The action plan will set out key objectives that the group will aim to achieve in their first year, details of which will be released in May 2008.

Non-Domestic Rates: Appeals

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) Government departments and (b) executive agencies have made a business rates challenge or appeal to the (i) Valuation Office Agency and (ii) Valuation Tribunal Service in the last 12 months. [202552]

John Healey: Valuation officers and valuation tribunals do not specifically identify proposals or appeals as coming from Government Departments or executive agencies but simply record the name of the person or body making the proposal/appeal. The information requested cannot, therefore, be provided without disproportionate cost.

Non-Domestic Rates: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for work on the 2010 business rates revaluation in England and Wales. [202597]

John Healey: The Antecedent Valuation Date of 1 April 2008 has already been set by regulation and the Valuation Office Agency has started work on assessing new rateable values. Draft 2010 rateable values will be published in the autumn of 2009, with final valuations being published on 1 April 2010. The timetable for Wales is the responsibility of Welsh Ministers.

Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the purpose and function is of the QE2 Conference Centre's meeting matrix database. [203047]

Mr. Dhanda: The Queen Elizabeth II conference centre (QEIICC) is one of London's leading venues for professional meetings and events. The QEIICC is continuously looking to offer its clients additional means of support and flexibility to organise meetings as efficiently as possible. Meeting Matrix provides both the event planner and the conference centre with invaluable tools that create simple and accurate diagrams of the conference rooms customised to clients' requirements.

With the addition of the Meeting Matrix space rendering package, a meeting planner will also be able to view their selected conference spaces in 3D. This facility will enable the QEIICC's commercial team to more easily convert inquiries into confirmed bookings.

Regional Planning and Development: Greenbelt

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local planning authorities the Government Office for the South East has instructed to review their green belt boundaries as part of their local development framework. [202596]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government Office for the South East (GOSE) has not instructed any local planning authorities to review their Green Belt boundaries as part of their local development framework. The Government's policy on green belts is set out in planning policy guidance note 2 (PPG2): Green Belts. PPG2 advises that up-to-date approved boundaries in development plans are essential, to provide certainty as to where green belt policies do and do not apply and to enable the proper consideration of future development options. When drawing green belt boundaries in development plans local planning authorities should take account of the need to promote sustainable patterns of development.

Social Rented Housing: Disabled

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what means of redress are available to social housing tenants who have parents, partners or children with disabilities whose needs are not being accommodated by their social landlord. [202502]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Disability Discrimination Act 2005 places a duty on all public authorities, when carrying out their functions, to have due regard to the need to promote disability equality. They have to make reasonable adjustments for disabled people.

Social housing tenants who live with disabled relatives, and are living in a property which does not meet their needs can apply for a transfer or request that their current home be adapted to meet their needs. Under the statutory allocations framework, housing authorities must give 'reasonable preference' to existing tenants who need to move on medical or welfare grounds. Local authorities are responsible for arranging the provision of adaptation works or additional facilities. Disabled social tenants can apply for the disabled facilities grant (DFG), a mandatory entitlement across all tenures, to help fund the provision of adaptations or additional facilities. Local authorities have the discretion to decide whether to means test the DFG for their tenants or to make an increased payment for the adaptation.

Where the local authority decides that the tenant does not have any priority under their allocations scheme for a transfer, the tenant has the right to request a review of that decision. Secure tenants should refer any complaint to the local government ombudsman, and housing association tenants to the housing ombudsman service. In addition, they can contact their local councillor about their concerns.

Standards Board for England: Complaints

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 14 March 2008, Official Report, column 705W, on Standards Board for England: complaints, how many complaints were made to the Standards Board in 2007-08; and how many were upheld (a) in whole or (b) in part. [199285]

Mr. Dhanda: In total, 3,547 complaints were received by the Standards Board for England in 2007-08. Of these, 524 were referred for investigation after initial assessment by the Standards Board for England. Of these 524, 285 were sent to local authority monitoring officers for them to investigate, 223 were dealt with by the Standards Board's ethical standards officer. The remaining 16 cases have yet to be allocated.

Of the 223 cases, the ethical standards officers' investigations found that in 200 cases the complaint was unfounded or that no action was required. 10 were found to be sufficiently serious to be referred to the Adjudication Panel for determination. Of these 10, in one case there was found to be no breach, two cases resulted in a suspension for up to six months and the remaining seven cases resulted in disqualifications for periods between six months and five years.

The remaining 15 cases were referred to the monitoring officer of the relevant local authority.

Information on matters referred to councils, including cases referred for investigation, is not held centrally.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's file (a) CPO 2/25 Lord Braine of Wheatley's Partial Birth Abortion (Prohibition) Bill and (b) CPO 2/29 David Amess's Abortion (Amendment) Bill; and if he will make a statement. [201964]

Dawn Primarolo: To release the information contained in these files would entail manually checking and redacting each of the files which could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

Bird and Bird

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contracts were awarded by his Department to Bird and Bird Solicitors in each year since 2005; and what the (a) value and (b) duration of each such contract was. [201641]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on contracts in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

Blood

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many units of blood were collected by the National Blood Service in England and Wales in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08, broken down by local authority area. [200636]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table gives the number of units of blood collected in England and north Wales.

	Units of blood collected[1] (million)
2003-04	2,296
2004-05	2,155
2005-06	2,039
2006-07	1,971
2007-08	1,927

[1] These figures are rounded to the nearest 10,000.

The National Blood Service is unable to provide a breakdown by local authority area.

These figures include certain categories of specialist donation, such as neo-natal, rare blood sub-types and mobile component donation.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the blood collection level of each geographical area in England and Wales was assessed to be by the review of the National Blood Service Strategy, broken down by (i) percentage of donors in the population in each area and (ii) number of times donors give blood in a given period. [201248]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Blood Service (NBS) has provided the information shown in the following table.

Region[1]	Donor penetration in population (percentage)	Average frequency of donation[2]
Anglia	4.4	1.50
London	3.6	1.15
North and Yorkshire	4.7	1.36
North-west	3.6	1.25
South	4.7	1.36
South-east	4.0	1.37
South-west	5.6	1.25
Trent	4.7	1.41
West midlands	3.6	1.62

[1] The regions are based on NBS definitions not standard Government regions.
[2] Average number of donations per registered donor per year.

Chlamydia: Screening

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the mathematical modelling referred to on the National Chlamydia Screening Programme's web page on the local delivery plan monitoring line, which indicates that a higher proportion of the 16 to 24-year-old population will need to be screened to make a serious impact and reduce the disease burden. [201334]

Dawn Primarolo: A copy of 'Modelling the effectiveness of chlamydia screening in England' has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Contracts

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contracts were held by (a) YouGov, (b) ICM, (c) Gallup, (d) GfK NOP, (e) Rasmussen, (f) ComRes and (g) Opinion Leader Research with his Department in the financial year 2007-08; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost to the public purse was of each contract. [201423]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on contracts in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

A new system will now be introduced on 1 July 2008 called SHOWA, which will be able to gather such future but not retrospective information for the Department.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200711]

Ann Keen: The last published resource accounts for the NHS Pension Scheme are those for the year ending 31 March 2007 when the estimated liabilities were £218 billion. The discount rate changed from a real rate of 2.8 per cent. to a real rate of 1.8 per cent. (5.37 per cent. to 4.6 per cent. including inflation) from 31 March 2007. The demographic assumptions adopted for the assessments are derived from the specific experience of the membership of the scheme to 31 March 2003, and other similar large public service schemes where some aspect of the experience is not readily available.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200712]

Ann Keen: Information from 1996-97 to 2006-07, the latest year that pension scheme accounts for the NHS Pension Scheme (England and Wales) are available, is shown in the following table. Comparable information is not available for the years 1990-91 to 1995-96.

There have been various changes in the method of calculation over the years. These include amending the discount rate in 2005-06 and 2006-07 and updating the assumptions on longevity. Direct year-on-year comparisons are therefore not entirely meaningful.

	£ billion
1996-97	60.9

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by 1 per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200714]

Mr. Bradshaw: Increasing the member contribution for the NHS Pension Scheme by 1 per cent. across the board would yield approaching £330 million per annum to the scheme, based on a pensionable payroll of approaching £33 billion over the 12 months to 31 March 2007.

Until 31 March 2008 the NHS Pension Scheme contribution rate was six per cent. of pensionable pay, however, members classed as manual workers paid five per cent. Employees' contribution rates to the NHS Pension Scheme have been increased from 1 April 2008 as shown in the following table. This will produce an estimated yield of about 6.5 per cent. an increase of about 0.5 per cent. over the previous contribution structure. There is no change to the Department's expenditure from this increase.

Pensionable pay	Contribution rate (percentage)
Up to and including £19,682	5
£19,683 to £65,002 (linked to Agenda for Change pay point 17)	6.5
£65,003 to £102,499 (linked to Agenda for Change pay point 49)	7.5
£102,500 to any higher amount	8.5

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200715]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department publishes annual salary, allowances, benefits and pensions information for members of its Departmental Management Board in its Annual Resource Accounts. Copies of the 2006-07 resource accounts are available in the Library and are also available at the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_081317

The cash equivalent transfer value of the Department's 10 highest paid permanent members of staff in post as at 31 March 2007 was £6,867,000.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time posts were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in his Department in each of the last three years. [200663]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department employs temporary staff of various kinds for a number of reasons, including:

to cover short term vacancies, such as the need for administrative support; to fill posts temporarily because they are likely to be relocated or because structural changes are being implemented; to provide skills that the Department does not have but needs urgently and/or on a short-term basis; and in the case of secondments into the organisation, to support the development of staff in other organisations where there is also a business benefit for the Department in doing so.

The Department does not separately identify the type of post that is being filled on a temporary basis. The figures provided therefore cover all instances of posts being filled temporarily.

The numbers of civil servants employed on a temporary basis for more than six months in each of the last three years are as follows:

As at 1 October to 30 September each year	Number
2006-07	23
2005-06	29
2004-05	59

The number of posts filled on temporary promotion by people who had been in such roles for at least six months as at 30 September 2007 was 55. Figures before this date do not identify the length of a temporary promotion.

The number of secondments into the Department as at 30 September 2007 was 57. Their length of service is not available, but the vast majority are likely to have been employed for more than six months.

The Department does not record the length of service of temporary agency staff, but the vast majority will be short-term appointments of less than six months.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hours (a) in total and (b) on average per employee were worked by civil servants in his Department in the last year for which records are available. [195820]

Mr. Bradshaw: Full-time staff in the Department are contracted to work 41 hours gross per week (36 hours net per week) in London and 42 hours gross per week (37 hours net per week) outside London. Around 10 per cent. of the Department's staff work part-time, and are contracted to work fewer hours than their full time colleagues. The Department does not record actual hours worked by employees. However the Department's 2007 staff survey, which was completed by well over half of staff, suggested that 25 per cent. of staff worked contracted hours, 45 per cent. worked one to five hours in excess of contracted hours, 19 per cent. of staff six to 10 hours in excess and 11 per cent. of staff more than 10 hours in excess.

E. Coli

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the incidence was of (a) E. coli and (b) salmonella poisoning in each of the last three years. [201390]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of laboratory-confirmed cases of United Kingdom-acquired Escherichia Coli (E. coli) 0157 and Salmonella infections are given in the following table. The most recent data available are from 2006.

	E. coli 0157	Salmonella
2004	818	11,791
2005[1]	1,019	9,835
2006[2]	1,146	11,079

Food Standards Agency: Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what pension scheme is offered to staff joining the Food Standards Agency; what the rate of employer contributions to the scheme is; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the terms and benefits of the scheme. [198444]

Dawn Primarolo: New entrants to the civil service, including those joining the Food Standards Agency, are covered by the civil service pension arrangements. Staff can choose between 'nuvos', a defined benefit pension scheme and 'partnership', a stakeholder pension. If a person is being re-employed, and was previously a member of a civil service pension scheme, they may be able to rejoin their previous scheme, but this will depend on the length of time since they were last employed.

In respect of members of the defined benefit schemes, employer contribution rates are assessed for each of four ranges of pay levels. A separate rate is payable in respect of a group of prison officers who have certain reserved rights. The rates for 2008-09 are:

Band	Full-time annual salary	Rate from 1 April 2008 (Percentage)
Band 1	£19,500 and under	17.1
Band 2	£19,501 to £40,500	19.5
Band 3	£40,501 to £69,000	23.2
Band 4	£69,001 and above	25.5
Prison officers with reserved rights (pre-fresh start) (Percentage)	26.5

The scheme rules are laid before Parliament and copies of the Principal Civil Service Pension scheme are available in the Library.

For members of the "partnership scheme", the employer pays a basic contribution of between 3 per cent. and 12.5 per cent. (depending on the age of the member) into a stakeholder pension product and will match the member's contribution up to a limit of 3 per cent. Employers also contribute a further 0.8 per cent. of pensionable salary to cover the cost of risk benefit cover (death in service and ill health retirement).

Details of the civil service pension arrangements can be found on the civil service pensions website at:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk.

General Practitioners: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) part-time and (b) full-time general practitioners were employed by Peterborough Primary Care Trust and its predecessor in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [201925]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the requested format.

Most of the general practitioners (GPs) working in the general medical services are independent contractors providing services for primary care trusts (PCTs) under contract, rather than being employed by the PCT. By September 2007 the number of GPs nationally had increased by 5,318, and by 543 in the East of England Strategic Health Authority area since September 1997.

The following table shows the number of GPs for the Peterborough PCT area from 2001-07.

General medical practitioners: Full time and part time for selected areas, as at 30 September for each specified year.

Note:

Peterborough PCT was created on 1 October 2006 following a complete merger of North Peterborough PCT and a part merger of South Peterborough PCT. The rest of South Peterborough was split between Cambridge PCT and Northampton PCT. Due to this part merger, data from 2006 onwards is not directly comparable with data for 2001- 05.

General Practitioners: Working Hours

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to provide for the safety of GPs and their staff who will be working extended hours under the proposed new GP contract. [201033]

Mr. Bradshaw: The interim guidance on implementing the arrangements for general practitioner practices to extend their opening hours, issued by the Department on 18 April, reminds primary care trusts that staff and patient safety is a priority, and asks them to consider, where they identify a need, how to mitigate identified risks when practices extend their hours.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to address the requirement for out-of-hours childcare for GPs and their staff working extended hours under the proposed new GP contract. [201039]

Mr. Bradshaw: Most general practitioners' practices are self-employed contractors and are responsible for their own child care arrangements. Child care arrangements for staff employed by practices are a matter for discussion for the employer.

Human-Animal Hybrid Embryos

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance his Department has provided on the creation of human-animal hybrid embryos; and if he will make a statement; [201929]

(2) what recent discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials have had with the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority on the creation of human-animal hybrid embryos; and if he will make a statement; [201930]

(3) under what legislative provisions the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority issued a licence to the University of Newcastle to create human-animal hybrid embryos; and if he will make a statement. [201931]

Dawn Primarolo: The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA) granted licences for two research projects involving the creation of human-animal hybrid embryos in accordance with its interpretation of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, as amended. The HFEA has a duty to consider applications that come before it and undertook a public consultation before making its decisions.

The decisions were entirely a matter for the HFEA. Neither Ministers nor departmental officials influenced the decisions in any way.

Mass Media

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessments his Department makes of media coverage of (a) his Department, (b) the NHS, (c) departmental ministers and (d) health and social care. [189471]

Mr. Bradshaw: Press officers assess media coverage of departmental announcements and major health stories on a regular basis, and advise ministers and officials accordingly. The findings of a communications research programme into national and regional media evaluations, undertaken between December 2004 and November 2006, are published on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/FreedomOfInformation/Freedomofinformationpublicationschemefeedback/Classesofinformation/Communicationsresearch/index.htm

Meat: EU Law

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on the implementation of Annex III, section V, Chapter III, point 2 (B) to Regulation (EC) No 853/2004 on minced meat. [199296]

Dawn Primarolo: We are fully supportive of regulatory measures to ensure that business operators produce safe food. Paragraph 2(b), Chapter III, Section V, Annex III of Regulation (EC) 853/2004 sets out prescriptive requirements concerning the statutory time limits after slaughter for the production of minced meat in approved establishments. These requirements prevent the production of mince from carcases that have been matured, as has been the tradition in the United Kingdom. There is no scientific basis to support these requirements, which are in addition to microbiological criteria which prevent unsafe mince from being placed on the market. The Food Standards Agency is working with stakeholders including industry and the European Commission to agree a way forward on this issue.

NHS: Circulars

Angela Browning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, whether the Health Service Circular/Local Authority Circular HSC 2001/016:LAC(2001)23, which was due for review in 2004, (a) is still in force and (b) has been amended. [202688]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This health service circular was cancelled in 2004, but we expect councils to continue to apply the principles of good practice that were enshrined in the guidance. Copies of the health service circular have been placed in the Library.

"Valuing People Now: From Progress to Transformation" (published in December 2007) sets out the delivery priorities for people with learning disabilities for the next three years. These are about people having control over their lives and services, including what they do during the day, how they can be supported to access jobs, housing, and better health care and of course making sure that this change happens. Copies of this publication have also been placed in the Library. The consultation is now closed and the responses are being analysed.

NHS: Hearing Impaired

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients waited more than six weeks for (a) an initial NHS hearing assessment and (b) a follow-up NHS hearing aid assessment in the latest period for which figures are available. [201798]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Latest available data for February 2008 show there were 8,295 patients waiting longer than six weeks for all audiology assessments, including initial and follow-up hearing assessments. This represents a reduction of some 92 per cent. (from 101,335) since April 2006.

NHS: Telephone Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department provides to (a) primary care trusts and (b) service providers on their use of numbers with the prefix (i) 0845 and (ii) 087. [201794]

Mr. Bradshaw: General medical services (CMS) contractors were banned from using premium rate numbers (09 or 087) via The National Health Service (Primary Medical Services) (Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations SI 2005 No. 893. The ban came into force in April 2005 but did not include 084 numbers.

On 19 December 2006 the Department wrote to primary care trust chief executives advising them that the Department was reviewing the use of non-geographical telephone numbers in light of the consultation carried out by Ofcom; and re-iterating the Government's position that "patients should not be expected to pay more than the equivalent of a local call".

The Department is currently gathering evidence on the use of 0844 numbers in general practice and will consider what further action is necessary in light of that evidence.

NHS: Vaccination

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to extend uptake data collection methods to all treatments recommended for use on the NHS by the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation. [201843]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department provides support for centrally collected vaccine uptake data collections, and this is extended as new vaccines are added to the routine childhood vaccination programme.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what research his Department has carried out into variations in the levels of uptake of therapies recommended for use on the NHS by the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation. [201844]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department commissions a regular face-to-face survey conducted among parents to gauge current attitudes and perceptions of disease, immunisations and sources of information. The findings are used to help shape and inform future policy and communications with parents.

We also conduct a regular survey among general practitioners, practice nurses and health visitors on child immunisation. This research aims to gauge their information and training needs, what advice is given to parents and any personal concerns they may have. Feedback from these surveys helps us to better understand and respond to issues on the immunisation programme that health professionals may have.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions his Department has had with the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) on improving healthcare providers' levels of compliance with JCVI guidance. [201845]

Dawn Primarolo: The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation discuss data on the uptake of vaccines in the routine national programme at every meeting. This data is published by PCT in the annual national statistics "NHS Immunisation Statistics England".

Olympic Games 2012

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for the Olympics which stakeholders were consulted prior to the publication of the Olympic Legacy Action Plan. [202684]

British Council
British Olympic Association
British Paralympics Association

Olympic Games 2012: Ceremonies

Lyn Brown: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what role she plans for local community dance groups in the opening and closing ceremonies of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [203111]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG) will be developing its plans for the opening and closing ceremonies of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games in due course. It is too early to say which organisations will take part in these events in four years' time. However, the Cultural Olympiad provides opportunities for local community dance groups to take part in and enjoy the London games in the run up to and including 2012. Information and opportunities for involvement will be highlighted on the London 2012 website:

www.london2012.com

Olympic Games 2012: Education

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will consider the merits of creating an out-of-classroom education facility as part of the 2012 Olympic legacy programme. [202686]

Tessa Jowell: Education provision will be considered as part of the Legacy Masterplan Framework (LMF) work programme, and the Government continue to consider a range of possibilities for an educational legacy, including an out-of-classroom education facility.

The sustainable legacy for the Olympic Park site and surrounding communities will include new housing; sporting, retail and entertainment facilities; and supporting social infrastructure, including educational facilities. The London Development Agency (as interim legacy client) and Olympic Delivery Authority are working with partners including Government, the host boroughs and local communities to produce the LMF by early 2009, which will set out a vision for the Olympic Park, and the broad provision of facilities and infrastructure within it.

Olympic Games: China

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what recent representations the Government has made to the International Olympic Committee on China's commitments relating to improvements in human rights and democracy with regard to the hosting of the Olympic Games in Beijing. [201899]

Tessa Jowell: The Government's priority is to raise human rights concerns directly with the Chinese Government, both bilaterally and through the European Union, not through the IOC. The Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary discussed human rights during their respective visits to China in January and February. I raised human rights, and, in particular, media freedom during my visit to China in November 2007, and during Chinese Vice Minister Cai Mingzhao's visit to the UK in March 2008.

When I visited China in September 2006, I strongly encouraged the Chinese Government to consider a liberalisation of media regulations. On 1 January 2007 the Chinese Government temporarily lifted restrictions on travel and the requirement to seek official permission for interviews for foreign journalists, up to and during the 2008 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games. We hope these regulations will be fully implemented in all regions and that they will remain in place after the games and be extended to China's domestic journalists. We have urged China to consider this.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197629]

Mr. Watson: Cabinet Office supports the use of green transport and offers an interest free advance of salary to purchase bicycles and accessories to its staff.

National Archives: Consolidated Communications

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what payments National Archives made to Consolidated Communications in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose in each case. [202288]

Mr. Wills: I have been asked to reply.

Consolidated Communications has undertaken work for The National Archives on one occasion over the last five years. A total of £13,672.20 (excluding VAT) was paid for work between July and December 2006 undertaken to support the launch of "Living Information: A New Vision for The National Archives" in July 2007. They were paid in three instalments between November 2006 and May 2007.

Voluntary Work

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) if he will hold discussions with Volunteering England over the proposal in the Goldsmith Report on Citizenship: Our Common Bond to offer council tax rebates for volunteering activities; [202500]

(2) if he will hold discussions with the National Union of Students on the proposal in the Goldsmith Report on Citizenship: Our Common Bond to reduce university fees for students who volunteer. [202501]

Phil Hope: The Government welcome the recommendations made by Lord Goldsmith in Citizenship: Our Common Bond. We are interested in his proposals to encourage and support volunteering. Officials within the Cabinet Office will consider the recommendations, consulting with other Government Departments and stakeholders, such as Volunteering England and the National Union of Students, as appropriate.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [198770]

Mr. Lammy: Although the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills does not offer the Cycle to Work scheme it does offer an alternative scheme to its employees. This scheme also supports employees in taking greener journeys, by enabling employees to purchase a bike. This arrangement does not extend to the Department's non-departmental public bodies.

Neither the Department nor its non-departmental public bodies offer any other tax free benefits in kind to employees. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee.

Mature Students: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of making the support available to (a) 25 to 30-years-olds and (b) 25 to 35-year-olds enrolled on their first full level 3 course equivalent to that of 19 to 25-year-olds enrolled on their first full level 3 course in respect of tuition fees; and if he will make a statement. [196895]

Bill Rammell: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 29 April 2008, Official Report, columns 296-97W.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Biofuels

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has provided for research and development into biogas production and trials for farmers. [201221]

Jonathan Shaw: Since 2000, DEFRA has spent £720,000 on research and development into biogas production. Current work includes the UK contribution to a EU FP7 Biogas project (£300,000 over four years). This project is due to complete in 2010 and will result in a synthesis of information required to assess the development of a sustainable biogas industry in the UK.

Agriculture: Employment

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to review labour strategies for farm work, with particular reference to the supply of farm labour from overseas. [201255]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government fully appreciates the importance for agriculture and horticulture of the supply of labour from overseas. The expansion of the EU has opened up a wide labour market. The Accession Monitoring Report for the period May 2004 to December 2007 records that more than 77,000 workers from the new EU Accession States have registered under the Worker Registration Scheme to take up work in agriculture.

The Government are also aware of the importance of the Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme (SAWS) to help out at peak times during the year. The Minister responsible for SAWS at the Home Office, my hon. Friend the Minister for Borders and Immigration, and I recently had a useful meeting with the National Farmers' Union and representatives of SAWS operators at which we discussed the labour needs of the industry and the challenges facing it for the future. We shall continue to keep in touch with the Home Office and the industry on these issues and will consider whether any review of policy is necessary.

Agriculture: Land Use

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the area of land required to produce equivalent amounts of organic and non-organic food. [202116]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 April 2008]: DEFRA has not funded research specifically on land use in organic and non-organic systems. However, the following DEFRA-funded projects have involved some element of comparison between organic and non-organic farming:

IS0205—Determining the environmental burdens and resource use in the production of agricultural and horticultural commodities

OF0145/301—Testing the sustainability of stockless arable organic farming on a fertile soil

OF0165—Factors influencing biodiversity within organic and conventional systems of arable farming

OF0319/OFO 326—Sustainable organic hill and upland farming—A collaborative case study approach

OF0189/OF0190/OF0373— Economics of organic farming

Further information on these projects can be found can be found on the research pages of the DEFRA website.

Alpacas: Farming

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what provision has been made to support alpaca farmers in the event of an outbreak of animal disease. [201966]

Jonathan Shaw: No specific provisions have been made to support alpaca farmers in the event of an outbreak of animal disease.

DEFRA has established a camelids (camels, llamas, alpacas, guanaco and vicuna) stakeholder group, which is a forum for forward planning and raising issues, as well as updating camelid stakeholders on the current disease risks. In addition, particularly during outbreaks, DEFRA holds regular meetings with industry stakeholders to which representatives from camelid societies are invited.

Animal Welfare

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who the members of the England Implementation Group to oversee animal health and welfare strategy are; and what organisations they represent. [201328]

Jonathan Shaw: The membership of the England Implementation Group looking at the animal health and welfare strategy is as follows:

Helen Browning (Chair)
Richard Bennett
Tim Brigstocke
Chris Brown
Neil Cutler
Nigel Durnford
Stewart Houston
Peter Jinman
Diane McCrea
Martin Potter
Peter Scott
Dick Sibley
Sarah Wolfensohn

The EIG was appointed by DEFRA Ministers, to advise Government on implementing the Strategy in England. The 13 members of the group are there for their individual expertise and experience in animal health and welfare, rather than as representatives of particular organisations.

Further information on the members is available on the DEFRA website.

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of cases of animal cruelty which have taken place in (a) urban and (b) rural areas in the last 12 months. [201624]

Jonathan Shaw: Information on whether an offence was committed in an urban or rural area cannot be separately identified from the data reported to the Ministry of Justice.

Animal Welfare: Circuses

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what forms of regulatory systems, standards or husbandry guidelines his Department's feasibility study on wild animals in circuses is considering; on what date it is expected to report; and if he will make a statement; [193113]

(2) whether winter quarters for circus animals are subject to the same regulatory regime as travelling circuses; and if he will make a statement; [193114]

(3) whether interested parties will be consulted as part of his Department's feasibility study on wild animals in circuses; whether such bodies will be able to submit evidence; and if he will make a statement; [193115]

(4) whether his Department's feasibility study on wild animals in circuses is considering direct application of the Secretary of State's Standards of Modern Zoo Practices to circuses, the creation of new Standards for circuses only or new legislation covering wild animals in circuses; and if he will make a statement. [193116]

Jonathan Shaw: My noble Friend the Lord Rooker will write to the hon. Member following the completion of ongoing policy discussions.

Anti-Social Behaviour Act 2003: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) males and (b) females, broken down by age group were (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of offences under the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 for (A) noise, (B) graffiti and fly-posting and (C) waste and litter in (1) Southend, (2) each local authority in Essex and (3) Essex police authority area, broken down by basic command unit in each year since the introduction of the powers. [194373]

Joan Ruddock: Data on court proceedings are reported to the Ministry of Justice and are included in the following table in as much detail as the data allow.

Offences relating to acts of graffiti and fly posting are not separately identifiable from other criminal damage (such as vandalism and damaging property) and therefore have been omitted from the data table.

Records are kept for the principal offence, that is, the one which carried the heaviest penalty. It is possible that more prosecutions were taken that included one of these offences, but not as the principal offence.

The data are for the Essex police force area; data are not recorded by local authority.

Bees

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department plans to provide for bee inspectors in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [201612]

Jonathan Shaw: Detailed allocations have still to be finalised. The expectation is that funding for DEFRA's ongoing programme of support for bee health will be around the same level as previously. In the event of a need to respond to new serious threats, there are contingency arrangements in place for additional funding to be made available.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to investigate the reasons for unexplained losses of queens from bee hives. [201613]

Jonathan Shaw: Unexplained colony losses which have occurred this season, for which there is no ready explanation, are being investigated by the National Bee Unit.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the emergence of an Asian variation of the bee pathogen Nosema ceranae. [201614]

Jonathan Shaw: Last year, the National Bee Unit conducted an initial survey to estimate the prevalence of both Nosema species that affect honeybees across England and Wales as part of a horizon scanning project. Nosema ceranae, which is sometimes termed the Asian variant of the more common Nosema apis, was confirmed for the first time in the UK, infecting 37 per cent. of colonies sampled during the summer of 2007. This is the first time that sampling for Nosema ceranae has been carried out. It has been found in samples from 13 counties in England and Wales, including Cornwall and North Yorkshire. Nosema apis was also present in 14 per cent. of these samples.

We do not yet know the impact of Nosema ceranae, but the distribution suggests that it has been present for some time. A more detailed survey to estimate the impact of both Nosema species across England and Wales is planned for this year.

Biofuels: Imports

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of the biofuels target he expects to be met from imports in each year until 2015. [201269]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The Government expect that transport fuel suppliers will use a mixture of imported and domestically produced biofuels to comply with the requirements of the renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO). We do not, however, have precise estimates of the likely split between imports and domestic production in any given year. The Renewable Fuels Agency will be reporting regularly on these matters.

Biofuels: Wales

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has provided for research and development into biogas production and trials for farmers in Wales. [202104]

Jonathan Shaw: Since 2000, DEFRA has spent £720,000 on research and development into biogas production. Current work includes the UK contribution to a EU FP7 Biogas project (£300,000 over four years). This project is due to complete in 2010 and will result in a synthesis of information required to assess the development of a sustainable biogas industry in the UK.

DEFRA holds the research and development budget and commission research relevant to England and Wales.

Birds: Smuggling

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many seizures of wild birds species not protected by the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora that were imported illegally were made in each year from 2000 to 2007. [202006]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA holds no central records of seizures of non-CITES listed animals. Seizures are made by local authorities.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197603]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA offers an interest-free loan for bikes and essential equipment (CPU 5) to assist staff who wish to purchase a bicycle for travelling between home and office. Examples of essential equipment include lights; helmet; lock; pump; panniers; back pack; or waterproofs. The total loan cannot exceed £600 and is repayable over a maximum of 12 months. Casual staff and staff employed for less than three months are not eligible for this advance. An advance of salary for the purchase of a bicycle and essential equipment is classed as a beneficial loan for tax purposes.

From information held centrally we are unable to confirm arrangements for DEFRA's non-departmental public bodies.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many equivalent tonnes of carbon dioxide were offset (a) in total and (b) via the Government carbon offsetting funding for air flights in 2006-07 by his Department. [198221]

Mr. Woolas: The Government carbon offsetting fund's (GCOF) aim is to offset up to 305,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide predominantly from air travel, by the end of April 2009. This will be predominantly from Central Government Departments. A full list of current participants is available on the DEFRA website.

For financial year 2006-07, DEFRA will procure credits through the GCOF to offset 2,864 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent (CO_2e) for its flights.

Dogs: Animal Welfare

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the extent of dog fighting; what steps are being taken to prevent dog fighting; and if he will make a statement. [202336]

Jonathan Shaw: No estimates are available of the extent of dog fighting that takes place in this country, which is an illegal activity.

The Animal Welfare Act 2006, which came into force 12 months ago, created separate offences for animal fighting and increased the maximum financial penalties available to the courts for such offences.

Anyone found guilty of an offence related to animal fighting is liable to a maximum fine of £20,000 (previously £5,000), or six months imprisonment, or both.

Facilities Management

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to his Department was of the facilities management infrastructure in each of the last five financial years; and what it is expected to be in 2007-08. [194169]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 14 March 2008]: The information requested is as follows:

2007-08: Current year extrapolation circa £22 million;

2006-07: £20 million;

2005-06: £15 million;

2004-05: £14 million;

2003-04: Figures not currently available.

Although not tracked in detail until recent years, Estates have continued to deliver efficiencies and savings as part of the management of their core contracts. The realisation of savings in excess of the 5 per cent. against baselines has been a standard minimum year-on-year budget target resulting from comprehensive spending reviews (CSR).

Past savings/efficiencies have been masked by the moving size and shape of the Department and its accommodation requirement.

In 2006-07 DEFRA Estates undertook a contract realignment exercise which recorded a VFM saving with OGC of £1 million. Contract reconciliations are still in progress for the 2007-08 year, savings of £100,000 have already been identified.

All figures based on previous (DEFRA Estates Division) FM contracts which cover service provision for the core department only delivered by three main regional contracts. It should be noted in earlier years that there was some degree of localised provision and therefore not included in the contract sum totals shown.

Wider DEFRA network bodies (agencies and NDPB) have their own budgeting, finance and procurement governance. Costs attributable to these organisations are not visible to DEFRA Estates.

Flood Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are available for those who have been affected by flooding to enhance protection of their properties; and what discussions he has had with (a) local authorities, (b) the Environment Agency and (c) others (i) to identify available funding for flood protection and (ii) to increase the rate of take-up. [201799]

Mr. Woolas: There are numerous ways of reducing the damage that flooding causes at individual properties. Resistance measures slow down or stop ingress of water by putting barriers across air-vents, service points and doors. Examples include door-boards, airbrick covers and one-way valves for sewage outlets. Resilience measures limit the damage and disruption that occurs when water does get in. Examples include using concrete/tiled floors and waterproof lime-based plaster, replacing MDF kitchens with stainless steel ones, and raising the level of electric sockets.

As part of the Government's Making Space for Water programme, we have been exploring what support we can offer to households in high risk areas who will not benefit from a community scheme. £28 million has been set aside in the recent comprehensive spending review settlement to fund work to help communities adapt to increasing risk of flooding and coastal erosion.

In collaboration with the Environment Agency and some local authorities, we have funded six pilots (£500,000) to examine the feasibility of developing a grant scheme for householders on flood resilience. These pilots have just completed and we are expecting final reports shortly.

As part of this work, the Environment Agency is investigating the development of a web-based information resource, providing a route-map on different sources of advice for flood resilience options for individual properties. This would be open to members of the public, including builders.

We have also been working with the insurance industry, as part of the Statement of Principles review (see earlier submission), to look at what insurers can do to promote the use of household-level measures and in particular resilient repair.

Flood Control: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the progress made by each local authority in Gloucestershire in revising flood defence strategies by either (a) revising the local plan and (b) developing the local development framework; and what powers he has to monitor the development of flood defence strategies. [201795]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency reviews flood defences through catchment flood management plans and flood defence strategies. Revising and monitoring flood defence strategies is not a function of local authorities via the local plan or local development framework process.

In preparing strategic flood risk assessments, local authorities consider flood defences with a view to where they locate allocations for development and where they may require site-specific flood risk assessments to be carried out by developers and submitted with planning applications.

Strategic plans, such as catchment flood management plans and strategic flood risk assessments feed into the local development framework process by providing a baseline of evidence. This detailed environmental information allows informed decisions to be made in relation to land use and development proposals at both a regional and a local level.

The Environment Agency is involved with a strategic flood risk assessment (SFRA) that is currently being undertaken by Gloucestershire county council. This should assess flood risk from a variety of sources and will take account of the 2007 summer floods. It will assist local authorities in making future housing allocations and ensuring that future developments are as sustainable as possible in flood risk terms. The SFRA is due to be completed in May.

Floods: Costs

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of repairs to properties flooded during the summer of 2007. [201577]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 68W.

Food: Prices

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effect of biomass production on food prices over the last five years. [202114]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 28 April 2008]: In the UK, over the last five years, there has been no large-scale production of biofuels from oilseeds and grains. Consequently, any effect on food prices has been negligible. Production plants are being built and are expected to come on line over the next few years.

At a global level, use of grains and oilseeds for biofuels is more important. However, a recent analysis by DEFRA concluded that the current high commodity prices are driven by a number of factors, of which demand for biofuels is one, but not the most important factor. Full details of the analysis can be viewed on the DEFRA website.

The area planted to dedicated energy crops, such as miscanthus and short rotation coppice, in the UK is still very small compared to total crops area (below 0.1 per cent.) and as such is likely to have had an un-measurably small impact on food prices.

Food: Salt

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department have had with Consensus Action on Salt and Health on salt levels in food. [190215]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

While the Ministers have not met with Consensus Action on Salt and Health (CASH) recently, Food Standards Agency (FSA) officials, and the FSA chair, have met Professor MacGregor and Jo Butten to discuss the review of the voluntary salt reduction targets which is currently underway. CASH have also been present at 19 recent stakeholder meetings held by the FSA to inform the review of the targets.

Horse Racing: Animal Welfare

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department collects statistics on deaths of racehorses which take place during races. [202008]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government do not hold records on the circumstances or location of the death of racehorses. Such details may be obtained from the British Horseracing Authority.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had on measures to reduce the number of deaths of racehorses during races. [202009]

Jonathan Shaw: My ministerial colleague, the noble Lord Rooker, has arranged to meet the British Horseracing Authority in May to discuss the safety of racehorses during races.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on deaths of racehorses during races. [202010]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has received no representations on the death of racehorses during races recently.

Horses: Animal Welfare

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 7 February 2008, Official Report, column 1341W, on horses: animal welfare, if he will place in the Library a copy of the file. [201959]

Jonathan Shaw: Some of the papers have been placed in the Library of the House. The remaining papers are not being published as they attract legal professional privilege.

Reptiles: EU External Trade

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information his Department holds on the number of (a) CITES-listed and (b) non-CITES-listed (i) reptiles and (ii) birds imported into the European Union as recorded by the Trade Control and Expert System in each year from 2000 to 2006. [202021]

Jonathan Shaw: The TRACES system is run by the European Commission. Use of the system became compulsory from the start of 2005. Although some records exist for 2004, these are not comparable with later years.

Number of consignments recorded on TRACES for each year is as follows:

	Within the EU	Outside the EU
2004
Reptiles	2	89
Birds (non-poultry but includes game)	107	37
2005
Reptiles	18	233
Birds (non-poultry but includes game)	962	90
2006
Reptiles	12	248
Birds (non-poultry but includes game)	787	8

	Within the EU	Outside the EU
2007
Reptiles	13	289
Birds (non-poultry but includes game)	964	14

TRACES does not record whether the animals are CITES listed or not.

Scrapie: Research

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has commissioned into maternal transfer of scrapie from ewe to lamb. [201329]

Jonathan Shaw: Since 1995, DEFRA (and its predecessor MAFF) has funded seven research projects looking at different aspects of maternal transmission of scrapie in sheep. These projects are:

(i) Project SE1843—Maternal transmission of scrapie in Sheep

(ii) Project SE1856—Investigation of the sources of TSE infection for the lamb in the prenatal and perinatal period

(iii) Project SE1855—Investigation of the risk of transmission of scrapie in milk of sheep,

(iv) Project SE2004—Identification of PrP associated infectivity in blood and milk from sheep infected with TSE, toward a diagnostic test for live animals,

(v) Project SE1834—The role of the pre-implantation embryo in the vertical transmission of natural scrapie infection

(vi) Project SE1814—To determine if scrapie can be transmitted by transfer of embryos from ewes infected with scrapie to uninfected ewes,

(vii) Project SE1823—Investigation of the role of the embryo in maternal transmission of scrapie in sheep.

The first two projects are trying to determine which tissues from scrapie-infected ewes carry infectivity and therefore may infect lambs. Different tissues and fluids such as placenta, blood, urine and faeces are being examined for the presence of PrPSc, the protein associated with scrapie. The effect of the PrP genotype of the ewe and the lamb and the effect of removing the placenta immediately after birth are also being examined as possible factors in maternal transmission. The next two projects are looking at milk from scrapie-infected ewes and determining if milk contains scrapie infectivity or PrPSc, the protein associated with scrapie. Recent results from project SE1855 have shown that milk can carry scrapie infectivity (BMC Vet Res. 2008 Apr 8;4(1):14).

The last three projects have looked at whether embryos, collected from a scrapie infected ewe, give rise to infected lambs when transplanted into scrapie free ewes. The most recent of these projects, SE1834, found that transplanted embryos do not appear to become infected.

The total cost of these seven projects is £5,491,054.

More details of these projects and other DEFRA research projects can be found on the science and research pages of the DEFRA website.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments the Waste and Resources Action Programme made to Consolidated Communications in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202297]

Joan Ruddock: Consolidated Communications have previously provided strategic communications and event management services to the DEFRA-funded Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP). This was in relation to the development and implementation of the Courtauld Commitment, a voluntary waste reduction agreement with retailers and food manufacturers.

Payments by WRAP to Consolidated Communications over the last five years on this, and other lesser activities, was £88,975.25, comprising £37,912.75 in 2006-07, and £51,062.50 in 2007-08.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Waste Management: Domestic Wastes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities operate residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including those operating pilot schemes with that frequency. [199569]

Joan Ruddock: The following table represents our best understanding of local authorities operating residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including pilot schemes. However, due to the often rapid changes in this area, it is unlikely to be completely up to date.

TREASURY

Bankruptcy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will re-evaluate what the appropriateness of the length of the time that statutory demands normal term is before an action for bankruptcy is pursued. [202426]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The ability to ask the court to make a bankruptcy order on the basis of the failure to comply with a statutory demand within the required period has been a feature of insolvency legislation for over 20 years.

The Insolvency Service has recently been conducting a review of its secondary legislation. In that process, it has consulted a wide-ranging group of stakeholders on proposed changes, sought views generally and has received no representations on this subject. We see no reason for any change.

Child Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of increasing child benefit for the first child by (a) £3, (b) £3.25, (c) £3.50, (d) £3.75, (e) £4, (f) £4.25, (g) £4.50, (h) £4.75 and (i) £5 for (i) 2009, (ii) 2010, (iii) 2011 and (iv) 2012. [200257]

Jane Kennedy: The estimated annual cost of increasing the first child rate by the requested amounts is shown in the following table:

	Estimated increase in annual expenditure (£ billion)
£3.00	1.15
£3.25	1.25
£3.50	1.35
£3.75	1.44
£4.00	1.54
£4.25	1.64
£4.50	1.73
£4.75	1.83
£5.00	1.92

Population projections imply a relatively constant number of families claiming child benefit each year, around 7.4 million, so we would not expect this cost to vary considerably for each year to 2012.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of child benefit for the first child was as a proportion of average earnings in each year since 1997. [200841]

Jane Kennedy: The value of child benefit for the first child as a proportion of employee median earnings is shown in the following table.

	Child benefit first child rate (£)	All employee median weekly earnings (£)	Proportion (Percentage)
1997-98	11.05	327.7	3.4
1998-99	11.45	340.2	3.4
1999-2000	14.40	352.3	4.1
2000-01	15.00	367.5	4.1
2001-02	15.50	353.4	4.0
2002-03	15.75	397.5	4.0
2003-04	16.05	411.8	3.9
2004-05	16.50	425.4	3.9
2005-06	17.00	443.2	3.8
2006-07	17.45	463.2	3.8
2007-08	18.10	480.8	3.8

Child benefit first child rate will increase to £20 per week in April 2009.

Child Benefit: Expenditure

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of likely expenditure on child benefit in each year until 2012. [200258]

Jane Kennedy: The projected annual expenditure on child benefit is shown in the following table:

	Expenditure (£ million)
2008-09	10,950
2009-10	11,550
2010-11	11,850
2011-12	12,320
2012-13	12,705

These projections are based on indexation of the current first and subsequent child rates of child benefit in line with prices, and projections of the number of children in the UK from the Office for National Statistics (ONS). It also takes into account the Budget 2008 measure of increasing the first child rate to £20.

Retail Price Index assumptions may be found in Table C3: Economic assumptions for the public finance projections in Budget 2008:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/budget/budget_08/report/bud_bud_08_repindex.cfm

ONS population projections may be found at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_population/NPP-2006/NPP06_NSOnline.pdf

The projections are not a statement of Government policy in relation to financial support for children, and the Government remains committed to meeting its targets to halve child poverty by 2010-11 and eradicate it by 2020-21.

Child Benefit: Personal Records

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials of (a) his Department and (b) HM Revenue and Customs have been disciplined or dismissed for (i) alleged breaches of data protection requirements and (ii) inappropriate use of personal or sensitive data in each of the last three years for which information is available. [167991]

Jane Kennedy: HM Treasury predominately hold personal data for their staff in connection with their responsibility as an employer. In the last three years, no HM Treasury staff have been disciplined or dismissed for inappropriate access to personal or sensitive data.

HMRC has a strict policy forbidding staff to access customer records, unless they have a legitimate business need. Breaches of this policy are taken seriously and any breach will result in the commencement of disciplinary proceedings. Each case is treated on its merits but in many cases the disciplinary penalty for breach is dismissal.

The number of HMRC staff who have been disciplined or dismissed for inappropriate access to personal or sensitive data during the three years since HMRC was established in April 2005 are as follows and reflect the strength of HMRC's internal disciplinary procedures.

	Number
April 2005 to December 2005	238
January 2006 to December 2006	180
January 2007 to December 2007	192

However, these figures still represent less than 1 per cent. of total staff for each of the three years in question.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197000]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury does offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees. This scheme supports employees in taking greener journeys, by enabling employers to loan a cycle to an employee. In HM Treasury the period of loan is 12 months.

The Treasury also offers an interest free loan repayable over up to 12 months for employees to purchase a cycle.

Data Protection

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1642W, on data protection, whether there is a separate line management process for HM Revenue and Customs data guardians. [195910]

Jane Kennedy: Data guardians sit within each HMRC business units' usual line management chain. The director of each business unit in HMRC is ultimately accountable for the data security arrangements in their respective business unit and as the principal accounting officer for HMRC, the chairman has ultimate responsibility for data security.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1642W, on data protection, how many full-time equivalent data guardians HM Revenue and Customs has. [195912]

Jane Kennedy: All staff in HMRC have a personal responsibility for protecting the data in their care in line with the Data Protection Act. For further advice staff can refer to their data guardian, each of whom has responsibility for the data security arrangements in a particular HMRC business unit.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees of each grade in his Department (a) have access to confidential or sensitive data and (b) are authorised to download such data to disc; how many of his Department's employees have undergone data protection training in the last 12 months; what the average length of time is that each employee of (i) his Department and (ii) his Department's agencies has spent on data protection training; how many investigations of employees of his Department for improperly accessing confidential information have taken place in the last 12 months; how many such investigations resulted in cases of disciplinary action; and what the circumstances of each of those cases were. [168284]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC provides its staff with controlled access to customer information to facilitate the delivery and maintenance of service to customers.

Access to HMRC systems is assigned according to user-roles within the organisation, and not grade. Information on users according to grade is not available and could be collated only at a disproportionate cost.

HMRC and its agency the Valuation Office Agency have in place a range of measures and procedures in relation to training and guidance on data protection and data security and transfer. Information on number of staff who have undergone training, the length of time spent by each and the cost of training is not available and could be collated only at a disproportionate cost.

HMRC has a strict policy forbidding staff to access customer records, unless they have a legitimate business need. Breaches of this policy are taken seriously and any breach will result in the commencement of disciplinary proceedings. Each case is treated on its merits but in many cases, the disciplinary penalty for breach is dismissal.

During the year ended 31 December 2007, 192 HMRC staff—from a headcount of just over 90,000—were disciplined or dismissed for inappropriate access to personal or sensitive data, reflecting the strength of HMRC's internal disciplinary procedure. However, this represents less than 1 per cent. of total staff for each of the three years in question.

No other information is available on the breakdowns requested in this question.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many breaches of data protection security there were in (a) his Department and (b) his Department's agencies in each of the last five years; and if he will provide details of each breach. [168940]

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many security breaches relating to access to personal data occurred within his Department in each year since 1997. [169712]

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many confirmed data security breaches there have been in his Department in the last 36 months; and what action was taken after each occurrence. [170244]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC records security incidents and does not record information in the form requested.

Since April 2005, HMRC has discussed 11 data security incidents involving customer information with the Information Commissioner's Office as a matter of good practice and to ensure appropriate lessons are learned from such incidents.

HMRC has introduced more stringent controls which require that transfers of bulk data on removable media only take place where there is adequate security protection. The transfer of personal data only takes place when it is essential to do so due to a business critical need or in order to meet the HMRC's legal obligations.

No such security incidents have been recorded by the Treasury, the Office of Government Commerce or the Debt Management Office.

Excise Duties: Alcoholic Drinks

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimates of the levels of consumption of (a) spirits, (b) spirit-based ready-to-drinks, (c) wine, (d) beer, (e) cider and (f) sparkling wine he used in forecasting the revenue yields from increases in the rates of alcohol duties in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11 as set out in Budget 2008, page 9, Table 1.2; [202185]

(2) what estimates he has made of the level of consumption of (a) spirits, (b) spirit-based ready-to-drinks, (c) wine, (d) beer, (e) cider and (f) sparkling wine for (i) 2004-05, (ii) 2005-06, (iii) 2006-07 and (iv) 2007-08; [202186]

(3) what the revenue from alcohol duties from (a) spirits, (b) spirit-based ready-to-drinks, (c) wine, (d) beer, (e) cider and (f) sparkling wine was in (i) 2004-05, (ii) 2005-06, (iii) 2006-07 and (iv) 2007-08. [202187]

Angela Eagle: Total duty receipts by type of alcohols products (cider, beer, wine and spirits) can be found in the HM Revenue and Customs 'Beer and Cider Bulletin', 'Wine of Fresh Grapes or Made Wine Bulletin' and 'Spirits Bulletin', which are available from the HM Revenue and Customs website addresses at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullbeer http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullfresh http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullmadewine http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullspirits

The revenue forecast for alcohol duties reflect the underlying trend in alcohol consumption, as measured by HM Revenue and Customs data on quantities of alcohol products cleared or released for UK consumption. Published estimates of quantities for each drink type are also available from the same bulletins. Separate figures for spirit-based ready-to-drink and sparkling wine products are available in terms of quantities only and not in terms of duty receipts. The Budget 2008 forecast assumes a reduction in total pure alcohol consumed as a result of the alcohol duty changes of 1.6 per cent. 2.6 per cent. and 3.5 per cent. for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 respectively.

Financial Services Authority: College Public Policy

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what payments the Financial Services Authority made to College Public Policy in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose the payments were made in each case. [202254]

Angela Eagle: The matter raised in this question is the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority (FSA), whose day-to-day operations are independent from Government control and influence. I have asked the Chairman of the FSA to write to the hon. Member on the issue he raises.

Financial Services Compensation Scheme: Lansons Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what payments the Financial Services Compensation Scheme made to Lansons Public Affairs in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose the payments were made in each case. [202256]

Angela Eagle: The matter raised in this question is the responsibility of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS), whose day-to-day operations are independent from the Government control and influence. I have asked the Chief Executive of the FSCS to write to the hon. Member on the issue he raises.

Government Departments: Sustainable Development

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Government departments have (a) approached his Department for assistance and (b) received assistance in response to the procedure outlined on pages 4 and 5 in the UK Government Sustainable Procurement Action Plan. [202546]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury is in daily contact with departments on a wide range of issues and does not keep a central count of issues raised.

Pensions: Taxation

Rob Marris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people who would be affected if pension contributions were allowable for tax relief only against the basic rate of income tax; and what estimate his Department made of the effect on receipts to the Exchequer of allowing relief on pension contributions at the standard rate of income tax only in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [198065]

Angela Eagle: Latest detailed estimates of the annual cost of tax relief on registered pension schemes are available in Table 7.9 on Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/menu.htm

If the relief on individual contributions were constrained to the basic rate of income tax, this relief would fall by one quarter.

Latest estimates of the number of individuals receiving income tax relief on individual pension contributions are given in Table 3.8 on HMRC's website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu.htm

If the relief on individual pension contributions were constrained to the basic rate of income tax, the proportion of such taxpayers that would be affected is one quarter.

These estimates relate to individual contributions to both personal and occupational pensions. We have not estimated the impact of charging to income tax employer contributions to private pensions made for the benefit of employees who are liable to the higher rate of income tax. The estimates do not account for behavioural effects, which are likely to be large.

Revenue and Customs: Databases

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) cross-checks and (b) linkages (i) exist and (ii) are planned between the data records of individuals stored on databases held by (A) HM Revenue and Customs and (B) other Government departments. [200104]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC must ensure that its use and disclosure of information complies with requirements of section 17 and section 18 of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005. HMRC are also required to comply with the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Human Rights Act 1998 where applicable.

All existing and any planned cross-checking and linking is carried out in accordance with business need and only where it is lawful to do so. This applies whether the processing is within HMRC or involves other Government Departments.

Taxation: Invalid Vehicles

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will assess the effects of the tariff classification regime as it applies to mobility scooters on (a) people with disabilities and (b) the elderly; [202102]

(2) if he will make representations to the World Customs Organisation to review the tariff classification applicable to mobility scooters; [202103]

(3) if he will meet (a) the World Customs Organisation, (b) the British Healthcare Trade Association and (c) Ministerial colleagues in the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to discuss the effects of the tariff classification of mobility scooters. [202105]

Jane Kennedy: Mobility scooters are currently classified for customs purposes as 'Vehicles principally designed for the transport of persons'. The EU has set an import duty of 10 per cent. for these vehicles. This duty is applied to the import value. The retail price for mobility scooters is determined by market forces and subject to fluctuation. The effects of tariff classification as it applies to mobility scooters will therefore vary according to the specific model being imported.

Government Ministers recognise that the tariff classification of mobility scooters is causing serious concern for both importers and end users of the products. The work to pursue a resolution is being co-ordinated by officials from HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC). HMRC regularly meet with representatives from The British Healthcare Trade Association (BHTA) as well as officials from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) to discuss the issue.

Tariff Classification matters fall within the competence of the Community. It is the European Commission's (EC) role to ensure uniform treatment of the same goods by agreeing a common EU position and then presenting that unified view. The UK, via officials from HMRC, has made representations to the Commission to have the classification of mobility scooters referred back to the World Customs Organisation. The EC declined on the basis that current guidelines provide uniformity of classification. In this context it is important to remember that classification experts, both at the European and the International levels, are not influenced by duty rates. The EC has agreed to consider a formal request for duty free treatment or a reduced rate of customs duty for mobility scooters. The BHTA is currently collating the necessary information to support HMRC with this approach.

VAT: Further Education

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information his Department holds on recovery of value added tax (VAT) from further education colleges following VAT inspection of the use of zero-rated buildings in each year since 1997. [202019]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs holds details of the tax affairs of all VAT registered taxpayers. This includes, where relevant, details of any VAT collected from Further Education Colleges in respect of changes in use of buildings that were VAT zero-rated on construction. However, this information is not held centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Welfare Tax Credits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time equivalent staff were employed to deal with (a) tax credit compliance,

(b) disputed overpayments, (c) fraud and (d) official error in each quarter since April 2003. [194493]

Jane Kennedy: For the information requested in (a) and (c) I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 243W.

For the information requested in (b) and (d) up to and including the quarter ended 30 June 2006 I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 25 July 2006: Official Report, column 1390W. More recent information is updated in the following table:

Quarter ending	Number of full-time equivalent staff dealing with disputed payments
September 2006	676
December 2006	480
March 2007	440
June 2007	309
September 2007	219
December 2007	334

The numbers of staff deployed generally fluctuates according to the amount of work received.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families have been contacted as part of HM Revenue and Customs tax credit outreach work; what estimate he has made of the effectiveness of the work; and if he will make a statement. [194505]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available as there is not a standard definition of outreach work. However, in Budget 2008 the Government announced that HMRC would work with children's centres to pilot different ways and different locations for providing advice and services on tax credits.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what value of overpayments were written off by the Tax Credit Office in each year since 2003. [197978]

Jane Kennedy: Overpaid tax credits for 2003-04 were only finally identified after April 2004 when HM Revenue and Customs started finalising awards for that year and the Tax Credit Office (TCO) began considering disputed overpayments in June 2004. The bulk of these disputed overpayments written off were early cases most of which were dealt with in 2005-06.

The total amounts written off by TCO in each year through the disputed overpayment process by applying official error relief is shown in the following table.

	Value of disputed overpayments written off by Tax Credit Office (£ million)
2004-05	6
2005-06	180
2006-07	9

Figures for 2007-08 are not yet available.

Working Tax Credit

Susan Kramer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what research his Department has undertaken into the reasons for eligible families not claiming the child care element of the working tax credit; and if he will make a statement. [202140]

Jane Kennedy: Eligibility for the child care element depends on a family using registered child care and number of hours worked. The amount a family receives then depends on household income. HMRC recently commissioned research on the child care element which, in part, attempted to investigate reasons for eligible families not claiming the child care element of working tax credit.

A full report of findings will be published in due course by HMRC in accordance with the standard publication procedure.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the number of families eligible for the childcare element of the working tax credit; what his estimate is of the number of eligible families who do not receive the credit; and if he will make a statement. [202180]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

However, information on the average number of in-work families benefiting from the childcare element, based on final family circumstances and incomes, in 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 are published in table 2.4 of the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards", for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Information on the estimates of the take-up rate for child and working tax credits in 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 are produced in the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credit Take-up rates", for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm.

Working Tax Credit: Fraud

Susan Kramer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many parents have been prosecuted as a result of providing incorrect information in claiming the childcare element of the working tax credit in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [202141]

Jane Kennedy: The breakdown of figures to numbers of parents prosecuted for providing incorrect information in claiming the childcare element of the working tax credit in each year since 2001 is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

However, in respect of prosecution figures for all tax credits for 2000-01 to 2003-04, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans) on 29 June 2005, Official Report, column 1549W;

For 2004-05 to 2006-07, figures can be found at table 7 Part 2 of the Comptroller and Auditor General's standard report in the 2006-07 HMRC Accounts, which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/hmrc-accounts2007.htm

For 2007-08, figures are not yet available.

Working Tax Credit: Overpayments

Susan Kramer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many cases there were of overpayment of the childcare element of the working tax credit in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement; [202142]

(2) what the level of overpayment of the childcare element of the working tax credit was in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [202183]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

Child and working tax credits were introduced in April 2003.

Information on the number of awards with an overpayment of tax credits in 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 are produced in the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards. Supplement on Payments In." for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

HMRC do not produce these statistics separately for child tax credit and working tax credit.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons the steel for the construction of future aircraft carriers has been ordered by the Government directly; whether there is any precedent for steel orders being placed by any agency other than the relevant shipbuilders; and whether the steel ordered is for use in the construction of one or both future aircraft carriers for the Royal Navy. [202672]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 29 April 2008]: Steel for the construction of the Future Aircraft Carriers has been ordered by BAE Systems (Surface Fleet Solutions), on behalf of the Aircraft Carrier Alliance, and not by the Government. Other than specific Government Furnished Equipment, it is normal practice for the shipyards to order build materials. The steel ordered is for use in the construction of both Future Aircraft Carriers.

Armed Forces: Graduates

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of armed forces personnel have a university degree. [202166]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The total number of armed forces personnel who are recorded as having a university degree or equivalent or higher is 17,469. This is around nine per cent. of the total strength.

The figure quoted is an estimate only, as the data transferred from the former single service legacy data systems to the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system had differing degrees of reliability. In addition, since the introduction of the JPA system, the responsibility for updating this specific type of data rests solely with the individual, and as such may not always be recorded.

Armed Forces: Joint Strike Fighter

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to ensure that the Joint Strike Fighter is flown solely by Fleet Air Arm pilots. [201447]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Joint Carrier Aircraft will be capable of operating from both land and sea, and under current assumptions the future force will be jointly manned by the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force. The optimum force structure is currently being determined.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many training exercises involving fighting in urban environments have been cancelled in each year since 2003. [201017]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since 2003, no training exercises involving fighting in urban environments have been cancelled.

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 996W, on bearskins, and pursuant to the answer to question 198792, when the last occasion was that bearskins were purchased by the armed forces. [202241]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD does not purchase bearskins, it purchases bearskin caps. There have been no pelts procured to produce bearskin caps for the MOD since 2003.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 791W, on armoured fighting vehicles, when he expects the contract for ordering the Ridgback armoured vehicle to be finalised. [201232]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD expects to contract with a manufacturer and a UK integrator for the Ridgback vehicle shortly. I am unable to provide further details as commercial negotiations are continuing.

BAE Systems: Saudi Arabia

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what meetings he or his officials have held with BAe and its representatives to discuss the al-Yamamah case since May 2005. [200527]

Des Browne: Meetings between MOD officials and representatives of BAE Systems at which the SFO investigation into the al-Yamamah programme was raised, took place on 17 June 2005, 3 November 2005, 26 June 2006, 28 September 2006 and 21 October 2006. In accordance with advice to the Department from the Serious Fraud Office, that office was informed of all of these meetings at the time.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197003]

Derek Twigg: Neither the Ministry of Defence nor its non-departmental public bodies currently participate in the Cycle to Work Scheme, however, the Department will be undertaking a review of this in the near future, and it does grant civilian staff advances of salary up to £500 for the purchase of bicycles for travel to work and for military personnel daily commuting by bicycle is encouraged through the payment of a rate of mileage allowance for the use of pedal cycles.

Defence: Internet

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's budget is for cyber-defence measures; and if he will make a statement. [201677]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Lynx Helicopters: Procurement

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of the Future Lynx helicopter project; and what estimate he has made of the annual cost, averaged over the lifetime of the project; [202001]

(2) what the in-service date for the Future Lynx helicopter is; [202002]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of engineers qualified in aeronautics employed on the Future Lynx programme at the latest date for which figures are available. [202004]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The value of the contact awarded to Agusta Westland in June 2006 for the development and manufacture of 70 Future Lynx aircraft is approximately £1 billion. There has been no cost escalation in this contract. The total cost of the Future Lynx project is estimated to be in the order of £10 billion. This figure captures all expenditure forecast through the life of the project, including the cost of the helicopters, supporting systems, manpower, training, maintenance, spares, consumables, fuel and infrastructure costs. While the aircraft are expected to be in-service for 30 years, these costs are incurred from initial concept stages to disposal; about 50 years. This equates to an average annual cost for the battlefield and maritime capabilities to be provided by the Future Lynx fleet of approximately £200 million.

The current in-service date for Future Lynx is 2014.

The Department does not have routine visibility of the total numbers of aeronautic qualified engineers employed throughout industry on specific projects. However in April 2008 Agusta Westland (AW), the prime contractor for the Future Lynx programme, estimated that during this year an average of 600 to 700 engineers, qualified in a wide range of aeronautics disciplines, will be employed on this project by AW and sub-contractors.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, dated 26 February 2008, transferred from the Department for Transport, on the Avro Vulcan Project. [202163]

Derek Twigg: I replied to the hon. Member today.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of flying hours completed by individual helicopters of types (a) Apache, (b) Gazelle, (c) Lynx Mk3, (d) Lynx Mk7, (e) Lynx Mk8, (f) Lynx Mk9, (g) Merlin Mk1 and (h) Merlin Mk3 was in the last 12 months. [202152]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is not possible to provide representative average hours flown for particular aircraft types over a given period since the number of airframes within each aircraft type fluctuates. However, for total hours flown I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 797W.

Radioactive Materials: Transport

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 103W, on special nuclear materials load carriers, what the timetable for the introduction of the new load carrier vehicles is; how many there will be; what the cost of each one is; whether they will be operated by the Ministry of Defence Police; how many miles each one is expected to complete before entry into service; and if he will make a statement. [202311]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The current load carrier vehicles are now planned to continue in service until the end of 2010. It is planned to replace them with eight refurbished truck cargo heavy duty trailers and nine newly purchased tractor heads. I am withholding information on the cost of each vehicle as disclosure of this information would prejudice commercial interests. The role of the Ministry of Defence Police during the transport of nuclear materials is to ensure the overall security of any movements of special nuclear materials. The vehicles will be extensively tested for reliability before entry into service, including a programme of verification and validation activities against taut acceptance criteria. The mileage completed will be that necessary to successfully complete this programme.

Reserve Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reservists exercises have been cancelled since 2003. [201020]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since 2003, 17 reservist exercises have been cancelled.

Russia: Military Aircraft

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates, and for what duration unauthorised Russian military aircraft have penetrated UK airspace over the last 12 months. [202626]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the last 12 months no Russian aircraft have penetrated UK national airspace. However, Russian aircraft have approached or entered the NATO Air Policing Area (APA) for which the UK has responsibility.

I am withholding the exact dates and the duration of time that Russian military aircraft have entered the APA as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Although I am withholding the exact dates, the following table gives the number of days within a month that Quick Reaction Alert aircraft have been launched to identify Russian military aircraft approaching or entering the APA.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Children

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) cautioned, (b) prosecuted and (c) given a penalty notice for disorder for knowingly allowing the consumption of alcohol on licensed premises by a child in each of the last two years. [191309]

Mr. Coaker: Children are unable to commit this offence, as this offence applies only to those persons who work at the licensed premises in a capacity which authorises them to prevent the consumption of alcohol by those aged under 18.

The number of persons issued with a caution, penalty notice for disorder, or proceeded against at magistrates courts for the offence of knowingly allowing consumption of alcohol by an under 18-year-old on relevant premises in England and Wales for the years 2005 to 2006 can be viewed in the following tables 1 and 2.

[3] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. Reprimands and final warnings are included in the above data.
[4] The Licensing Act 2003 came into force on 24 November 2005.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, other agencies, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what severity limits distinguish between (a) mild and moderate and (b) moderate and substantial under the Animal (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986; and whether (i) duration and (ii) intensity of suffering are taken into account. [201905]

Meg Hillier: Mild protocols are those that at worst give rise to slight or transitory minor adverse effects. Substantial protocols are those that may result in a major departure from the animal's usual state of health or well being. Moderate protocols can best be defined as those that fall between mild and substantial.

Severity limits cannot be determined by a single adverse effect. Professional judgment is required to consider and weigh all the expected adverse effects before assessing the appropriate severity limit. The duration and intensity of the suffering are always taken into account. Further details of the criteria used to assign severity limits to regulated procedures are set out in paragraphs 5.40 to 5.49 of the Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321). Copies of the guidance have been placed in the House Library.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of people served with (a) antisocial behaviour orders and (b) parental control orders have re-offended within two years since each was introduced. [202099]

Mr. Coaker: Data on re-offending while subject to an (a) antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) and (b) parenting order are not collected centrally.

Antisocial Behaviour: Internet

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the website www.respect.gov.uk in each month since its inception; what the budget for the website is for 2008-09; how many staff are employed to maintain the website; and how many unique visitors there were to the website in each month since its inception. [200380]

Mr. Coaker: The antisocial behaviour Respect website www.respect.gov.uk began in October 2006. In 2006-07, the expenditure on the website was £73,000 and in 2007-08 it was £118,000. The 2008-09 budget for the website is currently under review. The website is run on behalf of the Home Office by Broadcasting Support Services (BSS) who employ one member of staff to maintain the content on the website.

The number of unique visitors to the website each month for the period November 2006 to March 2008 is on the following table.

Monthly breakdown of unique visitors to the Respect Website

Border and Immigration Agency

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many casework files have been lost by the Border and Immigration Agency in each year since 1997. [199011]

Mr. Byrne: The information is not available in the format requested.

Crime: Genetics

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of crimes solved as a result of a DNA sample being on the national DNA database. [181245]

Meg Hillier: It is estimated that over the period April 1998 to March 2007, there have been approximately 240,000 detections in which a DNA match was available and/or played a part in solving the crime. A breakdown of this figure by year is given in the following table. Figures for the 2007-08 financial year are not yet available.

Number of detections in which a DNA match was available or played a part April 1998 to March 2007

	Detected crimes in which a DNA match was available	Additional detections arising from DNA match[1]	Total detected crimes in which a DNA match was available or played a part
1998-99	6,151	n/a	6,151
1999-00	8,612	n/a	8,612
2000-01	14,785	n/a	14,785
2001-02	15,894	6,509	22,403
2002-03	21,098	12,717	33,815
2003-04	20,489	15,899	36,388
2004-05	19,873	15,732	35,605
2005-06	20,349	19,960	40,309
2006-07	19,949	21,199	41,148
Total	147,200	92,016	239,216

n/a = Not available.

[1] Additional detections may result from the original crime with the DNA match due to the identification of further offences through forensic linkage or through admission by the offender. On average, each 'crime detected in which a DNA match was available' now results in a further 1.06 crimes being detected.

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person were recorded in Bury St Edmunds constituency in each of the last five years. [202711]

Mr. Coaker: Statistics are not collected specifically on a constituency basis. The Home Office does publish statistics at Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) area level. The number of offences of violence against the person for each of the last five years by CDRP is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrpog.xls

Also available is a look-up table that identifies which constituencies are associated with CDRPs. In many instances, a CDRP may comprise of more than one constituency. Conversely, some constituencies will come within two or more CDRPs, either wholly or partially. The look-up table is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrp-constituency-table.xls

Copies of both the statistics table and the look-up table are available in the Library.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether (a) her Department and (b) her Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if she will make a statement. [197602]

Mr. Byrne: Neither the Department nor its executive non-departmental public bodies (the Independent Police Complaints Commission, the National Policing Improvement Agency, the Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner, and the Security Industry Authority) offer a Cycle to Work scheme to their employees.

However, to encourage green commuting, the department does offer an interest free advance for staff purchasing a bicycle, and bicycle safety equipment, for travelling to and from the work place.

This is a tax free benefit in kind and the same tax treatment applies to employees of government departments as to any other employee.

Driving Offences: Fines

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drivers were fined for speeding in (a) England and Wales and (b) each police force area in each year since 1997; and how much was paid in fines for speeding in each area in each year. [200248]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 29 November 2007, Official Report, column 666W.

Extradition: Equatorial Guinea

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the extradition to Equatorial Guinea of people suspected of the participation in the attempted coup in that country. [198730]

Meg Hillier: As a matter of normal policy and practice, it would not be right to comment on particular events.

There are no general extradition arrangements in place between the United Kingdom and Equatorial Guinea. Where there are no such arrangements, the Extradition Act 2003 contains certain specific provisions whereby, in appropriate cases, ad hoc international arrangements may be entered into under which the possibility of extradition would then fall to be considered.

Extradition: USA

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been extradited from the UK to the US in the last three years. [200651]

Meg Hillier: For the period 2005 to 2007, a total of 42 people have been extradited from the UK to the US. 14 were extradited in 2005, 19 in 2006 and nine last year.

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been extradited from the UK to the US to face charges for activities which would not be a criminal matter in the UK in the last three years. [200652]

Meg Hillier: None. The 2003 UK-US extradition treaty stipulates that an offence shall be an extradition offence if the conduct on which the offence is based is punishable under the laws of both states by deprivation of liberty for a period of one year or a more severe penalty. This is reflected in our domestic law. This means no-one can be extradited from one jurisdiction to the other for conduct that is not criminalised in both countries.

Immigration: Prisoner Escapes

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) illegal immigrants and (b) failed asylum seekers detained by the police have absconded en route to immigration detention or removal centres in each of the last five years. [199009]

Mr. Byrne: In 2008 to date there has been one abscond en route from a police station to an immigration removal centre. The detainee was a failed asylum seeker.

In 2007 there were three absconds: one illegal entrant, two failed asylum seekers.

In 2006 there was one abscond who was an illegal entrant.

In 2005 there were two absconds, both failed asylum seekers.

Figures prior to 2005 are not available due to a change in escorting contractor.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in each police force area were convicted for possessing or distributing prohibited weapons or ammunition in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [200391]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of persons found guilty at all courts for offences relating to possessing or distributing prohibited weapons or ammunition in England and Wales, by police force area for the years 1997 to 2006, can be found in the following table.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe. Information for 2007 will be available in late November 2008.

Personation

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has considered to reduce the incidence of crime related to identity fraud. [199739]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Our plans for the national identity scheme will provide people with a highly secure means of protecting and proving their identity. We have already introduced new criminal offences, provided more powers to share data to combat fraud, ensured better co-ordination in prosecuting fraudsters, and worked in partnership with public and private sector organisations to raise public awareness.

Police: Bureaucracy

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average time required by a police officer to complete the formal documentation of criminal evidence following an arrest for (a) burglary, (b) car theft and (c) criminal damage; and what steps she has taken to (i) monitor and (ii) reduce the time spent on procedural tasks by police officers. Mr. Coaker: The following table provides the number of registered sex offenders in each police force basic command unit for the years 2005-06 and 2006-07, before when these data were not broken down by basic command unit area. This information is published in local multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) annual reports, which are available in the House Libraries and at:

http://www.probation.justice.gov.uk/output/page30.asp.

The number of registered sex offenders in each police force basic command unit was not collated in previous years.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Browne) of 13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 85-6W, on stop and search, how many times the power to authorise stop and search for offensive weapons within a specified area for the period of 24 hours under section 60 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 was used by a senior police officer in each year since 2005-06. [201595]

Mr. Coaker: The 2005-06 information given in the answer to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Browne) of 13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 85-6W, is the most recent available. Data for 2006-07 will be published later this year.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Government (a) has set and (b) plans to set targets for stop and searches by police officers in England and Wales. [201600]

Mr. Coaker: The use of stop and search powers is an operational matter for police officers in light of local policing priorities and individual circumstances, therefore, no Government targets have been set for stop and search and there are no plans to set any.

Surveillance: Members

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions hon. Members who have taken the Oath have been the subject of (a) surveillance, (b) intercept since 1997; on how many occasions hon. Members have been party to conversations or meetings while the other person has been the subject of (a) surveillance and (b) intercept since 1997; and what the terms of the Wilson doctrine are. [189246]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 26 February 2008]: It has been the longstanding practice for successive Governments not to comment on surveillance or interception operations. I refer the hon. Gentleman to the then Prime Minister Tony Blair's written answer to Norman Baker MP on the terms of the Wilson Doctrine on 19 December 2001, Official Report, column 367W, and his subsequent confirmation that it continues to apply 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 95 and 96WS. His earlier written reply to a question by Norman Baker on 4 December 1997, Official Report, column 321W, made it clear that the Wilson Doctrine applied to telephone interception and to the use of electronic surveillance by any of the three security and intelligence agencies. This is still the position.

As my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced to the House on 21 February 2008, Official Report, column 539, conversations between Members of Parliament doing their constituency business with their constituents should be considered as "confidential information", and treated in the same way as other confidential information, such as conversations between a person and their lawyer or Minister of Religion. The relevant Codes of Practice will be amended.

Tobacco: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) offences were recorded, (b) police cautions have been issued and (c) fines have been imposed on (i) confectioners and tobacconists and (ii) other retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 in each year since 1997; and what the average fine levied in each of those years was. [200252]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice and are given in the following table for 1997-2006. No information is collected centrally to distinguisn between confectionists, tobacconists and other retailers.

Video Games: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each police force area were recorded in respect of retailers selling video games or DVDs to underage customers in each year since 1997; how many related police cautions were issued in each of those years; and (i) how many related fines were issued and (ii) what the average fine levied was in each of those years. [200251]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling video games or DVDs to underage customers is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines have been provided by the Ministry of Justice and are given in the following table for 1997-2006.

Video Recordings: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many test purchases relating to the sale of video works to under age persons (a) were undertaken and (b) led to prosecution in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [191801]

Mr. Coaker: Both the police and Trading Standards can routinely conduct test purchases locally in line with local operational priorities. These details are not centrally collated by the Home Office, so no records of all such test purchases are available.

Data held centrally on prosecutions cannot separately identify "test purchases" or criminal proceedings brought before court as a result of "test purchase" operations.

Courts: Religion

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what consideration he has given to proposals that religious court should be allowed to arbitrate on some family and matrimonial disputes; and if he will make a statement. [202016]

Bridget Prentice: The United Kingdom does not accommodate religious legal systems as such in this country's laws and there is no intention to change this. Under section 10A of the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973, as amended by the Divorce (Religious Marriages) Act 2002, a court may refuse a decree absolute of divorce to parties who have not given their spouses a religious divorce although it does not allow recognition of the religious divorce. Currently, this provision only applies to members of the Jewish faith. However, it is open to any prescribed religious group to apply to the Lord Chancellor for recognition under this law should it wish to do so.

In Muslim family disputes, the parties may choose to have their financial affairs and decisions about their children decided by a Sharia Council. If the parties wish to have that decision recognised by English authorities, they are at liberty to draft a consent order embodying the terms of the agreement and submit it to an English or Welsh court. This allows it to be scrutinised by an English or Welsh judge to ensure that it complies with English legal tenets. If the decision is made into a court order the English and Welsh courts can enforce it.

Any member of any community has the right to refer to an English court at any point, particularly in the event that they feel pressured or coerced to resolve an issue in a way with which they feel uncomfortable.

Custodial Treatment: Young People

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) juvenile and (b) young adult offenders were placed in custody for a breach of a community order in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [199960]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the numbers of juveniles (aged under 18) and young adults (aged 18 to 20) received into all prison establishments in England and Wales for breach of all community sentences between 2002 and 2006, the latest year for which figures are available:

	Under 18s	Age 18-20
2002	187	428
2003	242	555
2004	365	621
2005	404	695
2006	448	911

It is not possible to separately identify those received into prison for breach of a specific community sentence such as a community order.

Since 2001-02 the National Probation Service has achieved marked improvements in enforcement. The target is to take breach action within 10 working days of a second unacceptable failure to comply with an order (or third unacceptable failure to comply with a licence) in 90 per cent. of cases. The improvements are shown in the table as follows:

Enforcement (target = 90 per cent.)

	Community Orders	Licences	Total
2001-02	52	58	53
2002-03	64	63	64
2003-04	77	79	77
2004-05	87	85	87
2005-06	91	93	91
2006-07	92	94	92
2007-08 (April to December)	94	96	94

Over the same period, compliance levels have also increased (where compliance is defined as the proportion of orders and licences reaching the six months stage without requiring breach action), as shown.

Compliance

	Community Orders	Licences	Total
2001-02	55	87	60
2002-03	55	88	62
2003-04	56	89	62
2004-05	59	92	66
2005-06	65	92	70
2006-07	67	91	72
2007-08 (April to December)	67	91	71

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197002]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry is currently implementing a salary sacrifice Cycle to Work scheme for its employees. This scheme supports employees in taking greener journeys, by enabling employers to loan a cycle to an employee, for an agreed period. The Ministry also offers other tax free benefits in kind to encourage green commuting, namely access to an advance of salary up to £500 for the purchase of a bicycle and safety equipment. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee. Prison Service/NOMS currently does not offer a Cycle to Work Scheme.

The Ministry's non-departmental public bodies have the authority to determine their own Cycle to Work schemes. The Legal Services Commission is planning to implement the scheme and this is also under consideration by the Office of the Information Commissioner. Advances for the purchase of a bicycle are offered by the Criminal Cases Review Commission, Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority and the Legal Services Commission.

Dangerous Driving

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what consideration he has given to bringing forward proposals to (a) make causing serious injury an aggravating factor when sentencing for persons convicted of dangerous driving, (b) introduce a new offence of causing serious injury by dangerous driving and (c) increase the maximum sentence for persons convicted of dangerous driving; and if he will make a statement. [202239]

Maria Eagle: The Sentencing Guidelines Council guideline on seriousness deals with aggravating factors to be taken into account when sentencing generally. It includes among the factors indicating a more than usually serious degree of harm 'an especially serious physical or psychological effect on the victim, even if unintended'.

Following the comprehensive "Review of Road Traffic Offences involving Bad Driving" undertaken jointly by the Home Office and Department for Transport we introduced a range of measures including an increase in penalties for careless driving and new offences of causing death by careless driving or driving while disqualified, unlicensed or uninsured in the Road Safety Act 2006. These changes follow on from the increases in penalties for causing death by dangerous driving, causing death by careless driving under the influence of drink or drugs, and causing death through aggravated vehicle-taking, in the Criminal Justice Act 2003. These changes take account of the special place that offences causing death have in the criminal law.

While we appreciate that in other cases bad driving can have tragic consequences we do not think separate offences are appropriate. This is a particularly difficult area of law as the consequences of the offender's action are often wholly disproportionate to his culpability. We have no plans to increase the penalty for dangerous driving or for a further review at this time.

Elections: Slough

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department plans to take in response to the recommendations of the Electoral Commissioner in the recent electoral court case in Slough. [201559]

Bridget Prentice: We have noted the findings and comments in the judgment of the election court, Since 2005, the Government have introduced a range of new measures to strengthen the integrity of our electoral system, and there have been very few proven incidents of fraud since the new measures were brought into force. They include:

Electoral administrators write to everyone who has applied for a postal vote acknowledging receipt of their application and confirming the outcome—this will alert people to any applications for postal votes made falsely on their behalf.

Postal vote applicants have to specify a reason if they want their postal vote to be sent to an address other than that at which they are registered.

Administrators get more time to check postal vote applications because people have to apply for a postal vote a minimum of 11 working days before the close of poll (the previous minimum was six days).

New requirement for electors to provide personal identifiers (signature and date of birth) if they wish to have a postal vote. The identifiers must be replicated by elector when they subsequently cast their postal vote, and will be cross-checked with the original samples to ensure the postal vote is valid.

New offence of falsely applying for a postal or proxy vote.

After every election a list of all those who voted by post is published which will enable individuals to check that their vote was counted. In an investigation the police will be able to check up with any individual whether they did actually vote by post or whether their vote was stolen.

New criminal offence of supplying false information (or failing to supply information) to the electoral registration officer at any time.

Strengthened offence of undue influence, which will make it easier to prosecute, even if the undue influence does not affect the way someone votes.

Clear new powers for electoral administrators to cross check applications to register to vote against other information the council holds.

We will take account of the election court's judgement in any further development on electoral registration and postal voting processes and legislation.

Legal Aid: Contracts

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of criminal law practitioners who will apply for a new criminal legal aid contract in 2008. [200923]

Maria Eagle: The Legal Services Commission is currently inviting applications for a new criminal legal aid contract due to take effect in July 2008. Applications are being returned at a steady rate but the final number will not be known until after the application period closes on 2 May 2008.

The previous tender exercise for the January 2008 General Criminal Contract resulted in 2,295 applications from firms that already had a contract and a further 90 applications from new providers, ensuring full coverage for publicly-funded defence services in police stations and courts across England and Wales.

Magistrates Courts

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases where defendants have been charged and appeared before a magistrates court but no further hearing has been held there were in each magistrates court in the south-west region, broken down by constabulary in each of the last five years; and what percentage this represented of all cases in each area in each year. [202242]

Maria Eagle: The following tables show the annual number of completed charged criminal cases (adult and youth), and the estimated proportion disposed of at first hearing, for court groupings in the south-west region of HM Court Service for the years 2002 to 2006. Figures are not yet available for 2007.

Figures are provided based on the location of the magistrates court, as data broken down by police force are not available. However, magistrates courts typically hear cases drawn from their local area.

Figures for the number of cases disposed of at the first hearing are estimates taken from a quarterly survey of magistrates courts. These estimates are therefore subject to sample survey variability, with margins of error as shown in the table.

[1] Local data are presented at clerkship level, clerkships being clusters of one or more courts grouped for administrative purposes. Area and region groupings are those used by Her Majesty's Court Service (HMCS).

[2] Number of cases arising from apprehensions (equivalent to charged cases) taken from MOJ Court Proceedings Database (CPD).

[3] Estimated proportion based on one sample week of charged cases (summons are excluded from these figures) in March, June, September and December. The Time Intervals Survey (TIS) collects the number of hearings for completed criminal cases in magistrates1 courts. More information on TIS is available on the Ministry of Justice website.

[4] The margin of error is a measure of the precision of a result based on a sample survey. Number of hearings in magistrates' court cases are measured using data from a sample of the total number of defendants. The sample provides one estimate of the average number of hearings and different samples would produce different averages. The true value is likely to fall within the range of the sample result +/- the margin of error.

Prisoners: Voting Rights

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to issue his response to the consultation "Voting rights of convicted prisoners detained within the United Kingdom—The UK Government's response to the Grand Chamber of the European Court of Human Rights judgment in the case of Hirst v. The United Kingdom"; and if he will make a statement. [202145]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are currently considering how to take forward the implementation of the Hirst judgment in light of the first stage consultation on this issue and will publish the responses in due course. We also remain committed to carrying out a second, more detailed public consultation on how voting rights might be granted to serving prisoners, and how far those rights should be extended. This is a sensitive and complex issue and we need to look very carefully at what the right approach should be.

Prisoners: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many women born in Wales were serving custodial sentences at the latest date for which figures are available, broken down by (a) prison and (b) length of sentence. [201333]

Maria Eagle: Information on prisoner's country of birth is not routinely collected and could be provided only by manual survey of prisoners in England and Wales.

However as at 31 March 2008 there were 160 sentenced female prisoners with a home address in Wales (or committal court in Wales where no home address was listed).

This figure is drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government has taken to reduce substance misuse inside prisons in the last 12 months. [202031]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has in place a comprehensive strategy to address the misuse of drugs by offenders serving custodial sentences. The strategy for prisons has three elements:

- reducing supply, through security measures and drug testing programmes;
- reducing demand, through targeted interventions for low, moderate and severe drug-misusers; and
- establishing effective through-care links to ensure continuity of treatment post-release in order to safeguard the gains made in custody.

Prisons have in place a robust framework of supply reduction measures and these can be adapted flexibly to meet local need.

As part of the drive against drugs announced at the end of January 2008, the Director General of the Prison Service has commissioned David Blakey, a former member of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary, to conduct a review of the effectiveness of the measures to disrupt the supply of illicit drugs into prisons.

On 13 March 2008 we announced that universal testing for the opiate substitute buprenorphine was to commence in all prisons of England and Wales from 1 April 2008. Prisoners have also been warned of the dangers of the illicit use of buprenorphine.

NOMS' comprehensive drug treatment framework, based on the National Treatment Agency's revised Models of Care, addresses the different needs of substance-misusers in prison. Interventions comprise:

- Clinical services, detoxification and/or maintenance prescribing;
- CARATs (Counselling, Assessment, Referral, Advice and Throughcare service)—lower-level interventions that, following assessment, deliver treatment and support. CARATs take the lead Drug Intervention programme (DIP) role in prisons, engaging with prison resettlement teams and criminal justice integrated teams (CJITs) in the community;
- Drug Rehabilitation programmes.

In 2007-08 £79.8 million was made available for drug treatment in prisons. £18.7 million of this was used to fund the implementation of the integrated drug treatment system (IDTS). This allowed the development of enhanced clinical services in 53 prisons, with 29 of these also developing enhanced psychosocial services.

Reoffenders

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent steps the Government has taken in co-operation with the Prison Service to reduce reoffending. [202032]

Mr. Hanson: Reducing re-offending is a key priority for the Government. We are delivering this through our cross-Government strategy to reduce re-offending, supported by the significant increase in investment since 1997.

At the heart of our work to reduce re-offending, is the end to end case management of offenders which enables offenders to access the right services and interventions at the right time in their sentence and effectively re-integrate them back into the community. The Prison Service is engaging with a wide range of partners to tackle the accommodation, skills and employment, finance management and health disadvantages suffered by offenders. Interventions to tackle drug and alcohol problems are also being delivered in custody and the community.

Latest performance figures show that adult re-offending has been reduced by 6.9 per cent. comparing 2004 to 1997 against a predicted rate. This exceeds the 5 per cent. target set in the 2000 Spending Review.

Young Offender Institutions

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average number of hours per day spent in purposeful activity was by each (a) adult (i) male and (ii) adult female prisoner and (A) male and (B) female prisoner in a young offender institution in each week of March and April 2008. [202240]

Maria Eagle: Data are not yet available for April 2008, the following table shows the average number of hours of purposeful activity per day in prisons which predominately hold (a) adult male prisoners, (b) adult female prisoners and (c) male prisoners in young offender and juvenile institutions, for each week in February and March 2008. No young offender institutes are predominantly categorised as female. Therefore, the average number of hours for a female prisoner in a young offender institution cannot be provided.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children were moved from secure children's homes to young offender institutions in each of the last five years. [201860]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

Information about such transfers is not collected centrally. The Youth Justice Board informs us that it providing the information requested would involve a manual search of records at establishments: this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Young Offenders: Protection

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many child protection referrals to local children's services involving children in custody were made from each (a) prison, (b) secure training centre and (c) local authority secure children's home in the last two years. [201712]

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

HIV/AIDS

6. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to improve education on HIV/AIDS in developing countries. [202415]

Mr. Thomas: Prevention is absolutely crucial if we are to stop and reverse the spread of HIV and AIDS. Education is central to the Department for International Development's (DFID's) approach, particularly girls' education and improved sexual and reproductive health education for women. We support innovative AIDS education programmes, including a recent £14 million grant to the Soul City programme, a televised soap opera watched by more than 34 million South Africans, now extending to eight countries in southern Africa.

Primary Education

7. Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of children in developing countries attending primary school. [202416]

Gillian Merron: Since 1999 there are 41 million more children in schools. The UK Government have committed £8.5 billion for education in developing countries over the 10 years to 2015. This will provide support to national government education plans to achieve the millennium development goal of universal primary education by 2015.

Palestinian Territories

8. Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of UK humanitarian aid to the Palestinian Territories. [202417]

Mr. Malik: The humanitarian situation is grave. The UK channels its humanitarian assistance through international agencies including UNRWA and the EC. Our support is still reaching those who need it. Assistance from the EC's Temporary International Mechanism has paid the allowances of 77,000 Palestinian Authority workers critical to the delivery of basic services. Movement and access restrictions triggered by ongoing violence undermine the effectiveness of humanitarian operations. Recent fuel strikes further threaten the effectiveness of humanitarian efforts.

Food Prices

9. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment his Department has made of the effect of increases in world food prices on developing countries. [202419]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb) today.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effect of high food prices on the poorest countries; and what response his Department is making. [202420]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb) today (UIN 202410).

Nepal

11. Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid his Department is providing to Nepal. [202421]

Mr. Malik: In the current financial year (2008-09) the Department for International Development (DFID) plan to provide £42 million of bilateral development assistance to Nepal. We aim to scale this up to £56 million over the comprehensive spending review period.

Zimbabwe

12. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he next expects to meet his EU counterparts to discuss aid to Zimbabwe. [202422]

Gillian Merron: No formal discussions on EU aid to Zimbabwe are planned for the immediate future. The UK Government are in constant dialogue with our EU counterparts and other international partners about the current crisis. Under the right conditions, we are ready to play a leading role in supporting Zimbabwe's recovery. In the meantime, we continue to work with the United Nations and non-governmental organisations (NGOs) in saving the lives and livelihoods of Zimbabwe's poorest and most vulnerable people.

Tibet

13. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to provide humanitarian assistance to the Tibetan population in occupied Tibet. [202423]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not plan to provide humanitarian assistance in the Tibet Autonomous Region of China. Together with our colleagues at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, we are keeping the situation under review, but there does not at this time, appear to be any reason for us to provide such assistance. We continue to provide £500,000 per year to support Save the Children's work in Tibet. This is continuing to run smoothly despite the recent unrest. The work is not considered politically sensitive either by the Chinese authorities or by the Tibetan population, and is welcomed by both.

China: Overseas Aid

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether account is taken of the human rights implications of the Chinese one-child policy in his Department's decisions on aid to China; and if he will make a statement. [201958]

Mr. Malik: Human rights are one of several factors that are taken into account when deciding aid allocations. China has made good progress in recent years in improving reproductive health rights, especially through its implementation of the 2002 Law of Population and Family Planning. This law establishes equal rights for women and men in accordance with the principles of the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD). Sex-selective abortions are strictly prohibited. Under the Regulations for the Management of Family Planning Technical Services of 2001, the use of physical coercion to compel persons to submit to abortion or sterilization is prohibited.

The Department for International Development (DFID) does not support China's one child policy. The UK Government's policy on population and sexual and reproductive health in the developing world is about providing choice, not coercion. We do not provide direct funding to population activities in China. We do however provide central funding to the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) and the International Planned Parenthood Foundation (IPPF), as well as other organisations in the sexual and reproductive health field that seek to promote informed choice and better services. Neither UNFPA nor IPPF support the one-child policy, but are working hard to uphold reproductive health rights and promote change in China.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197605]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not currently offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees. Our intention is to introduce a scheme through the course of 2008 in line with changes planned as part of our Human Resources Transformation Programme.

At present DFID staff can apply for an interest free loan to cover the cost of purchasing a bicycle and any necessary security and safety equipment up to the value to £500. The loan is repayable over a maximum period of 12 months.

The one DFID Executive non-departmental public body does not employ any staff.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200710]

Gillian Merron: It is not appropriate to disclose values for staff, other than those whose details are reported in the remuneration report in the Department's resource accounts. A copy of the resource accounts for the year ending 2006-07 can be found in the House of Commons Library.

The Department for International Development (DFID) does not have any Executive agencies.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many hours (a) in total and (b) on average per employee were worked by civil servants in his Department in the last year for which records are available. [195818]

Gillian Merron: Based on the contracted hours (minus leave entitlements) of home civil service staff working in our HQ offices (in London and East Kilbride) and overseas, the total hours worked from 1 January-31 December 2007, was 2,652,062.60.

This equates to an average of 1,550.90 hours per employee, based on our headcount staff numbers of 1,710.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201762]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development is committed to responding to written parliamentary questions promptly. Since the start of the 2007-08 Session to date:

(a) 78 per cent. of 677 ordinary written questions have been answered within five sitting days

(b) 84 per cent. of the 137 named day questions have been answered on the day specified.

Information to the level of detail requested could be provided only disproportionate cost.

Disabled

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what targets his Department has set in relation to its employment of people with disabilities over the next five years. [199045]

Gillian Merron: The Cabinet Office is currently drawing up a new Diversity Strategy from 2008 to 2011 that will build on the achievements and lessons learnt from the existing Government-wide "10 Point Plan for a Diverse Civil Service". The Department for International Development (DFID) will draw on this strategy for its own targets for employing people with disabilities in grades below the senior civil service (SCS) from 2008 to 2011.

Guatemala: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on international development issues in relation to her recent visit to Guatemala. [202710]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Discussions about the visit by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) to Guatemala between 16 and 19 of April have taken place between officials in the Department for International Development (DFID) and the FCO. The visit enabled my hon. Friend to see how projects funded by the Global Conflict Prevention Pool are contributing to conflict prevention along the Belize-Guatemala border. Specifically, she was able to visit the office of the Organisation of American States, which is monitoring the disputed border area, and contributing to the resolution of local problems in the area.

Overseas Aid: Politics and Government

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on projects promoting democracy in developing countries in each of the last five years. [197259]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides funding to promote democracy through civil society, the justice sector, elections, Parliaments, as well as related activities to improve the accountability of Government officials to citizens more generally. DFID does not measure expenditure on democracy projects specifically.

Most, but not all, of the expenditure on democracy comes under the category of 'governance'. Last year we published a report detailing DFID's work on governance titled "Governance, Development and Democratic Politics".

As follows is a table showing expenditure on governance for the last five years.

DFID bilateral expenditure, 2002-03 to 2006-07

£ million

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES'

Construction

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many construction projects his Department undertook in each of the last three years for which the capital cost was greater than £1.5 million; and what the combined value of these projects was. [202541]

Jim Knight: The Department does not undertake construction projects directly itself. Rather it allocates capital funding to a variety of bodies, usually local authorities, who procure and manage the projects. The capital allocations by programme for this Department for the last three years are included in the Departmental Annual Report (DAR) Table 8.2 and Annex C refers.

Academy projects started/undertaken in each of the last three years:

	Number
2005-06	10
2006-07	23
2007-08	3

The estimated capital cost of each of these projects exceeds £1.5 million.

The combined value of these projects (i.e. the total estimated capital costs including sponsorship) is £809.5 million.

The number of 16-19 capital projects approved over the past two years with a project cost of more than £1.5 million:

	Number of projects	£ million Total cost
2006-07	22	100.3
2007-08	35	169.4

Two separate sources of funding (from Schools and Further Education) were brought together to create the 16-19 capital fund from 2006-07.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many construction projects his Department undertook in each of the last three years for which the capital cost was less than £1.5 million; and what the combined value of these projects was. [202542]

Jim Knight: The Department does not undertake construction projects directly itself. Rather it allocates capital funding to a variety of bodies, usually local authorities, who procure and manage the projects. The capital allocations by programme for this Department for the last three years are included in the Departmental Annual Report (DAR) Table 8.2 and Annex C refers.

The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197628]

Kevin Brennan: The Department does not offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees. However, my Department does offer interest-free, advance of salary loan to purchase a bicycle for those employees who want them. The Department does encourage staff to use sustainable forms of travel wherever possible including cycling to work as well as using public transport.

Non-departmental public bodies are responsible for their own policies.

Departmental Consultation Papers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) white papers, (b) bills, (c) green papers and (d) other consultation papers have been issued by his Department and its predecessors since 1997. [200997]

Kevin Brennan: The Department for Children, Schools and Families and its predecessors (Department for Education and Employment, and Department for Education and Skills) have issued the following since 1997:

(a) 64 Green and White Papers (our records do not distinguish between the two categories of paper);

(b) 16 Bills;

(c) See (a) above;

(d) 364 consultation papers and a further nine calls for evidence.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 105W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199181]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179, and the written ministerial statement made my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected in spring 2008, and this report will detail the information to be included by Departments on data loss in their annual reports.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1532W, on departmental ICT, how many of the missing or stolen (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistants have been replaced by his Department; and at what cost. [202505]

Kevin Brennan: The information as requested is not readily available centrally within the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). To respond fully would involve an information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold.

DCSF does not keep central records of whether staff were immediately issued with a replacement mobile telephone, personal digital assistant or laptop computer following theft or loss.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200730]

Kevin Brennan: The Cash Equivalent Transfer Value (CETV) of the pensions of the 10 highest paid departmental employees at 31 March 2008 was £4,492,806.10. This includes the CETV of some of the members of the senior management team named in the Department's Remuneration Report, which is published annually and which is in the public domain.

The Department has no executive agencies.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time posts were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in his Department in each year since its establishment. [200658]

Kevin Brennan: Since the formation of my Department as part of the 28 June 2007 Machinery of Government changes, 131 posts have been filled by staff on temporary promotion for a period in excess of six months. Additionally there were 17 temporary staff employed for a period in excess of six months. These are the latest figures available and apply up to 31 March 2008. At that date my Department had 2,793 staff (2,643.4 full-time equivalents).

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 912W, on departmental translation services, how much was spent on translation services into (a) Welsh and (b) other languages in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08 to date. [197553]

Kevin Brennan: The details of expenditure on translation services incurred by the Department provided in the answer of 17 March 2008 was extracted from the Departments Integrated Financial Information System and is recorded under a general heading of Translation Fees. To extract the specific financial data requested would involve disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201753]

Kevin Brennan: The Department's IT systems are currently unable to provide the full breakdown requested. Since the beginning of the 2007-08 Session and up to 31 March 2008 the Department has received a total of 2,674 PQs, 416 named day and 2,258 ordinary written PQs. The manual check of all named day PQs carried out to monitor the timeliness of replies for the months of November 2007 to March 2008 are shown in the following table.

	Total named day PQs received	Total named day PQs answered on time (percentage)
November 2007	105	30
December 2007	58	38
January 2008	104	28
February 2008	89	42
March 2008	60	75

Education: Young Offenders

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to ensure that all 16 and 17 year olds in (a) prison and (b) on community service are in accredited education and training; and if he will make a statement. [202334]

Beverley Hughes: The availability of good quality and consistent education and training for young offenders in prison and in the community is critical to improving life outcomes and reducing re-offending rates. We outlined our plans to improve education and training for young offenders within the Children's Plan, published December last year. We are currently consulting on proposals for new funding and planning arrangements for pre and post-19 learning which includes plans for local authorities to lead on education and training for young people in juvenile custody. We will also include wider proposals to improve education and training for young offenders within the strategy on Youth Crime which we will be publishing later this year. This will include plans linking offender education more strongly with the 14 to 19 curriculum, quality improvement and work force development in order to ensure that young offenders have access to provision and qualifications which are consistent with mainstream education and training and which meets their personal needs.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children at Key Stage 4 secured at least five A* to C GCSEs, including mathematics, English, a science and a modern language in each year since 1996; and if he will make a statement. [201202]

Jim Knight: The information required is given as follows.

	Percentage of pupils achieving 5+ A-C including English, mathematics, science and a MFL*
1995/96	27.2
1996/97	27.3
1997/98	28.9
1998/99	27.7
1999/2000	28.5
2000/01	29.5
2001/02	29.4
2002/03	28.8
2003/04	28.2
2004/05	28.4
2005/06	25.9
2006/07	24.1

Note:
Figures up to and including 2003/04 are based on 15-year-old pupils (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August). Figures from 2004/05 onwards are based on pupils at the end of key stage 4.

Gifted Children

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many local authorities are not taking part in the gifted and talented programme. [203146]

Jim Knight: All local authorities in England are participating in the gifted and talented education programme.

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the Statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200218]

Kevin Brennan: The Department does not provide health and social care services out of public funds.

Higher Civil Servants

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of his Department's and its predecessors' senior civil service staff worked part-time in each year since 1997. [200556]

Kevin Brennan: In December 2007 my Department had a total of 106 staff in the senior civil service, of which six (5.7 per cent.) are recorded as working part-time.

Although not directly comparable, due to the 28 June 2007 Machinery of Government changes, the corresponding figure in the predecessor Department, the Department for Education and Skills, was 10 (7.63 per cent.) staff working part-time out of a total of 131 in the senior civil service, at December 2006. Figures for earlier years for the Department for Education and Skills can be found in the Civil Service Statistics Archive:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/archive/index.asp

Pre-School Education: Standards

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of childcare staff in nurseries had an Early Years Foundation Degree in (a) Basingstoke constituency, (b) Hampshire and (c) England in each of the last five years. [200564]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on staff qualifications that are relevant to working with children and young people. The qualifications are grouped together in the levels that they have been accredited with by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. It is not possible to look at specific qualifications held.

The Early Years Foundation Degree is a level 5 qualification. The percentage of paid staff in England holding at least a level 5 qualification is as follows:

Table 1: Percentage of paid staff holding at least a Level 5 qualification: 2006

	Percentage
Full day care	4
Full day care in children's centres	13
Sessional	5
After school clubs	6
Holiday clubs	9
Childminders	4
Nursery schools	33
Primary schools with nursery and reception classes	40
Primary schools with reception but no nursery classes	48

Within those figures, those staff with any level 5 qualification relevant to working with children and young people is shown in Table 2:

Table 2: Percentage of paid staff holding a Level 5 qualification: 2006

	Percentage
Full day care	1
Full day care in children's centres	3
Sessional	1
After school clubs	1
Holiday clubs	1
Childminders	0
Nursery schools	3
Primary schools with nursery and reception classes	2
Primary schools with reception but no nursery classes	3

Comparable data are not available for previous years due to changes in the way that the qualification levels were defined.

Data are not available at a local authority level.

Public Information Booklets

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1534W, on public information booklets, who is responsible for (a) authorising and (b) auditing expenditure on the production of information for the public; and what information is held centrally on such costs. [202679]

Kevin Brennan: Authorisation for expenditure on the production of information for the public is delegated by the Head of Department to individual policy teams, rather than to a central board dealing with a particular communications channel. This expenditure would be included within the annual audit of DCSF departmental resource accounts by the National Audit Office.

Although we do not centrally co-ordinate records for the production of public information booklets, we do maintain central records relating to the Department's overall publications distribution contract.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools excluded more than (a) 10 per cent. and (b) 30 per cent. of their pupils in the latest year for which figures are available. [201134]

Kevin Brennan: The number of schools excluding more than 10 and more than 30 per cent. of their pupils is not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in secondary schools were given a (a) fixed period and (b) permanent exclusion in the last 12 months, broken down by local authority index of multiple deprivation decile. [202108]

Kevin Brennan: The available information has been placed in the House Library.

Pupil Referral Units: Sports

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupil referral units offer two hours of physical exercise every week. [201855]

Kevin Brennan: The 2006/07 PE and School Sport Survey found that 91 per cent. of Pupil Referral Units provided at least two hours high quality PE and school sport a week for at least one of its pupils. Overall, 84 per cent. of all pupils in PRUs participated in at least two hours high quality PE and sport a week.

School Meals: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what he expects the minimum spend on ingredients for school meals to be per pupil per day; and if he will make a statement; [202636]

(2) what the minimum spend on ingredients for school meals per pupil per day was in each year since the minimum spend was introduced; and if he will make a statement. [202637]

Kevin Brennan: There is no minimum spend on ingredients requirement for school meals. Food prices vary by region leading to different purchasing power. It is, therefore, for local authorities or, where the budget for school meals is delegated to them, school governing bodies to decide what monies they assign to school lunches. However, the School Food Trust's 2007 annual survey reported an average spend on ingredients of 57p per meal in primary schools.

The Government are taking forward a number of steps to improve school food and help to keep down the price of school meals. We are investing over £650 million between 2005 to 2011 to help raise nutritional standards and keep school lunch prices down. This includes funding to help build kitchens in areas with no kitchen facilities; to better support the development of training centres for the school food workforce; and to improve overall take-up.

Schools: Drinking Water

Sandra Gidley: (1) To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of schools which freely provided fresh drinking water for pupils at the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [201217]

(2) if he will provide grants for schools in England so that modern water coolers can be made available for pupils. [202735]

Jim Knight: The Department has not made an estimate of the number of schools which freely provide fresh drinking water for pupils and has no plans to provide grants to schools in England so that modern water coolers can be made available to pupils.

The Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999 require schools to have a wholesome supply of water for domestic purposes including a supply of drinking water. The responsibility for ensuring compliance with the School Premises regulations rests with local authorities.

The Education (Nutritional Standards and Requirements for School Food) (England) Regulations 2007 require schools to ensure that drinking water is provided free of charge at all times to registered pupils on school premises.

Schools wishing to attain Healthy Schools status must offer easy access to free, clean and palatable drinking water.

Schools: Sustainable Development

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he has taken towards establishing a carbon test for new schools as a supplement to the BRE Environmental Assessment Method rating. [202539]

Jim Knight: The Children's Plan sets out our ambition for newly built schools to be zero carbon by 2016 and contains our current requirement for all newly built schools to reduce carbon emissions by at least 60 per cent. We are in the process of establishing a task force to determine; how to achieve zero carbon schools; whether the timescale is realistic; and how to reduce carbon emissions in the intervening period.

With regard to the current requirement to reduce emissions from new school buildings by 60 per cent. the Department has developed a simple piece of software—the 'carbon calculator'—which estimates the carbon savings and capital costs for a range of low carbon technologies. This allows users to test combinations of potential features for each school's design. The carbon calculator, and guidance on its use, can be downloaded from the Teachernet web-site[1]. Our guidance on how to use the calculator also contains information on a wide range of low carbon technologies. This refers users to other more detailed sources of information on each of these technologies, such as publications or specialist organisations that can provide further technical or financial support.

Our specific measures to address carbon emissions are additional to our requirement for all major school building projects; register for a BREEAM Schools assessment; and aim to achieve a minimum rating of 'very good'.

Secondary Education: Absenteeism

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which secondary schools had an unauthorised absence rate of over (a) 10 and (b) 20 per cent. at the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [201068]

Kevin Brennan: Information on unauthorised absence rate for individual schools are published as part of the Achievement and Attainment Tables which can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/schools_07.shtml

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in developing a new master's-level teaching qualification; and if he will make a statement. [201064]

Jim Knight: Plans for the introduction of a Masters-level qualification in teaching and learning for teachers were set out in "Being the best for our children: Releasing talent for teaching and learning" on 7 March. We propose to begin by targeting the Masters mainly on teachers in the first five years of their careers, building on initial teacher training and induction. The Training and Development Agency for Schools has started to develop the programme, working with social partners: they will commence consultation with schools and higher education institutions on the content of the new qualification in the near future.

Trust Schools

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many trust schools, established or converted under the provisions of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 there were on 1 September 2007, broken down by local authority. [200315]

Jim Knight: As of 1 September 2007, there were 23 trust schools established under the provisions of the Education and Inspections Act 2006. These are broken down as follows by local authority:

Local authority	Number of schools
Bedfordshire	7
Devon	1
Dudley	2
Durham	1
Leeds	5
Northumberland	5
Plymouth	1
Southend on Sea	1
Total	23

Since last September, the number of trust schools has risen to 55, with a further 386 in the pipeline.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefi and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197606]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions is currently sourcing a supplier to offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees. This scheme will support employees in taking greener journeys, by enabling the Department to loan a cycle to an employee, for up to 18 months and is expected to be available by September 2008.

The Department also offers an advance of salary to encourage green commuting. This allows employees to take an advance of their salary of up to £1,000 for the purchase of a cycle or an amount to cover the full cost of an annual public transport season ticket. The amount has to be repaid over the following 12 months and is free of interest. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee.

The Independent Living Fund, which is a non-departmental public body sponsored by DWP, offers staff who wish to purchase a bicycle for the purpose of travelling to work the opportunity to request an advance of salary, which will be recovered in equal payments over a 12 month period.

Departmental Equality

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress his Department has made towards the equality targets set out in its annual report 2007, page 79. [200468]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is set out in the following tables.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on the most recent redesign and implementation of his Departmental website. [200033]

Mrs. McGuire: The most recent redesign of the DWP departmental website www.dwp.gov.uk took place in 2004-05 and cost £101,467.

The work was conducted by the Department's in-house e-communications team and an external supplier.

The external supplier supplier's costs are included in the response; however it has not been possible to quantify the internal costs.

Departmental Manpower

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the number and proportion of his Department's workforce that will be employed in each region in 2009. [200466]

Mrs. McGuire: An estimate of the numbers and proportion of the Department for Work and Pensions workforce that will be employed in each region in 2009 is not available at present.

The Department's three year plan provides an indicative range of headcount reductions for the current Spending Review period and detailed business and regional plans for the period ending 31 March 2009 are currently being developed.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200761]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is held within the principal civil service pensions scheme resource accounts which can be accessed on the civil service pensions website:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200762]

Mrs. McGuire: Information of liabilities in present value terms are held in the principal civil services pension scheme resource accounts (since 2000-01) which can be accessed on the civil service pensions website:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk

However, these are produced under differing sets of assumptions (e.g. on longevity), so are not comparable across years.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200763]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is contained in the Principal Civil Service Pensions scheme resource accounts (since 2000-01) and can be accessed on the civil service pensions website;

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk

Employment: Disabled

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the employment rate of (a) all people and (b) disabled people was in each of the last five years; and what progress has been made towards meeting his Department's public service agreement target 8. [200449]

Mrs. McGuire: The employment rate for disabled people and for all people in each of the last five years is shown in the following table.

Period from April-June	Disabled employment Rate	GB employment Rate	Gap
2003	45.4	74.7	29.3
2004	46.7	74.7	27.9

2006	47.5	74.4	27.0
2007	47.2	74.3	27.1

Information relating to what progress has been made towards meeting this target (and others) is available in the departmental Autumn Performance Report 2007. This is available in the Library and can also be viewed at:

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to move people with disabilities from benefits to employment. [200601]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 23 April 2008]: This Department delivers a range of programmes aimed at helping disabled people remove the barriers that prevent them moving into paid work. During 2006-07, new deal for disabled people enabled over 45,000 people to move from an incapacity benefit to paid work. As of May 2007, 2.64 million people were receiving incapacity benefits, the lowest number for almost eight years. The caseload has dropped by nearly 140,000 since a peak in November 2003.

From October 2008, we are replacing incapacity benefits for new customers with the employment and support allowance. The new benefit, alongside a more robust medical assessment, will focus on what work a person can do, rather than what they cannot. We are also investing over £1 billion in our Pathways to Work programme in the next three years and from April 2008 everyone on incapacity benefits in Great Britain will have access to this programme.

The employment disadvantage experienced by disabled people has declined substantially over time. The difference between the employment rate for disabled people and the overall rate has narrowed from around 35 percentage points in spring 1998 to around 27 percentage points today. However, we know that disabled people are still disadvantaged in the labour market compared with other people. This is why we have significantly improved and extended the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to provide greater protection for disabled people from discrimination in the fields of employment and occupation.

We recently undertook a public consultation on proposals to improve the specialist disability employment services, which includes WORKSTEP, Work Preparation, Access to Work, the Job Introduction Scheme and the Disability Employment Advisory service. These programmes collectively help substantial numbers of disabled people take up or retain paid work rather than resort to benefits.

Health Hazards: Domestic Wastes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment the (a) Health and Safety Executive and (b) Health and Safety Laboratory has made of the risks to refuse handlers of exposure to microbiological hazards from domestic rubbish; and what assessment he has made of the ways in which such risks may be affected by changes in the frequency of collection. [199567]

Mrs. McGuire: Neither the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) nor the Health and Safety Laboratory (HSL) have made an assessment of the microbiological risks that refuse handlers may be exposed to. Health and safety legislation places a duty on employers (including local authorities and waste management companies) to carry out their own assessment of risk from hazards and ensure that the risks to the health and safety of workers and others are controlled so far as is reasonably practicable.

The HSL (in a project jointly commissioned by HSE, DEFRA, Scottish Government and Welsh Assembly Government) have produced information on the hazards associated with refuse collection that can be used by duty holders to help them make their own assessment of risks.

Separate research commissioned by DEFRA found no evidence of additional health risks from fortnightly collections compared with weekly collections.

Incapacity Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of incapacity benefit claimants received the benefit for (a) back pain and (b) repetitive strain injuries in each year since 1980; and if he will make a statement. [200827]

Mrs. McGuire: The diagnosed condition does not of itself confer entitlement to incapacity benefits. Entitlement is dependent upon the medical assessment of incapacity for work, the personal capability assessment, which assesses how a person's condition affects their mental or physical functions.

Information is not available prior to 1995. The available information is in the following table.

Number and proportion of incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance claimants with a primary diagnosis of back pain or repetitive strain injury

Local Authorities: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether (a) town and (b) parish councils are considered public bodies for the purposes of disability discrimination legislation. [201442]

Mrs. McGuire: Section 49A of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 places a statutory duty on every public authority, when carrying out its functions, to have due regard to the need to promote equality of opportunity for disabled people. Town and parish councils as part of our system of local government are public authorities for this purpose of this section.

Similarly, town and parish councils are also considered to be public authorities for the purposes of Sections 21B, 21D and 21E of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, which make it unlawful for public authorities, in the carrying out of their functions, to discriminate against disabled people for a reason related to their disability and place a duty on them to make reasonable adjustments for disabled people.

Maternity Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his estimate is of the number of women who will receive maternity allowance in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; [200575]

(2) what his estimate is of the cost of paying maternity allowance in each year until 2011. [200576]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following tables.

Members: Correspondence

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to answer Question 173276, on customer call centres, tabled on 6 December 2007 by the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne. [190895]

Mrs. McGuire: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 5 March 2008, Official Report, columns 2606-16W.

Social Security Benefits: EU Nationals

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 10 January 2008, Official Report, columns 728-9W, on social security benefits: EU nationals, when he expects to be able to provide the information requested. [200261]

Mrs. McGuire: We are still involved in discussions with the European Commission to clarify the extent of the Government's responsibilities. Until the full implications of the judgment are known, we cannot estimate the additional costs, staffing requirements or the number of additional customers.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will answer Question 177307, tabled on 7 January for answer on 10 January, on the recording of individuals' political opinions. [189881]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 27 February 2008]: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 836W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

China: Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the government of China on the implementation of the one-child policy in Tibet; and if he will make a statement. [201933]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed implementation of China's one child policy specifically in relation to Tibet. However, we do raise our concerns about abuses of the one child policy involving sterilisation and abortions. We did this most recently at the latest round of the UK-China human rights dialogue, which was held in Beijing on 28-31 January. We do not dispute China's right or need to implement family planning policies but we do believe they should be based on the principles of consent and not coercion. We will continue to encourage the Chinese to meet international human rights standards at every appropriate opportunity, both bilaterally and through the EU.

China: Politics and Government

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to encourage the development of democratic government in China. [201620]

Meg Munn: We continue to encourage China's leaders to make the transition to more representative and accountable governance. We welcome the greater democracy at village level in China and encourage China to look positively for ways to extend this sooner rather than later. The UK will continue to support and help shape moves toward greater institutional transparency, access to and respect for the rule of law, and increased participatory governance. We firmly believe democratic reform in China must go hand in hand with economic reform.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197001]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not currently offer a cycle to work scheme to its employees.

Nor does the FCO offer any other tax free benefits in kind to encourage green commuting. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201739]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is working to reduce its energy consumption in line with the new Government targets on sustainable operations on the Government estate announced in June 2006. In the last 12 months, the FCO has:

started to replace its global Information Technology infrastructure with a new system that makes full use of advanced power saving settings and the latest methods for distribution of software updates. Computer base units will no longer need to be fully powered at all times and fewer, and more efficient, printers are being installed; incorporated energy saving measures into the new Information and Communication Technology building at the Hanslope Park site, including solar panels; solar shading on facades to reduce heat gain; high efficiency ammonia refrigeration for the air-conditioning; heat recovery from servers;

continued to work towards improving the energy efficiency of light fittings in the FCO's Main building and Old Admiralty building; begun to replace hand dryers with a more energy efficient model; run campaigns to encourage staff to follow good practice in using energy efficiently and effectively; extended environmental management practices to 20 overseas posts and is preparing to roll these out to a further 50 posts in the next month; agreed and started to implement a framework specifically designed for the FCO, based on the Building Research Establishment's Environmental Assessment Method into new office and residence builds overseas; and opened new office buildings in Doha and Geneva that incorporate energy efficient measures.

The FCO's expenditure on energy since 2006, including value added tax where applicable, totalled:

	UK estate	Overseas estate	Total
2006-07	3,477,450	14,503,743	17,981,193
2007-08	3,104,657	14,726,851	17,831,508

Expenditure on the overseas estate for 2007-08 is provisional.

This represents an overall decrease of £149,685, a reduction in expenditure of 11 per cent. in the UK and just over 1 per cent. overall.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for his Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200006]

Meg Munn: This information is not held centrally. Foreign and Commonwealth Office departments and overseas posts hold their own budgets for public consultations, surveys or questionnaires. A more detailed answer would require a survey of all of our Embassies, High Commissions and subordinate posts, which could only be achieved at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201759]

Meg Munn: Most written parliamentary questions tabled by hon. Members to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs have been answered within five parliamentary sitting days, as shown by the data provided in the table:

	November 2007 to date (22 April 2008)
Number of written parliamentary questions for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office	2,005
Number answered within five parliamentary sitting days	1,519
Percentage answered within five parliamentary sitting days	76

Falun Gong

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of China on the arrests and treatment of Falun Gong practitioners in Guandong province. [201790]

Meg Munn: We remain concerned by reports of the mistreatment of Falun Gong adherents in various provinces of China, particularly those detained in Re-education Through Labour (RTL) camps. We raise our concerns over individual practitioners, and for the need to reform RTL, with the Chinese government at every appropriate opportunity. We did this most recently at the 16th round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing on 28-31 January.

Forced Marriage

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions his Department's Forced Marriage Unit has prevented a British national being forced into marriage overseas in the last 12 months; what work his Department has undertaken with foreign governments on the matter, in particular to provide support for hard to reach victims; and if he will make a statement. [201615]

Meg Munn: In 2007 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office provided overseas consular assistance in 168 cases of suspected forced marriage. The exact nature of this assistance varied on a case-by-case basis. We could not have done this without the support of central Governments and local authorities in the countries concerned, particularly in South Asia. We have worked in partnership at a national, regional and local level to raise awareness of the issue and to build practical co-operation to facilitate our assistance work.

Sudan: Overseas Investment

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what advice his Department provides for firms and financial institutions seeking guidance on the risks of investing in Sudan; and if he will make a statement. [197952]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

UK Trade and Investment provides UK companies with information and guidance on doing business and investing in Sudan via the website at www.uktradeinvest.gov.uk. The UKTI team in the British embassy in Khartoum is able to provide advice and specific guidance on request.

There is currently an EU arms embargo on Sudan. Otherwise normal export control regulations apply to UK companies. The USA has imposed sanctions on Sudan, including a trade embargo, and UK companies need to be aware of this if exported goods or parts of goods are of US origin. Exemptions to US sanctions were made last year for specified regions of Sudan. The UN has imposed sanctions on a small number of Sudanese individuals (travel bans and freezing of assets).

Vietnam: BBC External Services

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with the Head of BBC World Service on the effects of the recent reduction in the number of hours of Vietnamese language programmes. [201583]

Mr. Jim Murphy: There has been no reduction in broadcasting hours of the BBC Vietnamese Service recently. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary therefore has no plans to raise this issue with the Head of the BBC World Service.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments the Big Lottery Fund made to (a) Stategem and (b) Morgan Allen Moore in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202303]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Big Lottery Fund has provided the following information about the dates, amounts and purpose of payments made by them to Strategem and Morgan Allen Moore during the last five years:

Culture: Local Authorities

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what requirements his Department makes of local authorities to produce local cultural strategies; and how many local authorities have submitted such strategies to his Department in each year since 2000. [200297]

Margaret Hodge: We encourage culture to form part of sustainable communities' strategies and regional economic strategies, however we place no statutory duty on local authorities to submit local cultural strategies.

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether (a) his Department and (b) his Department's non-departmental public bodies provide (i) tax-free benefits and (ii) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [197630]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department will be launching the Cycle to Work Scheme on 1 May 2008 and The Royal Parks Agency introduced the scheme in June 2007. The Department also offers staff an interest free advance of salary to assist in the purchase of a bicycle if it is used for work. We do not centrally hold information on schemes run by our NDPBs.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many full-time equivalent employees are employed in his Department's public engagement and recognition unit. [202332]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Public Engagement and Recognition Unit (PERU) was set up on 15 April 2008 as part of the transformation of DCMS following its capability review. Based on an earlier model, PERU brings together a number of functions which were previously spread across policy teams in the Department in order to provide a higher quality service. It is expected that, over time, the centralisation of these functions will enable the service to be delivered more efficiently, and at a lower cost, than before. PERU is responsible for much of the Department's direct communication with the public and Parliament, including correspondence and telephone inquiries, Freedom of Information requests and parliamentary questions. It is also responsible for co-ordinating briefings for Ministers, appointments to public bodies and recommendations for honours.

It currently employs 37.95 full-time equivalent employees.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200731]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most recent information is contained in the scheme's resource accounts. Copies of the accounts are available from the House Library or can be viewed on-line on the Cabinet Office's website using the following link:

http://www.civilservice_pensions.gov.uk/upload/assets/www.civilservice_pensions.gov.uk/publications/csra_2006_2007.pdf

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200732]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information on liabilities in present value terms have been detailed in the scheme's resource accounts since 2000-01, although these are produced under differing sets of assumptions (e.g. on longevity), so are not comparable across years. Copies of the scheme's accounts since 2000-01 are available from the House Library or can be viewed from the following page on the Cabinet Office's website at:

http://www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk/facts_andfigures.aspx

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200733]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most recent information is contained in the scheme's resource accounts. Copies of the accounts are available from the House Library or can be viewed on-line on the Cabinet Office's website using the following link:

http://www.civilservice_pensions.gov.uk/upload/assets/www.civilservice_pensions.gov.uk/publications/csra_2006_2007.pdf

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200735]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is set out in DCMS's resource accounts 2006-07 on pages 26-29. Copies of the accounts are available from the House Library or can be viewed online on the Department for Culture, Media and Sport's website using the following link:

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the budget of his Department's public engagement and recognition unit is for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10. [202333]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Public Engagement and Recognition Unit (PERU) was set up on 15 April 2008 as part of the transformation of DCMS following its capability review. PERU is responsible for much of the Department's direct communication with the public and Parliament, including correspondence and telephone inquiries, Freedom of Information requests and parliamentary questions. It is also responsible for co-ordinating briefings for Ministers, appointments to public bodies and recommendations for honours. Based on an earlier model, PERU brings together a range of functions, which were previously spread across policy teams in the Department, in order to provide a higher quality service. It is expected that, over time, the centralisation of these functions will enable the service to be delivered more efficiently than before.

PTRU'S administration budget for 2008-09 is £1,400,000 and its programme budget is £160,000. The Unit's budget for 2009-10 has not yet been determined.

Digital Broadcasting

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to ensure full television transmission to all people following the digital TV switchover, with particular reference to transmission blind spots; when the process will be complete; and how much it will cost. [202201]

Andy Burnham: At switchover, it is expected that UK wide coverage levels for Digital Terrestrial Television (DTT), will reach that of present analogue services, which is 98.5 per cent. of households. For virtually all other households, there will be other options available, including free-to-view satellite services. The switchover process will be completed by 2012. The costs of building out the transmission network for switchover are being met by broadcasters. These costs are confidential.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of constituencies in which residential areas will no longer be able to receive terrestrial television signals following digital switchover in 2012. [202216]

Andy Burnham: We expect that at switchover the coverage of the public service broadcaster (PSB) multiplexes, via Digital Terrestrial Television (DTT), will match that of the existing analogue services, which is 98.5 per cent. of households.

We do not keep data on a constituency basis.

Mass Media: Apprentices

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the procedure is for people to apply for the media apprenticeships announced by the Secretary of State on 22 February in his publication, Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy. [198382]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 2 April 2008]: The ambition of establishing up to 5,000 apprenticeships in the creative industries is designed to help remove the barriers to entry and diversify the work force. The BBC at mediacityiuk, Tate Liverpool, and Universal Music Group are among the first to sign up to offer high quality training.

The normal procedure is for people to find apprenticeships directly with an employer, or via a training provider, both of whom would carry out usual recruitment activities.

Potential apprentices can find out more information from the Learning and Skills Council or through the apprenticeship website at:

http://www.apprenticeships.org.uk where they can register to receive information on apprenticeships available in their area. The website also identifies other sources of information, such as Connexions and Jobcentre Plus.

Sports: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to achieve the target of increasing private sector funding of sport in 2008-09. [202346]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has developed a commercial strategy to support its target to raise £50 million in private sector funding. This is part of its overall strategy for 2008-11, which is being finalised and is due to be launched shortly.

We are also working closely with UK Sport and others about raising the £100 million private sector funding for elite athletes.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the practices of credit companies in issuing statutory demands to debtors rather than applying for county court judgements; and what assessment he has made of the effect this practice has on levels of bankruptcies. [201397]

Mr. McFadden: A creditor can ask the court to make a bankruptcy order in respect of a debtor on the ground of inability to pay their debts which may be demonstrated on the basis of a failure to comply with a statutory demand, or alternatively that a county court judgment has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part. Both routes are equally acceptable, subject to the proper procedure being followed, and may result in a bankruptcy order being made by the court.

The Insolvency Service does not keep statistics on the number of bankruptcies which arise from either route, either within the credit industry or more widely and the effect of any particular industry practices upon bankruptcy numbers is therefore unknown. However, the number of bankruptcies arising from creditor petitions has remained relatively flat over the past few years.

There are a range of measures in place to reduce the number of individuals who become over-indebted and to support those who have become so. These include the expansion of the National Debtline, which now helps 150,000 clients per year and the face to face debt advice programme.

Billing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Government will issue its response to the billing and metering consultation; and what the reasons are for the time taken to respond. [201887]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government will shortly issue their response to the consultation. Given the importance of this issue, the Government have been concerned that the response, and the material that accompanies it, including the draft Impact Assessment of smart metering, should be as thorough as possible.

Bird and Bird

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what contracts were awarded by his Department to Bird and Bird solicitors in each year since 2005; and what the (a) value and (b) duration of each such contract was. [201637]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that the following amounts have been paid to Bird and Bird solicitors in financial years:

2005-06	79,243
2006-07	219,805
2007-08	106,637

Further information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Certification Officer: Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what pension scheme is offered to staff joining the Office of the Certification Officer; what the rate of employer contributions to the scheme is; and if he will place in the Library details of the terms and benefits of the scheme. [198497]

Mr. McFadden: The Office of the Certification Officer is covered by the civil service pension.

New entrants to the civil service are covered by the civil service pension arrangements. Staff can choose between 'nuvos', a defined benefit pension scheme and 'partnership', a stakeholder pension. If a person is being re-employed, and was previously a member of a civil service pension scheme, they may be able to rejoin their previous scheme, but this will depend on the length of time since they were last employed.

In respect of members of the defined benefit schemes, employer contribution rates are assessed for each of four ranges of pay levels. A separate rate is payable in respect of a group of prison officers who have certain reserved rights.

The rates for 2008-09 are as follows:

Band	Full-time annual salary	Rate from 1 April 2008 (Percentage)
Band 1	£19,500 and under	17.1
Band 2	£19,501 to £40,500	19.5
Band 3	£40,501 to £69,000	23.2
Band 4	£69,001 and above	25.5
Prison officers with reserved rights (pre-fresh start)		26.5

The scheme rules are laid before Parliament and copies are in the House Library.

For members of 'partnership', the employer pays a basic contribution of between 3 per cent. and 12.5 per cent. (depending on the age of the member) into a stakeholder pension product and will match the member's contribution up to a limit of 3 per cent. Employers also contribute a further 0.8 per cent. of pensionable salary to cover the cost of risk benefit cover (death in service and ill health retirement).

Details of the civil service pension arrangements can be found on the civil service pensions website at:

Civil Nuclear Constabulary: Arrests

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many arrests the Civil Nuclear Constabulary have made since 22nd July 2004, broken down by offence; and of those which resulted in a criminal conviction, for which criminal offence each individual was convicted. [201476]

Malcolm Wicks: The CNC was established on 1 April 2005, taking over responsibilities from its predecessor, the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary. Since 22 July 2004 the two forces have conducted 13 arrests where a criminal investigation has been undertaken. The following table provides the associated data:

Civil Nuclear Constabulary: Firearms

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform at which locations under the protection of the Civil Nuclear Constabulary officers are authorised to carry firearms. [201477]

Malcolm Wicks: CNC officers are authorised to carry firearms at any licensed civil nuclear site under their protection, as well as when escorting nuclear material from one location to another.

Civil Nuclear Constabulary: Recruitment

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many applications to join the Civil Nuclear Constabulary have been rejected because the applicant did not meet the criteria set out in personnel security policy in the latest period for which figures are available. [201475]

Malcolm Wicks: The Office for Civil Nuclear Security, who have responsibility for vetting CNC applicants, confirm that all applicants met the criteria set out on the personnel security policy. Therefore CNC have not rejected any applications for this reason.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many applications to join the Civil Nuclear Constabulary in a (a) policing and (b) administrative capacity have been (i) made and (ii) successful since 22nd July 2004. [201515]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 29 April 2008]: The CNC was established on 1 April 2005, therefore the data collated are from this date.

There were 2,929 police applications made, of which 327 were successful, and 1,000 administrative applications, of which 72 were successful.

Community Interest Companies: Pay

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what scrutiny is undertaken of the rates of pay for senior executives of community interest companies to monitor whether such pay is appropriate for the tasks undertaken; and if he will make a statement. [201963]

Mr. Thomas: Every community interest company (CIC) is obliged by section 26 of the Community Interest Company Regulations 2005 (SI 2005/1788) to disclose certain details about its directors' remuneration as part of its annual community interest company report. The decision as to how much an individual director is paid is a matter for each CIC but the functioning of CICs is overseen by the CIC regulator to whom a copy of the community interest company report is sent.

Any person can report their concerns to the CIC regulator if they consider that the CIC's actions appear to be inconsistent with its aim to benefit the community. This includes concerns about remuneration. The regulator has supervisory powers under the Companies (Audit, Investigations and Community Enterprise) Act 2004 to maintain confidence in community interest companies. This includes the power, where appropriate, to investigate the affairs of a community interest company.

Competition Commission: Euro RSCG Apex Communications

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what payments the Competition Commission has made to Euro RSCG Apex Communications in each of the last five years; on what dates and for what purpose in each case. [202272]

Mr. Thomas: The Competition Commission made no payments to Euro RSCG Apex Communications before October 2007. It has since made four payments totalling £11,867.50 for communications advice and support.

Debt Collection: Licensing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will hold discussions with the Office of Fair Trading about the issuing of consumer credit licences to debt collecting companies and ensuring that recipients of licences have a responsibility to check properly the history of those individuals passed onto them to prevent older people who have faced identity theft from being caused distress. [202445]

Mr. Thomas: We have recently given the Office of Fair Trading wider ranging powers to tackle debt collectors. Debt collectors are now subject to greater scrutiny at the licence application stage and greater monitoring throughout the life of the licence. Furthermore, as part of a recently completed investigation, the OFT has issued warnings to 13 companies telling them that they need to take steps to improve their debt collection practices. In particular, the companies involved have specifically been asked to review their policies and procedures for tracing debtors, including keeping client data up to date and maintaining its accuracy.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 75W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199179]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179 and the written ministerial statement made my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and Agencies for the storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected shortly, and this report will detail the information to be included by departments on data loss in their annual reports.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201742]

Mr. Thomas: My Department has recently undertaken energy audits across its estate. Projects identified to reduce carbon emissions include using lighting controls more effectively and piloting the use of light emitting diode (LED) technology. Staff are encouraged to use video conferencing and to consider how they travel to meetings. Bike loans are also available to staff and environmental awareness campaigns are regularly conducted.

My Department's HQ estate expenditure on energy for the last two reportable years was as follows:

2007-08
Electricity	1,572,132.12
Gas	147,783.77
2006-07
Electricity	1,587,809.42
Gas	169,689.90

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what criminal offences have been abolished by primary legislation sponsored by his Department and its predecessors since May 1997. [198287]

Mr. Thomas: This information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its Executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200705]

Mr. Thomas: This information is set out in the Remuneration Report, which is part of the Department's resource accounts. The Department's combined annual departmental report and resource accounts are published in July.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many public consultations were held by his Department and its predecessor in each of the last three years; and how many respondents took part in each consultation. [198639]

Mr. McFadden: BERR makes extensive use of both formal and informal consultation in developing policy. DTI conducted 71 formal written consultations in 2005, 52 in 2006 and DT and BERR conducted 51 in 2007. The number of responses to these questions varied greatly, from under 10 in the case of our consultation published on 6 September 2007 on the Restriction of the Use of Certain Hazardous Substances in Electrical and Electronic Equipment to several thousand in the case of our consultation published on 18 June 2007 on Export Control Legislation. Providing precise response numbers for each of the consultations could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many of his Department's staff took more than (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15, (d) 20, (e) 25, (f) 30, (g) 35 and (h) 40 days leave due to stress in each of the last five years, broken down by pay grade. [198977]

Mr. Thomas: The number of BERR staff who have taken leave due to stress in the last five years, broken down by pay grade is contained in the following tables.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many full-time posts were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in his Department in each of the last three years. [200655]

Mr. Thomas: The Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform does not hold this information centrally. As this would involve manually investigating individual records of temporary staff, the cost of doing this would be disproportionate.

Employment: Immigration

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of immigration on the wages of low-skilled workers; and what steps he is taking to mitigate any negative effects; [201480]

(2) what research he has conducted on the effect of levels of immigration on trends in wage levels; and what steps he is taking to alleviate any negative effects. [201481]

Mr. McFadden: Research conducted by the Department for Work and Pensions in 2006 (DWP Working paper No. 29) found no discernable statistical evidence to suggest that A8 migration has been a contributor to the rise in claimant unemployment in the UK.

With respect to wages, research commissioned by the Low Pay Commission in 2007 (Dustmann et al. 2007) found that immigration had a positive effect on wage growth across the earnings distribution. On average, the research found a slightly positive effect on overall wage growth, but with very modest negative effects on wage growth at the lower end of the distribution. The research also noted that the national minimum wage has played an important role in insulating the wages of low-paid workers from a larger impact.

Energy: EC Law

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will visit a controls manufacturing plant Lot 1 of the Energy-using Products Directive before its implementation. [201014]

Malcolm Wicks: I have no plans for a specific visit for this purpose at the moment, however I am aware that officials from my Department and DEFRA made a visit to the Worcester-Bosch boilers and water heaters manufacturing plant in February this year.

Energy: Meters

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what his policy is on a smart meters mandate, with particular reference to provision at a regional level; [201888]

(2) what discussions he has had with Ofgem on a smart meters mandate; [201889]

(3) what plans he has to encourage the installation of smart meters in (a) new and (b) existing housing stock over the next decade. [201892]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government will seek a power under the Energy Bill that would enable it to make arrangements to roll out smart meters to all households. It intends to use these powers to provide advanced meters to larger business customers, and will take final decisions on wider smart metering thereafter. Ofgem has been closely involved in the work my Department has undertaken on smart meters, including whether and how their provision might be required.

Export Credits Guarantee Department: Sustainable Development

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what timetable he has set for the review of the statutory obligations, policies and operations of the Export Credits Guarantee Department in line with the Government's priorities for (a) sustainable development and (b) climate stability. [201445]

Malcolm Wicks: There is no current plan to review ECGD's statutory obligations, operations or policies insofar as these relate to sustainable development and climate stability. Through its business principles, ECGD has a continuing obligation to take into account Government policies, including those relating to sustainable development and the environment, in processing applications for ECGD support.

Export Credits Guarantee Dept: Standards

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the reviews of the Export Credits Guarantee Department's Case Impact Analysis Process and Business Principles will take place; and what form the public consultation on the procedures will take. [201970]

Malcolm Wicks: There is no plan to review ECGD's business principles in the immediate future.

ECGD's case impact analysis process (CIAP) is to be updated to take account of the revised 2007 OECD common approaches on the environment and officially supported export credits.

Heating: EU Law

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department has carried out an impact assessment of the Energy-using Products Directive on the UK heating controls industry and on employment in the industry. [201013]

Malcolm Wicks: An impact assessment was made by the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) for the Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, which transpose the framework Directive on Energy-using Products (EuP) in the UK. The Commission has yet to table a draft implementing measure and impact assessment for boilers and water heaters, although they have issued a first draft of a working document for discussion. As the initial implementing measures, including that on boilers and water heaters, under the EuP Directive are focused on energy efficiency, it will be for DEFRA to produce any impact assessment as necessary.

Minimum Wage

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps his Department has taken to increase the rate of compliance by employers with national minimum wage legislation. [200552]

Mr. McFadden: Ensuring workers and employers are aware of their rights and responsibilities is key to ensuring workers get the minimum wage due to them. In his pre-Budget report 2006, the Chancellor announced an additional £2.9 million for monitoring and enforcing the minimum wage each year for the next four years. We carried out an extensive awareness campaign this year, including radio, posters and online activity as well as an outreach bus. The focus of our campaigns to raise awareness of national minimum wage and the current rates and ensure workers and employers know where to go for advice or to make a complaint.

We are also taking steps to strengthen the national minimum wage enforcement regime in a Bill which is currently in the House of Lords. Subject to parliamentary approval, the changes proposed in this Bill will provide a clear deterrent to non-compliance: there is a new automatic penalty for employers who fail to pay their workers the national minimum wage and in addition, where workers have been underpaid, employers will have to reimburse them at current, rather than historic rates. The Bill also gives HMRC compliance officers new inspection powers and strengthens the criminal regime that applies where an employer has committed an offence.

Nuclear Decommissioning Authority

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what mechanism he plans to put in place to fund the Nuclear Liabilities Financing Assurance Board; and for what time period board members will be appointed. [202080]

Malcolm Wicks: The terms of reference for the Nuclear Liabilities Financing Assurance Board are currently in development, but will contain information on both funding arrangements and the time period board members will be appointed for. As stated in the "Consultation on Funded Decommissioning Programme Guidance for New Nuclear Power Stations" document, published on 22 February, we expect to publish the terms of reference in Q2 2008.

Post Offices: Closures

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what postal services may be offered by local shops affected by post office closures; [201787]

(2) if he will make it his policy that shops which previously contained post offices be able to continue to offer services provided by those post offices. [201830]

Mr. McFadden: Following closure of a post office under Post Office Ltd.'s Network Change programme, a former sub-postmaster may opt to offer postal and other former post office services through another service provider. But if the option is exercised to offer such services within 12 months of the closure of the post office, the compensation payable is reduced to reflect the potential to retain that income in line with the terms of the agreement between Post Office Ltd. and the National Federation of SubPostmasters.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what estimate he has made of the likely cost of the outreach services to be provided as part of the post office closure programme in (a) the Cotswolds and (b) England. [201788]

(2) what assessment will be made of the adequacy of the outreach activities to be offered in each case where a post office is closed; and what steps will be taken in any circumstances where such services are considered to be inadequate. [201789]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what guidance has been given to shop owners who have agreed to stop providing post office services on the compensation package to which they are entitled. [201792]

Mr. McFadden: The terms on which compensation is payable to sub-postmasters whose offices are closed under Post Office Ltd.'s Network Change programme are those agreed between the company and the National Federation of SubPostmasters.

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he expects an announcement on post office closures in south-west Devon to be made. [201995]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 28 April 2008]: I understand that the public consultation for the Devon area plan proposals will start on 20 May and is expected to finish on 30 June 2008. Post Office Limited aims to announce final decisions three weeks after the end of the consultation period.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) if he will instruct Post Office Ltd to provide Hampshire county council with a statement on the financial viability of specific post office branches scheduled for closure; [202675]

(2) what his policy is on county councils seeking to select post office branches for help to avoid closure; and if he will take steps to assist such councils in obtaining relevant financial information required for this purpose. [202676]

Mr. McFadden [Holding answer 29 April 2008]: The Government have asked Post Office Limited to engage positively with local authorities (or community groups) that wish to fund some continuing service provision where branches are scheduled for closure and where no alternative Outreach service is being provided. At the same time, the Government have made clear that Post Office Limited must ensure that any local funding arrangements do not undermine the sustainability of the wider Post Office network.

Post Offices: PayPoint Machines

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received on the placement of PayPoint machines in the same premises as post offices; what discussions he has had with Post Office Ltd on the subject; and if he will make a statement. [201319]

Mr. McFadden: I have met and corresponded with the chief executive of PayPoint plc on this subject.

I meet regularly with Post Office Ltd to discuss a range of issues, including the services provided at Post Offices. However, the installation of a PayPoint terminal on the private side of a sub postmaster's business is a commercial matter for sub postmasters within the context of the terms of their contract with Post Office Ltd.

Recruitment: Internet

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make an assessment of whether the use of information on social networking sites by employers in their recruitment procedures is likely to result in discriminatory employment practices; and if he will bring forward proposals to prevent employers from making such use of such information. [198785]

Mr. Thomas: We would certainly encourage employers to treat all job applicants courteously, fairly and objectively in their recruitment procedures. People who make information about themselves public on websites do so of their own volition. If a job applicant believes an employer has made use of such information to discriminate against them on one of the protected grounds under discrimination law, it would be open to the applicant to take action.

Regional Development Agencies

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which regional development agencies were represented at one or more political party conference in each year since 2000. [201514]

Renewable Energy: Seas and Oceans

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of (a) the potential to derive energy from ocean swell and (b) designs which are capable of capturing energy from very large ocean swell; and if he will make a statement. [201937]

Malcolm Wicks: The Carbon Trust has estimated that the total resource for, wave and tidal stream/range generation in the UK is around 43 GW. They have estimated that, ultimately, around 15-20 per cent. of the UK's current electricity demand could be supplied by wave and tidal stream technologies. Of this, 10-15 per cent. could be from ocean swell (i.e. wave) energy.

There are a wide range of devices being developed to generate electricity from ocean waves but none has yet progressed to a stage where they are ready for deployment at a commercial scale. The Government have provided support for research and development into wave energy to meet the needs of innovation at all stages of technology readiness. This includes funding through the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council "SuperGen" programme, the Technology Strategy Board, the new Energy Technologies Institute (ETI) and the Carbon Trust. The ETI's first call for expressions of interest, launched in December 2007, included proposals for research into wave and tidal energy.

In addition, BERR has £42 million funding available under the Marine Renewables Deployment Fund to support the commercial demonstration of full scale wave and tidal energy devices. When they are deployed, they will be supported by the renewables obligation, under which they will receive an enhanced level of support.

Government support for wave and tidal energy technologies will be reviewed as part of the UK Renewable Energy Strategy Consultation which is due to be published in the summer.

Renewable Energy: Severn Estuary

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the feasibility study into the options for generating renewable electricity in the Severn Estuary will include assumptions about the price and availability of oil during the construction, operation, decommissioning and removal of each option. [202339]

Malcolm Wicks: Yes we intend to use consistent oil assumptions when comparing options.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will commission a small-scale trial of tidal lagoon technology during the Government's feasibility study into the options for generating renewable electricity in the Severn Estuary. [202340]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government have proposed amendments to the Renewables Obligation to support tidal lagoons and barrages below 1GW. It will be for project developers to obtain the necessary consents and permissions through the usual procedures. The feasibility study will consider tidal lagoons alongside other options.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the feasibility study into the options for generating renewable electricity in the Severn Estuary will take into account the (a) location, (b) size, (c) objective, (d) costs and (e) impacts of the compensatory habitats associated with each option. [202341]

Malcolm Wicks: We will make clear in the options appraisal what assumptions are being made on compensatory habitat.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the feasibility study into the options for generating renewable electricity in the Severn Estuary will consider the (a) methods, (b) resources, (c) assumptions and (d) costs associated with the decommissioning and removal of each option. [202351]

Malcolm Wicks: We will be issuing a call for evidence through the strategic environmental assessment process through which we will ask for details of decommissioning plans for all options.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the feasibility study into the options for generating renewable electricity in the Severn Estuary will consider the latest performance and environmental impact data relating to the Annapolis Royal barrage in Nova Scotia, Canada. [202353]

Malcolm Wicks: The feasibility study will look at the experience of other tidal installations, including Annapolis Royal, recognising the Severn Estuary is not an exact replica of the Bay of Fundy.

Small Businesses: Construction

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to provide loans to small and medium sized enterprises which are construction companies to assist them in meeting the capital costs associated with high energy-efficiency construction projects. [202531]

Mr. Thomas: BERR has no plans to develop loan funds targeted specifically at construction sectors delivering energy-efficiency projects.

Small and medium size businesses operating in construction and energy sectors are already eligible for the Small Firms Loan Guarantee (SFLG), subject to lenders normal lending criteria. This is the Government's principal debt finance instrument, managed as part of BERR's strategy to help businesses to be able to access finance they need. In the Financial Year 2006-07 almost 5 per cent. of the overall distribution of SFLG lending went to businesses operating across construction sectors.

UK/US Defence Technology Co-operation Treaty

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will provide assistance to small and medium-sized businesses to enable them to take advantage of the UK/US Defence Technology Co-operation Treaty. [201578]

Mr. Thomas: A key aim of the US/UK Defence Trade Cooperation Treaty is to remove the administrative burden of applying for and processing US export licences, helping all companies to reduce their costs in this area. Once the treaty is ratified by the United States, the MOD will develop and issue guidance for industry which will be supported by training packages as required. BERR's Export Control Organisation will provide information to business on the interaction between the treaty and UK export controls.

In addition, MOD is working closely with the larger defence companies to find the best ways for their sub-contractors to take advantage of the treaty.

The UKTI Defence and Security Organisation (DSO) will continue to offer support to defence SMEs through its existing Charter scheme. More generally, Business Link has been created to act as the primary channel for all businesses providing them with access to the help and support they need to start and develop their business.

Zurich Financial Services

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department and its predecessors paid to Zurich Financial Services in each year since 1997; and what the purpose of each payment was. [199586]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that the Department and its predecessors have paid the following to Zurich Financial Services since 1997:

	Purpose	Amount (£)
2002	Partnership Fund Grant Payment	14,220
2003	Partnership Fund Grant Payment	7,295

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

BAE Systems

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Solicitor-General what investigations the Serious Fraud Office has conducted into BAE Systems since 2003; and on what date each (a) began and (b) ended. [203343]

The Solicitor-General: There have been five investigations conducted by the Serious Fraud Office into BAE Systems since 2003. All five investigations began on 14 July 2004. The Serious Fraud Office decided to discontinue the investigation into the affairs of BAE Systems as far as they relate to the Al Yamamah defence contract with the Government of Saudi Arabia on 14 December 2006. The other four investigations continue.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force [201732]

David Cairns: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 83 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was nine, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

East of England Development Agency: Fishburn Hedges

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what payments the East of England Development Agency made to Fishburn Hedges in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202251]

Mr. McFadden: Since February 2005, Fishburn Hedges have provided the East of England Development Agency (EEDA) with a wide range of consultancy services in support of EEDA's external communications and campaigns. These services have included campaigns development, design, production, printing, copywriting, database development and public affairs consultancy across the organisation.

Across these services the following total payments were made:

2005	81,905.26
2006	168,483.98
2007	217,230.60
2008	21,240.04

Salmon: Imports

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to maintain the minimum import price for farmed salmon. [202804]

Mr. Thomas: The European Commission is currently conducting an interim review of the anti-dumping measures, in the form of a minimum import price, against imports of farmed salmon from Norway. This Department has contributed fully to this review, working closely with the Scottish Executive, the Irish Government and the EU Salmon Producers Group. In addition, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has spoken on a number of occasions in support of the measures with Peter Mandelson, the European Trade Commissioner, and Alex Salmond, Scottish First Minister. The outcome of the review is expected during May.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Early Day Motions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of the use of early day motions by hon. Members. [201230]

Helen Goodman: As the hon. Member is aware, the use made of early day motions by hon. Members was considered in the Procedure Committee's First Report of Session 2006-07 (HC 513). The Committee identified a number of broad purposes for which EDMs were used, including: expressing opinions on issues of general public interest, continuing a policy debate, giving prominence to a campaign or the work of a pressure group, and highlighting local issues. The Committee recommended against introducing any new restrictions on the permissible subject matter for EDMs.

In their response to the Committee (Cm. 7193) in July 2007, the Government agreed with this approach, noting that > "Members value the breadth of opportunity provided by the right to table an EDM on almost any subject, which enables them to raise a range of constituency or general issues which cannot be raised in other ways".

The Government have not made any separate or further assessment of EDMs.

Members: PICT

Robert Key: To ask the Leader of the House how many computers in hon. Members' offices provided by PICT are marked with the instruction that they are not to be used after 8 May 2008; and if she will make a statement. [202320]

Helen Goodman: Members' computers are included in a Portable Appliances Test (PAT) rolling programme. These appliances are marked with an instruction that they are not to be used after the date by which the next PAT test is scheduled to be completed, in this case 8 May. The programme has commenced in Portcullis House and it is planned to test all appliances prior to the date on each appliance instruction.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Retail Packaging

10. Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government plan to take to reduce the use of packaging by retailers. [202797]

Joan Ruddock: European Packaging Regulations are designed to reduce the amount of packaging used by retailers. But slow progress led to a voluntary agreement between Government and retailers, called the Courtauld Commitment, facilitated by the Waste and Resource Action Programme. This agreement aims this year to halt packaging growth and to make absolute reductions in packaging by 2010.

Foot and Mouth

11. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if the Government will provide compensation to swill-feeders in connection with foot and mouth disease. [202798]

Jonathan Shaw: No. The Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration reported on this issue in December 2007. She concluded that, as the Government have revisited the original decision not to pay compensation many times since 2001, there is no un-remedied injustice which requires reconsideration of the question.

Pitt Review

12. Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how he plans to allocate the £34.5 million to implement the Pitt review's recommendations on flooding. [202799]

Hilary Benn: We have announced an initial provision of £34.5 million funding over the three years to 2010-11 which may be needed to implement the Pitt recommendations. We will determine how this should be spent when we see the final Pitt report and the priorities which it contains.

Newt Populations

13. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what has been spent on relocating newt populations in the last 12 months. [202801]

Joan Ruddock: The costs to individual projects of relocating great crested newt colonies are not centrally recorded; neither is that information collected by Natural England as part of the licensing regime.

Imported Biomass

14. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the sustainability of imported biomass. [202802]

Mr. Woolas: I have regular discussions with my ministerial colleagues about biomass issues.

The UK's Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation came into force on 15 April. Fuel companies must submit reports to the Government on the biofuels they supply, including information on levels of greenhouse gas savings, as well as their environmental and social impacts. This information will be published.

20. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the sustainability of imported biomass. [202809]

Mr. Woolas: I have regular discussions with my ministerial colleagues about biomass issues.

The UK's renewable transport fuel obligation came into force on 15 April. Fuel companies must submit reports to the Government on the biofuels they supply, including information on levels of greenhouse gas savings, as well as their environmental and social impacts. This information will be published.

Nitrate Vulnerable Zones

15. Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on proposals to protect nitrate vulnerable zones. [202803]

Mr. Woolas: The Government sought views on the measures in the revised Nitrates Action Programme through a consultation, which ran from August to December 2007. Over 600 responses were received. A comprehensive report summarising the comments made was published on 19 March and is available on the DEFRA website.

Chewing Gum

16. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will hold discussions with ministerial colleagues in HM Treasury on the use of tax incentives for manufacturers of chewing gum to encourage the development of a biodegradable product. [202805]

Jonathan Shaw: Any decision on taxation is for my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. However, I am not convinced that taxation will solve the problem which is people dropping litter, be it gum or any other type.

I am pleased to see that Nottingham city council is taking part in this year's chewing gum litter awareness campaign.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

17. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues at the Department for Transport on the effect on climate change of transport-related carbon dioxide emissions. [202806]

Hilary Benn: I regularly meet with Department for Transport Ministers to discuss ways that the transport sector can contribute to our commitments to reduce carbon dioxide emissions.

The recently published "Towards a Sustainable Transport System" demonstrates the Government's commitment to ensuring the transport sector plays its full role in tackling climate change.

Ofwat Price Review

18. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on the 2009 Ofwat price review. [202807]

Mr. Woolas: The Department has received a range of views about this.

21. Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the 2009 Ofwat price review. [202810]

Mr. Woolas: The Department has received a range of views about this.

Post-Kyoto Agreement

19. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made on an agreement on climate change since the Bali summit. [202808]

Mr. Woolas: Following the Bali UNFCCC summit all parties to the Convention met in Bangkok last month to agree a workplan for this year on the four areas to be agreed—mitigation, adaptation, technology and finance/investment. In addition ministerial colleagues and I have taken part in several other discussions on achieving a new agreement, including the Major Economies Process, the G8 Gleneagles dialogue and at the OECD. Since Bali I have also had bilateral meetings with many of the key countries to discuss progress.

National Food Supply

22. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure the security of the national food supply. [202811]

Jonathan Shaw: Food security is about ensuring consumers have access to a stable and adequate supply of food. This requires effective risk management and contingency planning, security of our energy supplies, access to food from a variety of sources and a strong food chain and infrastructure.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the revenue raised through modulation of the single farm payment was spent on in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [201608]

Jonathan Shaw: Money raised through modulation of the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) and other direct payments is transferred to Pillar 2 of the Common Agricultural Policy and is used to fund rural development programmes.

Modulation receipts in England from the 2005, 2006 and 2007 SPS schemes years form part of the funding of the England Rural Development Programme 2000-2006 and latterly the Rural Development Programme for England 2007-2013.

Further details on modulation expenditure for 2005-06 and 2006-07 can be found in the England Rural Development Annual Reports on the DEFRA website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/erdp/docs/ann_rep.htm.

The Rural Development Programme for England Annual Report 2007-08 will be available in the summer.

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the value of the modulation element of the single farm payment in England was in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [201610]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table provides total modulation deductions to date for each scheme year of the Single Payment Scheme:

SPS scheme year[1]	£ million[2]
2005	81.47
2006	163.79
2007[3]	251.10

[1] Scheme year refers to claims submitted in that calendar year for which the payment window runs from December to 30 June of the following calendar year.
[2] All figures subject to change as payments are made or adjusted.
[3] Approximately 16 per cent. of the value of 2007 SPS payments remain to be made.

Beekeeping

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department plans to spend on research into bee diseases in the next three years. [202789]

Jonathan Shaw: Detailed allocations for all of DEFRA's programmes have still to be finalised, including those for research. The expectation is that funding for commissioned research into bee health will be around the same level as in previous years. Research priorities are addressed in the draft Bee Health strategy which has been published for public consultation.

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the incidence of disease in the honeybee population. [202800]

Jonathan Shaw: The National Bee Unit operates a statutory inspection programme for American foul brood, European foul brood and exotic pests which have yet to be found in the UK. It is too early to assess disease incidence this season although there are indications of some significant colony losses across the country which are under investigation.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will hold discussions on the new bovine tuberculosis strategy with the RSPCA. [202432]

Jonathan Shaw: The RSPCA is an important stakeholder and we will keep in touch with them as we continue to develop our policies on bovine TB.

British Waterways: Weber Shandwick Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments British Waterways made to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202290]

Jonathan Shaw: British Waterways have made no payments to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in respect of its activities in England and Wales in the last five years.

Carbon Emissions: Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in meeting the National Energy Efficiency Action Plan target of reducing emissions from the UK's residential housing stock by 31 per cent. on 1990 levels by 2020. [202617]

Mr. Woolas: As it is less than a year since the adoption of the action plan it is too soon to assess progress towards the 9 per cent. energy-saving target but there have been significant steps forward in the household sector since the action plan was published. These include the commencement of the carbon emissions reduction target on 1 April and the launch, also on 1 April, of the Green Homes Service with funding of £26 million in 2008-09 to help over two million people in its first year to improve the energy efficiency of their homes, choose lower emissions transport, reduce waste and conserve water.

Carbon Trust: Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments the Carbon Trust made to (a) Citigate Public Affairs, (b) Weber Shandwick Public Affairs and (c) Grayling Political Strategy in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202294]

Mr. Woolas: The Carbon Trust is a private company limited by guarantee.

English Nature: Citigate Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments English Nature made to Citigate Public Affairs in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202295]

Jonathan Shaw: Citigate were contracted to undertake a parliamentary monitoring service for English Nature, and subsequently Natural England (following the merger of the three founding bodies of Natural England on 1 October 2006), for daily monitoring of parliamentary information.

Citigate payments

2003-04	6,606
2004-05	6,859
2005-06	9,224
2006-07	5,640
2007-08	2,350

Farms: Official Visits

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms he has visited since taking up his position, in each Government region; and if he will make a statement. [192899]

Jonathan Shaw: In addition to attending the Royal Show, the Great Yorkshire Show and the Oxford Farming Conference and having a number of meetings with both farmers and their representative bodies, the Secretary of State has visited farms in the following regions:

	Farms
North-west	2
East of England	1
South-west	1
London	1

Flood Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will review the powers and responsibilities of internal drainage boards (IDBs) including the opportunity for areas currently not covered by an IDB to opt in to those services. [202491]

Mr. Woolas: One of Sir Michael Pitt's interim conclusions was that flooding legislation should be updated and streamlined under a single unifying Act of Parliament that, among other outcomes, addresses all sources of flooding, clarifies responsibilities and facilitates flood risk management. DEFRA recognises the force of this argument and is considering current legislation and how it might be improved.

Food: Marketing

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will consider the merits of introducing in England grants for farmers with similar purposes to those of the food processing and marketing grants in place in Wales. [202100]

Jonathan Shaw: Grants for the purposes mentioned by my hon. Friend have already been introduced in England. The Processing and Marketing Grant scheme is an important element in the Rural Development Plan for Wales 2007-13. It is designed to assist in the achievement of improved competitiveness by boosting productivity, creating enhanced added value and applying innovative technology. It is aimed at Welsh farmers, growers, foresters, food and drink manufacturers and processors. Assistance aimed at providing their English counterparts with the same benefits is provided under Axis 1 of the Rural Development Programme for England, which includes a range of measures designed to increase the competitiveness of the agriculture and forestry sectors. The budget for the whole of Axis 1 is some £250 million over the Programming period 2007-13.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will consider the merits of introducing in England a scheme designed to promote the food production industry similar to the True Taste of Wales programme. [202101]

Jonathan Shaw: As part of our programme to support the quality regional food sector in England, DEFRA has provided funding for a number of award schemes with similar objectives to the True Taste of Wales programme. These include:

1. The Guild of Fine Foods Retailers' annual Great Taste Awards and associated promotional events, such as Taste British Gold: a two-week in- store promotion featuring gold winners from the Taste Awards

2. The AA Regional Food Awards aimed at showcasing and encouraging the use of quality regional ingredients and

3. The Daily Telegraph Taste of Britain awards which are a celebration of good quality local and regional British food.

Hunting: Fines

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will introduce measures under the cross-compliance rules governing the common agricultural policy to deduct payments from landowners who have permitted their land to be used for (a) illegal poisoning of birds of prey and (b) hunting with hounds. [201489]

Jonathan Shaw: The cross compliance rules under the common agricultural policy already allow for a reduction in payments for claimants who permit their land to be used for illegal poisoning of birds of prey.

Hunting with hounds on the other hand is not covered by the statutory management requirements nor identified as one of the 'issues' or 'standards' in the good agricultural and environmental condition framework which member states are obliged to consider under the cross compliance rules.

Meat and Livestock Commission: Weber Shandwick Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments the Meat and Livestock Commission made to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202291]

Natural England: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of (a) the adequacy of the Government's funding of Natural England and (b) the effect of funding levels on Natural England's ability to support local groups such as the Stroud Valleys Project in Stroud constituency. [202427]

Jonathan Shaw: We announced core funding of £176 million for Natural England in 2008-09 on 21 February. The board of Natural England consider that to be a good settlement in the current financial climate. Decisions on funding for individual projects and grants are a matter for Natural England and its board.

Securing a healthy natural environment remains a top priority and is one of my Department's two high level goals alongside tackling climate change. Natural England will be a key contributor to this work. I am confident that the budget allocation we have made for this year will enable Natural England to play a major part in delivering those goals.

Natural England: Grayling Political Strategy

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments Natural England made to Grayling Political Strategy in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202296]

Jonathan Shaw: Grayling were contracted by Countryside Agency to run a series of seminars/events in 2004-05 relating to the transfer of responsibilities to other Government Offices and Agencies as a result of the Haskins Review.

Nature Conservation: Climate Change

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to assess the extent of damage to wildlife resulting from the effects of climate change. [202525]

Joan Ruddock: Key impacts of climate change on wildlife have already been observed, including changes in the timings of seasonal events, shifts in the ranges of species, and changes to habitats and ecosystems.

In 2007, the Government responded, with others, by publishing the guidance "Conserving Biodiversity in a Changing Climate" aimed at those planning and delivering wildlife conservation in the UK. The guidance helps conservation practitioners to build capacity to adapt and, amongst other principles, acknowledges the importance of continued monitoring to enable them to identify and respond to the impacts of climate change on wildlife.

DEFRA has an ongoing programme of research to assess the impacts of climate change on biodiversity. Last year the results of two projects were published:

The "MONARCH report (Modelling Natural Resource Responses to Climate Change)" modelled possible changes to some UK species ranges in response to different climate scenarios; and

"England Biodiversity Strategy"—towards adaptation to climate change which reviewed the scientific evidence and summarised the impacts of climate change on the biodiversity of England.

A review of the impacts of climate change on migratory species was published in 2005 and we are currently funding further research into identifying migratory species which could be used as indicators to monitor the effects of climate change. DEFRA has invested in the National Biodiversity Network, the UK Butterfly Monitoring Scheme and the Environmental Change Network which, amongst several other objectives, also provide means of detecting ongoing impacts of climate change on biodiversity.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria were used to determine the membership of (a) the Criteria Proposals Group and (b) the Criteria Review Panel in respect of geological screening criteria for radioactive waste disposal sites developed by his Department. [202081]

Mr. Woolas: The two groups were recruited by the Managing Radioactive Waste Safely programme sponsor bodies (DEFRA, Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, Welsh Assembly Government and Northern Ireland) following discussion with, and nominations by, the learned societies—the Royal Society, the Geological Society and the Royal Academy of Engineering.

DEFRA's Chief Scientific Adviser was also involved and the scientific disciplines sought were geology, hydrogeology and rock mechanics. Membership represented a high calibre mix of academic and industrial practitioners.

A Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM) member participated in the Criteria Proposal Group's work and a technical specialist from the Environment Agency also served on Criteria Review Panel.

Further information on the Groups' work is available on DEFRA's website.

Rights of Way

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Minister authorised the establishment of the Discovering Lost Ways project; and if he will instigate an investigation into the reasons for the project not achieving its objectives. [201791]

Jonathan Shaw: The Countryside Agency established the Discovering Lost Ways (DLW) Project following publication of the Rural White Paper Implementation Plan of March 2001, using funds provided by DEFRA under the authority of the then Environment Minister, my right hon. Friend the Member for Oldham, West and Royton (Mr. Meacher).

Section 53 of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 provided for the extinguishment, in 2026, of public rights of way that existed prior to 1949, unless recorded by 2026 on the definitive map and statement maintained by the highway authority. The DLW project trialled the use of systematic data collection techniques to fulfil the Government's aim as set out in the 2000 Rural White Paper, of recording of such rights before 2026.

Natural England, the successor body to the Countryside Agency, has now reviewed the DLW Project. Its investigations found that even this systematic research approach could not remove the requirement for further detailed research into cases by the highway authority, and for a public inquiry to be held whenever the recording of such a right was opposed. As a result it considers there is no prospect of processing of the evidence collected by the 2026 cut-off date and accordingly Natural England is terminating the research contract. I do not consider any further investigation to be necessary.

Natural England is preparing to convene a Stakeholder Working Group to consider the scope for an agreed package of the reforms in this area. The Government have endorsed this as an appropriate way forward, and will consider any recommendations from the Group in due course, although this does not mean that the Government are, at this stage, committing to further legislative reform. We have written to stakeholders indicating that we will not bring section 53 into effect at least until we know the outcome of this Group's work.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether (a) the Waste and Resources Action Programme and (b) his Department has purchased the Handbook on the implementation of Pay as You Throw as a tool for urban waste management produced by Dresden University of Technology. [202943]

Joan Ruddock: The Library of my Department advises that it has not purchased a copy, however the handbook was considered as part of the report carried out for DEFRA into "Modelling the Impact of Household Charging for Waste in England". This report is available on the DEFRA website.

In addition, the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) informs me that it has not purchased a copy.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Daycare

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of children in lower-income working families accessing child care through extended schools; and what progress is being made towards meeting the sub-target of his Department's Public Service Agreement target 3. [200820]

Mr. Timms: The data requested are not available.

Information relating to what progress has been made towards meeting this public service agreement target is available in the departmental Autumn Performance Report 2007. This is available in the Library and can also be viewed at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/dwp/2007/autumnreport/full-report07.pdf

Figures showing progress towards Public Service Agreement 3 will be available when the results of the 2007 Childcare Survey are published by the Department for Children, Schools and Families later this year.

Disability Living Allowance: Appeals

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length of time for an appeal against refusal of disability living allowance to be determined was in the latest period for which figures are available; what is the longest time a person has been waiting for an appeal to be heard; how many people have been waiting (a) three, (b) six or (c) more than six months for a hearing; and if he will make a statement. [202097]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Information is compiled for appeals against refusal for disability living allowance (DLA) and attendance allowance (AA) together. To separate the two would incur disproportionate cost and therefore the answer has been provided for both DLA and AA.

The table provides an indication of waiting times. These figures may be slightly overstated due to data reconciliation across two different databases.

We are unable to provide the longest waiting time for an appellant in a DLA case as the historical data are not robust due to inconsistencies across the aforementioned two databases.

Disability Living Allowance: Finance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of disability living allowance (a) payments and (b) administration was in each of the last five years. [201465]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 24 April 2008]: Information on administration costs is not available prior to 2006-07. The available information is in the following tables.

Disability living allowance expenditure

Disability Living Allowance: Standards

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to review the (a) effectiveness and (b) administration of the disability living allowance. [201466]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 24 April 2008]: Disability living allowance remains under continual review to ensure that it continues to provide help with the extra costs that people with disabilities face.

We are also continually monitoring the way that disability living allowance is administered to ensure that it continues to meet the needs of our customers.

The introduction of the Pension, Disability and Carers Service will enable us to provide a more integrated and seamless service. We will be introducing a wider programme of reviews and interventions, and will continue to provide improved training for decision-making staff to help ensure the accuracy of disability living allowance awards.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress his Department has made towards improving the accuracy of estimates for the take-up of disability living allowance amongst disabled people. [200784]

Mrs. McGuire: We commissioned the Policy Studies Institute to investigate possible methods of estimating take-up of disability living allowance. Its initial feasibility study was published in July 2007, "The take-up rate of Disability Living Allowance and Attendance Allowance: Feasibility study" DWP report 442 and recommended a survey-based approach, subject to further development and testing of the feasibility. Since then we have commissioned the Policy Studies Institute to continue this approach and work is currently ongoing.

Incapacity Benefits: Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will review the process by which assessments are made of whether people with myalgic encephalopathy may receive benefits; what account the process takes of the rate of successful appeals against decisions to deny benefits in such cases; and if he will make a statement. [201837]

Mrs. McGuire: We have already reviewed the process for assessing whether people with medical conditions, including myalgic encephalopathy, may receive incapacity benefits.

The new work capability assessment for employment and support allowance will be a fair, robust and accurate assessment of limited capability for work which takes account of all conditions, including those that are long-term and that fluctuate such as myalgic encephalopathy.

Updated medical guidance on myalgic encephalopathy for disability living allowance decision makers was published in July 2007. There are no current plans for further revision of the process.

The process for employment and support allowance and disability living allowance does not take account of the rate of successful appeals. However, we will continue to monitor new research and evidence, including relevant case law, in this area.

Industrial Health and Safety

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of work-related major and fatal injuries per 100,000 employees in each year since 2004; and what progress is being made towards meeting his Department's Public Service Agreement target 5. [200822]

Mrs. McGuire: The following table sets out the published statistics for the years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07.The figures for 2007-08 will be published in autumn 2008.

	Rate of reported injury (per 100,000 employees)
	Fatal injury	Major injury	Fatal and major injury
2004-05	0.7	117.9	118.6

The PSA target five is to improve

"By 2008, improve health and safety outcomes in Great Britain through progressive improvement in the control of risk in the workplace".

The PSA target is measured against six sub-targets, including one for fatal and major injuries—a 3 per cent. reduction on the 2004-05 baseline. The HSE publishes a statistics progress report annually. The latest report for the period 2006-07 indicates that for major and fatal injuries HSE is on track to meet the PSA target.

JP Morgan

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department paid to JP Morgan in each year since 1997; and what the purpose of each payment was. [199611]

Mr. Plaskitt: Current DWP records extend back to the 2003-04 financial year.

The annual spend with JP Morgan from 2003-04 is as follows:

2003-04	0.00
2004-05	136.00
2005-06	120.00
2006-07	863.00
2007-08	10,369.00

In all cases, these payments were made in respect of client facing programmes, in particular, Access to Work—Payments for Support Workers.

Information is not available for the period prior to 2003 and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Pension, Disability and Carers Service: Public Appointments

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expenditure his Department incurred in recruiting the chief executive of the Pension, Disability and Carers Service. [199464]

Mrs. McGuire: The expenditure—over and above normal DWP staff time—incurred in recruiting the chief executive of the Pension, Disability and Carers Service was £2,350.

Pensioners: Poverty

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures the Government has implemented to help pensioners out of poverty since 1997. [201558]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government have introduced a number of measures since 1997 to help older people out of poverty. These include the introduction of the minimum income guarantee and its successor pension credit. We have successively raised the standard minimum guarantee in pension credit by earnings in every year since its introduction. For 2008 we raised the standard minimum guarantee to £124.05—an increase of 4.2 per cent.—more than keeping pace with earnings and prices. The value of the safety net we provide for the poorest pensioners has increased by over a third in real terms since 1997.

In addition we have introduced winter fuel payments for those aged 60 or over, with a higher amount for those 80 or over. And we will be making an additional payment for winter 2008-09 of £50 for households with someone aged 60-79 and £100 for those with someone aged 80 or over. We have also introduced free television licences for people aged 75 or over and made above inflation increases in the basic state pension.

Between 1996-97 and 2005-06 the number of pensioners in poverty in the UK, after housing costs, has fallen by over a third from 2.9 million to 1.8 million (measured by 60 per cent. of contemporary median income after housing costs.) Once housing costs are accounted for, pensioners are less likely to be in poverty than the population as a whole.

Our commitments in the Pensions Act 2007 to continue to uprate the pension credit standard minimum guarantee in line with earnings over the long term, and to reintroduce the earnings link to basic state pension from 2012, or by the end of the next parliament, will help secure these gains into the future.

Poverty: Inverness

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) children and (b) pensioners were living in poverty in Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency in each year since 1997. [200084]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available at the constituency level.

Remploy: York

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions who made the decision to close the Remploy factory in York. [202689]

Mrs. McGuire: The closure of Remploy's York factory was included in the Remploy modernisation plan. The modernisation plan was approved by the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and was announced to Parliament on 29 November 2007.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals were working at Remploy in York at the time of its closure. [202690]

Mrs. McGuire: 50 individuals were working at the Remploy factory in York at the time of closure.

Winter Fuel Payments: Disabled

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the cost of extending the winter fuel payment scheme to disabled people under 60 years who are in receipt of (a) the middle or higher rate care component and (b) the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance in each of the next five years. [200574]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Winter fuel payments were created to give pensioners reassurance that they can afford to heat their homes in winter. It is paid in a lump sum each winter to ensure that money is available when fuel bills arrive.

Help is already available through disability benefits and the disability premium in income-related benefits in recognition of the extra costs, including heating, which disabled people may have. The extra heating needs of disabled people by and large, arise all year round, not just in the winter months.

Information is not available in the format requested. Many individuals are in receipt of both a care component and mobility component of disability living allowance (DLA).

The following table details the estimated cost of extending winter fuel payments to individuals in receipt of some combination of the higher or middle rate care component of DLA and/or the higher rate mobility component of DLA or one of these components on its own.

All under 60 (including children)	2008-09 prices (£ million)
Total cost in each year
2008-09	290
2009-10	290
2010-11	290
2011-12	285
2012-13	280
Total cost over five years	1,435

Notes:
1. All figures are rounded to the nearest 5 million.
2. Figures are consistent with Budget 2008 Expenditure Forecasts.
3. Figures are based on DLA liveload forecasts for GB which include some cases where the DLA payment is suspended.
4. Figures above include claimants aged under 60 (including children) with high/middle care and/or high mobility component.
5. It is assumed that each claimant is the sole qualifier in the household and is awarded a winter fuel payment of £200. This is likely to over-estimate the total cost as it does not account for any shared payments.
6. Costs in 2008-09 prices fall over time under the assumption of the winter fuel payment being fixed in cash terms.

Written Questions

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to answer question 162349, tabled by the hon. Member for Hertsmere on 6 November, on national insurance numbers. [171133]

Mr. Timms: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 576-77W.

Mr. Timms: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 579-80W.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012: Education

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on ensuring that the 2012 Olympic Games delivers a lasting educational legacy. [202685]

Tessa Jowell: I have met with the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on a number of occasions to discuss the educational legacy, including the ongoing review of potential options for securing an educational legacy at the site which is currently being led by an independent adviser.

Olympic Games 2012: Land

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what proportion of sites in the post-2012 Olympic Park has been sold off; and if she will make a statement. [203342]

Tessa Jowell: The London Development Agency, who own the Olympic park site have not sold off any proportion of the post 2012 Olympic park.

Olympic Games 2012: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Minister for the Olympics which Welsh companies have registered for the CompeteFor service for the Olympics. [203164]

Tessa Jowell: To the end of April, over 323 Welsh businesses have registered on CompeteFor. The names of individual businesses registered on CompeteFor cannot be placed in the public domain, as the CompeteFor terms and conditions provide confidentiality for users. Of the 323 businesses, over a third have five or less employees, and approximately another third have between five and 30. The remaining have over 30 employees. Most of the registered businesses are limited companies, but there have also been registrations from charities, not-for-profit organisations, sole traders, and partnerships.

The CompeteFor system and the wider 2012 London Business Network have been developed to give businesses up and down the country access to opportunities in the 2012 supply chains. So far the level of take up by Welsh businesses has been low: the 323 figure above represents only 2 per cent. of the total registrations. I would encourage as many Welsh businesses as possible, alongside those in the rest of the UK, to take advantage of these opportunities.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has been given of the time it will take to complete the construction of each aircraft carrier once the physical process of construction has begun. [202673]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 29 April 2008]: Construction of each ship will take an estimated five and a half years.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what British units in the Joint Rapid Reaction Force (JRRF) will be deployed in (a) a JRRF capacity and (b) another capacity between July to December 2008. [201022]

Des Browne: The Joint Rapid Reaction Force is a high readiness contingency capability. As such, it is impossible to predict with certainty which units will be employed on what operations in the second half of this year, as new unforeseen operational requirements may emerge.

Details of the units due to be committed to operations in Iraq and Afghanistan are regularly announced, most recently in my written statement of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 107WS.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many training exercises have been cancelled because of equipment shortages in each year since 2005. [200933]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since 2005, no training exercises have been cancelled due to equipment shortages.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) name, (b) location and (c) purpose was of each military exercise held in (i) Canada, (ii) Alaska, (iii) Norway, (iv) Iceland, (v) Greenland and (vi) Russia in which British forces have participated in each year since 1997. [200964]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 14 March 2008, Official Report, column 714W, on armoured fighting vehicles, if he will publish additional figures on (a) time in use and (b) mileage coverage. [201414]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Estates: Charities

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been paid to his Department by charity organisations for the use of its property in each year since 1997. [202384]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence: Expenditure

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how much in near cash terms his Department spent on urgent operational requirements in each year from 2001-02 to 2006-07; [178511]

(2) how much has been spent on urgent operational requirements in each year since 2001. [196598]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given in another place by my noble Friend, Baroness Taylor, on 14 December 2007, Official Report, House of Lords, column WA85, for the cost of urgent operational requirements approved from 2002 to 2007. UORs approvals for 2007-08 are some £1.6 billion. Full figures for UORs approved in 2001-02 are not held centrally.

European Fighter Aircraft: Costs

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the effect on the public purse of halting further development of the Typhoon Eurofighter. [200539]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No such estimate has been made. The continuing development of Typhoon is necessary to ensure that the aircraft retains its operational edge over its entire planned service life.

Fleet Air Arm: Military Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Fleet Air Arm aircraft were operational at the latest date for which figures are available, broken down by aircraft type. [200303]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Lynx, Merlin and Sea King Mk7 and Mark 4 helicopters are currently deployed overseas on operations. I am withholding information on specific numbers as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what estimate he has made of strength of the (a) 10th and (b) 14th divisions of the Iraqi Army; [200957]

(2) what assessment he has made of the capability of the (a) 10th and (b) 14th divisions of the Iraqi Army to conduct autonomous operations. [200958]

Des Browne: 10th Division Iraqi Army continues to demonstrate its ability to conduct autonomous operations within Multi National Division (South East). The current strength is around 11,300 personnel.

14th Division is making good progress in strengthening its ability to operate either with or without coalition support, although further work is required to develop its capabilities, not least given that it was only formally established in September 2007. The current strength is around 8,400 personnel. UK Military Transition Teams are providing further advice and support to 14th Division to enhance their operational capability.

Lynx Helicopters

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when a decision will be made on whether to proceed with the future Lynx project. [202321]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department's future plans are under consideration in the current planning round. Any decisions affecting Future Lynx will be announced at the appropriate moment.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration was given to the role of helicopter engineering as a part of the UK's key technologies and capabilities during the production of the Defence Industrial Strategy White Paper. [202322]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Helicopter engineering was considered during the writing of both the Defence Industrial Strategy and Defence Technology Strategy. The White Paper "Defence Industrial Strategy" (Cm 6697) listed helicopter systems engineering as one of the skills necessary to support existing capabilities in the sector. This is also covered in the Defence Technology Strategy. A copy of both strategies is available in the Library of the House.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Cricket: Broadcasting

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had on the broadcasting of Test match cricket for the period from 2010 with representatives of the English cricket squad. [202350]

Andy Burnham: I have had no discussions on the broadcasting of test match cricket for the period from 2010 with representatives of the English cricket squad.

Digital Broadcasting

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government is taking to ensure that households (a) nationally and (b) in West Lancashire constituency will be able to receive terrestrial television signals following digital switchover in 2012. [202215]

Andy Burnham: We do not hold television coverage figures for individual constituencies. However, at switchover, it is expected that UK wide coverage levels for digital terrestrial television (DTT), will reach that of present analogue services, which is 98.5 per cent. of households.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of adding the return path function to the set-top box as part of the digital switchover help scheme; [202845]

(2) what assessment he has made of the proposal that the next wave of the digital switchover help scheme procurement process should include an invitation to market test return path capability. [202846]

Andy Burnham: The Emerging Technologies Group (ETG) is responsible for keeping the core receiver requirements for the digital switchover help scheme (DSHS) under review. In recent weeks the ETG has been considering the viability of including return path capability in the DSHS set-top-box. There are however, a number of concerns about this vision, the main one being that there is not an open standard for return paths. The ETG proposes therefore to establish a dialogue with manufactures to explore the scope for the development of an open standard before taking a view on the most practical and economic way forward.

Pubwatch

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support his Department provides for the Pubwatch scheme. [203170]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not provide financial support for Pubwatch schemes. The Statutory Guidance, issued under Section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003, encourages licensing authorities, the police and other agencies to recognise the value of Pubwatch schemes and explicitly asks them to support Pubwatch aims.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Pubwatch scheme in reducing the number of occasions when licensing laws are breached. [203171]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No assessment has been made. However, we believe that national and local Pubwatch schemes make an important contribution to improved partnership working between the pub industry and the police in tackling alcohol related crime and disorder.

TRANSPORT

A1: Tree Planting

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the number of trees planted in Elmet constituency as a result of the upgrading of the A1 and associated works. [203334]

Mr. Tom Harris: The number of trees planted in Elmet constituency by the Highways Agency, following the upgrading of the A1 and associated works, is a total of 53,805.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what meetings she or her Ministers have had with Members of the Welsh Assembly Government on cross-border concessionary bus travel since January 2007; [200060]

(2) if she will place in the Library copies of (a) letters and (b) emails between Ministers in her Department and the Welsh Assembly Government on cross border concessionary bus travel since January 2007. [200061]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 21 April 2008]: I have not held meetings with Members of the National Assembly for Wales about cross-border concessionary travel between England and Wales, nor has the Secretary of State. The Government's priority has been the implementation of the new England-wide bus concession which came into effect on 1 April. Concessionary travel is a devolved policy area so the schemes in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland differ from the arrangements in England.

Regarding correspondence about cross-border concessionary travel between England and Wales, in August 2007 I wrote to the Deputy First Minister (Minister for the Environment and Transport) of the Welsh Assembly Government about plans for the commencement of the Concessionary Bus Travel Act 2007.

Officials in the Department for Transport corresponded with their counterparts in Wales during the development of the Concessionary Bus Travel Bill, which received Royal Assent in July 2007, and at this time held discussions with the Welsh Assembly Government about reciprocal arrangements for concessionary travel. There are considerable financial implications which would need to be resolved before mutual recognition could be pursued, although local authorities may continue with any current cross-border arrangements.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many freedom of information requests made to her Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201729]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm.

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 90 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 205, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what her most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which her Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200696]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which her Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91; [200697]

(3) what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which her Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if she will make a statement; [200698]

(4) expenditure would be from increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which her Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if she will make a statement. [200699]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has no responsibility for any public sector pension schemes.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in her Department and its executive agencies; and if she will make a statement. [200700]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The cash equivalent transfer value of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in the Department for Transport and its executive agencies is £6,205,505. Much of the detail of this is set out in the Remuneration Report, which is part of the Department's accounts.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer of 28 January 2008, Official Report, columns 43-44W, on departmental telephone services, how much money (a) her Department and (b) its agencies raised from 0845 and similar cost telephone lines in each of the last 10 years. [193990]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The money raised by the Department for Transport and its agencies from 0845 and similar cost telephone lines since the Department was formed in 2002 is set out in the following table. All of these telephone lines are either revenue neutral or the money raised is less than the cost of the service.

Freight: EU Law

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proposals are being discussed at an EU level on liberalisation of the haulage industry. [202980]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In May 2007 the European Commission published a proposal for a regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council on access to the market in the carriage of goods by road within the Community to or from the territory of a member state or passing across the territory of one or more member states (recast).

On 7 December 2007 the Department for Transport (DFT) launched a formal consultation on this proposal. The Consultation Document and the DFT response to consultation replies can be found on the DFT website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/closed/euroadtransportproposals/

Heavy Goods Vehicles

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) UK and (b) non-UK registered vehicles between 41 and 44 tonnes (i) entered and (ii) exited the UK in each year since 2004. [202979]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested by vehicle size is not centrally available. Annual figures on the number of UK registered and non-UK registered heavy goods vehicles leaving the country for 2007 and earlier will be published in the statistical bulletin 'Road Goods Vehicles Travelling to Mainland Europe' on 22 May 2008.

Hire and Reward Licences

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many UK international hire and reward licences were awarded for (a) 2004, (b) 2005, (c) 2006, (d) 2007 and (e) 2008. [202978]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) has awarded the following number of International hire and reward licences:

Standard international hire and reward licences in issue

	Goods granted	PSV granted	Total
2003-04	722	163	885
2004-05	839	152	991
2005-06	753	153	906
2006-07	645	117	762
2007-08	559	98	657

Lorries

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in implementing the Government's proposal to charge foreign-registered lorries which use British roads a contribution towards the costs of road maintenance. [202143]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1890W.

Motor Vehicles: Petrol Alternatives

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 2212W, on motor vehicles: petrol alternatives, what her estimate is of the number of forecourts that provide bio-ethanol (E85) for motor vehicles for (a) commercial vehicles and (b) private vehicles. [203166]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are 23 bio-ethanol refuelling stations in the UK. This information is gathered by the Energy Saving Trust and is not held centrally by Government. It does not differentiate between facilities for commercial and private vehicles.

Current figures are available on the Energy Saving Trust website at www.est.org.uk.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 2212W, on motor vehicles: petrol alternatives, how many infrastructure grants have been given to assist the building of refuelling stations (a) in total, (b) for natural gas/bio gas, (c) for hydrogen and (d) for bio-ethanol. [203167]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since the infrastructure grant programme was launched in 2005 there have been 23 grants given for all station types. They are broken down as:

natural gas/biogas—five grants awarded;

hydrogen—no grants awarded;

bio-ethanol (E85 and E95)—three grants awarded.

The remaining grants were for electric recharging stations.

The grants equated to the following numbers of stations:

Fuel type	Number of stations funded	Total funding (£000)
Biogas	1	362
Electric	82	171
E85 Bio-ethanol	18	128
E95 Bio-ethanol	1	33
Natural gas	4	154
Total	106	847

Parking: Data Protection

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to ensure that car park management companies which are not members of the British Parking Association, and are therefore not required to comply with the industry code of practice for parking enforcement, are not given access to personal data by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. [203173]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The requirement for private car parking companies who submit requests for vehicle keeper information via electronic channels to be a member of an Accredited Trade Association (ATA) was introduced following public consultation in 2006. The British Parking Association is the only existing ATA for the parking industry. Following the consultation, it was not considered necessary to extend this requirement to those who apply via the manual, paper-based channels due to the fact that each application is considered individually and additional evidence that must be provided.

DVLA will shortly be undertaking a review of all the new measures introduced in 2006. This review will consider the effectiveness of the current requirements, and all other options available.

Railways: Bicycles

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to encourage train operating companies to allow greater accommodation for cyclists and their bicycles on trains. [202910]

Mr. Tom Harris: We continue to encourage train operators to carry bikes on trains where possible. The Department for Transport's Cycling Policy document and the rail strategy White Paper published last year set out our policy: train operators should facilitate the carriage of cycles on off-peak services and accept the folding cycles at all times. However, during the peak hours, where capacity is under pressure, it can be in the interests of the majority of passengers not to permit non-folding cycles on board. It is for individual train operators to determine which services cannot accommodate non-folding bicycles and of course to determine the number of bikes which can be carried at other times.

We want all TOCs to take into account the wider benefits of cycling when considering both investments in cycle facilities and their own rules for carrying cycles. This is particularly important when procuring new rolling stock where space for bicycles must be considered.

The White Paper also announced the setting up of a Task Force to look into how bike and rail journeys can be better integrated. The Task Force which includes ATOC, Network Rail, Passenger Focus and Cycling England have begun their work and I look forward to hearing about their progress.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents resulting in (a) injury and (b) death occurred in each year since 2001. [203234]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents resulting in (a) injury and (b) death in Great Britain from 2001 to 2006 are shown in the table.

	Number of accidents resulting in Injury[1]	Death[2]	Total
2001	225,838	3,176	229,014
2002	218,627	3,124	221,751
2003	210,783	3,247	214,030
2004	204,432	2,978	207,410
2005	195,822	2,913	198,735
2006	186,235	2,926	189,161

[1] Seriously or slightly injured.
[2] An accident is classified according to the severity of the most severely injured casualty. A fatal accident may therefore also include seriously or slightly injured casualties.

The number of reported personal injury road accidents, by severity from 1979 to 2006 are also available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/172974/173025/221412/221549/227755/315281/personalinjury.xls.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much money was spent on road (a) maintenance and (b) construction in each of the last five years. [202233]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The available expenditure data on road expenditure covers both new construction and structural maintenance and does not enable new road construction to be identified as a separated category. The total expenditure on road infrastructure in Great Britain by central and local government for the last five years for which figures are available is given in the following table together with the figures for road maintenance.

Table: Investment in road infrastructure and maintenance

£ million

	Total investment in road infrastructure[1,2] Great Britain	Total road maintenance[3] Great Britain
2001-02	3,688	3,386
2002-03	3,955	3,729
2003-04	3,621	3,999
2004-05	4,126	4,221
2005-06	4,406	4,414

[1] Includes some private investment in road infrastructure, using private public finance contracts.
[2] These figures cover new construction, improvements and structural maintenance but exclude routine maintenance.
[3] Includes some structural maintenance.
Source:
Central and Local Government expenditure in England, Scotland and Wales

Road investment given in the aforementioned table relates to gross capital expenditure on national and local roads. This information is published in Table 1.14 in "Transport Statistics in Great Britain 2007 Edition" (TSGB) which is available on the Department for Transport's website (www.dft.gov.uk).

Information on expenditure on road maintenance for England and Wales is published in the "National Road Maintenance Condition Survey 2006", which is also available on the Department for Transport's website. Data for Scotland are published in "Scottish Transport Statistics 2007 Edition" by the Scottish Executive available on their website (www.scotland.gov.uk). These sources identify expenditure on structural and routine maintenance, but overlaps in definition mean that there is some double counting with the investment data from Table 1.14 from TSGB.

In 2006 there was an estimated 398 thousand kilometres of road in Great Britain. Central Government is responsible for the Strategic Road network made up of the Motorways and Trunk A Roads which is about 3 per cent. of this total. The remainder of the public road network is the responsibility of local authorities.

Roads: Tolls

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has to involve local authorities in her Department's plans for (a) a national road pricing scheme and (b) technology pilots for a national scheme. [199512]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No decisions have been taken on a national road pricing scheme. We are committed to examining the technology to see whether we can address people's real concerns about privacy and accuracy. We have invited the private sector to demonstrate how they might run a system of charging for road use according to time of day and route chosen. It is too early to say how local authorities might be involved.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of commercially available speed camera detection systems. [203232]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has not assessed the effectiveness of commercially available speed camera detection systems. However, the Road Safety Act 2006 gives the Secretary of State the power to prohibit by regulations a vehicle being fitted with, or a person using a vehicle carrying speed assessment equipment detection devices. The Government have always made clear that they do not intend to prohibit the use of purely GPS-based devices which identify the location of cameras through publicly available information. They do however wish to prevent the carriage and use of devices which detect or interfere with the operation of speed measuring equipment through other means. The actual devices to be covered by the ban will be the subject of full public consultation before the associated secondary legislation is laid before Parliament.

Transport: North West

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the per capita spending was from the public purse on (a) roads, (b) buses, (c) railways, (d) cycling, (e) walking and (e) air travel in each parliamentary constituency in the north-west in each year since 1997. [202730]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 April 2008]: These data are not available centrally.

Spending for transport is financed by both central and local government. Information is not available at parliamentary constituency level. Spending by local authorities is collected by Communities and Local Government and relevant data can be found at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/lgfs/2007/.

Some figures on central Government spending (including grant to local authorities) are available for Government office regional level from the Country and Regional Analysis of the Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis carried out by the HM Treasury and can be found at:

http://www.hmtreasury.gov.uk/economic_data_and_tools/finance_spendingstatistics/pes_cra/country_region.cfm

Wheelchairs: Accidents

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were (a) killed, (b) seriously injured and (c) slightly injured in accidents involving powered wheelchairs and mobility scooters in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [202123]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The Department for Transport does not currently collect national data on the number of accidents involving powered wheelchairs and mobility scooters.

In 2006, the Department published research into the use of Class 2 and Class 3 mobility scooters and powered wheelchairs. The research concluded that mobility scooters do not have a significant impact upon safety. However, as mobility scooter usage is likely to increase in the future, the Department is monitoring policy in this area.

HEALTH

Continuing Care: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received continuing care in Suffolk in each of the last five years. [201498]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of people who received continuing care in the Suffolk Primary Care Trust (PCT) area in each of the last five years can be found in the following table.

Organisation	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Central Suffolk PCT	No data	52	26	8	n/a
Ipswich PCT	No data	100	45	34	n/a
Suffolk Coastal PCT	No data	12	15	11	n/a
Suffolk PCT	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	57
Suffolk West PCT	4	1	17	17	n/a n/a = Not applicable

Notes:

1. In 2002-03 not all PCTs submitted data. These organisations have been marked as 'no data'.
2. The data are from a snapshot carried out in quarter 4 each year.
3. The data relate to organisations as they existed at the time of the collection. Suffolk Coastal PCT, Ipswich PCT, Central Suffolk PCT and Suffolk West PCT merged to form Suffolk PCT on 1 October 2006.

Dental Services

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists have been issued with negative schedule letters as a result of negative schedule audits in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2006-07; how much dentists were required to pay to the NHS Business Services Authority's Dental Practice Division in each year; and if he will make a statement. [202098]

Ann Keen: Only dental providers hold contracts with the national health service. Many dentists are not contract holders themselves but work under contract to lead providers. Information on the number of dental providers who have individually received a letter in 2006-07 and 2007-08 is available but could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 200W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199176]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179 and the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Edward Miliband) on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected spring 2008, and this report will detail the information to be included by Departments on data loss in their annual reports.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201760]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects of the Food Supplements Directive on the availability of high potency supplements in the UK. [202131]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Supplements Directive includes provisions for setting maximum levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements. Proposals from the European Commission for setting levels are not expected until early 2009. No assessment has been made of the effects of the Food Supplements Directive on the availability of high potency supplements in the United Kingdom. However, the Food Standards Agency is currently developing an initial impact assessment with input from the UK food supplements industry to assess the effects of future proposals for setting maximum levels of vitamins and minerals in food supplements, including high potency supplements, under the Food Supplements Directive 2002/46/EC.

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199189]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is the policy of the Department to provide all publications in electronic format at www.dh.gov.uk, or in the case of internal publications, the departmental intranet, Delphi. The only exception to this is the all-staff magazine, LINK, which is distributed monthly in hard copy via internal post.

For correspondence from members of the public, the answer is given electronically if received electronically and likewise given in hard copy if received that way. Currently, where hon. Members write to Ministers, even if electronically, the Department always responds with a hard copy.

Fluoxetine: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in Suffolk have been prescribed fluoxetine in each of the last five years. [201495]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not collected centrally about the number of patients who are prescribed particular drugs. The following table shows the number of prescriptions dispensed for fluoxetine for the primary care trusts (PCTs) that cover Suffolk from 2003-04 to 2007-08.

Number of prescriptions dispensed for fluoxetine in Suffolk

Financial year	Number of items dispensed
2003-04	65,945
2004-05	64,486
2005-06	66,258
2006-07	62,364
2007-08	53,688

Notes:

1. For the years 2003-04 to 2005-06, the figure for Suffolk is a combination of the figures for Central Suffolk PCT, Ipswich PCT, Suffolk Coastal PCT, Suffolk West PCT and Waveney PCT.
For the year 2006-07, where PCTs were reorganised in October 2006, the figure for Suffolk is a combination of the figures for the old PCTs listed above and the new Suffolk PCT. For the financial year 2007-08, the figure is for the new Suffolk PCT alone.
2. The figure for 2006-07 does not include prescribing in the area of the former Waveney PCT after October 2006, when the PCT joined the former Great Yarmouth Teaching PCT to become Great Yarmouth and Waveney PCT.
3. The figure for 2007-08 includes prescribing for 11 months only (April 2007 to February 2008). Data for the remaining month are not yet available. This figure also excludes prescribing from the former Waveney PCT area, which now forms part of Great Yarmouth and Waveney PCT.
4. The PACT system covers prescriptions by general practitioners, nurses, pharmacists and others in England and dispensed in the community in the UK. For data at PCT level, prescriptions written by a prescriber located in a particular PCT but dispensed outside that PCT will be included in the PCT in which the prescriber is based. Prescriptions written in England but dispensed outside England are included. Prescriptions written in hospitals/clinics that are dispensed in the community, prescriptions dispensed in hospitals and private prescriptions are not included in PACT data. It is important to note this as some British National Formulary (BNF) sections have a high proportion of prescriptions written in hospitals that are dispensed in the community. For example, BNF chapter 4, "Central Nervous System", has a proportion of items written in mental health clinics that are dispensed in the community—these prescriptions are not included in PACT data.

Folic Acid: Flour

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has received representations from low-volume millers on the application of mandatory fortification with folic acid of bread and flour; and if he will make a statement. [202431]

Dawn Primarolo: Prior to the Food Standards Agency (FSA) Board's recommendation for mandatory fortification of flour or bread with folic acid in 2007, a full public consultation was held, enabling a broad range of views to be taken into account. Low volume millers responded to the consultation directly and were also represented via trade associations such as the National Association of British and Irish Millers (NABIM).

Before and following the consultation, FSA officials held regular meetings with NABIM to collect information and inform industry about latest developments in this area.

Food Standards Agency: Edelman

Hospitals: Construction

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many new hospitals were commissioned in each of the last five years; and how many of them were commissioned under the private finance initiative model; [202532]

(2) how many hospital extensions were commissioned in each of the last five years; and how many of them were commissioned under the private finance initiative model. [202533]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following tables give details of new hospital schemes (both private finance initiative (PFI) and public capital) which have reached financial close in each of the last five financial years (i.e. starting from 1 April 2003). Summarised descriptions are held centrally for each scheme and are provided, but these do not include details as to which included or comprised an extension to existing facilities.

We have interpreted "commissioned" as meaning when a scheme signs a contract and begins construction.

Meat Hygiene Service: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much public funding the Meat Hygiene Service has received in each of the last three years; and how much funding it is proposed to receive in 2008-09. [201172]

Dawn Primarolo: The actual net funding cost of the Meat Hygiene Service (MHS), after charges to industry and Government customers, for the last three financial years together with the provision for 2008-09 (before any exceptional restructuring costs) is listed as follows:

	Net operating costs (£ million)
2005-06	31.6
2006-07	33.3
2007-08	42.0
2008-09	32.0

The increased MHS net operating cost in 2007-08 resulted from an MHS Transformation Programme that will implement service delivery changes for all MHS customers. This transformation is continuing into 2008-09 and will reduce future costs. During 2007-08, exceptional transformation costs of £10.8 million were incurred mainly relating to redundancy and redeployment costs. In addition to the projected net operating cost of £32 million in 2008-09, we expect further exceptional transformation costs of up to £8 million.

Medical Records: Databases

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how often data records registered on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) are updated. [200885]

Mr. Bradshaw: Data records held by the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (NHAIS) are updated electronically on each occasion whenever a business event occurs that requires data to be updated. Nationally, approximately 60,000 patient demographic changes including new registrations, amendments and deductions are made on the NHAIS patient database each working day. Examples include when a patient advises his or her general practitioner practice of a change of home address or change of name following marriage or divorce; or when the NHS Central Register advises NHAIS of the death of a patient following the death being formally recorded by a registrar of births, marriages and deaths.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) surveys and (b) consultations used contact details from the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08. [200886]

Mr. Bradshaw: Available information relates only to surveys that have been commissioned directly by the Department. Information is not held centrally about surveys or consultations by primary care trusts (PCTs) or national health service shared services agencies using locally held data.

Surveys conducted on that basis were:

the national PCT survey (2003-04 to 2007-08 inclusive);

the national patient experience survey (2006-07 and 2007-08);

the general practitioner patient survey (2006-07 and 2007-08);

Yorkshire and Humber adult dental survey (2007-08); and no consultations were conducted on that basis in the years concerned.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how data are gathered by primary care trusts for inclusion on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) system. [200887]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts (PCTs) are legally required to maintain a register of patients registered with a general practitioner's (GP's) practice according to the patient's registered address. This legal requirement for a register is met by the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (NHAIS) patient database.

Most GP practices have a computer system that is linked to local NHAIS systems. Each new patient registration, and all patient demographic changes, are recorded by practice staff, and these changes are notified electronically to the relevant local NHAIS system in order to maintain the patient registers. Non-computerised practices support the maintenance of the NHAIS systems by the provision of paper-based forms.

NHAIS systems also receive data about patient deaths, patients moving permanently to reside overseas, people moving into the armed services, and removals from the NHS Central Register which is operated by the Information Centre for health and social care.

Medical Treatments

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are taken to ensure that hospital consultants are aware of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence decisions on use of specific treatments in the consultants' area of specialism. [203174]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) issues quick reference guides to national health service consultants in the relevant specialty, which summarise the conclusions in its guidance. NICE also provides a wide range of practical support through its web-based tools (for example audit criteria) aimed at aiding local implementation. Further information can be found on NICE'S website at:

www.nice.org.uk/usingguidance/implementationtools/howtoguide/145how_to_guide.jsp

Medicine: Research

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding has been provided for research into (a) heart disease, (b) stroke and (c) dementia in each of the last five years; and what percentage of the medical and health research budget this represented in each year. [202151]

Dawn Primarolo: The available information is shown in the following table.

£ million

	Department		Medical Research Council (MRC)
	Coronary heart disease	Dementia	Cardiovascular research	Dementia	Stroke
2001-02	n/a	2.9	n/a	6.6	3.9

2004-05	60.6	19	9.7	6.2	3.1
2005-06	60.1	18.3	15.6	6	4.7

n/a = not available

Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's research and development budget has been allocated to and managed by national health service organisations. These organisations have accounted for their use of the allocations received from the Department in an annual research and development report. From 2002-03, the reports have identified total, aggregated expenditure on a number of priority areas including coronary heart disease and, from 2004-05, dementia; but not stroke.

The Departmental figures for dementia for the years from 2001-02 to 2003-04 relate only to national research programme expenditure.

The MRC is one of the main agencies through which the Government supports biomedical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

In the absence of a complete set of expenditure data, a comparison with total research and development budgets has not been made.

NHS: Finance

John Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress is being made in the review by the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation of the formula used for revenue allocations; and if he will make a statement. [203314]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation has completed its review of the weighted capitation formula used to inform revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs). Ministers are now considering these recommendations and we are planning to announce the outcome alongside allocations to PCTs for 2009-10 and 2010-11 in the summer.

Parkinson's Disease

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the adequacy of training given to staff in residential care homes on dealing with residents with Parkinson's disease. [202452]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is the responsibility of social care service providers to ensure that their employees are suitably qualified and competent to carry out the duties they are employed to do.

Joint health and social care national occupational standards set out the skills, knowledge and values required and are used as benchmarks for national vocational qualifications (NVQs).

The knowledge set for NVQs is job specific and care home workers who are working with residents with Parkinson's, on a regular basis, should have a basic knowledge of the disease as part of their training.

Salt: Health Hazards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the scientific basis is for the Food Standards Agency's campaign to reduce hypertension by lowering salt intake; and how much the campaign has cost. [202441]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency's campaign to reduce salt intakes is based on advice from the Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition (SACN) which is published in their report, Salt and Health (2003). Copies of this publication are available in the Library. SACN considered a wide range of evidence for the relationship between salt and hypertension and concluded that a reduction in the average population salt intake would proportionally lower population average blood pressure levels and confer significant public health benefits by contributing to a decrease in the burden of cardiovascular disease.

The total cost of the campaign (January 2004 to March 2008) has been £15,227,000. This includes all campaign costs such as advertising, production, research, marketing, public relations, web and partner grants.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the health effects of reducing salt intake for (a) those who take strenuous exercise, (b) pregnant women and (c) the elderly; and if he will make a statement. [201863]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Diet and Nutrition Survey 2003 showed that the average intake of salt in the United Kingdom adult population was nine grams per day, more than twice the required daily intake of four grams per day for all adults, set by the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy in 1991.

In 2003, the Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition (SACN) published its report "Salt and Health", copies of this report are available in the Library. SACN recommended that the average daily intake of salt by all adults should be reduced to six grams per day. SACN found no evidence to suggest that such a reduction in salt intake would have adverse effects on any particular group in the population including pregnant women and the elderly or those who are exposed to conditions that cause extreme sweating.

Reducing average population salt intake would proportionally lower population average blood pressure levels and confer significant public health benefits by contributing to a reduction in the burden of cardiovascular disease.

Slaughterhouses: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which abattoirs (a) were prosecuted by and (b) received written warnings from the Food Standards Agency in each of the last three years. [201171]

2005

Wishaw Abattoir Limited

2006

John M Munro Limited;
Orkney Meat Limited; and Wishaw Abattoir Limited.

2007

Mathers (Inverurie) Limited; McIntosh Donald Limited; and Scotch Premier Meat Limited.

Written warnings are used in an informal advisory way by the FSA and do not form part of the formal enforcement process. The aim when issuing a written warning is to provide the food business operator with clarification of the legal requirements or to encourage compliance. They are not a criminal sanction and are used as a routine part of the hierarchy of enforcement at approved meat plants. The Meat Hygiene Service, an Executive Agency of the FSA, issued the following number of written warnings in the course of the last three financial years:

	Number
2005-06	4,676
2006-07	6,637
2007-08	3,848

Dawn Primarolo: Under European Union Food Hygiene Regulations which came into effect on 1 January 2006, veterinary attendance to carry out the prescribed official controls is required in slaughterhouses, cutting plants and game handling establishments. Subject to certain exceptions, these plants are first required to be approved by the Food Standards Agency.

The number of those establishments in the United Kingdom at 31 March 2008 was as follows:

[199060]

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill (HL) 2007-08

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter he sent to hon. Members about the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill; who drafted the letter; whom he consulted before issuing the letter; what responses he has received from hon. Members; if he will place in the Library copies of those responses; and if he will make a statement. [198727]

The Prime Minister: My letter was sent to all Labour Members of Parliament and is available in the public domain.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Cycling

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether his Department provides (a) tax-free benefits and (b) other allowances for their staff to purchase bicycles under the Cycle to Work scheme; and if he will make a statement. [198768]

Mr. Woodward: Currently there is no provision in respect of tax free benefits to purchase a bicycle under the cycle to work scheme. It is anticipated that this facility will be made available later this year when the Department has fully implemented a new HR and pay system. In the meantime the Department has made available an advance of salary to a maximum of £400 should staff wish to purchase a bicycle and associated safety equipment.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many working days were lost by his Department due to stress-related illness in each of the last 24 months; [198932]

(2) how many of his Department's staff took more than (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15, (d) 20, (e) 25, (f) 30, (g) 35 and (h) 40 days leave due to stress in each of the last five years, broken down by pay grade. [198976]

Mr. Woodward: Information on stress is not captured as a defined absence category nor in the format requested; the only figures available capture many other conditions that may not be associated directly with stress. Therefore we are unable to provide the information regarding stress-related illness due to disproportionate cost.

The health and safety of everyone in the Department is of paramount importance; we have a duty of care to help prevent staff becoming ill and to support them when they are. The Northern Ireland Office already has a series of effective policies and procedures in place which help achieve these aims. These include a welfare service and an independent confidential counselling service that is available 24 hours a day.

Inquiries

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many documents have been passed by (a) the Royal Ulster Constabulary and (b) the army to official inquiries into their respective operations in Northern Ireland in the last 28 years. [197276]

Paul Goggins: The information is as follows:

(a) The PSNI has advised that this information is not recorded centrally, and to provide the answer would incur disproportionate cost.

(b) The Ministry of Defence (MOD) has provided the following answer:

"The MOD has provided a total of approximately 3,500 MOD/Army papers to the Bloody Sunday inquiry, Billy Wright inquiry and the Rosemary Nelson inquiry".

Police: Riot Control Weapons

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Taser guns have been purchased by the police in Northern Ireland; and whether there have been any instances of their use. [202206]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable has advised that the Police Service of Northern Ireland is piloting the use of taser and has purchased 18 taser units, six for training purposes and 12 for operational deployment by officers from the Specialist Operations Branch in pre-planned operations. To date taser has not been drawn or fired in operational use.

Public Inquiries

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of (a) each public inquiry under way in Northern Ireland and (b) each Historic Enquiries Team investigation has been in each year since 1998. [203226]

Mr. Woodward: The costs to the end of March 2008 for each public inquiry under way in Northern Ireland are:

Inquiry	Cost (£ million)
The Bloody Sunday Inquiry	182.4
The Robert Hamill Inquiry	14.49
The Rosemary Nelson Inquiry	24.78
The Billy Wright Inquiry	21.12

The Wright and Hamill Inquiries are operating under the Inquiries Act 2005. The Nelson Inquiry is operating under the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 1998. The Bloody Sunday Inquiry is operating under the Tribunals Act 1921.

For the Wright and Hamill Inquiries, the Secretary of State has issued a formal notice under section 40(4) of the Inquiries Act 2005, requiring them to operate within limits for fees and hours worked per week. The Inquiries Act also places a statutory duty on the inquiry chairmen to have regard to the need to avoid unnecessary cost in every decision they make. The Nelson Inquiry, which is not operating under the Inquiries Act, has also been formally instructed to keep within limits.

I cannot provide the cost of each individual HET investigation. I can confirm that the annual expenditure on HET investigations has been as follows:

	Annual expenditure on HET investigation (£ million)
2005-06	4.32
2006-07	6.04
2007-08	7.69

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bangladesh: Storms

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance is being provided to the remaining victims of Cyclone Sidr in Bangladesh. [202573]

Mr. Malik: The total UK Government assistance to Cyclone Sidr for immediate and early recovery in Bangladesh is just over £15 million. This includes on-going support to the Cyclone victims with water supply and sanitation, livelihood regeneration, and housing. This also includes our most recent contribution of £5 million towards the comprehensive Early Recovery Action Plan programme, to be implemented by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the Bangladesh Government over the next eight to 12 months. This programme will provide housing for 20,000 families, and livelihood regeneration for 180,000 people, as well as infrastructure rehabilitation, in the worst affected villages.

For the longer term, the Government of Bangladesh have prepared a Comprehensive Damage and Needs Assessment, in close consultation and support with donors, which will set out the long-term proposals for the disaster risk fund: Risk mitigation (riverbank protection, coastal embankments, road upgrades), and disaster preparedness (cyclone shelters, early warning systems).

Developing Countries: Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what response he has made to the World Bank and International Monetary Fund assessment that food insecurity could lead to mass starvation and civil unrest amongst many of the world's poorest peoples. [202496]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb) on 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 285.

Malawi: HIV Infection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to combat HIV/AIDS in (a) Malawi and (b) Thailand. [201941]

Gillian Merron: The information is as follows:

(a) The Department for International Development (DFID) is providing £2 million a year to the National AIDS Commission (NAC) which is responsible for leading the response to HIV and AIDS in Malawi, helping people protect themselves from HIV, and supporting orphans and those living with HIV. In parallel, DFID's £100 million grant to the health sector to deliver the Essential Health Package (EHP) includes support for the prevention and management of HIV and AIDS including HIV Testing and Counselling, access to Anti-Retroviral Therapy and other HIV related services. The Global Fund for HIV TB and Malaria has provided over $145 million in Malawi

(b) There is no UK bilateral programme for Thailand. Thailand does benefit from DFID's current overall support to the Global Fund for HIV, TB and Malaria which has provided over $122 million in Thailand towards HIV programmes in the last four years.

Pakistan: Females

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government is taking to encourage the involvement of women at all levels in the democratic process in Pakistan. [201619]

Mr. Malik: Since 2002 Pakistan has made progress on strengthening the role of women in the democratic process. Most notably this has been through the reservation of 60 seats in the National Assembly and a third of all directly elected seats in local government for women. The Department for International Development (DFID) has supported these reforms through nearly £1 million of assistance to civil society to work with political representatives at all levels. We have also contributed £6 million to the United Nations Development Programme in support of women's empowerment, including the establishment a women's political school that has trained over 20,000 female Councillors. In addition, we have provided extensive support for training and promoting voter awareness during the recent elections. This targeted over 170,000 potential women voters and 5,000 female domestic election observers as part of a £3 million support package.

Rwanda: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government has taken to assist sustainable development in Rwanda. [200975]

Gillian Merron: Over the last 10 years, the UK has provided £380 million of development assistance to support poverty reduction and the recovery of Rwanda from the legacy of the 1994 genocide. This year, the Department for International Development (DFID) expects to provide £46 million, of which £33 million will be direct budget support to the government directly supporting their sustainable development goals. We have also signed a new health sector budget support agreement worth £12 million over five years to improve maternal and child health outcomes. A further £7.5 million for the period from 2008-12 will support the One UN pilot in Rwanda, designed to improve the delivery effectiveness of the UN, which is focused on sustainable development.

DFID has also provided significant technical support to the Government of Rwanda in developing its new Poverty Reduction Strategy, known as the Economic Development and Poverty Reduction Strategy (EDPRS), which was launched in 2007. DFID's future programme in Rwanda, which will expand by 16 per cent. over the next three years, will focus on building capacity for the implementation of the new strategy.

Sudan: Food Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the safety of those delivering World Food Programme supplies in Southern Sudan. [201407]

Gillian Merron: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 27 March 2008, Official Report, column 445W. Since then, hijackings of World Food Programme (WFP) trucks have continued. As of last week, 60 trucks had been hijacked, 39 drivers had been reported missing and 26 remain unaccounted for. As a result of the continuing violence, WFP announced on 17 April that it would reduce rations of cereals, pulses and sugar by half in May. The international community has consistently called on all parties to respect the neutrality of humanitarian agencies. In addition, we continue to press for the full and rapid deployment of the UN-AU peacekeeping force (UNAMID) in Darfur.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Admiralty House

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2564W, on Admiralty House, what guidance his Department issues on the liability of occupiers of official ministerial residences for the cost of cleaning on vacation of the property. [199102]

Mr. Watson: Departures from Admiralty House are dealt with on a case by case basis.

Buildings: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what minor works have been undertaken in Downing street (a) offices and (b) ministerial residences since the Prime Minister took office. [202819]

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information Departments are required to hold on whether their employees are married to other employees. [202648]

Mr. Watson: Departments are not required to hold such information.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200749]

Mr. Watson: Any increase in the employee pension contribution would be met by the employee, and not by the Department.

TREASURY

Banks

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make an assessment of the effectiveness of the board members of the Financial Services Authority in undertaking regulation of the banking sector. [202698]

Angela Eagle: The regulation of the banking sector is ultimately a matter for the Financial Services Authority (FSA). The FSA is independent from the Government although subject to the provisions of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (FSMA).

Child Trust Fund: Credit Unions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what provisions apply to the utilisation of child trust funds by parents through credit unions in (a) England and Wales, (b) Scotland and (c) Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [203229]

Angela Eagle: The rules by which credit unions must abide to be a child trust fund provider are set out in the Child Trust Fund Regulations 2004 (S.I. 2004/1450) as amended. These rules apply across the whole of the UK.

Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal Implementation Project

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assistance the Office of Government Commerce provided to, and what contact it has had with (a) the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency, (b) the Northern Ireland Department of Finance and Personnel and (c) the Valuation and Lands Agency in relation to the gateway review for the Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal Implementation Project. [203123]

Angela Eagle: The Office of Government Commerce has not provided any assistance to the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency or the Valuation and Lands Agency. Since 2006, however, the Office of Government Commerce has arranged several OGC Gateway™ reviews for the Department of Finance and Personnel on a number of their projects.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was claimed in reimbursable expenses by Senior Civil Service staff in his Department and its agencies in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [187547]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury and Valuation Office Agency's accounting systems do not hold data on reimbursable expenses by grade and the information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. For information on Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs I refer to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 5 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1055-56W.

The Government Actuary's Department does not employ any members of the senior civil service and the Royal Mint made no such payments in 2006-07. The following payments were made in 2006-07: Debt Management Office £1,000; National Savings and Investments £15,000; and OGCbuying.solutions £15,000.

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199184]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury's correspondence handling system electronically records and monitors the majority of correspondence received.

All Treasury publications are placed on the Treasury's website thereby reducing, where possible, the need for printed copies.

Employment: EU Nationals

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the average duration of employment of EU A8 nationals working in the UK since 2004. [177481]

Angela Eagle: None.

Endowment Mortgages

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether HM Treasury has investigated the role played by the Financial Services Authority in the regulation of the sale of endowment mortgages. [200190]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury has not investigated the role of the Financial Services Authority (FSA) in the mis-selling of endowment mortgages.

The FSA has invested in supervisory work to ensure firms handle mortgage endowment complaints in a fair and timely way, including formal enforcement action and fines against some ten major firms for mis-selling mortgage endowments and/or mishandling complaints about them.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 2212W, on motor vehicles: petrol alternatives, what the differentials in fuel duty are for (a) petrol, (b) diesel, (c) natural gas/biogas, (d) hydrogen and (e) bioethanol; and what changes are planned in these rates for the future. [203168]

Angela Eagle: Duty rates are available from HMRC's website at: www.hmrc.gov.uk The current rates are 50.35p per litre for petrol and diesel; 13.70p per kilogram (the equivalent of 9.47p per litre) for natural gas, including biogas and hydrogen used in an internal combustion engine; and 30.35p per litre for bioethanol.

Budget 2008 announced that the duty differential for natural gas would remain at its equivalent level until 2010, the duty differential for biogas would remain at its current level at least until Budget 2012, and the duty differential for biofuels would cease from 2010, with future support for biofuels being provided under the renewable transport fuel obligation.

Excise Duties: Motorcycles

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what factors are considered when determining the level of road tax applicable to 125cc motorbikes; and if he will make a statement. [202997]

Angela Eagle: Vehicle Excise Duty for motorbikes is banded under four engine capacity based rates with the lowest rate of £15 applying to bikes with engines not over 150cc capacity.

In taking taxation decisions as part of the Budget process the Government considers a range of factors including relevant environmental, social and economic factors.

Population: Bridgend

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely effects of migration on population density in Bridgend constituency over the next 10 years. [202106]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have been asked to reply.

Population density in Bridgend rose steadily from 1995 to 2006 as set out in the Chancellor's answer of 3 March 2008, Official Report, column 2190W and a net inflow of migration has contributed to this. Population projections within Wales, including the analysis of migration trends are a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government but migration patterns are difficult to predict.

Private Finance Initiative

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps his Department has taken to monitor the effect of its private finance initiative policies on (a) value for money and (b) staff terms and conditions; and what assessment he has made of the effect of private finance initiative projects on staff terms and conditions; [203311]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of measures introduced in 2004 to protect the workforce in private finance initiative projects. [203312]

Angela Eagle: The 2006 PFI Value for Money Assessment guidance[1] sets out the robust qualitative and quantitative assessment that needs to be undertaken to determine if PFI is a suitable procurement method. In assessing value for money in PFI, all procuring authorities should ensure PFI is used only where it is value for money and is not at the expense of employee terms and conditions. This was reiterated in HMT's recent policy document "Infrastructure procurement: delivering long-term value"[2], which also states that, working with key stakeholders, Government will continue to monitor the impact on staff.

[1] HMT Guidance on how to assess if a project would deliver value for money under PFI, updated November 2006, available on the HMT website.

[2] Published alongside the Budget Document in March 2008.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will extend the remit of the Audit Commission to central government spending. [203119]

Yvette Cooper: The Comptroller and Auditor General (C and AG) is responsible for audit in central government. The Government have accepted the recommendations of the Public Accounts Commission for improving the accountability and governance of the National Audit Office, which supports the C and AG.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs staff are employed (a) full-time and (b) part-time in Northern Ireland. [203228]

Jane Kennedy: The number of full and part-time staff employed by HM Revenue and Customs in Northern Ireland at 1 April 2008 are as follows:

(a) 1,789: full-time

(b) 575: part-time

Stamp Duties

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when the scheme for stamp duty tax relief on new zero-carbon homes will expire; [203112]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the number of (a) houses and (b) flats which will attract the stamp duty tax relief on new zero carbon homes during the scheme's duration. [203113]

Angela Eagle: We expect the numbers of qualifying transactions for both houses and flats to be initially low but to rise as more properties eligible to claim the relief go on the market. For example, in December 2007 the Government announced details of 200 new homes to be built to a zero-carbon standard in Hanham Hall, near Bristol. The media release can be found at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/corporate/611694

The stamp duty land tax relief for new zero carbon homes is time limited for five years until 30 September 2012 but before the end of the time limit the Government will review the effectiveness of the relief and consider the case for an extension.

Taxation: Aviation

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 2184, on air passenger duty, what representations his Department has received from overseas governments on the legality of the proposed aviation duty. [203020]

Angela Eagle: The consultation on the proposed aviation duty closed on 24 April 2008. This consultation considered all aspects of the duty, including basis and scope of the duty, possible exemptions, impact of the inclusion of freight and transit/transfer traffic and the operation of the duty.

A summary of responses will be published in due course.

Welfare Tax Credits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many complaints about tax credits HM Revenue and Customs received from (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public by (i) telephone, (ii) letter and (iii) e-mail in each month since April 2003; [194467]

With regard to the number of calls received on the Tax Credits helpline, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him today (194486), which shows that monthly figures, to April 2007, have previously been provided. September 2007	7,303
December 2007	4,305

TCO does not record separately the number of calls it receives from its customers.

The other information requested is available only at disproportionate cost.

HM Treasury does not routinely record statistical information on the number of letters, calls or e-mails it receives about tax credits.

Welfare Tax Credits: Telephone Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many calls were (a) received, (b) handled and (c) unanswered by (i) the claimants' and (ii) hon. Members' tax credit hotline in each year since 2003. [194486]

Welfare Tax Credits: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families in Warrington are in receipt of each category of tax credit. [203169]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC do not produce statistics separately for child tax credit and working tax credit, however estimates of the number of families with tax credits in 2005-06 in each local authority, based on final family circumstances and incomes, are published in "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Awards 2005-06 Geographical Analysis". This publication is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

The information on the number of out-of-work families includes those who are receiving child support through income support and jobseeker's allowance.

The same information for 2006-07 is due to be published on 20 May 2008.

Wine: Prices

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the evidential basis was for his statement on 12 March 2008, Official Report, column 298, that the average bottle of wine costs £4.00. [202761]

Angela Eagle: This figure has been calculated for a 75cl bottle of wine from market data for the off trade.

JUSTICE

Compensation: Industrial Diseases

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer by the Prime Minister of 12 March 2008, Official Report, column 276, on compensation for those with pleural plaque, when he expects the consultation to be launched. [202715]

Bridget Prentice: The House of Lords judgment on pleural plaques raises very complex issues. We are currently giving serious consideration to all the representations which have been made to us, and are actively exploring how people who have pleural plaques as a result of exposure to asbestos might be supported. We will set out our views as soon as we have analysed all the options.

Custodial Treatment: Young People

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much and what proportion of the Youth Justice Board's budget was spent on (a) purchasing remand and custodial places for offenders, (b) grants to local authorities and other bodies to support the development of effective practice and (c) commissioning research and publishing information in each year since it was established; and if he will make a statement. [199961]

Mr. Hanson: Since it was established in 1998 the total YJB budget of £2,939 million has been spent as follows:

(a) £1,992 million (68 per cent.) on purchasing remand and custodial places for offenders;

(b) £930 million (31 per cent.) on grants to local authorities and other bodies to support the development of effective practice;

(c) £17 million (1 per cent.) on commissioning research and publishing information.

A breakdown of this information is detailed in the following table.

Departmental Information and Communications Technology

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 187W, on departmental ICT, how many of the missing or stolen (a) laptops and (b) personal digital assistants have been replaced by his Department; and at what cost. [202506]

Mr. Wills: The Department does not keep a central record of laptops that have been replaced since 2001. As the losses were incurred from different areas across the Department, this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. When items are replaced, they are drawn either from the existing resource pool or new purchases are made through the IT suppliers' contracts.

Available records show that the personal digital assistant reported lost in 2003 was replaced at a cost of approximately £250.00.

Dogs: Animal Welfare

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions there were for dog fighting in the last 12 months. [202335]

Maria Eagle: The information held by my Department on court proceedings does not contain information about the circumstances behind each case other than the information that may be gleaned from the offence itself. As a result offences involving illegal dog fighting cannot be separately identified from other offences of animal cruelty under the Protection of Animals Act 1911, nor can it be separated from offences of 'animal fighting' under the Animal Welfare Act 2006.

Electoral Register

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent representations he has received on the system of electoral registration; and if he will make a statement. [202981]

Bridget Prentice: Since November 2007 my Department has received 105 representations about the system of electoral registration, including access to the electoral register, franchise arrangements for overseas voters and reducing the voting age to 16. I have personally written to 54 Members of Parliament in response to these representations. During the same period, I have also answered 25 parliamentary questions relating to electoral registration.

Non-molestation Orders

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have applied for a non-molestation order since 1 July 2007. [202580]

Bridget Prentice: From 1 July 2007 to 31 March 2008, 11,915 applications for a non-molestation order were made to county courts.

Prison: Paganism

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to Prison Service Instruction 2005/33, on the practice of paganism in prison, how many wands are available in prisons in (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland. [203230]

Maria Eagle: This information is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Prison Service policy is to enable prisoners of different faith traditions, including Paganism, to practise their religion. Guidance on the practice of religion in prisons is set out in Prison Service Order (PSO) 4550 (Religion), a copy of which is in the Library of the House.

The PSO contains details of religious artefacts which are allowed in possession for relevant faiths so that prisoners can practise their religion within the constraints of good order and discipline. The information on Paganism was developed in consultation with the Pagan Federation and enables prisons to facilitate its practice properly and responsibly. The religious artefacts for Pagan prisoners include a flexible twig for a wand.

Information on prisons in Northern Ireland is the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Prisoners: Early Release

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many early release offenders who have been recalled since June 2007 are still at large; what steps are being taken to apprehend them; and what offences they were convicted of. [198621]

Mr. Hanson: The end of custody licence was introduced on 29 June 2007. Eligible prisoners serving between four weeks and four years may be released under licence from prison up to up to 18 days before their automatic release date.

All prisoners released on ECL are liable to recall if they are reported to have misbehaved during the period of the licence. A decision to recall an offender from ECL lies with the governors of establishments, and it is the responsibility of the establishments to ensure the police are notified that the prisoner's ECL licence has been revoked and the offender is to be returned to custody.

Between 29 June 2007 and 29 February 2008, 745 offenders were notified as recalled, following their release on ECL. This equates to 4 per cent. of those released on ECL. As of 21 March 2008, 612 (82 per cent.) of these offenders had been returned to custody, while 133 (18 per cent.) had not yet been returned to custody. The offences for which those 133 offenders were convicted, are listed in the following table:

Offence category	Number
Violent offences against the person	38
Burglary	36
Robbery	4
Theft	51
Fraud	5
Drug	9
Driving	9
Other	52

The police local to the area where the offender was living will be notified of the recall of the offender by the Governor of the releasing establishment. Arrest and return to custody of those offenders is an operational matter for the police.

Information about end of custody licence releases and recalls is published on a monthly basis on the Ministry of Justice website at http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/endofcustodylicence.htm

The latest report was published on 31 March and refers to February as the reporting month.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the effects on prisoners of being released early. [202319]

Mr. Hanson: During the year 2006-07 there were 4,285 offenders subject to Post Release Licence (offenders serving 12 months or more and those under 22 years of age). Of these 246 (5.7 per cent.) were recalled following an allegation of a further offence.

The Home Detention Curfew Scheme (HOC) began in 1999. It is applied to prisoners serving sentences of between three months and under four years who meet the eligibility criteria. It allows prisoners to live outside prison providing they do not breach the rules of their curfew. Approximately 148,000 prisoners have been released on HDC since the scheme began. 85 per cent. complete their curfew successfully. About 4 per cent. are reported to re-offend during the curfew period.

The End of Custody Licence Scheme (ECL) came into effect on 29 June 2007. Prisoners serving sentences of four weeks or more but less than four years who meet the eligibility criteria are released under licence up to 18 days earlier than they would otherwise be released. Between 29 June 2007 and 31 March 2008 about 23,700 prisoners have been released under the scheme. Of those released NOMS have been notified that about 3 per cent. have been recalled and just 1 per cent. have been notified as allegedly offending during the ECL period.

All prisoners who are subject to HDC/ECL including those who are not subject to Post Release Licence are liable to recall if they are reported to have misbehaved during the HDC/ECL period.

During the HDC/ECL period offenders who are subject to Post-Release Licence are required to meet their Offender Manager after release and to have regular contact after that in line with Probation Service National Standards. During the HDC/ECL period prisoners are encouraged to seek employment and training and to engage with relevant community resources. These measures apply only to those who have accommodation to go to.

Prisons

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many new prison blocks have been commissioned in each of the last five years; and how many of them were commissioned under the private finance initiative model; [202529]

(2) how many new prisons have been commissioned in each of the last five years; and how many of them were commissioned under the private finance initiative model. [202530]

Mr. Hanson: 27 new prison accommodation units, which are now in use, have been commissioned since the 2003-04 financial year. Of these, two are in contracted prisons.

Financial year	Number of units in public sector prisons	Number of units in contracted prisons
2003-04	3	2
2004-05	5	0
2005-06	0	0

The contract signature for conversion works to commence at HMP Kennet, a public sector prison, took place in the financial year 2006-07. No other contracts for new prisons have been signed in the last five financial years.

Prostitution: Prosecutions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many men aged (a) 40 to 49, (b) 50 to 59, (c) 60 to 69, (d) 70 to 79 and (e) 80 years and above were prosecuted for offences relating to prostitution in each year since 1997, broken down by (i) offence and (ii) police force area. [202318]

Maria Eagle: The information requested covering offences relating to prostitution is provided in the following tables.

The figures given relate to males for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of males aged 40-49 proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences related to prostitution, by police force area and offence class, England and Wales 1997 to 2006[1, 2, 3, 4]

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Staffordshire Police Force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.
[3] Where a police force is not displayed in the table there were no defendants proceeded against for the offence from 1997 to 2006 within that force area.
[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[5] Data not available for years prior to 2004 as offences under this category are under the Sexual Offences Act 2003, which came into force on the 1st May 2004. The statute replaced many of the procuration offences in the table from 2004 onwards.

The offence of 'Failing to give up a dog for destruction to having custody of a dog whilst disqualified' is an offence under the Badger Act (1992) and the Dangerous Dogs Act (1991). It has been included in these figures, although it is not possible to tell which Act was intended when sentencing. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Young Offenders: Remand in Custody

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) 15, (b) 16 and (c) 17-year-olds were on remand in each police authority area in each year since 1997; and how many went on to serve a prison sentence. [200246]

Mr. Hanson: The numbers of 15 to 17-year-olds held on remand (incorporating untried and convicted unsentenced) in all prison establishments in England and Wales since 1997 can be found in the following table. A breakdown by police authority area is not available.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Building Research Establishment: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the role of the Building Research Establishment was in the home information pack area trials. [202459]

Caroline Flint: Building Research Establishment were sub contracted by Ipsos MORI to assist in the analysis and write-up of the findings of the area trials.

Connect Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments the (a) Core Cities Group, (b) Thames Gateway London Partnership and (c) Housing Corporation made to Connect Public Affairs in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202286]

Caroline Flint: The Housing Corporation has not made any payments to Connect Public Affairs during this period. The Core Cities Group and Thames Gateway London Partnership are independent of my Department and are open to employ public relations agencies directly. Any information should be sought from them.

Conservation Areas

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many conservation areas there are in England. [202618]

Mr. Iain Wright: English Heritage publish information on conservation areas in their annual publication Heritage Counts. The most recent edition, Heritage Counts 2007, quotes a figure of 9,374 conservation areas in England—a figure first quoted in Heritage Counts 2005—with the following qualification:

> "After the publication of Heritage Counts 2005, it became apparent while updating the figures that English Heritage had not been informed of all conservation area designations and the data gave an inaccurate representation of the total number. Heritage Counts 2005 quoted a figure of 9,374 conservation areas as of April 2005. SHER 2002 had quoted a figure of 9,027 as of June 2002. Data from local authorities collected as part of the Best Value Performance Indicator regime give a different figure of 9,273 conservation areas in England in 2005-06.
> As a result of these discrepancies, EH is investigating the feasibility of creating a national dataset of conservation areas and from 2006 has been conducting a pilot in the south east region. If this is deemed to be feasible and resources are available it may be possible to provide detailed statistics on conservation areas in a future edition of Heritage Counts".

Eco-Towns

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department owns land in any of the 15 locations short-listed as possible eco-towns. [201839]

Caroline Flint: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not own land in any of the shortlisted eco-town locations. One of the Department's Agencies, English Partnerships, owns land in one of the shortlisted locations, Pennbury near Leicester. This is the Stretton Hall farmland site included in the portfolio of 96 sites which was acquired by English Partnerships from the Department of Health in April 2005 and forms part of the agency's Hospital Sites programme.

Eco-Towns: Public Participation

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many representations (a) for and (b) against each of the 15 locations shortlisted as potential eco-towns have been received by her Department. [201846]

Caroline Flint: We are currently undertaking a three month consultation on the preliminary views on eco-town benefits and the shortlisted locations. The consultation closes on 30 June and in due course we will provide a further statement on the responses received, together with an indication of how the process influenced the policy. Our aim will be to publish this within three months of the consultation closing on 30 June.

Gardens

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are considering to end the practice of automatically classifying gardens as brownfield sites; and if she will make a statement. [201575]

Mr. Iain Wright: Annex B of Planning Policy Statement 3 "Housing" (PPS3) defines brownfield land as that > "which is or was occupied by a permanent structure, including the curtilage of the developed land and any associated fixed surface infrastructure".

There are no plans to change this definition, the substance of which was first introduced in Planning Policy Guidance note 3 in 2000, and is based on land use change statistics categories of brownfield land which have been the same since 1985.

Local authorities have always had the ability to turn down applications for inappropriate housing development in back gardens. PPS3, which came into force in April 2007, has strengthened that ability further. In particular, local authorities have now been given the ability to put in place local policies that specifically protect gardens and to separate gardens out from their wider brownfield development targets. The policy also makes clear that there is no presumption that land is suitable for housing simply because it is brownfield, stressing the need for sites to be suitable for housing development, and in suitable locations that will contribute to the creation of sustainable, mixed communities.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date a home information pack will be required for a home placed on the market before a home information pack became compulsory to market it and which is not yet sold. [202566]

Caroline Flint: We continue to keep the operation of home information packs (HIPs) under review including the date when all properties marketed for sale would require a HIP regardless of when the property was first placed on the market.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the impact stand-alone home condition report without home information packs had on transactions in the home information pack area trials. [202639]

Caroline Flint: There were no stand-alone home condition reports as part of the area trials.

Homes and Communities Agency: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what criteria the Homes and Communities Agency will use in deciding whether to invoke its powers to rule on development applications as a local planning authority. [202652]

Caroline Flint: The Homes and Communities Agency will not decide whether to invoke its powers to rule on development applications as a local planning authority.

In designated areas, local planning powers may be conferred on the Homes and Communities Agency by the Secretary of State. This will be done after consultation with relevant local authorities and local planning authorities. A designation order will specify the particular powers to be conferred on the Agency in any given case.

Housing Associations: Disabled

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what statutory obligations housing associations have to accommodate the needs of disabled tenants; [202599]

(2) what statutory obligations housing associations have to improve their housing stock for disabled tenants; [202504]

(3) what statutory obligations housing associations have to (a) rehouse disabled tenants and (b) prioritise their needs on local housing waiting lists. [202503]

Mr. Iain Wright: Housing associations (RSLs) are independent not-for-profit organisations responsible for their own lettings policy, governance and management of stock. However, under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, it is unlawful for service providers (including housing associations) to treat someone less favourably because of their disability, and they must make 'reasonable adjustments' for them, such as giving that person extra help or changing the way they provide their services.

Further, the Housing Corporation, which invests in and regulates RSLs, also has statutory duties under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. Through its regulatory code, it requires that RSLs operate according to the law, their constitutions and regulatory requirements. The code requires that they demonstrate when carrying out all their functions commitment to equal opportunities, work towards the elimination of discrimination, demonstrate an equitable approach to rights of all individuals, and be responsive to the individual circumstances of residents. RSLs should have an equalities and diversity policy.

The regulatory code requires that RSLs have lettings and sales policies which are flexible, non-discriminatory, responsive to demand, and which contribute to the need to be inclusive and ensure sustainable communities. Section 170 of the 1996 Housing Act requires that RSLs co-operate with local housing authorities to enable the latter to fulfil their duties to the homeless, the vulnerable, people in priority housing need and those covered by the Government's Supporting People policy. Where a local authority so requests, and to such an extent as is reasonable in the circumstances, RSLs must co-operate in offering accommodation to people with priority on the authority's housing register. In addition, section 106(2) of the Housing Act 1985 requires that RSLs maintain a set of rules determining priority between applicants in allocating housing accommodation and the rules governing the procedure.

Housing: Floods

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many houses were built in high flood risk areas between 1997 and 2005; and how many houses indicated in plans scheduled for completion by 2020 as part of the Government's programme to build three million new homes are to be built in areas determined by the Environment Agency as high flood risk areas. [202564]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the Lord Ryder of Wensum on 1 April 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, columns WA153-54.

Housing: Affordable Homes

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the impact of equity leaseback schemes. [198161]

Mr. Iain Wright: In June 2005 DTZ Pieda were commissioned by the Government to review existing equity release schemes. The report and summary were published in April 2007 and can be viewed on the following link:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/loanfinance

Local authorities are expected to offer packages of assistance to help ensure that resources can be used more efficiently and effectively to help more people with reduced reliance on public funding. This could include equity release schemes although this is at the discretion of the local authority.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average public subsidy per dwelling for a property was under the (a) Social Market Homebuy, (b) New Build Homebuy and (c) Open Market Homebuy schemes in 2007-08. [203061]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the average grant provided through the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing Programme for each of the homebuy products in the financial year 2007-08.

Product	Average grant (£)
Social Homebuy	12,210
New Build Homebuy	21,399
Open Market Homebuy	28,854

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many affordable homes have been built in Romsey constituency in each year since 1997. [203075]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on affordable homes by constituency is not available. Information for Test Valley local authority, which covers Romsey and Andover, is in the following table. The figures include social rent and intermediate affordable housing new build; they exclude affordable housing acquisitions.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to ensure that new residential developments in housing hotspots reflect local housing need, with particular reference to the need for affordable family homes. [203176]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning Policy Statement 3 Housing (PPS3) expects local planning authorities and regions to take a positive, plan-led approach to providing the right quantity of housing, both market and affordable, to address need and demand in their areas, and the right quality and mix of housing for their communities, based on a robust evidence-based approach. This is why PPS3 asks local planning authorities to carry out strategic housing market assessments, which should then inform the planning process.

In particular, PPS3 requires authorities to assess local need for affordable housing so that they can set appropriate targets for the amount of housing to be provided in their plans, including specifying the size and type of housing such as those for families that, in their judgment, is likely to be required.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to ensure that local authorities use appropriate mechanisms to require that homes for sale which were granted planning consent as affordable are sold to people who are on a low income and not purchased by investors to be let at an unaffordable rent. [203177]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local planning authorities can enter into planning obligations with persons with an interest in land ("developers"); to provide affordable housing in line with the needs identified in their local development plans; to restrict the occupancy of a new residential development in accordance with their local development plan policies; and restrict the sale of affordable housing units to specific organisations (for example a registered social landlord), and define affordable housing in ways to ensure that the units are sold or rented at prices that are affordable to the local community.

Housing: West Yorkshire

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes were built in each West Yorkshire constituency in each year since 1992. [203335]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on new build completions by constituency is not held centrally. Information for the districts within West Yorkshire is in the following table:

Land Use: Agriculture

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Government plan to review Planning Policy Statement 7 (2004) on developments on agricultural land; and if she will make a statement. [203074]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have no plans to revise policy in planning policy statement 7 (2004) on developments on agricultural land.

Local Authorities: Buildings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requirements there are upon a local authority to advertise the sale of a property of which it is disposing. [202560]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under section 123 of the Local Government Act 1972 and section 233 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, local authorities can dispose of land, including property, in any manner they wish. But if a local authority proposes to dispose of land that is open space, it must publish a notice of its proposals for at least two weeks in a local newspaper and consider any objections received. Open space in this context means any land laid out as a public garden, or used for the purposes of public recreation, or land which is a disused burial ground.

London Thames Gateway Development Corporation: Euro RSCG Apex Communications

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation made to Euro RSCG Apex Communications in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202285]

Caroline Flint: The London Thames Gateway Development Corporation has employed Euro RSCG Apex Communications to provide general public affairs advice on a range of issues. They have made payments in 2006-07 of £26,261 and in 2007-08 of £14,834.

National Interest Mapping Services Agreement

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes in (a) service and (b) data provision Ordnance Survey has made to the Mapping for Emergencies service since the ending of the National Interest Mapping Services Agreement; and how many staff were employed by the service (i) before and (ii) after the period covered by that agreement. [202647]

Mr. Iain Wright: Since the ending of the National Interest Mapping Services Agreement (NIMSA) no fundamental changes have been made by Ordnance Survey to the Mapping for Emergencies service, though at an operational level Ordnance Survey has extended the arrangements with a number of its partners to ensure timely local supplies of information when appropriate, as well as improving processes, contact arrangements and raising awareness of the service among civil contingency response agencies.

No changes have been made to data provision under the Mapping for Emergencies service. Authorities responding to emergencies continue to be able to request data and mapping from Ordnance Survey's full range of products and services, as may be appropriate to the specific needs of the incident.

When a Mapping for Emergencies service request is received, staff are temporarily deployed from other duties according to their specialism, to meet the particular requirements of the incident.

Information on staff deployment to the Mapping for Emergencies service prior to 1 April 1999, when NIMSA was established, is not readily available, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. In the period since NIMSA ended on 31 December 2006, a total of 12 different staff were deployed in response to two requests between 1 January and 31 March 2007. Twenty-three different staff were deployed across eight incidents during financial year 2007-2008.

Ordnance Survey: Mandate Communications

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments Ordnance Survey made to Mandate Communications/AS Biss and Co in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202287]

Mr. Iain Wright: Mandate Communications (formerly known as AS Biss and Co) provide Ordnance Survey with consultancy and advice on Corporate Communications and Public Affairs.

Mandate Communications have been contracted to Ordnance Survey since August 2007. Payments since that date amount to £42,076.20 + VAT in total.

Planning Permission: Prosecutions

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many prosecutions have been brought under building control regulations against people who have opened up access through the party wall of adjoining terraced properties without permission since 2001. [202923]

Mr. Iain Wright: None. These are two separate pieces of legislation.

The building regulations set out a series of performance standards which building work should achieve and the process for ensuring compliance with those requirements. They are enforced by the relevant building control body.

The Party Wall etc Act 1996 provides a framework for preventing and resolving disputes in relation to party walls, boundary walls and excavations near neighbouring buildings. Responsibility for ensuring compliance rests with the building owner who wishes to carry out the work. Failure to follow the procedures laid down in the Act is a civil matter for the relevant parties.

Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1275W, on regional planning and development, in which local authorities have Development Plan documents have been (a) amended by the planning inspector and (b) rejected by the planning inspector as unsound. [202481]

Mr. Iain Wright: The planning inspector does not 'amend' development plan documents. The purpose of the independent examination is to consider if the development plan document is sound. An inspector may find the document sound; he may recommend that it is changed in order to become sound; or he may find it unsound and recommend that it is withdrawn. A local authority may only adopt a plan in accordance with the inspector's recommendations; but it also may choose not to adopt a plan.

Development plan documents for the following local authorities have been found sound by inspectors subject to inspectors' recommendations for changes.

Social Rented Housing: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the statement of 25 February 2008, Official Report, column 66-67WS, on the national strategy for housing in an ageing society: disabled facilities grant (funding), whether socially rented housing built under private finance initiative arrangements will be (a) classed as publicly-funded housing and (b) required to be built to Lifetime Homes Standards from 2011. [197006]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 27 March 2008]: Social rented housing built under a PFI contract is constructed using private sector capital investment but the cost is underpinned by contractual payments to the private sector from the local authority revenue budget which are partly supported by central Government grant. On this basis PFI would count as publicly funded.

We intend that social rented homes built under PFI from 2011 are built to Lifetime Homes Standards.

Valuation Office: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information from local authority (a) planning and (b) building control departments is passed to the Valuation Office Agency via the Valuebill interface. [202631]

John Healey: No information from either planning or building control departments is passed directly to the Valuation Office Agency via the Valuebill interface.

Billing authority revenues departments send electronic billing authority reports (e-BARs) to the Valuation Office Agency via electronic interfaces developed through Valuebill. Some of these e-BARs are instigated as a result of information received by the revenues department from the planning or building control departments.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Arrests: Football

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions of supporters of each team were made at Premier League football matches in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [195833]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested, which is collated by the UK Football Policing Unit, is shown in the following tables.

Asylum: Children

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her estimate is of the percentage of funds repaid by Government to Kent county council in respect of expenditure making provision for unaccompanied asylum seeking children in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06, (c) 2006-07 and (d) 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [202368]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 30 April 2008]: The percentage of expenditure repaid to Kent in respect of expenditure claimed from the Home Office for the provision of service to unaccompanied asylum seeking children was: 100 per cent. of total eligible expenditure claimed, including special circumstances, in 2004-05 and 2005-06; 92 per cent. of total eligible expenditure claimed in 2006-07.

The grant claim timetable means that the figure for 2007-08 is not yet available.

Case Resolution Directorate: Manpower

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff are employed (a) full-time and (b) part-time in the Case Resolution Directorate; and if she will make a statement. [200119]

Mr. Byrne: There are currently 878 full-time staff and 207 part-time staff members employed within the Case Resolution Directorate. This information is based on internal management information.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what contracts her Department signed on a consultancy basis with a net value of more than £20,000 in each year since 1997. [200486]

Mr. Byrne: The Department does not hold a central record of contracts. To identify and assemble the requested list from individual records held across the Home Office Headquarters and its executive agencies would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what opinion research companies her Department has employed in each of the last five years; and what the cost was of each contract. [200488]

Mr. Byrne: During the years 2003, 2004 and 2005 the Home Office employed TNS to undertake its public opinion polling. This was at a total cost of £243,460 (ex VAT). During 2006 and 2007 Ipsos MORI carried out the opinion polling at a total cost of £264,525 (ex VAT).

Disabled

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what targets her Department has set in relation to its employment of people with disabilities over the next five years. [199043]

Mr. Byrne: The current Cabinet Office target, as set out in '10 Point Plan on creating a diverse civil service' (commonly referred to as the 10 Point Plan), for the employment of staff declaring a disability is 3.2 per cent. by April 2008.

The Department is awaiting the publication of the successor to the 10 Point Plan, which is currently being developed and due for publication later this summer.

Firearms: Crime

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2007, Official Report, columns 657-58W, on Firearms: Crime, how many (a) gun crimes and (b) arrests relating to gun crime there were (i) in England and Wales and (ii) in each police force area in each year since 2005-06. [201598]

Mr. Coaker: Available data relate to offences involving firearms (excluding air weapons) recorded during 2005-06 and 2006-07 and are given in the following table. Firearms are taken to be involved in a crime if they are fired, used as a blunt instrument or used as a threat.

The arrests collection undertaken by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary etc. More detailed data about specific offences are not collected.

Crimes recorded by the police in which firearms (excluding air weapons) were to have been used[1], by police force area: England and Wales 2005-06 and 2006-07

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The following table shows the number of work permit applications which were approved for applications from nurses and doctors from Africa, in the period 1 January 2005 to 31 December 2007.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much each police force (a) requested in recharge payments and (b) received in recharge payments from the Immigration Service where immigration officers authorised the detention of a suspected illegal immigrant, in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [202571]

Mr. Byrne: The information is as follows:

(a) Details of recharge payments made to individual police forces are in the table.

(b) The information requested about recharge payments where immigration officers have authorised the detention of a suspected illegal immigrant could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual case records and only at disproportionate cost.

Omar Ali Namo

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to be able to determine the immigration status of Omar Ali Namo (Ref N1063103). [201455]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the hon. Member on 29 April 2008.

Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 5 February 2007, Official Report, columns 670-1W, on Iraq, how many Iraqi nationals have been allowed entry into the UK while travelling with G-series passports since January 2007; how many have been granted entry using other passports issued by the Iraqi authorities; and what information her Department holds on the number of Iraqi citizens not allowed entry into the UK, broken down by type of passport. [201949]

Mr. Byrne: Information relating to the breakdown by type of document of applications for entry made by Iraqi nationals is unavailable. The United Kingdom Border Agency does not routinely collect the passport details of those individuals granted entry to the United Kingdom. Information relating to the passport details of those Iraqi nationals who have been refused entry to the United Kingdom could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to reply to the letter dated 8 February 2008 from the right hon. Member for Banff and Buchan on Mr. Kisuka. [197383]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to the right hon. Member on 29 April 2008.

Press

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of the press offices of (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies was in each year since 1996-97; what the cost was in each quarter since 1 April 2007; and if she will make a statement. [189648]

Mr. Byrne: Media relations for the whole Department and agencies are handled by the Home Office, Communication Directorate based Press Office and in addition since May 2007 the Border Agency regional network of five Press officers.

The following table provides the total cost of providing these services each financial year from 1998-99 to 2006-07; total cost figures for 2007-08 are not yet available. Cost data for earlier years and for non-departmental public bodies, is not held centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Public Order Offences: Airports

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces she has (a) received representations from and (b) had discussions with on concerns surrounding threats to public order arising from overcrowding or delays in processing passengers through airport security, customs and immigration procedures. [193124]

Mr. Byrne: The United Kingdom Border Agency regularly engages with police forces throughout the country with responsibility for airports to ensure that arriving flights are managed effectively, that passengers are processed efficiently and that threats to public order are minimised.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Cogent Sector Skills Council

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Cogent Sector Skills Council is taking to ensure that there is an adequate supply of people with the skills needed for the nuclear waste industries. [202632]

Mr. Lammy: Cogent Sector Skills Council (SSC) works with employers to ensure that the nuclear industry's skill requirements are met.

Cogent has a sector skills agreement (SSA) with the nuclear industry, Government, trade unions and other stakeholders. This identifies the skills needs of the sector and the recruitment, training and education solutions needed to address skills gaps. One important solution is the launch of the National Skills Academy for Nuclear (NSAN). NSAN is a subsidiary company of Cogent and, responding to employer demand in the sector, its focus is UK-wide with responsibilities for assuring training provision to agreed standards.

To address the specific skill needs of the nuclear waste industry, Cogent is working closely with the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority, the National Skills Academy for Nuclear and employers. The initiatives include a web-based career pathways service and development of apprenticeship/modern apprenticeship frameworks, a nuclear industry training framework and national occupational standards along with the associated Scottish/national vocational qualifications, and foundation degrees. The career pathways scope the skills to deal with current nuclear waste volumes and the requirements of a future national nuclear waste repository.

Through the Alliance of SSCs, Cogent works with related SSCs as well as with other skills bodies, such as the Engineering Construction Industry Trade Board, to ensure the full range of skills required to deal with nuclear waste are available.

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether his Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200223]

Mr. Lammy: The Department does not provide any health or social care services out of public funds.

Learning and Skills Council: Weber Shandwick Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what payments the Learning and Skills Council made to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in each of the last five years; on what date; and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202265]

Bill Rammell: The payments made by the Learning and Skills Council at this level of detail are not collected by my Department. This is an operational matter for the LSC as they determine any payments to local providers, partners and other organisations that are necessary to support the delivery of the Council's key priorities and targets. Mark Haysom, the Council's chief executive, has written to the hon. Member with further information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 30 April 2008:

I refer to your recent parliamentary question relating to the above. I am replying as your question is about the Learning and Skills Council.

Your question asked the Secretary State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what payments the Learning and Skills Council have made to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in each of the last five years; on what date; and for what purpose the payment was made in each case.

Below is a table that gives the amounts paid in the last five years totalling £94,187.87:

Mature Students: Finance

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of (a) part-time and (b) mature students are in receipt of Government-funded support for the latest period for which figures are available. [195159]

Bill Rammell: The number and proportion of undergraduate students in receipt of student support is as follows (postgraduate students do not generally qualify for support):

Part-time and mature students, England, academic year 2006/07

	Students	Students receiving loans, grants or allowances	Percentage receiving support
Part-time undergraduates	454,300	45,500	10
Full-time undergraduates aged 21 or over	368,800	307,700	83

Higher Education Statistics Agency and Student Loans Company

Part-time students need to be studying at 50 per cent. of the intensity of a full-time student to apply for both a fee and course grant. This Government was the first to introduce statutory support for part-time students, in 2000/01. In 2006/07, we introduced the most generous package of financial support ever for part-time students in England. This included increasing the maximum fee grant by 27 per cent. and an above-inflation increase in the income threshold for receiving this support.

Mature full-time students are generally eligible for the same student support package as other students but maintenance loans are only available to those under 60. They can also access targeted support including the Adult Dependants' Grant, Parents Learning Allowance, Childcare Grant and Disabled Students Allowance. Students may also qualify for a bursary from their higher education institution.

From 2008/09, we are increasing the income thresholds for the means tested maintenance grant so many more full-time students, including mature students, will receive grant support. This will mean that one third of all eligible students in England entering higher education in the academic year 2008/09 are expected to be entitled to a full non-repayable grant worth £2,835 and another one third are expected to be entitled to a partial grant.

Overseas Students: Loans

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many students from other EU member states other than the UK had a loan from the Student Loans Company at the latest date for which figures are available; and what the total value of such loans was. [202076]

Bill Rammell: EC nationals are eligible for tuition fee support only, provided that they have been ordinarily resident in the EEA and Switzerland for the three years prior to the start of their course. Prior to 2006/07 this support was in the form of a means tested grant.

During academic year 2006/07 8,300 EU domicile students took out loans with a total value of £22 million, which represents 0.6 per cent. of the total amount borrowed during the year.

Quality Improvement Agency: Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of the Quality Improvement Agency has been; and if he will make a statement. [201435]

Bill Rammell: The Quality Improvement Agency for Lifelong Learning is an advisory NDPB and was established on 1 April 2006. QIA will soon be merged with the Centre for Excellence in Leadership to form a new sector owned improvement body for the further education and skills sector.

In the financial year 2006 to 2007 the QIA's budget was £95.315 million, and its gross expenditure was £93.135 million.

In the financial year 2007 to 2008 the QIA's budget was £114.773 million. The figure for its gross expenditure in the financial year 2007-08 is not yet available as the Department will not receive the final accounts for that year from the QIA until mid July.

Student Loans Company: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the level of debt which will be owed to the Student Loans Company in each of the next five years. [200282]

Bill Rammell: The estimated amount of outstanding publicly owned student loans at the end of each of the next five financial years is:

End of financial year	Total outstanding (£ billion) (rounded to nearest £ billion)
2008-09	27
2009-10	31
2010-11	36
2011-12	41
2012-13	46

Note:
The amounts include those taken out by English domiciled students studying in the UK and EU students studying in England, as well as Mortgage Style (MS) loans taken out by English and Welsh domiciled students studying in the UK.

There will be steady growth in the total value of outstanding loans over the next five years, with estimated repayment levels being lower than the estimated value of new loans. Several years further into the future, the income contingent repayment (ICR) loans system will be fully mature and there will be consistent numbers of borrowers studying, repaying, completing repayment and having loans cancelled after 25 years. At that stage, the total value of loans in real terms is expected to peak.

These amounts include all ICR loans and do not take account of potential future sales of loans to the private sector. They include Mortgage Style loans, except those that were sold to the private sector in 1998 and 1999.

Students: Grants

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of undergraduate part-time students in England were ineligible for a fee grant solely because (a) they already had a Level 4 qualification, (b) they were studying for less than 50 per cent. of a full-time course and (c) their income was assessed as too high, in the last year for which figures are available. [200289]

Bill Rammell: Information on the sole reason for a student being ineligible for a fee grant is not available. Some students are not eligible for more than one reason.

Part-time English domiciled undergraduate students who already have a level 4 qualification or are studying at less than 50 per cent. intensity, academic year 2006/07

	Students
Already have Level 4 qualification and studying at 50 per cent. or more intensity	87,800
Without previous Level 4 qualification and studying at less than 50 per cent. intensity	119,400
Already have Level 4 qualification and studying at less than 50 per cent. intensity	133,100

The number of part-time students ineligible for a fee grant solely because their income was assessed as too high is not available.

Training: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether responsibility for funding the 14 to 19 foundation learning tier will be transferred to local authorities in 2010-11. [202434]

Bill Rammell: The responsibilities for planning, commissioning and funding of 16-18 provision will transfer to local authorities from 2010-11. The proposals for how the new system will operate are set on in the White Paper 'Raising Expectations; enabling the system to deliver' which is currently out for consultation until the 9 June. These proposals will play a critical role in helping to deliver our ambition to increase the participation age to 18 by 2015 and delivering the full range of entitlements to Diplomas, Apprenticeships and the Foundation Learning Tier. Local authorities are in the best place to lead the implementation of the new participation age locally. They are already responsible for schools and are taking responsibility for advising young people.

We are now proposing to give them new responsibilities to ensure that there is the right range of provision in place for young people to continue in education or training until age 19. In doing so, we are making sure that they have the ability to deliver in full the new curriculum and qualifications entitlement for young people, and to raise standards.

United Kingdom Accreditation Service: Grayling Political Strategy

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what payments (a) the United Kingdom Accreditation Service and (b) UFi made to Grayling Political Strategy in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202264]

Mr. Lammy: The United Kingdom Accreditation Service is a private company and I do not have detailed information about their payments to Grayling Political Strategy. However, I understand they pay them approximately £12,000 per annum for general political monitoring services. The payments made by UFI at this level of detail are not collected by my Department.

This is an operational matter for UFI since they determine any payments to local providers, partners and other organisations that are necessary to support the delivery of the UFI's key priorities and targets. Sarah Jones, UFI's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with further information. A copy of her reply will be placed in the House Library.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of childcare staff in England had childcare qualifications which were obtained overseas in each of the last five years. [202876]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on staff qualifications that are relevant to working with children and young people. The percentage of paid staff in England holding an overseas qualification for each year available is shown in the following table.

Table 1: proportion of all paid staff holding an overseas qualification

Percentage

	2005	2006
Full day care	<0.5	<0.5
Full day care in children's centres	n/a	<0.5
Sessional	<0.5	<0.5

Childminders	n/a	<0.5
Nursery schools	n/a	<0.5
Primary schools with nursery and reception classes	n/a	1
Primary schools with reception but no nursery classes	n/a	0

Notes:
1. Children's centres were included in the survey for the first time in 2006; therefore data is not available for previous years.
2. After school and holiday clubs were sampled differently in 2005 and comparable figures for this year are not available.
3. Early years settings in maintained schools were not included in the 2005 survey.

Children: Obesity

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children aged between (a) two and 15 and (b) 10 and 15 were estimated to be obese in each year from 1990 to 2008; and if he will make a statement. [200994]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The information is not available in the exact format requested.

Data on the prevalence of obesity among children aged two to 10, 11 to 15, and two to 15 between 1995 and 2006 can be found in the "Health Survey for England 2006 latest trends", published 31 January 2008. The data are presented in table 4 (obesity) of the "Children trend tables 2006". Copies of this publication are available in the Library.

Information on the proportion of children who are obese in the age range 10 to 15, and for the years 1990 to 1994 and 2007 to 2008 are not available.

Food: Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers are qualified to teach food technology. [203148]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not currently available.

Gifted and Talented Programme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools are not taking part in the gifted and talented programme. [203147]

Jim Knight: Provisional data from the January 2008 school census shows that the percentage of schools identifying gifted and talented learners has increased by 3 per cent. in the secondary sector and 11 per cent. in the primary sector to 94 per cent. and 76 per cent. respectively. This shows continued strong progress towards the target for having all schools identifying gifted and talented learners by 2010.

Head teachers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average age of (a) primary school and (b) secondary school head teachers was in each year since 1997. [203224]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the average age of full-time head teachers employed in local authority maintained nursery/primary and secondary schools in England, March 1997 to 2006.

Music: Wider Opportunities Programme

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department has taken to build on the Wider Opportunities programme; [203009]

(2) how many pilot schemes were set up as part of the Wider Opportunities programme; how long the pilots lasted; and how many pilots are in operation; [203019]

(3) what funding his Department provided for the Wider Opportunities music programme in each year since 2003; [203013]

(4) what the status of the Wider Opportunities music programme is; and what plans there are for extending it beyond its pilot areas. [203018]

Jim Knight: There were 13 Wider Opportunities pilot authorities: Barking and Dagenham, Croydon, Devon, Haringey, Hertfordshire, Kirklees, Manchester, Newham, Norfolk, Northamptonshire, Oxfordshire, Portsmouth and Staffordshire. All of the pilot authorities have learnt from their experience and are continuing to address the objectives of giving as many pupils as possible access to free instrumental tuition during key stage 2 care, which Ofsted[1] recommended should last for at least one year.

In 2003-04 each local authority received an additional £10,000 in its Standards Fund allocation for music specifically to support activities linked to wider opportunities at key stage 2. These additional payments of £10,000 were also made in 2005-06 and 2006-07. In 2006-07 a further £3 million was allocated nationally to support wider opportunities work, with £23 million allocated for this purpose in 2007-08. These allocations were shared on a formula based on the number of key stage 2 pupils with a weighting for social disadvantage. For 2008 to 2011 the Standards Fund Music Grant still includes a formula based sum (£23 million a year) to enhance access to instrumental and vocal opportunities at key stage 2.

Since 2006 "Wider Opportunities" has come to be used to describe not a single model but rather a number of models which deliver instrumental and vocal tuition across whole class and year groups. Guidance for schools on instrumental and vocal tuition at key stage 2 was produced in March 2006 and updated[2] in September 2007.

We continue to support the objectives of widening musical opportunities for children and young people, and announced a record £332 million investment for music in schools on 21 November 2007. Our aspiration, as set out in the Standards Fund guidance sent to directors of Children Services in December 2007, is that by 2011 programmes will be in place that will result in every child having the opportunity to learn a musical instrument for free, normally in a large group or whole class setting, for at least one year.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 315W, what the findings were from the June 2007 School Funding Reforms analyses into the cost of delivering the free entitlement in private voluntary and independent nurseries; what the findings of these analyses were; and if he will place in the Library the analyses. [202909]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally. As part of the package of reforms to early years funding which we announced in June last year we asked local authorities to undertake an analysis of the cost of delivering the free early education in the private, voluntary and independent sector specifically to inform local budget setting for 2008 to 2011. Local authorities will use their local analyses to inform the development of a single funding formula for delivery of the free entitlement in their authority by 2010.

Primary Education

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary schools there were in each local authority area in England in each year since 1996-97. [202965]

Primary Education: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the proportion of children who completed Key Stage 2 with adequate levels of literacy and numeracy; and if he will make a statement. [201114]

Jim Knight: Levels of literacy and numeracy in primary school leavers are most commonly measured by the proportions of children gaining National Curriculum level 4 and above in English and mathematics, since these represent the expected national standard. Children who reach Level 3 of the National Curriculum are assessed as having effective skills in English and mathematics and can demonstrate a good standard of reading and mental addition and subtraction. They are able to read a range of texts accurately independently, tackle unfamiliar words, discuss their mathematical work and begin to explain their thinking. Children achieving Level 4 have access to more complex forms of language and more complex ideas. They develop their own strategies for solving problems and are using these strategies both in working within mathematics and in applying mathematics to practical contexts.

Achievement of the target Level 4 provides children with a solid foundation in learning from which to access the full secondary curriculum—79 per cent. of pupils who achieved Level 4 (in a combination of English, Mathematics and Science) at Key Stage 2 in 2002 went on to get five or more good GCSEs in 2007.

The Department's new Public Service Agreements published as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review in October 2007 have a dual focus on ensuring that pupils reach the levels expected for their age in both English and mathematics (threshold targets) and improving the rates of progress made by pupils from ages 5-16 (new progression targets) with increased attention to achieving faster progress for underachieving groups such as children in care and minority ethnic pupils. The progression targets will be a major factor in helping all pupils—regardless of their background and circumstances—to realise their potential in English and mathematics in particular.

Information on the attainment of pupils in Key Stage 2 English and mathematics tests since 1994-1995 is shown in the following table:

[1] Levels W and 1 were valid in 1995 and 1996 only. Level 6 was valid from 1995 - 2002 only. A represents pupils who were absent. T represents pupils working at the level of the assessment but unable to access the test. D represents pupils disapplied from teacher assessment. B represents pupils who were assessed by teacher assessment only. N represents pupils who took the tests but failed to register a Level. W represents pupils who are "working towards" Level 1 but have not yet achieved the standards needed for Level 1.

Note:

Data cover all schools entering pupils for KS2 tests.

(2) what the average public expenditure per pupil on education was in each parliamentary constituency in the North West in each year since 1997. [202733]

Jim Knight: The available information is contained within the tables. There are two breaks in the time series because of changes to data collection: 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the CLG (formally ODPM) to the section 52 form from the DCSF (formally DFES). 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) to schools and the associated restructuring of the outturn tables. The change in sources is shown by the blank columns. Local government reorganisation (LGR) took place during the mid to late 1990s and those LAs that did not exist either pre or post LGR are shaded out for those years.

Schools: Inspections

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the current Ofsted inspection cycle is for schools; how this varies for high and low performing schools; what plans there are to change the inspection cycle; and if he will make a statement. [203086]

Jim Knight: The current school inspection cycle began in September 2005. Ofsted is required to inspect each maintained school by 1. August 2009 and, following that inspection, to inspect each such school within three school years from the end of the school year in which the last inspection took place.

Within the cycle, the frequency of inspection is determined by Ofsted. Schools that are judged to require significant improvement are subject to a monitoring visit, which takes place between six and eight months after the relevant inspection, followed by a full inspection after a year. Those schools judged to require special measures receive termly monitoring visits until they are removed from this category. However, if they remain in special measures for two years they will be re-inspected at that point. In addition, some schools that are judged by Ofsted to be satisfactory overall but with underperformance in some areas of their work receive a monitoring visit between 12 and 18 months after the inspection.

The inspection cycle and other aspects of the school inspection arrangements from September 2009 are currently under review by the Department and Ofsted.

Schools: Sports

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much (a) National Lottery funding and (b) Government funding school sport received in each year since 2003-04 for which figures are available, expressed in 2007-08 prices. [203022]

Kevin Brennan: A breakdown of Exchequer funding and Big Lottery investment in England into PE and school sport from 2003-04 to 2007-08 (adjusted to 2007-08 prices) is set out in the following table:

£ million

Financial year	Lottery	DCSF/DCMS Funding

2004-05	353.7	166.3
2005-06	78.9	210

Sure Start Programme: Internet

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of the Sure Start budget was spent on updating the Sure Start website in each year for which figures are available. [202835]

Beverley Hughes: The Department spent £71,316 of the £1,329,016,000 Sure Start budget on updating the Sure Start website during the 2006-07 financial year. During the 2007-08 financial year the Department spent £82,834 of the £1,650,397,000 Sure Start budget on updating the website.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on updating the Sure Start website in each of the last five years. [202877]

Beverley Hughes: The Department spent £55,375 on editorial resources and £15,941 on enhancing and developing the Sure Start website during 2006-07, so totalling £71,316 for that financial year. During 2007-08 the Department spent £63,305 on editorial resources and £19,529 on enhancing and developing the website, so totalling £82,834 for that financial year.

Disproportionate costs would be incurred in sourcing and supplying information prior to the 2006-07 financial year.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Caleb McCarry

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which representatives of his Department met Mr Caleb McCarry on his recent visit to the UK; and what subjects were discussed at those meetings. [202147]

Meg Munn: Representatives of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Americas Directorate met US-Cuba Transition Co-ordinator, Caleb McCarry, on 15 April 2008 during his recent visit to London. They discussed issues of mutual interest concerning Cuba.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost to his Department has been of appealing against freedom of information requests submitted by Nicholas Gilby (EA/2007/71/78/79), including to the Information Tribunal; and how much has been paid to counsel representing his Department. [202720]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has not lodged any appeals against any decisions made about freedom of information requests submitted by Nicholas Gilby. Mr. Gilby did, however, appeal three decisions made by the Information Commissioner in relation to his requests for FCO papers that had previously been transferred to the National Archives, which went before the Information Tribunal in March 2008. The FCO does not hold information on the total costs to the taxpayer of Mr. Gilby's appeals in these cases.

European Union: Festivals and Special Occasions

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what events his Department has planned to mark Schuman Day on 9 May 2008. [203200]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As has been the case in previous years, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) in London has no events planned to mark Europe Day on 9 May. The FCO's network of missions across Europe do participate in Europe Day events in their host countries, respecting local circumstances.

Iran: Human Rights

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent (a) assessment he has made of the human rights situation in Iran and (b) discussions he has had with the Government of Iran on human rights. [202773]

Dr. Howells: Iran's overall human rights record is poor. We have a number of concerns about human rights violations in Iran, including the increasing use of the death penalty (and its continued use for juvenile offenders) and the growing restrictions on any form of dissent or organised protest. Human rights defenders, women's rights activists, trade unionists, non-governmental organisation workers and students continue to face pressure including intimidation, questioning, arrests and sentences on charges of 'acting against national security' or 'propaganda against the system'. Newspapers and magazines are regularly closed down and websites blocked for criticising the Government or crossing red lines. Iran's failure to live up to its commitments under the international human rights conventions it has signed up to is particularly disappointing.

We remain committed to supporting international human rights standards in Iran and regularly raise our concerns with the Iranian authorities. We usually raise human rights issues with the Government of Iran through the EU, in order to maximise impact and emphasise that our concerns are shared across a range of countries. So far this year the EU has raised human rights issues with the Iranian authorities at least seven times in meetings and made public statements on a number of issues including individual death sentences, the treatment of members of the Baha'i faith, detained human rights defenders and students, and the draft Islamic penal code. We also discuss human rights issues bilaterally with Iranian officials. Most recently, on 6 March, I issued a statement calling for the release of two detained trade unionists in Iran, and on 1 April I called in the Iranian ambassador to raise our concerns about articles of the draft penal code that would make apostasy punishable by death.

Iran: Oil

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on investments in Iranian oil and gas; and if he will make a statement. [201999]

David Miliband: The UK would prefer a more positive relationship with the Iranian Government including a constructive trade and investment relationship, but Iran has continued to act in ways that make this difficult to achieve. In particular, they have failed to comply with successive UN Security Council Resolutions. We have made clear that it cannot be business as usual and will continue to pursue a dual track approach, involving further sanctions and at the same time encouraging the Iranians to take up the E3+3's generous offer, which we are currently refreshing, as a basis for negotiations. On 17 April, during his visit to the US, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced that the UK would seek measures to act against investment in Iran's Liquefied Natural Gas sector. This is one of several options currently under discussion within the EU.

Iran: Sanctions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what decisions were reached at the 16 April meeting of the diplomatic political directors of China, the United States, Russia, the UK, France and Germany in Shanghai on (a) negotiations with, (b) sanctions against and (c) revisions to the 6 June 2006 E3+3 proposals on Iran; and if he will make a statement. [202000]

David Miliband: Discussion among the political directors from the E3+3 in Shanghai focused on how best to refresh the June 2006 offer that we made to Iran, as the other Foreign Ministers in the E3+3 and I made clear we would do in our statement marking the passage of UN Security Council Resolution 1803 on 3 March 2008. We have made it clear to Iran that our offer of dialogue remains, but that if Iran continues to refuse to comply with the demands of the international community, we will pursue further sanctions, in line with our dual-track policy of pressure and engagement.

Kosovo: Politics and Government

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received consequent upon the Government's recognition of the unilateral declaration of independence by Kosovo. [202127]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Serbian Government have made clear, both orally and in writing, their disagreement with the UK on recognition of Kosovo's independence.

Malaysia: Military Decorations

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the Government of Malaysia on the right of British veterans to wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [202148]

Meg Munn: The Malaysian authorities have raised this issue with us both in London and Kuala Lumpur.

The Permanent Secretary at the Malaysian Ministry of Defence has raised the matter with our High Commissioner in Kuala Lumpur, and Malaysian Deputy Prime Minister Najib raised the issue of the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal with my right hon. Friend the then Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, in November 2006. There were also earlier representations at an official level, both in London between the Malaysian High Commission and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, and between senior Malaysian officials and our High Commissioner in Kuala Lumpur.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what opportunity the Malaysian authorities were given to express their opinion in consultation before the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals decided that veterans could accept but not wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [202184]

Meg Munn: There were a number of contacts with the Malaysian High Commission on the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal, and the British rules on the acceptance and wear of foreign medals were fully explained.

Military Decorations

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals has ruled that a medal awarded by a foreign Government may be accepted but not worn by British veterans in the last 30 years. [201167]

Meg Munn: The Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals (HD Committee) recommended in 2006 that veterans should be allowed to accept but not wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal. Similar exceptions were made for the Kuwait and Saudi Arabian Medals following the first Gulf War. Second World War veterans who served in Greece may receive campaign medals from the Greek Government (Greek War Medal and War Star) but permission has not been given to wear the medals. There may be further examples over the last 30 years, but the HD Committee's usual practice is not to recommend acceptance of foreign medals.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many countries award medals to British service (a) personnel and (b) veterans; and whether their recipients in each instance are permitted to wear the medal. [202149]

Meg Munn: Two countries (the US and Canada) have recently awarded medals to British service personnel serving in Iraq and Afghanistan. Unrestricted permission to accept and wear foreign awards can be granted to British service personnel on exchange, attachment or loan to a foreign state, who are involved in a military operation or emergency on behalf of that state. The same applies to British service personnel serving in a UK unit in a bilateral force under the command of another country, who render special service to that country's forces in a military operation or emergency. This is consistent with both the five-year rule and the double-medalling rule, which are important in the British honours system.

Overseas Students: Scholarships

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the 2006 review of Chevening scholarships which he has placed in the Library was the same review of scholarship funding to which he referred in his written ministerial statement of 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 22-4WS, on Foreign and Commonwealth Office scholarships and fellowships. [202691]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The 2006 review of Chevening scholarships was the first of several reviews which led to the changes in Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) scholarships announced by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 13 March. There was an external review of Marshall scholarships completed in February 2007 and a formal internal review of Chevening fellowships completed in September 2007. In the context of the development of its new strategic framework, the FCO looked again at scholarship and fellowship funding in late 2007.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his written ministerial statement of 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 22-4WS, on Foreign and Commonwealth Office scholarships and fellowships, whether he has undertaken separate assessments of the Chevening, Commonwealth and Marshall scholarship programmes. [202692]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 13 March, several reviews led to the changes in Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) scholarships. There was a review of Chevening scholarships in 2006, an external review of Marshall scholarships completed in February 2007 and a formal internal review of Chevening fellowships completed in September 2007. In the context of the development of its new strategic framework, the FCO looked again at scholarship and fellowship funding in late 2007.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written Ministerial statement of 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 22-24WS, on Foreign and Commonwealth Office scholarships and fellowships, what comparative analysis he has made of his Department's engagement with alumni of his Department's scholarship schemes, including (a) Commonwealth scholarships, (b) Chevening and (c) Marshall programmes; and whether his remarks in the statement on this matter related to all three schemes. [202986]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 13 March, we have not consistently done enough to build the personal relationships with the scholars which we need to get the most out of these schemes. This applies to all three schemes, and as my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary also said, we are working hard to improve the ways in which we build links with scholars right from the start of the selection process.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written Ministerial statement of 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 22-24WS, on Foreign and Commonwealth Office scholarships and fellowships, whether his statement, that his Department had pursued high numbers of scholars which had sometimes reduced focus on quality, applied to each scholarship and fellowship scheme. [203004]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 13 March, we found a number of weaknesses in our scholarship schemes. But those weaknesses did not apply equally to all our schemes. The pursuit of numbers, which sometimes led to a reduced focus on quality, is a point which applied to the selection of some Chevening scholars.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his statement of 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 22-4WS, on FCO scholarships and fellowships, that his Department has not always maintained contact with alumni, applied equally to (a) Commonwealth, (b) Chevening and (c) Marshall scholarships. [203307]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 13 March, Official Report, columns 22-24WS), we have not consistently done enough to build the personal relationships with the scholars which we need to get the most out of these schemes. This applies to all three schemes, but as my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary also said, we are working hard to improve the ways in which we build links with scholars right from the start of the selection process.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has assessed the steps taken by the (a) Commonwealth scholarship, (b) Chevening scholarship and (c) Marshall scholarship programmes in maintaining contact with alumni. [203308]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Commonwealth Scholarship Commission (CSC) maintains good contact with Commonwealth scholarship alumni and we would like to work with the CSC to develop links between Chevening and Commonwealth alumni. The Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission and our US posts maintain good contact with Marshall alumni through the Association of Marshall Scholars in the US. In recent years we have done much to re-establish links with Chevening alumni. As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said on 13 March, we are working hard to improve the ways in which we build links with all scholars right from the start of the selection process.

Pakistan: Religious Freedom

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to monitor the treatment of (a) Christians, (b) Ahmadiyyas and (c) other religious minorities in Pakistan following the recent elections in that country. [201338]

Dr. Howells: The UK supports freedom of religion and condemns instances where individuals are persecuted because of their faith or belief. With our EU partners, we have raised our concerns over the situation of religious minorities in Pakistan and the frequent abuse of the blasphemy legislation. Since the elections, we have continued to meet with representatives of minority organisations both in London and Islamabad to monitor the treatment of minorities and inform policy. Our high commissioner in Islamabad recently met Pakistan's Minister for Education, who also has responsibility for minority affairs. We will continue to monitor the situation and raise concerns about the treatment of minorities with the Government and encourage reform or repeal of discriminatory legislation through the National Assembly.

We endorse the recommendations made by the EU Election Observation Mission (EOM) in its report of 16 April 2008 which stress the need for increased participation of minorities in the election process. A comprehensive and well-harmonised plan of action to support democratic institutions in Pakistan will flow from these lessons, taking full account of the EOM recommendations.

The UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC) is undertaking a Universal Periodic Review on the human rights records of a number of countries including Pakistan in May. The UK is participating in this dialogue and will raise the treatment of minorities during the process.

We will continue to encourage Pakistan to fulfil commitments under the UNHRC. We welcome Pakistan's decision to ratify the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and to sign the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights as well as the Convention against Torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. We look forward to early implementation of these instruments which we believe should safeguard the rights of minorities in Pakistan.

Simon Mann

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs under what circumstances the Government have been refused consular access to Simon Mann in Black Beach Prison, Equatorial Guinea; what steps were taken by the Government in response on each occasion; and if he will make a statement. [202177]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 30 April 2008]: Our consul from the British deputy high commission in Lagos was refused consular access to Simon Mann during his last visit to Equatorial Guinea in March. Since then the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London and our posts in Nigeria, which also cover Equatorial Guinea, have been taking this issue forward with the Equatorial Guinea authorities. Simon Mann's welfare remains our primary concern.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will request his US counterpart to seek regular access to Simon Mann in Black Beach Prison, Equatorial Guinea, on behalf of the Government. [202178]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 30 April 2008]: Our consular officials are seeking consular access to Simon Mann through the Equatorial Guinea authorities. Our deputy high commission in Lagos keeps in close touch with the US embassy in Equatorial Guinea, but our priority at present is to gain access for our own consular officials.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what provisions of international law apply to the granting by Equatorial Guinea to another country of consular access to one of its citizens held in prison. [202179]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 30 April 2008]: Both the UK and Equatorial Guinea are party to the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations. Article 36 provides for consular officers of one state party to communicate and have contact with its nationals in another state party to facilitate the exercise of consular functions. Article 36(1)(c) provides that

> "consular officers shall have the right to visit a national of the sending state who is in prison, custody or detention, to converse and correspond with him and to arrange for his legal representation".

Tibet: Politics and Government

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the situation in Tibet; and what steps he has taken to express the Government's concerns to the Chinese government. [201488]

Meg Munn: We remain concerned about the situation in Tibet. We regularly raise our human rights concerns with the Chinese authorities and continue to urge full compliance with international human rights obligations including; rights to freedom of association, expression, religion, access to fair trial and respect for prisoners' fundamental rights. We have urged the Chinese authorities to exercise maximum restraint in dealing with any further unrest in the Tibetan region. Most recently, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer and my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown raised issues of human rights in Tibet during their meetings with Chinese leaders at the Economic Financial Dialogue from 14 to 16 April.

USA: Cuba

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contacts his Department has had with the United States Cuba Transition Co-ordinator in each of the last five years. [203001]

Meg Munn: Officials in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) held meetings with the US-Cuba Transition Co-ordinator during his visits to London in July 2005 and April 2008. In addition FCO staff at our embassy in Washington have regular contact with colleagues at the US State Department including those dealing with Cuban policy issues.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the purpose was of the recent visit to his Department by Caleb McCarry; whom Mr McCarry met; what was (a) discussed and (b) agreed; and if he will make a statement. [203002]

Meg Munn: Representatives of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Americas Directorate met US-Cuba Transition Co-ordinator, Caleb McCarry, on 15 April 2008 during his recent visit to London. They discussed issues of mutual interest concerning Cuba and agreed that the meeting had been a useful exchange of views.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Voting Behaviour

Mr. Pickles: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what assessment the Electoral Commission has made of the effect of weekend voting on turnout in areas where weekend voting pilots have taken place. [202948]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission has produced evaluation reports on the piloting of weekend voting at a number of local government elections in England since 2002. In every instance weekend voting has been piloted alongside other initiatives or as a form of advance voting. It has therefore not been possible for the Commission to make an accurate assessment of the specific impact of weekend voting on turnout.

The Commission's pilot scheme evaluation reports can be found on its website at:

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Parliamentary Scrutiny: EU Legislation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House what plans she has to review the procedures for scrutiny of secondary legislation emanating from EU directives. [202972]

Helen Goodman: Secondary legislation arising from the implementation of EU directives is subject to the range of scrutiny processes to which all other secondary legislation is submitted, including examination by the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments and by other Select Committees of each House, and to approval in Parliament under the process laid down in the relevant primary legislation. Any secondary legislation implementing EU directives is subject to an additional requirement that it should be accompanied by a Transposition Note setting out how the relevant legislation is being transposed into UK law. There are no plans for a review.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Angling: Licenses

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the fees for (a) non-migratory coarse and trout and (b) salmon and sea trout rod licences were in each year since 1997, broken down by category of applicant. [203225]

Jonathan Shaw: Rod licence duties for the years 1997-08 to 2008-09 are shown in the following table.

Angling: Licensing

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the percentage increase was in the cost of a fishing licence for an (a) adult and (b) old age pensioner in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [202117]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The rod licence year starts on 1 April. Concessionary rates of rod licence duty do not apply to old age pensioners as a class, but rather to persons over the age of 65, Blue Badge holders and people in receipt of a disability living allowance.

The Environment Agency is under no legal obligation to offer rod licences to any class of persons at concessionary duty rates. Also concessionary rates are offered not because of an inability to pay, but to reflect reduced opportunities for angling available to those who are disabled or infirm.

Both the Agency and I recognise that the increase in concessionary duty rates for this year is significant. The Agency has publicly stated that it will use a significant proportion of the monies raised by the higher duty rates to improve access to angling for the disabled and senior anglers. I welcome this and will seek evidence from the Agency that it has honoured that commitment.

The percentage increase in rod licence duties between 2007-08 and 2008-09 for annual licences at full and concessionary rates is set out in the following table.

	2007-08 (£)	2008-09 (£)	Percentage increase

Concessionary	33.25	45.00	35

Departmental Civil Service Agencies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil service posts are to be transferred to the private sector as part of his Department's plans to outsource facilities management functions in the core Department and its agencies. [194356]

Jonathan Shaw: We are unable to confirm precise numbers of civil service posts to be transferred at this time. We are still undergoing liaison with members of the DEFRA Network to establish this information.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultation with trade unions his Department has held in relation to plans to privatise the Department's facilities management functions. [194357]

Jonathan Shaw: The DTUS was engaged immediately on adoption of the business case by DEFRA Management Board.

Consultation continues on a monthly basis with the SRO and senior member of the project team. An additional liaison route is extended to DTUS representation via the project HR subgroup forum which deals with local issues.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the framework approach used in his plans to privatise his Department's facilities management functions. [194358]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA are not adopting a framework approach. We are currently engaged with the market with a view to securing a single national contract which will deliver:

Meeting all of the workplace Support Strategic drivers.

Assisting in meeting DEFRA's SOGE Targets.

Providing investment to the estate in return for a long term contract.

Thinking beyond the traditional parameters of FM.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to adopt a 15-year contract to cover the outsourcing of facilities management functions in his Department. [194359]

Jonathan Shaw: If tender returns from the market support the cost benefit analysis and value for money can be achieved, a 15-year contract is under consideration.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what savings are expected as part of his Department's outsourcing of its facilities management functions; and if he will publish the business case for the proposed outsourcing. [194360]

Jonathan Shaw: The initial business evaluation reported a potential savings of 7.7 per cent. over the term of the contract.

Responses from the first stage of engagement with the market have confirmed that likely savings should be in the region of 6 to 10 per cent.

We regret that publication of the business evaluation, at this time, would jeopardise the Department's commercial negotiations with the market.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 March 2008, Official Report, columns 120-21W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199177]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179 and the written ministerial statement made my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected in spring 2008, and this report will detail the information to be included by Departments on data loss in their annual reports.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201725]

Jonathan Shaw: The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (ie meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 87 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 77, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Northavon of 28 February 2008, Official Report, column 1855W, on departmental ICT, what estimate his Department has made of (a) the projected cost of installing and implementing and (b) the likely annual saving in energy costs from (i) VISTA's in-built group policy options to enforce a default switch to the VISTA sleep mode after a pre-set elapsed time of inactivity and (ii) the Nightwatchman technology. [200045]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Further to our response to the hon. Member for Northavon (Steve Webb) of 28 February 2008, detailed in Official Report, column 1855W, on departmental ICT, we are now engaged in preparations to roll-out laptop VISTA devices with global pre-set power management settings.

The installation and implementation of VISTA's power management tools are covered within the IT refresh that is currently being undertaken by IBM. Expenditure for the refresh is covered within the annual service charge paid to IBM, DEFRA's strategic IT partner. As such VISTA's power management tools are freely available for us to use and no significant extra expense has been incurred in using them to set up power management regimes across the Department.

The power management settings will switch the laptops to 'hibernate' after a pre-defined period, in which mode the current desktop is copied to disk and deleted from memory. This mode draws no current, effectively switching off the PC, compared with 'sleep' mode that draws current to maintain the in-use desktop in memory.

We are also ensuring in the same VISTA settings that monitors are similarly switched back to their standby power saving mode. In parallel we are increasing ad hoc inspections by our security guards who will be labelling devices found left switched on.

A recent security guard survey indicated some 600 devices were left switched on across the main buildings on the London estate. Assuming these would all be desktops with flat screen monitors in idle mode (we do not allow active screensavers) with a combined power consumption of 53w (determined from recent power monitoring exercise) and that these devices were all left on every night and every weekend throughout the year, we are wasting some 200MwH per annum. Assuming 0.09p per KwH equates to a potential saving of nearly £20,000.

As stated in the previous response, we are taking no further action in the implementation of Nightwatchman or any other power management software until we have assessed the outcome of our VISTA rollout and the savings that the power management settings bring on energy consumed by the Department's main offices.

Departmental Manpower

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of (a) salaries for permanent Civil Service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-Civil Service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department was in each month since May 2005. [199620]

Jonathan Shaw: I can provide the following analysis of the costs of salaries for permanent civil servants and payments to temporary or agency workers within the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from May 2005. The Department does not maintain permanent non-civil service posts.

Departmental Redundancy

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people were made redundant in his Department in each of the last three years; and how much was paid in redundancy compensation in each such year. [197997]

Jonathan Shaw: This Department's 2007-08 voluntary early departure scheme is not a multi-annual scheme but was open for applications between September 2007 and January 2008 with provision set aside in this financial year for any payments to retirees, consequent on their departure under this scheme, which might fall in future years. It immediately followed a previous voluntary early departure scheme which ran from December 2006 to July 2007. We do have some records for 2005-06, however these are not as detailed as those for the last two years, so it is not possible to provide precise figures for this period.

During financial years 2006-07 and 2007-08 a total of 751 people took up the option of voluntary early retirement or severance (133 in 2006-07 and 618 in 2007-08). The estimated cost to the Department for these two periods has been £14.8 million and £49 million, respectively, on the funding of voluntary early departures under either scheme. There are currently no plans to launch further voluntary early departure schemes.

In RPA the estimated costs during the financial year 2006-07 was a credit of £74,000, which was due to a reduction in the provision for exit costs and was made up of five people. This was as a result of some staff from 2005-06 withdrawing from their arrangements. In 2007-08 14 staff left on the early departures scheme, with an estimated cost of £1,062,000.

Departmental Training

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in his Department and its agencies have attended the (a) Influencing with Integrity, (b) Emotional Intelligence, (c) Counselling Skills for the Workplace, (d) Managing your Confidence, (e) Balancing Work/Life Realities and (f) Working Assertively training course run by the National School of Government in the last 12 months for which information is available; and at what cost. [197061]

Jonathan Shaw: The following table sets out the number of Defra staff attending each course during the last 12 months and the associated cost.

Course	Defra attendees	Cost (£)
Influencing with Integrity	5	3,630
Counselling Skills for the Workplace	0	0
Managing your Confidence	1	1,149
Balancing Work/Life Realities	0	0
Working Assertively	3	2,178

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which his Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications is carried out electronically. [199190]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department does not monitor the format used for internal correspondence but virtually all of it now takes place by email. The Department's Customer Contact Unit (CCU) manages and monitors incoming correspondence. For the last six months, statistics show that around 40 per cent. of this was received and answered through the email channel.

The large majority of the Department's publications are, where practicable, made available electronically via the Department's website and/or from our distribution centre but this is not specifically monitored.

Horseracing: Death

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether racecourse administrators are required to report the deaths of racehorses on the racecourse to his Department; and if he will make a statement. [196325]

Jonathan Shaw: Racecourse administrators are not required to report the deaths of racehorses on the racecourse to DEFRA.

Land: Contamination

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to issue guidance to local authorities on the management of contaminated land. [202941]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has been working closely with the Environment Agency, the Health Protection Agency, the Food Standards Agency and other stakeholders, on the complex issue of how technical guidance on the assessment of long-term health risks to exposure from contaminated land might be updated and improved. DEFRA plans to announce significant improvements soon.

In the meantime, existing technical guidance produced by the Environment Agency continues to be available to help local authorities assess risks posed by contaminated land. This can be found on the Environment Agency's website. The Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG) has also published relevant guidance in "Planning Policy Statement 23: Planning and Pollution Control" which can be found on CLG's website.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of the press offices of (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies was in each year since1996-97; what the cost was in each quarter since 1 April 2007; and if he will make a statement. [189654]

[189655]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA was established in 2001. The number of press officers in core DEFRA is tabulated as follows, with the census point for the number of press officers taken as June for each year. The staffing numbers for the press office fluctuate during the course of any one year.

TRANSPORT

A12

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the current programme of A12 improvements will be completed in Essex; and what plans there are for a further programme of improvements to the A12 in Essex to provide for (a) better safety and (b) increased capacity. [203415]

Mr. Tom Harris: The A12/M25 Brook Street Interchange was opened on 10 March 2008. Major maintenance schemes are currently programmed to be undertaken at Kelvedon in 2008-09 and at Witham to Hatfield Peverel in 2009-10.

Future major improvements of safety and capacity to the A12 are dependent on schemes being prioritised for funding by the East of England from its Regional Funding Allocation for major transport schemes, or from other sources.

A12: Accidents

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many incidents there have been on the A12 and at junctions on the A12 in Essex which have resulted in serious injury or death over the most recent 12-month period for which figures are available; and how many people were (a) seriously injured and (b) died as a result of these incidents. [203414]

Mr. Tom Harris: The following table shows the number of people killed and seriously injured on the A12 in Essex over the past five calendar years. The Highways Agency does not currently hold any full accident figures for 2008.

Asphalt

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) quantity and (b) type is of fossil fuels used to extract, refine and manufacture each metric tonne of road-quality asphalt used on roads. [202511]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally. The Highways Agency has developed a framework for calculating the carbon footprint across all of its operations, including asphalt, and this is being applied this financial year. We have asked the UK Roads Liaison Group to consider what further research and advice will be helpful to local authorities.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the level of carbon dioxide emissions per metric tonne of road-quality asphalt from (a) all stages of its manufacture for use on roads and (b) the process of laying on to road surfaces in the latest period for which figures are available; and what assumptions are made in each calculation. [202512]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No specific estimate has been made of the levels of carbon dioxide emissions associated with the asphalt used for roads. The Highways Agency is developing a whole life value assessment tool for highway pavements which will include carbon dioxide emission calculations. It plans to implement this tool as part of its Sustainable Development Action Plan. We have asked the UK Roads Liaison Group to consider what further research and advice will be helpful to local authorities.

Brussels

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what visits to Brussels were made by each Minister in her Department by (a) Eurostar, (b) commercial flights, (c) other flights and (d) other means of travel in 2007-08. [203389]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The then Minister of State for Transport, the hon. Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman) visited the European Parliament in Brussels in May 2007 and my right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Transport (Ms Winterton) attended a meeting of the Transport Council in Brussels in November 2007. Both Ministers travelled by Eurostar.

Bus Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will introduce another Kickstart initiative to help the commercial bus industry to introduce new and enhanced services. [202518]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We are keeping under review whether to hold a further competition for Kickstart funding against the background of the proposals contained in our consultation document 'Local Bus Service Support—Options for Reform', published on 13 March.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she has taken to prevent bus companies changing their services to create more journeys within the national concessionary bus fare scheme process for remuneration per journey. [203157]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The main principle which applies to reimbursement is that bus operators should be financially no better and no worse off as a result of taking part in concessionary travel schemes. Reimbursement paid to bus operators takes two forms: revenue forgone and additional costs.

Revenue forgone is reimbursement of the fares operators would have received for existing passengers now travelling free. Here reimbursement is not based on the full commercial adult fare as, in the absence of a concession, discounted fares would be available at off-peak times.

Additional costs are those associated with carrying people who are only travelling because of the concession. The operator only receives a payment to cover the marginal additional costs of carrying these extra passengers.

As such, any rise in patronage as a result of the concession should be revenue neutral to operators.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many journey changes to bus routes were notified by bus companies to the traffic commissioners in each of the last 48 months for which figures are available. [203158]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information is not available on a monthly basis. The number of applications in Great Britain to vary the registration of a local bus service which were accepted by the traffic commissioners in the latest four years (ending 31 March) for which figures are available is as follows:

	Number
2003-04	9,976
2004-05	9,613
2005-06	9,426
2006-07	8,109

Currently, around 23,000 registered bus services operate in Great Britain. This figure does not include local services provided wholly within London, which are not subject to registration by the traffic commissioners.

Bus Services: Concessions

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of national concessionary bus fares scheme passes applied for have been issued; and what percentage of the eligible population have applied for such passes. [202738]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Responsibility for producing and issuing passes for the England-wide bus concession lies with local Travel Concession Authorities (mainly District Councils, non-metropolitan Unitaries and the Passenger Transport Executives). As such the Department for Transport does not hold information on the number of applications received. We do, however, have an estimate of the number of passes that suppliers expected to have to produce for local authorities in England outside London.

By 1 April 2008, suppliers had produced 95 per cent. of the passes they expected to have to produce and had sent out over 80 per cent. to concessionaires. By 8 April, this had increased to 99 per cent. produced and sent out.

In respect of eligibility, we estimate that around 11 million people in England are eligible for concessionary travel passes. By 8 April, around 6 million people outside London had applied for and received a new pass.

In London, concessionaires who already have a pass do not need a new one, but need to have their existing pass re-stickered to show that they are eligible for the new England-wide concession. Around 800,000 people in London have had their passes re-stickered or (if they are a new applicant) received a new pass.

Bus Services: Pendle

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much funding has been given to Pendle council to pay for the implementation of the free nationwide bus travel scheme for the elderly; and if she will make a statement. [202015]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Pendle borough council will receive special grant funding of £268,000 in 2008-09 for the improvement to statutory concessionary travel to England-wide, which was implemented on 1 April. This is in addition to its existing funding for concessionary travel which is provided through formula grant. In 2006-07, the latest for which we hold outturn data, Pendle borough council spent £1,152,000 on concessionary travel. As such the additional funding through a special grant represents an increase of 23 per cent.

Cycling: Children

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Government have taken to encourage children to practise safe cycling. [203017]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 1 May 2008]: I announced on 17 March that we would be making funding of over £3 million available to local authorities to train nearly 80,000 schoolchildren to the Bikeability standard in 2008-09. This is in addition to the 46,000 children for whom we have already funded training via local authorities and School Sports Partnerships.

Some of the local authorities receiving funding in 2008-09 are also investing their own money in Bikeability standard training to train a further 29,000 children. Other local authorities also provide Bikeability standard training as part of their normal programme without any DFT grant.

We will make further funds available for cycle training in 2009-10 and 2010-11 to help meet our objective of providing cycle training for 500,000 children by 2012.

We have also invested £18.4 million in Links to Schools which extends the National Cycle Network (NCN) from residential areas to schools. We have provided these routes to over 600 schools which encourages pupils to cycle to school by improving their safety. Further funds will be made available to achieve our aim of providing Links to Schools to 500 more schools by 2011.

The Highway Code and Arrive Alive, the Highway Code for Young Road Users both give advice to child cyclists on the wearing of safety equipment such as cycle helmets and light-coloured or fluorescent clothing which makes them easier to see at night or in poor daylight by other road users.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1195W, on departmental internet: Wikipedia, whether former Ministers and special advisers in her Department have created or amended Wikipedia entries; and (a) on which dates and (b) from which IP range the amendments listed in the answer were made. [202378]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have no central record of whether previous Ministers or special advisers have created or amended Wikipedia entries. Factual entries made by departmental officials were listed in my previous reply.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which her Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203599]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies 2007" identifies the following as the non-departmental public bodies (NDPB) that are sponsored by the Department for Transport. For each NDPB that has been identified, the number of people serving on the board has been stated.

Executive NDPB	Number of board members
British Transport Police Authority	14
Passenger Focus	14
Railway Heritage Committee	16
Northern Lighthouse Board	19
Trinity House Lighthouse Service	8

Traffic Commissioners for Great Britain	0

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many working days were lost by her Department due to stress-related illness in each of the last 24 months. [198934]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the 12 months to February 2008, the Department for Transport has experienced a 13 per cent. drop in total stress-related absence. Individual monthly figures are as follows:

Month	Total
2006
April	2,479

Local Authorities: Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether local authorities have recruited additional staff to take account of the change in April in their responsibilities under parking regulations. [202492]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally.

M1: Road Works

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects the roadworks between junctions 6 and 10 of the M1 motorway to be completed; and when she expects all lanes on this part of the road to be open. [203528]

Mr. Tom Harris: Work on M1 junction 6a to 10 widening is progressing well and the scheme is due for completion to programme in December 2008. The works are being constructed in two sections, section one from junction 10 to approximately 2.5 km south of junction 9; section 2 from 2.5 km south of junction 9 to junction 6a M25.

Highways Agency opened section one to four lanes in both directions over the Mayday bank holiday weekend, initially to 50 mph to trial motorway communications. The speed limit will be increased to the national limit, 70 mph, when commissioning of motorway communication equipment is complete. This is expected to be before the end of May.

Section two will remain under traffic management until the end of the year when it is intended that both carriageways will be running four lanes in both directions in time for the Christmas and new year holidays.

M1: Whipsnade

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) cameras and (b) other equipment are installed on the gantries recently erected in the vicinity of junction 9 of the M1 motorway; what purpose each piece of equipment serves; and if she will make a statement. [203529]

Mr. Tom Harris: (a) There are currently no cameras mounted on gantries in the vicinity of M1 junction 9. Close circuit television (CCTV) cameras used by the Eastern Regional Control Centre (ERCC) are located, one northbound and two southbound, on 15 m high masts adjacent to the gantries. ERCC use the images from CCTV to monitor local traffic conditions and to direct Highways Agency Traffic Officers to incidents and breakdowns.

(b) The following equipment is mounted on gantries in this area:

Advanced Motorway Indicators (AMI)—Located over every lane and used to control speeds.

Enhanced Message Sign (EMS)—Located over the hard shoulder and used to notify drivers of traffic conditions, weather messages, campaign messages etc.

In addition standard lane indicators which display speed and fog warnings are mounted on 3 m high posts on the entry (on) and exit (off) slip road verge.

Piracy

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance her Department issues to UK-registered ships operating in or passing through areas where there is a risk of piracy on (a) intervention in and (b) taking active steps to prevent acts of piracy. [202713]

Jim Fitzpatrick: UK registered vessels are issued with advice by the Department for Transport on taking active steps to counter piracy, armed robbery and other acts of violence against merchant shipping. This is set out in "maritime guidance note" MGN 298(M), a copy of which has been placed in the Library.

In addition to this advice, the Department issues specific tailored advice regarding particular piracy hot spots. This is based on intelligence and threat assessment, and is of a sensitive nature. The Department has regular dialogue with the industry to consider further practical measures, where appropriate.

The Department does not issue guidance to UK registered vessels on intervening in acts of piracy.

Roads

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what her Department's definition is of a pothole with reference to roads maintained by (a) the Highways Agency and (b) local authorities; [202885]

(2) what statistics her Department collates on the number of potholes in roads. [202886]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Statistics on the condition of roads in England and Wales are published annually in the National Road Maintenance Condition Survey Statistics Bulletin. Abrupt changes in the level of the road such as potholes are only one component of the overall condition of the highway and are not separately defined.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras there were in each local authority area in each year since 2001. [203340]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The Department for Transport only holds information about the number of safety camera sites (covering both fixed and mobile camera enforcement) operating within the national safety camera programme for England and Wales which ended on 31 March 2007. The following table shows the number of speed camera sites operating within the national programme within each year using the 'date established' supplied by the safety camera partnerships. Different areas entered the national programme on different dates, and in many cases had established camera sites before joining the programme which are not shown in the table.

Since 1 April 2007, the deployment of safety cameras has been the responsibility of individual local partnerships. The number of cameras in place since then will therefore be a matter for each individual partnership.

Day 1: 26 June 2007
Day 2: 3 July 2007
Day 3: 4 July 2007
Day 4: 5 July 2007
Day 5: 6 July 2007
Day 6: 10 July 2007
Day 7: 11 July 2007
Day 8: 12 July 2007
Day 9: 4 September 2007
Day 10: 5 September 2007
Day 11:6 September 2007
Day 12: 11 September 2007
Day 13: 19 September 2007
Day 14: 6 November 2007
Day 15: 18 December 2007

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost to (a) her Department and (b) the Highways Agency of the Mottram bypass public inquiry has been. [203527]

Mr. Tom Harris: All of the costs for this scheme lie with the Highways Agency. The A57/A628 Mottram Tintwistle bypass public inquiry started in June 2007. Since award of contract in August 2004 the scheme has incurred costs of £15,000,000. This includes design costs for the scheme, publication of draft orders, preparation and publication of the environmental statement, traffic modelling, legal costs, Highways Agency staff costs and the public inquiry. The specific costs for the public inquiry itself are not recorded separately.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Allotments: Local Authorities

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to ensure that local authorities make provision for allotment sites. [203575]

Mr. Iain Wright: The provision of allotments is the responsibility of local authorities. Section 23 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act 1908 places a duty on local authorities (except for inner London boroughs) to provide allotments where they perceive a demand for them in their area. Furthermore, 'Planning Policy Guidance Note 17: Planning for Open Space, Sport and Recreation, 2002' requires local authorities to make provision for all types of open space and requires them to undertake robust assessments of local needs and audits of existing open space, to establish standards for new provision. By implementing the guidance in PPG 17, local authorities should make adequate provision for allotments.

A revised good practice guide, "Growing in the Community," was published by the Local Government Association in March 2008, and includes a section on allotment provision. A free copy was sent to all local authorities.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the advertising and marketing budget of her Department and each of its agencies is for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [202463]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not have a central advertising and marketing budget.

The final evaluation of the public information campaigns carried out by the Department in 2007-08 is currently being prepared and will be published in the Department's annual report, which will be placed in the Library of the House.

Information on our agencies is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which her Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203601]

Mr. Dhanda: The Cabinet Office publication 'Public Bodies 2007' lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. 'Public Bodies 2007' can be downloaded from www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp.

Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1393-4W, on departmental publications, if she will place in the Library a copy of (a) the contents page, (b) the guidance on travel and (c) the guidance on bonuses from her Department's staff handbook. [202958]

Mr. Dhanda: A copy of the staff handbook contents page, guidance on travel and subsistence and guidance on bonuses has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many full-time posts were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in her Department in each of the last three years. [200657]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department makes use of temporary staff from employment agencies to fill certain posts. Often such posts require specialised skills. Our historical records of this practice are not in a format that enables us to provide the requested information.

In addition, permanent civil servants are on occasion asked to fulfil a role at a more senior level on a temporary basis. In such instances, a temporary responsibility allowance is awarded. Because of the way that data have been entered on our payroll system, the information requested in relation to periods of temporary responsibility, which subsequently last for longer than six months, could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Digital Mapping

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1397W, on digital mapping, who the members of the Expert Group on the Digital National Framework are. [202956]

Mr. Dhanda: The Digital National Framework Expert Group meets three times a year to coordinate its activities. The Expert Group distribution list presently comprises over 60 representatives from 45 organisations, of which 29 are private sector or commercial organisations. Some representatives participate in a corresponding role only. Generally there are around 20 participants at an Expert Group and members host the meetings. The agenda and minutes of the meeting are posted on the DNF website at:

http://www.dnf.org/Pages/about%20dnf/EGroup.asp

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1397W, on digital mapping, when the Expert Group on the Digital National Framework last met. [202967]

Mr. Dhanda: The Expert Group on the Digital National Framework last met on 5 March 2008. The meeting was hosted by Natural England in London and the minutes will appear on the DNF website

http://www.dnf.org/Pages/about%20dnf/EGroup.asp

once agreed by participants.

Fire Services: Insurance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what insurance protection for injury or death is provided for firefighters in relation to (a) standard fire and rescue work and (b) terrorist incidents. [203053]

Mr. Dhanda: The Firefighters' Compensation Scheme (England) Order 2006 provides for lump sum payments to be made in respect of firefighters who die or are permanently incapacitated on duty. A fixed amount equal to five times the annual pensionable pay of a firefighter with four years' service is paid if the person leaves dependants. £950 is paid if there are no dependants.

The scheme also provides for the payment of injury awards to firefighters injured on duty who are permanently disabled in the performance of duty. The award is based upon an assessment of loss of earnings capacity.

The scheme is non-contributory.

Floods: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1405W, on floods: repairs and maintenance, if she will break down by local government area the indicated number of households which are still displaced following the summer floods of 2007. [203525]

John Healey: The following table breaks down the number of displaced households by local authority area. The table is based on the best information available from local authorities in March 2008, which in some cases were estimates or figures provided in January. We expect figures provided in January to have decreased, and this is reflected in our estimates.

[1] January figures

Housing: Derelict Land

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the figures referred to in the answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1387-88W, on brownfield development are for the most recent year available, broken down by (a) region, (b) county and (c) local authority. [201823]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 25 April 2008]: Information on the percentage of new dwellings on previously-developed land (also referred to as 'brownfield' land) as a proportion of all new dwellings including conversions, the percentage of new dwellings on previously-residential land as a proportion of all dwellings on previously-developed land and the percentage of new dwellings on previously-residential land as a proportion of all new dwellings for 2006 has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Development on previously-residential land includes conversions, sites where dwellings are demolished and replaced as well as building on back gardens and other types of development. Local authorities have always had the power to turn down applications for inappropriate housing development in back gardens and new planning rules that came into force in April have strengthened those powers further.

In particular, councils have now been given the ability to set local policies that specifically protect gardens and to separate gardens out from their wider brownfield development targets.

Land Use: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Wirral South of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1274W, on allotments, whether the Green Space Database will include information on (a) land with green belt designation, (b) green field land, (c) playing fields and (d) gardens; [202467]

(2) what the planned expenditure is on the Green Space Database; and when it is expected to go live. [202483]

Mr. Iain Wright: The contract for the first phase of the green space database was awarded, following an open competition, for £66,163. It is expected to go live in summer 2008. The database's focus is on green spaces. It will not identify whether these are designated as green belt or green field land. It will include data on playing fiends and gardens as well as allotments, public parks and recreational woodlands.

Local Authorities: Assets

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority assets have been transferred to community control since the publication of the Communities in Control pamphlet. [202557]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Local Authorities: Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) guidance has been produced and (b) amendments are planned on the use of CCTV by local authorities. [202623]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

No guidance has been produced, nor have any amendments been planned to local authorities on the use of closed-circuit television (CCTV). The Home Office published the National CCTV Strategy last year, and a National CCTV Strategy Programme Board has been established. The programme board is reviewing the recommendations of the strategy and Ministers will have the opportunity to approve the work of the board later this year.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when her Department will respond to the letter of 21 December 2007 from South Cambridgeshire district council on the Formula Grant Distribution for 2008-09 and 2010-11. [203886]

Mr. Dhanda: A response to South Cambridgeshire district council's letter of 21 December 2007 on the Formula Grant Distribution was sent to Councillor Ray Manning on 18 February 2008.

Property: Databases

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how frequently the National Land and Property Gazetteer is updated; [203431]

(2) what the cost to (a) the public purse and (b) local authorities has been of creating the National Land and Property Gazetteer. [203432]

Mr. Iain Wright: The National Land and Property Gazetteer is maintained by the Improvement and Development Agency. It is not for Communities and Local Government to comment on it. Further information can be found on the internet at:

www.nlpg.org.uk.

Thames Gateway Delivery Corporation: Olympic Games 2012

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the remit of the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation has been amended following the award of the 2012 Olympic Games to London. [192311]

Caroline Flint: The remit of the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation, set up in 2004, is to drive forward the regeneration of the largest concentrations of brownfield land in the capital, in the Lower Lea Valley and Barking Riverside. This area now includes the main Olympic Park site at Stratford. Because of the unique nature of the Olympic Park, a specific organisation, the Olympic Delivery Authority, has been set up to deliver it, and the legacy transformation of the Olympic site is being co-ordinated by the London Development Agency, who own the land. This however is a small part of the overall London Thames Gateway Development Corporation designated area. The Olympic site is anticipated to deliver in the region of 9,000 new homes. The substantial task of regenerating the remainder of the Lea Valley, which is anticipated to deliver some 25,000 new homes, remains with the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation and no change in their remit is necessary. The Development Corporation works closely with key stakeholders and it is anticipated that it will also work with the HCA, which will, once it is set up, have a leading role in bringing together the delivery of regeneration and housing.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Census

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what changes in (a) presentation and (b) questions are planned for the 2011 census in Northern Ireland. [203434]

Paul Goggins: These are transferred matters and therefore the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Administration.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201731]

Paul Goggins: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http: //www. dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAnd Reports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www .justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformation quarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied; and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 89 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or Environmental Information Regulation (EIR) exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 46, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether any telephone numbers for use by the general public in Northern Ireland to contact offices under his Department's control are premium rate. [203436]

Mr. Woodward: There are no premium rate telephone numbers used by the general public to contact the Northern Ireland Office or its executive agencies.

Sexual Offences: Foreigners

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many foreign nationals were (a) arrested and (b) convicted of sex-related crimes in Northern Ireland in the last year for which figures are available; and what percentage of the total number of those (i) arrested and (ii) convicted of such crimes foreign nationals represented. [201350]

Paul Goggins: The total number of persons arrested for sexual offences during the financial year 2007-08 in Northern Ireland was 855,110 (13 per cent.) of which were foreign nationals.

Of the 161 persons convicted for sexual offences during the calendar year 2006 (the latest year for which figures are available), six (4 per cent.) were foreign nationals.

Conviction data are collated on the principal offence rule; so only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

It is not possible routinely to reconcile arrest data from PSNI with conviction data as PSNI data denote each offence as it has been initially recorded and this may differ from the offence for which a suspect or suspects are subsequently proceeded against in the courts.

Stratagem

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what payments the (a) Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission and (b) Criminal Justice Inspection Northern Ireland made to Stratagem in each of the last five years; and on what date each payment was made. [202259]

Paul Goggins: The following tables give the amounts and dates of payments made to Stratagem by (a) the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission and (b) Criminal Justice Inspection Northern Ireland, over the last five years.

(a) Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission

	Amount (£)
7 February 2003	176.25

HEALTH

Hepatitis C

13. Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to improve diagnosis and treatment of hepatitis C. [203371]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We recognise the importance of hepatitis C as a public health issue. This is why we have set a clear national framework to improve the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of hepatitis C in the 'Hepatitis C Action Plan for England'.

To support this, we are running a national hepatitis C awareness campaign for health care professionals and the public and funding improved epidemiological surveillance by the Health Protection Agency.

Infection Control

14. John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve infection control in the NHS. [203372]

Ann Keen: The national health service have made significant reductions on infections, and are on track to halve the methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) rate by the end of March 2008. MRSA infections are down 30 per cent. and C. difficile infections, for 65s and over, are down 23 per cent. on the same quarter in the previous year.

However, we are not stopping there. The NHS will be expected to maintain improvements on MRSA and deliver a 30 per cent. reduction in C. difficile infections by 2010-11.

We have a strategy we know will reduce infection and equipped the NHS with a toolkit to deliver it. We have invested the money—over £270 million of additional investment per year by 2010-11. We have made proper infection control a legal requirement and are inspecting all trusts against this.

Premature Babies

15. Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent changes there have been in the survival rate of premature babies born before 24 weeks. [203373]

Ann Keen: In 2005, 435 babies were born in England and Wales with a gestational age below 24 weeks. Of these, 383 (about 88 per cent.) died before their first birthday. No further information is currently available.

Primary Care

16. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he next expects to meet GPs from East Anglia to discuss primary care. [203374]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Secretary of State regularly meets general practitioners (GPs) and their representatives.

The national health service in the east of England is committed to delivering the strategic health authority's 'Improving Lives; Saving Lives' programme, which aims to ensure GP practices improve access.

MP3 Players

18. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission research into the effects on hearing of the use of personal MP3 players. [203377]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is already widely understood that playing personal audio equipment too loud can damage your hearing.

The European Commission has asked the scientific committee on emerging and newly identified health risks for an opinion on the potential health risk of exposure to noise from personal music players and mobile phones which include a music playing function.

Water

19. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department issues on the recommended daily intake of water. [203378]

Ann Keen: In temperate climates, such as the UK, the UK Government advise that six to eight glasses (about 1.2 litres) of water, or other fluids, should be consumed every day to prevent dehydration. This amount should be increased when the weather is warm or when exercising.

GP-led Health Centres

20. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultation is being carried out at the local level on the introduction of GP-led health centres. [203379]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts are currently talking to local people and NHS staff about how new GP-led health centre services are best provided to meet local needs. The precise nature of each consultation in each area will vary depending on local circumstances.

Pharmacy White Paper

21. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the Pharmacy White Paper. [203380]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have received broad support for our proposals set out in "Pharmacy in England, Building on strengths, delivering the future" from the national health service, pharmaceutical and medical representatives. Dispensing doctors have expressed some concerns about aspects of our proposals. We are currently holding public events to hear views on the White Paper generally, and on some key proposals for structural change on which there will be full consultation later this summer.

Preventive Health Check-ups

22. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to implement the preventive health check-up policy announced by the Prime Minister. [203381]

Ann Keen: The Prime Minister announced in January the Government's intention to develop a programme to assess people's risk of heart disease, stroke, diabetes and kidney disease. "Putting Prevention First", published on 1 April 2008, showed that a vascular checks programme for those aged between 40 and 74 would be clinically and cost-effective. We are now working with stakeholders to design the programme for delivery from 2009-10.

Health Inequalities

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent progress his Department has made in tackling health inequalities. [203375]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In March 2008, the Department published "Tackling Health Inequalities: 2007 Status Report on the Programme for Action", which showed progress against a range of cross-government health inequalities measures.

Acute Beds

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many delayed transfers of care from acute beds there have been in each NHS trust in the last 12 months; and what proportion of all transfers of care from acute beds this represents in each trust. [202544]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Department of Health: SitReps

Ambulance Services: Emergency Calls

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many medical 999 calls were made in each year since 1997, broken down by region; and what percentage of these resulted in ambulance dispatch in each region in each year. [203448]

Mr. Bradshaw: Calls made to national health service ambulance services through the 999-telephony line are not categorised by type of caller. Information on the number of 999 calls made by the medical profession is therefore not collected centrally. Ambulance services provide data against their trust's response times to emergency 999 calls, which are collected each year by the Department on return KA34 and published annually in "Ambulance Services, England. Statistical Bulletin, collected in accordance with KA34". In addition to emergency 999 calls, prior to 1 April 2007, trusts have also reported annual data on urgent cases (i.e. urgent patient journeys), where ambulance services were required to transport patients by an ambulance vehicle to hospital following a request from a doctor, midwife or other health care professional. Information on urgent patient journeys is published annually in the "KA34 statistical bulletin".

Copies of the "KA34 statistical bulletin" are available in the Library.

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many ambulance calls were made to ambulance call or control centres in (a) Middlesbrough and (b) Tyneside in 2007-08 or the most recent year for which information is available; [203769]

(2) how many ambulance calls made to the call centre in Middlesbrough in the last 12-month period for which information is available were from people in (a) Redcar/Cleveland, (b) Middlesbrough, (c) Darlington, (d) Hartlepool and (e) Stockton; [203797]

(3) how many 999 calls were made to ambulance or control call centres in (a) Middlesbrough and (b) Tyneside in 2007-08 or the most recent year for which information is available; [203798]

(4) how many ambulances arrived late at their destination as a result of being misdirected by the ambulance control centre in (a) Tyneside and (b) Middlesbrough in 2007-08 or the most recent 12-month period for which information is available; [203799]

(5) how many deaths occurred as a result of the ambulance service (a) being misdirected and (b) (i) arriving late and (ii) not arriving at the destination in the Teesside area of the North East, including Redcar, Cleveland, Middlesbrough, Darlington, Hartlepool and Stockton, in 2007-08 or the last 12-month period for which information is available. [203802]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not centrally collected. The data that the Department does collect on ambulance response times are published on an annual basis in the statistical bulletin, "Ambulance services, England. Statistical Bulletin collected in accordance with KA34". These documents are available in the Library.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to identify possible economies of scale in the procurement of digital mammography services. [203614]

Ann Keen: The 'Cancer Reform Strategy' stated that primary care trusts will need to give high priority to full implementation of digital mammography within the national health service breast screening programme, with all breast screening units having at least one full-field digital mammography set by 2010. Discussions are taking place on the most clinically and cost-effective method of achieving this aim.

Cancer: Health Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve support services for cancer patients. [201337]

Ann Keen: The "Cancer Reform Strategy", published in December 2007, sets out a number of initiatives to improve patient support services for those living with and beyond cancer.

These initiatives include:

ensuring patients receive high quality personalised information throughout their cancer journey on issues such as cancer treatment, local and national support services, and financial benefits;

working with cancer professionals in the NHS to improve their communication skills when dealing with patients; the establishment of a new national cancer survivorship initiative; and monitoring progress on improving patient experience through annual surveys.

More detailed information on these measures is available in chapter five of the "Cancer Reform Strategy" a copy of which is available in the Library and on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_081006

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the National Cancer Intelligence Network to complete its framework enabling accurate comparisons of England's cancer services with other countries; and when he plans to begin making such comparisons. [203610]

Ann Keen: The new National Cancer Intelligence Network (NCIN) will be launched on 18 June 2008. The NCIN will bring together relevant stakeholders to develop, build, maintain and quality assure a new national repository of cancer data.

The NCIN will also manage the delivery and publication of comparative national information on diagnosis, treatment and outcomes for types of cancer and types of patients.

During 2008, the NCIN will be collaborating closely with other countries to establish what comparisons can be made, and within what time scales. These plans will be outlined as part of the overall NCIN delivery plans, in the first annual report for 2008-09.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which costs associated with implementation of the cancer reform strategy will be met by his Department in each of the next five years; and what additional resources have been included in primary care trust allocations to cover other costs of implementing the strategy. [203611]

Ann Keen: The Impact Assessment published alongside the "Cancer Reform Strategy" sets out the estimated costs of implementing the strategy in each year. The funding to meet these expected costs is mainly being provided through primary care trusts (PCT) general allocations, with some costs met centrally. PCT allocations are not broken down into funding streams for individual services, and it is for the national health service to decide locally how best to deliver the outcomes set out in the strategy, and the actual level of resources required to do so.

Expected central programme budget expenditure in 2008-09 by the Department in support of the "Cancer Reform Strategy" is estimated at £8.6 million. Decisions on the split between central budgets and primary care trust allocations for later years have yet to be taken.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to monitor how (a) commissioners and (b) providers implement (i) advice, (ii) support and (iii) examples of best practice on (A) how to deliver high-quality, cost effective cancer services and (B) how cancer expenditure should be prioritised. [203613]

Ann Keen: Commissioners of cancer services will be subject to the wider assurance system being developed under the World Class Commissioning Programme and managed by the strategic health authorities. The Healthcare Commission will also provide an independent assessment of provider and commissioner health care organisations to ensure that they are providing a high standard of care.

Primary care trusts are funded to meet the health care needs of their populations. It is for them to prioritise this expenditure in accordance with local needs.

Cancer: Medical Treatments

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much funding his Department has allocated to the development of photodynamic therapy in the treatment of cancer in the next three financial years; [200439]

(2) what recent representations he has received on the effectiveness of photodynamic therapy in the treatment of cancer; [200440]

(3) how many patients were receiving photodynamic therapy at the latest date for which figures are available; [200442]

(4) how many patients received photodynamic therapy in each of the last three years, broken down by hospital at which treatment was dispensed. [200443]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect information on the number of patients receiving photodynamic therapy (PDT), where this treatment is provided or the cost of the treatment.

The Department has received a number of written representations about the effectiveness of photodynamic therapy cancer treatment from the charity Killing Cancer.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has issued guidance on the use of PDT in the treatment of several cancers.

It is for the national health service at a local level to decide whether to offer this treatment to patients.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission research on the efficacy of photodynamic therapy; and if he will make a statement. [200441]

Ann Keen: The Department's National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) is investing £1 million in a study to gather evidence on the clinical and cost effectiveness of photodynamic therapy for people with age-related macular degeneration.

In addition, two of the NIHR biomedical research centres established in 2007 will be undertaking research concerned with the use of photodynamic therapy. At the University College London Hospitals Biomedical Research Centre, the photodynamic therapy research will form part of a gastroenterology and hepatology research theme to which £5 million has been allocated over five years. At the Moorfields Eye Hospital Biomedical Research Centre it will be part of a programme of research to do with age-related macular degeneration to which £2.9 million has been allocated over five years.

The Department is also providing national health service support for two trials of photodynamic therapy for biliary tract cancers through the NIHR Cancer Research Network, and for two trials of photodynamic therapy for cancer of the gullet (oesophagus) through the joint Cancer Research UK/NIHR Experimental Cancer Medicine Centre at University College Hospital London.

The Medical Research Council has in the last six years funded two studies relating to photodynamic therapy at a total cost of £300,000.

Cancer: Screening

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are to increase levels of cancer screening in (a) Enfield and (b) England. [200572]

Ann Keen: We recognise the important role that screening plays and, as set out in the "Cancer Reform Strategy", we are taking steps to build on and improve our existing screening services. This includes extending the age ranges for both breast and bowel screening, so that as many people as possible have the opportunity to be screened. We estimate that this will mean that an extra three million men and women will be screened over the next five years.

It is important to remember that no screening method is perfect and anyone invited to be screened for cancer must be aware of both the benefit and harm of being screened and be able to make an informed decision on whether to take part or not.

It is for strategic health authorities working in partnership with their primary care trusts, local screening services and stakeholders to provide appropriate cancer screening services for their local populations and this includes promotion of local screening services.

Cancer: Waiting Lists

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the NHS's radiotherapy capacity to meet the 31-day waiting time target for cancer patients; and what plans he has to increase the NHS's radiotherapy capacity; [201173]

(2) whether he plans to expand the scope of the 31-day waiting time target for radiotherapy from initial to all treatment. [201174]

Ann Keen: As set out in the 'Cancer Reform Strategy', published in December 2007, the 31-day standard will be extended to cover all cancer treatments not just the initial treatment. It also acknowledges that this extension will have an impact on radiotherapy services where increased capacity will be needed if NHS trusts are to meet the extended 31-day standard. Copies of the strategy are available in the Library.

The most recent assessment of radiotherapy was undertaken by the National Radiotherapy Advisory Group as part of their report to Ministers. 'Radiotherapy: developing a world class service for England', was published in May 2007. Copies of this document are available in the Library. The report set out recommendations for improving productivity of existing radiotherapy services and for planning the increase in capacity over the coming years. These recommendations were considered as part of the development of the 'Cancer Reform Strategy', which makes clear that local investment will be needed in both equipment and work force in order to deliver a world class radiotherapy service.

Cardiovascular System: Health Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the potential of telemedicine as an effective and affordable tool for carrying out vascular checks for those aged between 40 to 74 years; [201367]

(2) what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of telemedicine pharmacies to meeting the Government's programme of free vascular checks for those aged 40 to 74 years. [201470]

Ann Keen: On 1 April 2008, the Department published 'Putting Prevention First'; a copy of this publication is available in the Library. This outlined initial analysis which confirmed that a programme to reach everybody between the ages of 40 and 74, to check their vascular risk and provide them with an individual assessment, would be both clinically effective and cost-effective.

The next step is to develop an implementation and delivery programme with key stakeholders. We will be considering different options for delivering vascular checks involving a range of providers, including pharmacies.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people have been contacted about bowel cancer screening by the bowel cancer screening system in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08; [200893]

(2) what percentage of people contacted about bowel cancer screening by the bowel cancer screening system participated in the bowel cancer screening programme in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08. [200894]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not available prior to July 2006.

Roll-out of the national NHS bowel cancer screening programme only began in April 2006, with the first invitations sent out in July 2006. Full national implementation is expected by December 2009. Within the programme, men and women are sent an invitation letter a week before they are sent a testing kit to give them the opportunity to decline receiving a testing kit if they do not wish to receive one for personal or clinical reasons.

As at 31 March 2008, 1,185,791 men and women had been sent an invitation letter, 1,099,653 had been sent a testing kit, and 590,769 had completed and returned a testing kit. This represents 50 per cent. of those who had been sent an invitation letter, and 54 per cent. of those who had been sent a testing kit. In addition, 17,192 men and women aged 70 or over had been sent a testing kit on request.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) from where the NHS Connecting for Health: bowel cancer screening system draws its contact data; [200895]

(2) how often the dataset used by the NHS Connecting for Health: bowel cancer screening system is refreshed. [200896]

Ann Keen: The bowel cancer screening system draws its data from the National Health Applications Infrastructure Services (the 'Exeter' system), which contains the names and details of all people registered with a general practitioner in England. The system is refreshed on a daily basis.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to broaden the age range of the bowel cancer screening programme; [201175]

(2) what steps he plans to take to maximise up-take of bowel cancer screening among the target population; and what arrangements he has made to monitor the efficacy of the programme. [201176]

Ann Keen: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced in September 2007 the NHS bowel screening programme will be extended from 2010 to invite men and women aged 70 to 75 to take part.

A booklet entitled 'Bowel Cancer Screening: The Facts', which provides information about bowel cancer and sets out the benefits and risks of participating in the screening programme, is sent out with each invitation. It is important to remember that no screening method is perfect and anyone invited to be screened for cancer must be aware of both the potential benefits and harms of being screened and be able to make an informed decision on whether or not to take part.

It is for strategic health authorities working in partnership with their primary care trusts, local screening services and stakeholders to provide appropriate cancer screening services for their local populations, including the promotion of local screening services.

The NHS bowel screening programme currently reports weekly returns to the Department. We are working with the Information Centre to develop a framework for the annual publication of statistics related to the programme once roll-out is completed in December 2009.

Drugs: Finance

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the sources of the planned efficiency savings in the Pooled Drug Treatment Budget 2010-11 are; and if he will make a statement. [201814]

Dawn Primarolo: Since 2001, the Department and the Home Office have provided specific resources for drug treatment in the form of the pooled drug treatment budget (PTB), which is allocated to the 149 drug action teams across the country to use, along with local mainstream funding, to provide treatment and services according to specific local needs.

The Department does not intend the funding made available through the PTB to represent the totality of funding for any area. Rather, it is designed to supplement mainstream funds and to encourage investment in improving treatment capacity and effectiveness.

The level of Government investment for substance misuse treatment within the PTB is £398 million for 2008-09, which is also the indicative figure for 2009-10 and 2010-11. However, we expect the reinvestment of the planned efficiency savings that will be made year on year until 2010-11 to reach £50 million. This reinvestment of the planned efficiency savings will allow for the expansion of treatment services to support the delivery of indicator 1 (number of drug users in effective treatment) in public service agreement 25.

Partnerships will be helped to deliver more effectively by:

changes to the allocation of the pooled treatment budget to match it more closely to activity;

the development of unit costs data to inform commissioning decisions; improved processes for assessing local need to improve targeting; and the national implementation of the treatment outcomes profile tool which will enable resources to be diverted to more effective interventions.

General Practioners: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioner surgeries there were in the Peterborough city council area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [201348]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 24 April 2008]: The information is not held in the format requested. The following table shows the number of general practitioner (GP) partnerships in the Peterborough primary care trust (PCT) area from 2001 to 2007 (a partnership may comprise a number of premises) and the number of GPs in the Peterborough PCT area from 2001 to 2007. Prior to 2001, no comparable information is available.

I am advised that Peterborough PCT is currently developing proposals for a new GP-led health centre to be opened in Peterborough next year.

[1] Data not available.

Notes:

1. The GP Census collection does not contain data on number of surgeries. A partnership may comprise a number of premises.
2. 'G' includes full-time and part-time GPs.
3. Peterborough PCT was created on 1 October 2006 from a complete merger of North Peterborough PCT and a part merger of South Peterborough PCT. Due to this part merger, data from 2006 onwards are not directly comparable with data for 2001-05. Prior to 2001, no comparable information is available for this area.

Health Services

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration he has given to the personal relationship between general practitioners and patients in formulating primary care policy. [203367]

Alan Johnson: A patient's relationship with their family doctor is of vital importance. List-based general practice is a key strength of the system that we have. It is valued by patients, doctors and the national health service as a whole.

There is no contradiction between the desire by many patients to be seen by their own general practitioner and the £250 million investment we are making in expanding primary care provision particularly in under-doctored areas.

Health Services: North West

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the public expenditure per capita on (a) primary care, (b) emergency care and (c) NHS dental provision in each constituency in the North West was in each year since 1997. [202896]

Ann Keen [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The information is not available in the format requested. The information is not collected at constituency level but has been provided by national health service body in the current North West Strategic Health Authority area. Data are available for the years 2000-01 to 2006-07.

The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Healthcare Commission: Standards

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health from what date the time taken by the Healthcare Commission to deal with a complaint is measured. [202381]

Mr. Bradshaw: We understand from the Healthcare Commission that it records the time taken for its reviews from the day it receives a new case. It takes on average three months for an independent review to be conducted.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for (a) in-patient, (b) day and (c) out-patient appointments at (i) Gloucestershire Royal Hospital and (ii) Cheltenham General Hospital was in each year since 1992. [196419]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not held in the format requested. Information is collected about median waiting times at national health service trust level, rather than individual hospital level. Gloucestershire Royal Hospital and Cheltenham General Hospital are part of Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust. The following tables show median waiting times at Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust and, before 2002-03, at its predecessor trusts, Gloucestershire Royal NHS Trust and East Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Trust.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in each primary care trust in London waited for (a) three, (b) six, (c) nine, (d) 12, (e) 15, (f) 18, (g) 21 and (h) 24 weeks and over for out-patient admission in each quarter of each of the last five years. [200366]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not held in the format requested. Data prior to 2006-07 were collected in grouped time bands of four-week waiting times. However, the waiting times measurement was changed from banded weeks to actual individual weeks for 2006-07 onwards as the maximum waiting times reduced.

The information available about the number of outpatients seen in each quarter, for each London primary care trust since 2002-03, has been placed in the Library.

Incontinence: Medical Equipment

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his Department's policy is on provision of aids and appliances for stoma patients; and if he will make a statement; [202693]

(2) what representations he has received from patient groups in response to the consultation about provision of aids and appliances for stoma patients; [202694]

(3) what the timetable is for his Department's consultation on provision of aids and appliances for stoma patients. [202695]

Dawn Primarolo: The general policy on appliances is that patients should receive cost-effective treatment to meet their clinical needs as established by appropriate national health service healthcare professionals.

Since the review of the arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances and related services began in October 2005, the following representations have been received from patient groups.

	Number
Ministerial meetings	3
Letters to Ministers	5
Meetings with officials	7

Note:
These figures do not include the numerous letters received directly from patients and their Members of Parliament.

The review is ongoing. A further consultation will be published in May 2008, together with an Impact Assessment and Equality Impact Assessment, and will be open for 12 weeks.

Ipsos MORI

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 873W, on Ipsos MORI, which policy teams commissioned work from Ipsos MORI. [203034]

Mr. Bradshaw: From March 2006 to March 2008, the following directorates commissioned work from Ipsos MORI: Equality and Human Rights; Health Protection International Health and Scientific Development; Health Improvement and Protection; Commissioning and System Management; Social Care, Local Government and Care Partnerships; and NHS Finance, Performance and Operations and Communications.

Medical Records: Databases

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what datasets are recorded by primary care trusts for inclusion on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) system. [200888]

Mr. Bradshaw: The National Health Application Infrastructure Service (NHAIS) comprises of four datasets which support: the recording and maintenance of patient demographics, that is name, national health service number, gender, date of birth and address; the payment of general practitioners, including practitioner and practice details; the call or recall of women for cervical screening, as required by the national cervical screening programme; and the call or recall of women for breast screening, as required by the national breast screening programme. In addition, the NHAIS systems are a mechanism by which patients are able to opt in to being an organ donor.

Methadone

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2008, Official Report, column 1105W, on methadone, what the cost to primary care trusts of dispensing methadone prescriptions was in 2006-07. [200509]

Dawn Primarolo: The total net ingredient cost to primary care trusts in England of methadone prescriptions in 2006-07 was £15.7 million[1]. This does not include prescriptions written in hospitals or clinics that were dispensed in the community, prescriptions dispensed in hospitals or private prescriptions.

Note:

Methadone can be prescribed as a cough suppressant, as an analgesic or for the treatment of addiction.

NHS: Finance

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the difference was between the weighted caption formula calculation and the final allocation for each primary care trust in each of the last three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [200454]

Mr. Bradshaw: The table provides the final allocations made to primary care trusts (PCTs) for the years 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09 and the percentage distance, from target allocation set by the weighted-capitation formula for every PCT for the same period.

Revenue allocations are made to PCTs on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula is used to determine each PCT's target shares of available resources to enable them to commission similar levels of health care for populations in similar need.

The formula is used to set targets, which then inform allocations. The distance from target represents the actual allocation compared to the target allocation. It is the pace of change policy that determines actual allocations, as it dictates how quickly PCTs are brought nearer to target through the distribution of additional funds.

NHS: Negligence

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the public purse was of (a) legal costs and (b) damages awarded in respect of clinical negligence cases involving the NHS in each of the last three years. [200434]

Ann Keen: The information requested is in the following table. The information was obtained from the NHS Litigation Authority's published accounts.

Year claim closed	Damages	Defence legal costs	£ Claimant legal costs
2005-06	412,245,050	54,394,083	91,252,864
2006-07	332,786,934	49,808,394	83,830,905
2007-08	384,841,739	56,848,517	108,921,201

Notes:
1. The data only cover claims made against national health service trusts, NHS foundation trusts or primary care trusts.
2. The year represents the year the claim closed, not the year of incident nor the year the claim was made.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many clinical negligence cases the NHS (a) won and (b) lost in each of the last three financial years. [200435]

Ann Keen: The information requested is in the following table and was obtained from the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA).

Number of claims won and lost by the NHSLA by year claims were closed

Year claim closed	Number of claims—nil damages 'won'	Number of claims with damages 'lost'
2005-06	3,541	3,564
2006-07	3,330	3,209
2007-08	3,054	3,630

Notes:
1. The data only cover claims made against national health services trusts, NHS foundation trusts or primary care trusts.
2. Claims 'won' are claims where the NHSLA did not pay damages. Claims 'lost' are claims where the NHSLA paid damages.
3. The numbers represent the number of cases closed per year, not the number of incidents reported per year nor the number of claims made in a year.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of clinical negligence litigation involving the NHS there were in each of the last three financial years; and how many of those cases were financed by legal aid. [200436]

Ann Keen: The NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA) provided the data requested in the following table. The data only cover claims relating to national health service trusts, NHS foundation trusts, and primary care trusts.

Number of clinical negligence claims received 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2008 and their claimant funding as at 31 March 2008

Note:
Claimants are only required to provide details of funding arrangements if a case proceeds to court.

NHS: Questionnaires

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 207W, on NHS questionnaires, how many responses were received for each of the four surveys carried out by Ipsos MORI on behalf of his Department in the financial year 2007-08. [201400]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is as follows:

General practitioner patient survey

Survey results for Access and Choice are in the process of being collated and analysed. Results will be published in July 2008.

What matters to Staff survey

A total of 9,080 questionnaires were returned from trusts and general practice staff.

National patient choice survey

Results for wave 7 (May 2007) based on 75,191 respondents;

Results for wave 8 (July 2007) based on 62,264 respondents;

Results for wave 10 (November 2007) based on 77,804 respondents.

18 Weeks patient experience pilot

The 18 weeks patient experience pilot was managed as two phases during 2007-08. In phase 1, there were 1,580 respondents. In phase 2, there were 18,656 respondents.

Nursery Nurses: Manpower

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many qualified community nursery nurses were employed in each primary care trust in each year for which figures are available. [202982]

Ann Keen [holding answer 1 May 2008]: Information on the number of qualified nursery nurses in community services employed by each primary care trust in England since 1995 has been placed in the Library.

Obesity

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish the first annual review on progress towards meeting targets under the New Ambition on Healthy Weight initiative. [203612]

Dawn Primarolo: The first annual review of progress towards meeting targets under the new ambition on healthy weight initiative will be published in spring 2009.

Osteoporosis: Females

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to provide women with accurate information on how to prevent osteoporotic fractures post-menopause; and if he will make a statement. [200369]

Ann Keen: Through the NHS Choices website, we are providing the public with information to help them make informed decisions about their health, lifestyle choices and any treatments that they need. This includes information on lifestyle factors that may prevent osteoporosis, osteoporosis treatments and advice to reduce the risk of falling.

NHS Choices contains evidence-based information drawn from sources such as NHS Direct and the National Electronic Library for Health and ensures that health professionals are able to refer their patients to a comprehensive source of information that is quality assured.

Osteoporosis: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of treating fractures resulting from osteoporosis in London, broken down by primary care trust area in the most recent period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [200368]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected centrally. However, information is available on the average cost to national health service providers of providing a range of fracture treatments. This information is collected each year through the NHS reference cost collection exercise. Copies of the national schedule of reference costs for 2006-07, "NHS Reference Costs 2006-07", are available in the Library. The information is also available on the Departments website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH082571

Pharmacy

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will review the procedure for considering applications to open pharmacies within the areas of dispensing GP practices. [203376]

Dawn Primarolo: Current arrangements in rural areas reflect previous agreements between representative bodies of pharmacists and doctors.

Our White Paper 'Pharmacy in England, Building on strengths, delivering the future' sets out a number of proposals for structural reform including market entry. We are currently holding public events to hear views on these on which there will be full consultation later this summer.

Prescriptions

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the Information Centre to publish proposals for the use of practice-level prescribing data, as announced in the Information Centre's presentation to the Inaugural Supplier Forum of 7 November 2007; whether he intends to ask the Information Centre to consult on these proposals; and if he will make a statement. [195270]

Dawn Primarolo: The Information Centre for health and social care agreed to produce a review document seeking to determine whether it will be possible to make practice-level prescribing data more accessible to the private sector with due regard to appropriate legislation, current departmental policy and the professional regulations of those involved in the supply of prescriptions.

This review is ongoing and there are currently no proposals for the release of practice-level prescribing data or any anticipated dates for changes to the current position.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the actions of the Human Tissue Authority in the case of Laura Ashworth and Rachel Leake; and if he will make a statement. [200678]

Ann Keen: The Human Tissue Act 2004 places responsibility on the Human Tissue Authority for implementing the consent requirements of the Act, which cover consent for the transplantation of organs.

There has been a long established principle that donated organs from deceased donors are matched and allocated to the person on the transplant waiting list who is most in need and who provides the best match.

Tuberculosis: Medical Treatments

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support his Department has allocated to developing more effective treatments for drug-resistant tuberculosis. [203364]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Drug-resistant tuberculosis (TB) arises mostly from either poor or incomplete previous treatment of TB. The key to tackling drug resistance is to prevent it developing in the first place, and our strategy is focused on strengthening national health service TB services to improve early case detection and completion of treatment.

The TB Toolkit launched last year provides models of best practice for the national health service to deliver TB services. We have also funded the British Thoracic Society to establish a clinical advisory network to advise on treatment of drug-resistant cases. We are also funding work to raise awareness of TB among health care professionals and groups at higher risk of TB.

Urology: Medical Equipment

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will list each of the consultations undertaken on the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances, giving in each case the dates of commencement and closure; when he expects the process to be complete; how much is has cost; and if he will make a statement; [202348]

(2) how the opinions of patients has been sought in the consultations conducted on the provision of stoma and incontinence products; and if he will make a statement. [202349]

Dawn Primarolo: The current review of the arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances—and related services—in primary care began in October 2005 and has followed the following timetable:

Consultation	Opened	Closed	Key purpose
Arrangements for the provision of dressings, incontinence appliances, stoma appliances, chemical reagents and other appliances to primary and secondary care	24 October 2005	23 January 2006	Joint consultation; setting out objectives

Proposed amendments to the Regulatory Terms of Service of Pharmacy and Appliance Contractors in relation to dispensing items listed in Part IX of the Drug Tariff	5 March 2007	2 April 2007	Given proposed service provision, sought views on amendments to terms of service
Arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances—and related services—to primary care, revised proposals.	6 September 2007	28 December 2007	Sought views on new proposals relating to reimbursement, service provision and remuneration - and terms of service

A further consultation will be published in May 2008, together with an impact assessment and equality impact assessment, and will be open for 12 weeks. No statement can be made as to when the process will be complete until that consultation has concluded.

Costs to date have been £2.4 million, but this does include the work that was done on chemical reagents and dressings in 2005 and 2006. These costs were for the services of professional advisers. The Department's costs are part of its ongoing operational budget.

The new arrangements for reagents and dressings which came into effect in October 2006 are delivering savings of £24 million year to primary care.

A wide range of patients groups have been involved in the consultation process and users have helped to inform policy at every stage.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what payments his Department made to AS Biss and Company in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202276]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development has made one single payment to AS Biss and Company of £42,652 in August 2006 for a study on how "DFID has succeeded in influencing multilateral working in the Western Balkans".

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201728]

Gillian Merron: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 77 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 25, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2008, Official Report, column 1381W, on departmental ICT, how many of the lost or stolen (a) laptops and (b) personal digital assistants have been replaced by his Department; and at what cost. [202507]

Mr. Malik: The information is as follows.

Item	Number lost, missing or stolen (since 2001)	Number replaced	Cost of replacement (£)
Personal digital assistant (PDA)	2	2	240
Laptop	32	32	25,824

The Department for International (DFID) has a large mobile workforce that requires the tools to enable them to work remotely. Laptops and PDA's are essential business tools for them and as such they are replaced if the originals are lost or stolen.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1182W, on the Departmental internet, whether Wikipedia entries have been created or amended by officials in his Department who are not special advisers or communications officials. [199951]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) Officials (excluding special advisers and communication officials) have from time to time updated Wikipedia entries, and may also have created entries. In addition to the legitimate benefit that such activities can have in terms of knowledge and information sharing, DFID's IT policy also allows private use of the web, including Wikipedia, by staff in their own time, provided such activity is in line with the Civil Service Code.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200708]

Gillian Merron: In respect of members of the defined benefit schemes, employer contribution rates are assessed for each of four ranges of pay levels. The rates for 2008-09 are:

Band	Full-time annual salary(£)	Rate from 1 April 2008 (percentage)
Band 1	19,500 and under	17.1
Band 2	19,501 to 40,500	19.5
Band 3	40,501 to 69,000	23.2
Band 4	69,001 and above	25.5

The scheme rules are laid before Parliament and copies are in the House Library.

For members of the partnership (defined contribution scheme), the employer pays a basic contribution of between 3 per cent. and 12.5 per cent. (depending on the age of the member) into a stakeholder pension product and will match the member's contribution up to a limit of 3 per cent. Employers also contribute a further 0.8 per cent. of pensionable salary to cover the cost of risk benefit cover (death in service and ill health retirement).

For 2007-08 Department for International Development (DFID) paid employers' contributions of £13,995,973.

Information on previous years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Developing Countries: Agriculture

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the findings and options of the International Assessment of Agricultural Science and Technology for Development reports to be presented to the Intergovernmental Plenary; and what steps he plans to take in tackling hunger, rural poverty and environmental degradation in the light of that assessment. [199555]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The International Assessment of Agricultural Science and Technology for Development (IAASTD) is a unique assessment involving governments, civil society and academics. The IAASTD reports are a useful contribution to the debate and understanding on agricultural knowledge, science and technology and its potential to reduce poverty and hunger around the world. Given increasing food prices and their impact on poor people they are also very timely. However, while presenting an overall consensus the IAASTD reports do reflect a diversity of views on some issues, for example on modern biotechnology.

My Department will be considering the options presented by the IAASTD and the implications this has for the UK's support to developing countries on agricultural research to help tackle hunger, rural poverty and environmental degradation. Many of the issues raised by the IAASTD, for example land degradation and impact of agricultural trade on poor farmers have already been identified by DFID, and are highlighted in our new five year research strategy which I launched on 22 April.

Developing Countries: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to encourage developing countries to provide education to girls as well as boys. [202527]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The UK Government have committed £8.5 billion for education over the 10 years to 2015-16 in support of education sector plans in developing countries.

The Department for International Development works with developing country governments to ensure gender equality is effectively addresses in education sector plans to ensure that girls, as well as boys, benefit. Our work with international and non-governmental organisations like UNICEF and the United Nations Girls Education Initiative, tackles social and economic barriers outside the education system that hinder girls' participation.

Last July (2007), the Prime Minister and United Nations' Secretary General Ban Ki Moon launched an MDG Call to Action to urge the international community to accelerate actions to achieve the Millennium Development Goals—including the Education goals. Girls' education is central to both the Education MDG and the Maternal Mortality MDG—both of which are key pillars of the Call to Action.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to assist developing countries in the funding of education. [202528]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The UK Government have committed £8.5 billion for education in developing countries over the 10 years to 2015-16. During the French President Sarkozy's recent visit to London, the UK and France agreed to each help support 8 million children in school by 2010.

The UK Government are actively engaged in galvanising international political action in support of Education for All. The G8 reaffirmed its commitment that no country committed to Education for All will be thwarted in their efforts through lack of resources, and we continue to urge other donors to meet their promises on education.

Education is one of the key pillars of the Call to Action. We are working with the United Nations and other donors to accelerate action in achieving the Millennium Development Goals. We hope to see a concrete Action Plan being agreed at the international conference, being held in New York on 25 September.

Gaza: Politics and Government

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of (a) the humanitarian situation in Gaza and (b) the effectiveness of the international community's policies to improve the humanitarian situation in Gaza over the last two years. [199670]
